Police Blotter

Crash leads to DWI arrest Holiday crackdown continues

A 19-year-old Glenmont teen faces driving while intoxicated charges after a one-car accident on Feura Bush Road.

Bethlehem police charged Aaron Arditì of 21 Henderson Road with DWI, driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content, and aggravated DWI. A Chrysler PT Cruiser with extensive damage was spotted by police off the road on Feura Bush, Tuesday, June 26.

A check of the vehicle registration brought police to 21 Henderson Road where Arditì lives.

According to police, Arditì told them he had an accident in his aunt's vehicle on Feura Bush near Elsmere Avenue and he said he was driving from his friends' home when he fell asleep at the wheel and drove off the road. Arditì then ran home following the crash and was planning to return to the scene of the accident with his mother when police arrived at the residence, police said.

Police also said Arditì admitted to drinking a glass of wine earlier in the night. He was placed in custody and will return to Bethlehem Town Court, July 17.

Other arrests

• Bethlehem police charged a 27-year-old Troy woman with DWI. Valerie Melius, of 450 Fourth Ave., was charged with DWI, failure to keep right and driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content.

According to police, Melius was stopped on Route 9W after they observed her vehicle against a guardrail. Melius was charged after allegedly failing field sobriety tests. Police said she admitted to having some beers with friends earlier in the evening. Melius will appear in court July 17.

• A Selkirk man faces DWI charges after being pulled over along Manor Drive in Glenmont.

Rozila Jakhra, 34, of 8 Dorchester Ave. was charged with felony aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content. According to police, he was stopped on Monday, June 25 and will appear in court July 10.

• A 27-year-old Albany woman faced felony forgery charges after turning herself in to police following an investigation.

Carol Ann Ruppert, 60, of 27 South St. was also charged with felony criminal possession of stolen property and petit larceny. Ruppert was charged after an incident at the Hannaford shopping center in Delmar. She was arraigned and is out on bail to appear in Bethlehem Town Court July 17.

Police agencies to enforce STOP-DWI efforts until July 8

Local law enforcement officials are continuing their STOP-DWI efforts statewide. The crackdown is aimed at making sure people are celebrating wisely and safely this holiday week.

STOP-DWI stands for "Special Traffic Options Program for Driving While Intoxicated". A STOP-DWI enforcement effort to crackdown on drunk driving during the July 4th holiday period is under way until July 8. Law enforcement agencies throughout the state are out in force to reduce the incidence of drunk driving and to ensure our roadways are safe.

"STOP-DWI efforts have led to significant reductions in the number of alcohol related fatalities, but still too many lives are being lost because of crashes caused by drunk or impaired drivers," said Commissioner David J. Swarts of the Department of Motor Vehicles and chair of the Governor's Traffic Safety Committee (GTSC). "I commend law enforcement for their efforts to ensure the safety of all motorists in New York State."

James May, president of the STOP-DWI Association said, "The New York State STOP-DWI Association is pleased to join forces with the New York State Police, County Sheriffs and municipal police agencies from across New York for the 4th of July STOP-DWI crackdown campaign. Highly visible, highly publicized efforts like the 4th of July STOP-DWI crackdown serve to remind everyone to driver sober. We hope this special effort by law enforcement helps make our roadways safe during the 4th of July holiday week."

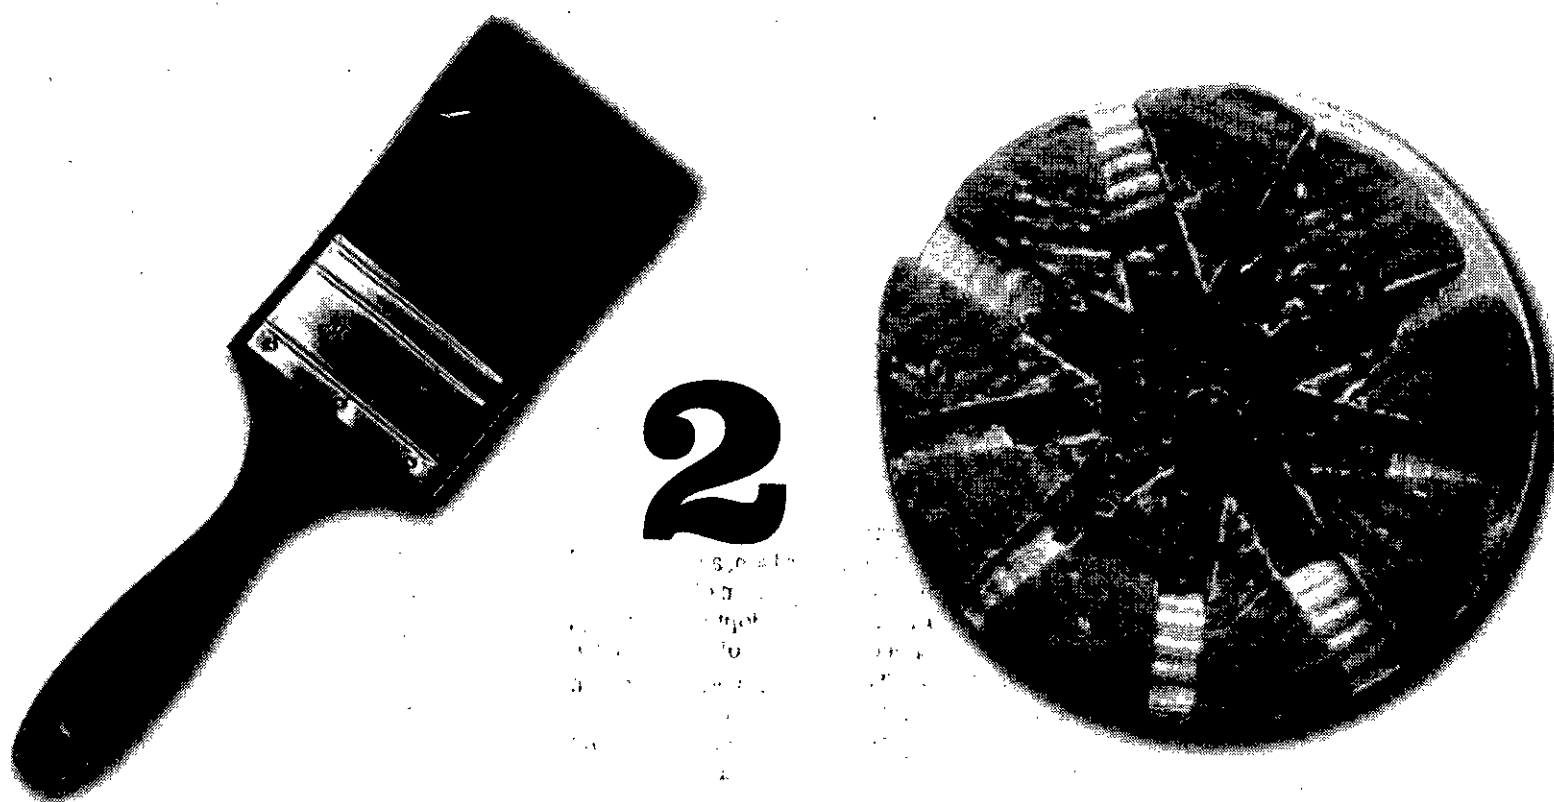

New York State Police Acting Superintendent Preston L. Felton said, "The New York State Police proudly join the Governor's Traffic Safety Committee and the STOP-DWI campaign in the continued effort to discourage, detect, and apprehend impaired drivers. Scores of senseless deaths occur on our highways because of drinking and driving, speeding, aggressive driving, and improper use of safety restraints. State Police enforcement, combined with safe and responsible driving behaviors by motorists, will give way to safer roadways for all New Yorkers this Independence Day holiday."

At a recent news conference, law enforcement agencies noted they will be stepping up their enforcement efforts throughout the year, especially during the week of Fourth of July. Last year during the period of June 30 to July 4, there were six alcohol-related crashes that resulted in six deaths, down from the eight fatalities during the same period in 2005.

While these crackdown periods produce positive results, it is important to keep in mind that every 30 minutes, someone in this country dies in an alcohol-related crash. Last year alone, more than one million people nationwide were injured in automobile crashes in which alcohol was a factor.

The STOP-DWI program was enacted for the purpose of coordinating local efforts to reduce alcohol and other drug-related crashes in a comprehensive and financially self-sustaining highway safety program.

The STOP-DWI program permits each of the state's counties to establish a STOP-DWI Program which qualifies for the return of all fines collected for alcohol and other drug-related traffic offenses occurring within its jurisdiction.

Roundabout with roundabout ends

Town approves Vista's original roundabout location

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE
devoew@spotlightnews.com

Lacking an agreement between all of the property stakeholders, and with the support of a number of town officials past and present, the Bethlehem Town Board accepted amended drawings for Vista Technology Park Mixed Economic Development (MED), with the originally proposed location for the access roundabout.

The Wednesday, June 27, meeting also saw the conclusion of a public hearing on the Vista MED that had been extended from June 13. Constantine Kontogiannis, representing KKS properties, an adjoining landowner to Vista, said there were many "process and technical aspects" that would make approving the Vista master plan and, more specifically moving the roundabout, imprudent.

Vista Park is located on 450 acres of land in Bethlehem and New Scotland. BBL Developers propose to build a 1.4 million square foot space on 150 acres of that land for technology and retail-related enterprises. Before the proposed site of the roundabout was moved, 95 percent of the rotary was on BBL's land, but the two entities could not agree on an offset cost for KKS's land or infrastructure improvements.

One point of contention was the asking price Kontogiannis gave BBL for the land they would have needed for the roundabout. Kontogiannis quoted BBL a price of $300,000 per acre, but has sold land to the Department of Transportation for $75,000 in the past.

Theresa Bakener, an attorney with Whiteman, Osterman & Hanna, the firm representing BBL, said the price would have been negotiable if Kontogiannis had shown any supporting documentation for his asking price.

"Certainly, the starting point that we would have used would have been the price that DOT had given Mr. Kontogiannis in the past," said Bakener.

Town attorney Jim Potter said he received an e-mail from Kontogiannis in which he asked that the town waive future infrastructure improvements costs.

"Wouldn't this effectively ask the taxpayers of this town to fund for any infrastructure you might need or require in the future?" Potter asked Kontogiannis.

Kontogiannis said it was not his intent to burden the taxpayers, but to have those costs borne by BBL.

Potter said it would be logistically difficult, if not impossible.

"How would we have the ability to assess those infrastructure projects against BBL if 10 years from now, you develop your property — if the Vista deal goes through today?" Potter asked.

Kontogiannis also said financing for the roundabout would negatively affect the town's municipal bond holding limit. This is not the case, according to Judith Kehoe, the town's comptroller.

"Just for the record, this would not affect our debt limit," Kehoe told the board.

Former supervisor Theresa Egan urged the board to keep the project moving forward. She also said that if Kontogiannis truly wanted to sit down and hash out any problems in the siting of the roundabout, he would have done so by now.

"I think the fact that we are sitting here in the same room three-and-a-half years after I first started dealing with this situation, and those issues not being resolved, certainly should speak volumes to all of you as to whether or not that's a reasonable representation as to whether things can get worked out between these two adjoining land owners," she said.

She said that Kontogiannis has a history of pulling out of agreements at the last minute.

"Whenever we are on the eve of an agreement with the adjacent landowners, some sort of problem would arise from Mr. Kontogiannis and the KKS group," Egan said.

Joe Richardson, a resident and member of the town of Bethlehem Industrial Development Agency, spoke in support of the approval.

"The proposal and subsequent studies have shown that the project will have a substantial and positive effect on the tax base in the town of Bethlehem," he said.

Brian Hannafin, vice president of business development and marketing for the region's Center for Economic Growth, said the project had the support of the entire center. "From our perspective, this represents a project of regional significance," he said.

A public hearing for the Vista Technology Park Special Assessment District has been set for Wednesday, July 25, at 6:15 p.m.

Holiday memories are part of the mix

St. Thomas cookbook folds together reminisces and recipes

By J. JUDE HAZARD
hazardj@spotlightnews.com

Every year, on the Saturday before Easter, the Collura family plants special jellybeans in their yard. When they wake up on Easter morning, lollipops have grown.

Stories like this will accompany recipes in a holiday-themed cookbook being created by the St. Thomas Parent-Teacher Organization in Delmar.

The cookbook will be available for sale after Thanksgiving. The editor of the cookbook, Barbara Collura, said it will cost about $15, and she expects about 250 recipes to be in the book.

"We've already accepted about 100 recipes from families who send their kids to school [at St. Thomas], but we really want to get families in the general community," Collura said. "People who grew up in Bethlehem that maybe have some great stories of celebrating the holidays here when they were kids."

The PTO hopes to collect a wide range of family and ethnic holiday traditions and memories. Collura also said that the recipes and stories were a unique way to honor the memory of someone who has died.

"It adds some more meaning and makes it more fun to be able to read what's behind it and where it came from," Collura said. "It makes it into something that just doesn't sit on the shelf but shares traditions and memories and brings everyone a little bit closer."

Collura works part time as an attorney for the Albany City Council and is on the PTO's executive board.

Debbie Knight, president of the PTO, said that Collura was the perfect person to edit the cookbook.

"She's put a tremendous amount of work and research into it already," Knight said. "She researches in a very wonderful and detailed way."

Knight said she was looking forward to adding her own holiday traditions to the book, including a walnut-and-cream-cheese dough cookie called a kolaski, which came from her father's Lithuanian family.

"It's one of those things you're probably not going to get from a book store," Knight said of the kolaski recipe. "Most moms are always looking for some kind of new thing to try. I think because these [recipes] come from friends and parishioners, it makes it more special to flip open the cookbook and see 'Oh, this is what they do. Maybe we'll try it like that.'"

Knight also said the holiday cookbook, which was originally conceived by Tom Collura, Barbara's husband, was a good fundraising opportunity for the PTO.

"We're new to fundraising at our school, and this will help supplement our PTO," Knight said. "We are hoping it will be something we can repeat every couple of years or so. With the number of incredible cooks we have, we'll probably be able to do that with no problem."

Anyone interested in submitting a recipe for the cookbook should include the category, recipe title, ingredients, and method along with their name and phone number. Submissions may be sent to 17 Stonewall Lane, Delmar 12054 or by e-mail them to bcollura@nycap.rr.com.

Family members free to disagree about fireworks

By ROBIN SCHRAGER SUITOR
news@spotlightnews.com

Sparks fly when my family talks about fireworks.

My daughter, now just shy of 11, has never been fond of fireworks. She finds them too loud and says that really loud noises damage your ears and make you deaf.

For me, hearing the boom and the crackling is part of the fun. Without the sounds, it's just a light show.

I used to love going down to the Empire State Plaza on the Fourth of July. My friends and I would pack a small picnic and head downtown. We'd get there around 5 p.m. in order to stake out a spot on the steps of the State Museum. It was a long wait, sitting on the hard marble in the hot sun, but eventually evening would arrive and we'd be treated to a concert and awesome fireworks.

Standing among thousands of people singing the National Anthem and "God Bless America" always gets me choked up.

We are so lucky, lucky, lucky here in the United States, and we don't focus on that enough.

I know I sure don't always concentrate on what's important, considering all my whining about not getting to see any fireworks up close and personal.

Hey, it is a free country, so I'm allowed to feel resentful about giving up the fireworks at the Plaza because my kid doesn't like going. After all, I found it extremely loud and unpleasant to go to Chuck E. Cheese, but I didn't pout when I had to accompany my daughter to birthday parties there.

I did get fairly close to the Plaza one July a few years back. We brought a blanket and sat on the grass between a parking garage and the entrance ramps to the underground Plaza parking. We couldn't hear the music, but we could hear, and for the most part see, the fireworks. Rachel sat with her hands over her ears.

Commentary:

Robin's Nest

Barbecues and fireworks are ways we celebrate the Fourth of July, but they are not why we celebrate.

"Why do you like being an American?" I asked Rachel a few weeks ago while we were riding in the car.

"Because it's fun," she said, "There are lots of places to go, and we can go wherever we want."

"What do we call that?" her dad chimed in.

"Traffic," I blurted out.

But Rachel said, "Freedom."

"What does that mean?" I asked.

She said, "Kids don't have to work; they just go to school. In some countries children have to work."

"What else?" I pressed on.

"You can vote," said Rachel, "And girls can play sports. Oh, and there's plenty of food to eat."

Our family has plenty of food, Jeff explained, but there are many people in the United States who don't have enough to eat.

As we talked more about freedom, Rachel commented that Americans don't always make the right choices. I wondered if we were about to talk politics. Then she clarified that she was referring to people's choices about drinking and smoking.

"Good point," I told her. Having independence means people are free to make decisions that may be bad for their health.

Then we had a brief discussion about the flag.

Hey, it is a free country, so I'm allowed to feel resentful about giving up the fireworks at the Plaza because my kid doesn't like going. After all, I found it extremely loud and unpleasant to go to Chuck E. Cheese's, but I didn't pout when I had to accompany my daughter to birthday parties there.

"The flag is pretty," said Rachel, "Except it doesn't have any green. I'd like it better if it had green in it. Why couldn't it be green, white, and blue?"

"Is there anything else that makes you proud to be an American?" I said, which set us off singing the chorus of Lee Greenwood's hit song, "God Bless the USA."

We sang, "And I'm proud to be American where at least I know I'm free./ And I won't forget the men who died who gave that right to me./ And I'll proudly stand up next to you and defend her still today./ Cause there ain't no doubt I love this land. God bless the USA."

To my child, that song is just a tune that she learned a few years back preparing for a Flag Day assembly at school. But when I hear the words I think about the thousands of men and women soldiers who have died in Iraq and those who remain overseas in harm's way.

Later Jeff tells me he's glad that Rachel can be a child and not be consumed with thoughts of war. I don't want her to be consumed either, just aware.

I never want my child to be fearful or unhappy. That's why it's been more than a decade since I've been to the Empire State Plaza on July Fourth.

"Try to look on the bright side," my husband told me, "You don't have to fight the crowds during the event or sit in traffic afterwards." He's right.

And there was the time when it was pouring rain, but we managed to find a place to stand under an overhang at the top of the museum steps.

That was all before we became parents. When we had more freedom to do what we pleased, when we pleased.

Soon there'll come a day when our daughter will choose to spend July Fourth with her friends instead of her family. She'll say, "Yeah, a group of us are going down to the Plaza to watch the fireworks." I'll say, "But you don't like fireworks. They are too loud. They hurt your ears." She'll say, "Mother, I have no idea what you're talking about."

So, there may come a day when Jeff and I once again find ourselves downtown perched on the museum steps, or more likely, sitting on lawn chairs brought from home. We'll hear the live bands play, then later the recorded orchestrations of classic John Phillips Sousa. And then, around 9:15 p.m., the show will begin and we'll exclaim, "Oooh" and "Ahhh" as the colorful, twinkling, fireworks explode overhead.

Town agrees to lease golf course for $1 a year from conservation group

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE
devoew@spotlightnews.com

The town board has approved an agreement between the Open Space Conservancy and Bethlehem to lease Colonial Acres Golf Course for $1 a year.

The town proposed to lease and maintain the 43-acre Colonial Acres property to preserve open space. The course takes up approximately 30 of those 43 acres.

There were some questions regarding maintenance of the course and future infrastructure upgrades after it fell into the town's hands. Resident and past candidate for supervisor Robert Jasinski asked how the town was going to pay a workforce to maintain the open land and golf course.

"It seems our staff is already overextended on parks and recreation," said Jasinski.

Board member Daniel Plummer said the town will most likely retain Colonial Acres' "workforce of one person" to maintain the property after the deal goes through. He said there is the possibility that the individual would become a town employee as time goes on.

The parcel will be removed from the tax rolls, he said, but Plummer said user fees generated by the course will also pay for maintenance and infrastructure. He said the fee structure will most likely remain the same as it is now, with both membership dues and pay-as-you-go fees.

"We're hoping to make money, but I'm confident that we can at least break even," he said.

The course will be open to residents and non-residents.

Other board members applauded the proposed acquisition.

"I haven't seen any more practical way to preserve open space than what the town board has done with this golf course," said board member Samuel Messina. He noted the size and scope of the land that would be acquired if the deal goes through, and said, "I think the board felt that unless there was some creativity and some partnership, that would have gone the way of most open land — being developed."

Plummer said the Open Space Conservancy has some procedural items to complete before their agreement with the town can be finalized. "The most important thing for the public to understand is that although there is an agreement between the town and the Open Space Institute, the institute still has to do two things: They have to complete a survey and they have complete an environmental assessment," said Plummer. He said the environmental assessment had just been submitted and that the survey was scheduled to be completed within the next two weeks.

"If both of those are fine, then a closing will be scheduled and the transaction will occur. We're definitely hoping that will happen."

At the June 27 meeting, the town board also:

- Accepted a donation of $10 to the D.A.R.E. program from Nancy Farr

- Approved a bid process for biodegradable paper bags for the highway superintendent. The bid is scheduled to be advertised July 5, to be opened July 16.

- Approved the disposal of vehicles at auction by Northway Auto Exchange, Inc. of Clifton Park.

Museum plans family fun weekend

Vacationing in New York will be the theme of the state museum's next Family Fun Weekend, July 7 and 8.

Free activities take place from 1 to 4 p.m. both days, designed to help families prepare for and enjoy summer travel in the state.

On Saturday, Abbe Hahn-Hook, an educator with AnimalLovers, will discuss what pet owners should do with their dogs and cats when they go on vacation. The organization, which is based in Albany, helps homeless animals in upstate New York and encourages proper care of pets. Hahn-Hook, who will be in Adirondack Hall, will answer questions and bring an activity for children.

Both afternoons, the New York State Tourism Bureau will have a table in the main lobby to provide information and distribute items from the "I Love New York" campaign.

At 2 and 3 p.m. Saturday and Sunday, participants will get a chance to imagine what the sky would look like if they were camping when "The Sky Tonight" is presented in the museum's inflatable Star Lab Planetarium. The display will show the position of the stars for Saturday and Sunday nights. The show, in the Carole F. Huxley Theater (former Museum Theater), is limited to 30 people, who must obtain a free ticket at the information desk in the lobby. In addition, tents from the museum's teaching collection will be set up in Adirondack Hall.

Children can also make visors, decorated with their names or favorite sports teams, that they can wear on vacation. They can also color a summer picture and glue it onto a background.

Throughout the afternoon, they can participate in a scavenger hunt with prizes. There will also be an activity packet to take home filled with coloring sheets, word searches, puzzles and a "boredom busters" booklet.

Family Fun Weekends, presented by Fidelis Care, offer theme-based family activities, on the first weekend of the month.

For information about museum programs and events, call 474-5877 or visit the museum Web site at www.nysm.nysed.gov.

A slice of American life

Another Fourth finished, and we're all wishing the mid-week holiday could extend right into the weekend.

The Fourth always brings feelings of patriotism, as readings of the Declaration of Independence, parades and fireworks mark the day. The Capital District is rich with the kind of historical places that let us feel proud to be Americans any time we want.

Dutch settlers of the 1600s laid the foundation for the city of Albany—a foundation that archeologists uncover every time there's new building on the waterfront. The Battle of Saratoga was a turning point in the fight for independence during the Revolutionary War; and Schenectady helped electrify the nation in a more modern era.

America as a nation is defined by its small regions, and there's a lot to celebrate here in the Capital District. Here are some of the things we think are especially great about this area.

- Local parks and nature preserves: Five Rivers, the Saratoga Spa State Park, the Lisha Kill Natural Area.
- Our great libraries, especially in the summer, when there are concerts on the green.
- The well-tended lawns, gardens and flower boxes of summer, making any drive on local roads in summer a pretty one.
- Ice cream stands. See page 1 for some of our favorites.
- Farmers markets and farm stands. Check your town Web site to find fresh produce.
- Open space—and all the volunteer committees that made sure our children will be able to see expanses of green when they're adults.
- The Hudson River: best accessed by the Albany Aqua Ducks.
- The Mohawk River: head for the Mohawk-Hudson Bike-Hike Trail to view this important waterway.
- Summer theater and concerts: in your town park, at town hall, at the town pool, in the cities' downtowns.
- Mixed housing stock: brownstones in the cities; in the suburbs, Federal style, Greek revival style, craftsman bungalows; Colonial houses; McMansions.
- Town park pools.
- Fireflies that blink goodnight to us from our darkened backyards.

In this week of celebrating America, take a minute to celebrate your town.

Fireworks, fun about freedom

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE
devoew@spotlightnews.com

Independence Day was a special holiday when I was in the Army.

In the years I spent as a gunner on an M1A1 tank, I pulled duty the majority of Christmases. I worked every Thanksgiving and every Easter. And while I was never mobilized, we were in the field regularly, for weeks or months at a time, training with little knowledge of what day of the week it was, let alone what holiday we might be missing.

The Fourth of July was different. Wherever we were, whether we were in the field or in the rear, we celebrated Independence Day.

If we were training, we'd usually coil our tanks around in a large field and the First Sergeant and Supply Sergeant would usually pull a couple of barbecues off of the supply truck for the last meal of the day. Instead of an MRE or T-rations (imagine that foil pan of baked beans you took home from last year's family reunion; now imagine it's filled to the gills and large enough to feed a couple dozen people) they'd throw some burgers and dogs on the grill.

Some until then unseen football would appear in some young lieutenant's hand and privates who maybe only dreamed of making their high school football teams would start shedding their pistol belts and web gear so they could run button-hook patterns around tanks, Hummers and deuce-and-a-half-ton trucks.

If we were in the rear, celebrating the Fourth was an all-day event. Any training or maintenance we were in the middle of took a backseat to something we called the "Battalion Olympics." Our company of 60 or so soldiers would face off against the other three battalion companies in the in events like "king of the ring" and tug-of-war. We'd also have some combat-based competitions like who could load a 60-pound, high-explosive, anti-tank round the fastest, or how long it would take a group of soldiers to pull a 12-ton M113 armored personnel carrier 100 feet. (An aside: One year we found that pulling the M113 didn't take long at all if you hid my buddies Brian Young and Steve Agag inside it and they drove the damn thing over the finish line.)

At 5 p.m., wherever we were and whatever we were doing, Fourth of July or not, we stopped for retreat. It is the universal custom to display the flag only from sunrise to sunset on buildings and on stationary flagpoles in the open. In the military, reveille is the signal for the start of the official duty day and is sounded when the flag is raised. The retreat ceremony serves a twofold purpose. It signals the end of the official duty day and serves as a ceremony for paying respect to the flag. The National Anthem is played while a detail of soldiers takes down and properly folds the flag for storage until the morning. If you are on base when this happens, you stop whatever you're doing, (this includes driving your car), face the direction of the flag and salute.

Whenever we held the "Olympics" on the Fourth of July, there would always be some newbie private or maybe some lunkheaded specialist or sergeant who'd think that just because we had it easy all day it meant you didn't have to stop for retreat.

One year, our company commander, Cpt. Thomas "Trip" Bowen, spied someone eating a hot dog while he should've been saluting the flag. Surprisingly, he didn't lose his temper. He walked over to the young man and said, "Private, the only way we can enjoy things like this," he waved his arm toward the grills, the food and the sports equipment, "is if we remember to do things like this." He pointed to a row of soldiers standing at attention, saluting our nation's flag.

I put the hot dog down and tried like hell to never miss another retreat again.

It was odd, and I'm not sure who pulled duty on those days, but it never seemed like me or anyone I knew had KP, firewatch or any other detail on the Fourth. And looking back on it, I realize those days for what they were: family barbecues.

This July, I will see Young, Agag and a few others from our platoon who we've managed to round up recently. No doubt we'll eat too much, drink too much (if our wives allow us) and enjoy any fireworks that may be left over from Independence Day.

I hope you do the same on the Fourth, but I encourage you to take some time to remember the individuals who make our independence and our freedom possible. Admire the flag for moment, thank a veteran, then go watch the fireworks.

Support your local fire department

Editor, The Spotlight:

This letter is long overdue. I would like to make a public appeal to the fine people of the town of Bethlehem, to please support your local fire department. For those of you who are healthy and active, I wish you a long, healthy life, enjoying the many activities the town offers you and your family.

However, the reality is that some day you are going to have to dial 911. That is when you hope you still have a great volunteer fire department and paramedic/ambulance squad. I help provide care for my 82-year-old mother. We have lived in Delmar for close to 40 years. In recent years we have had to call on the services of the Delmar Fire Department at least twice a year to respond to my mother's breathing and heart issues. Thank goodness we have such a well-staffed fire department. When I made my most recent call just this past April, I was amazed that the rescue squad was at my home in less than five minutes. Apparently they were responding to a flooded basement call just around the corner. Does anyone know how many basements were pumped out by your local fire department this spring alone? This is just one example of one of the services your local fire department provides, often times very unnoticed.

Please support your local fire department in any way you can. Most importantly, the Delmar Fire Department is in great need of a new firehouse. Support your community by supporting your fire department when they ask for contributions and especially when they look for public support to build a new fire station, which we desperately need to continue to provide our growing community with then excellent service we currently have, but may not have unless they have your support.

In conclusion, I would like to extend my most sincere appreciation to the Delmar Fire Department for your compassion and professional service to my family.

Thanks for finding Dad

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Saturday, June 23, my 80-year-old father disappeared.

I would like to extend my gratitude to all of the people who helped look for him, including the Bethlehem police and fire and rescue departments.

Thanks also to my neighbors, friends and family, and especially my husband, who found him.

Thank you all so very much.

Fund keeps Russell's legacy alive

Editor, The Spotlight:

Once again, we have the opportunity to thank this wonderful community for the generous donations made to the Russell Eilers Scholarship Fund, Community Foundation for the Capital Region, in memory of our son and brother, Russell Eilers.

On Saturday, June 2, the Tri-Village Little League proclaimed the day as "The Russell Eilers Scholarship Fund Day" and TVLL generously donated its portion of the entire day's 50-50 drawings to the Fund, which totaled $625. Our sincere thanks to the TVLL board of directors, immediate past president John Fisher and to Christine Rooney, who raffled off a basket filled with Pampered Chef products and donated the money collected, and to all those who purchased 50/50 and raffle tickets.

On Saturday, June 9, Friends of Russell Eilers gathered at the Elm Avenue Park to play basketball, raising over $750. We wish to thank all who attended the game, the players, parents and neighbors who made donations, Ms. Marge Prinzo, co-president, for the donation on behalf of the Bethlehem boys basketball booster club, Mary Bayham for her hard work and commitment to this wonderful cause, Nan Lanahan and staff of the Bethlehem Town Park, and referee Tom Venter.

Also, thanks to A Little Bit of Italy, Andriano's Pizza, Angela's Pizza & Pasta, Mangia, New Village Deli & Pizza, Pizza Baron, and Pizza House for their donations of pizza, to Delmar Beverage and Snapple Distributors for donating cases of bottled water and Snapple, and Hannaford Supermarket and Bethlehem Price Choppers for their donations.

This year, Derek Wolff of Glenmont was the recipient of the Russell Eilers memorial scholarship. Derek will be attending the University of Vermont in the fall. Jonathan Reynolds is the eighth-grade recipient who will attend the 2007 Union College Football Camp for one week this summer.

Thanks to the continued generosity of businesses in this community and the support of Russell's friends and neighbors, the Fund continues to grow, ensuring that Bethlehem Central students like Derek and Jonathan will benefit from Russell's Fund.

The facts about FOIL

Editor, The Spotlight:

I wanted to let the community know that all Freedom of Information Law (FOIL) requests are processed expeditiously. Occasionally, FOIL requests are sent to other departments directly and not to my office. Such FOIL requests are unknown to my office until that department forwards the request to me as the town's records management officer. The community should know that FOILs now can be requested online to my office directly.

Not just local

Really local

Thanks to club participants

Editor, The Spotlight:

With my second term as president of Bethlehem Soccer Club ending, I wanted to thank the children, parents and numerous volunteers for making the club successful. I also want to welcome our new president, Dave Schubmehl, and the newly elected board members.

During the past four years, the club's intracub, travel and premier programs have provided fabulous soccer experiences to children of all ages and abilities. The three programs continue to be superbly administrated by IntraClub (recreational) Committee and supervised by Joel Rosenberg, Jim Clyne (the travel coordinator) and Mary Ann and Dave Schubmehl (the premier coordinators).

The club continues to be committed to improving the quality of its programming. The winter soccer and spring academies, available to all children registered in the club, have grown beyond expectations. In fact, our technical director, Jeff Guinn, and his assistant, Willie Sanchez, even began holding an informal academy this year on Wednesday nights because the children wanted to play.

The club is also committed to improving the quality of its programs by improving the instructional quality of its coaching. This past year we appointed Jeff Guinn, the men's soccer coach at Union College, to become our coaching director in addition to his technical director duties. Jeff now trains our coaches to obtain national certification. During the 2006-07 season, almost 100 new or experienced recreational coaches participated in coaching clinics offered by the club. Through such licensure the club believes the quality of the programs will improve. Jeff has also worked very hard to recruit five local college/university coaches and five high school coaches to coach in our premier program.

Led by Chris Martin, we are currently revamping our Web site to make it more user friendly. In addition, for the first time, the club is launching online registration for travel and premier players. Please be on the lookout for information about this.

The club has also been committed to improving the quality of its facilities. The success of these projects is attributable to significant corporate donations and private contributions. Under the stewardship of Brian Whitman, now dubbed "Mr. Soccerplex," we believe we have solved the parking problem at the Soccerplex by adding more than 100 new parking spots. In addition, we have installed new drainage for several of our fields. We have also erected a concession stand supervised by Nancy Kearney, who coordinates the parents and children who volunteer to operate it.

The club further wants to recognize the continued support of several local businesses, including Robert Wright Disposal, My Place & Company, Dunkin' Donuts, and Cart-Away, LLC, who provided services and donations during the year to enable the club's programs to run smoothly.

Over the past few years we have hosted several tournaments. These tournaments were successful in large part to the efforts of people like Joann Kessler, Matt Downey, Bill Maddock, Anne Marie Masters, Ann Hildreth, Mary Ann and Dave Schubmehl, Nancy Kearney, and Brian Whitman. Again, I want to thank the players, parents and coaches who have participated in the club's programs over the past several years. We hope to see you participate again. Although I will no longer be president, I will continue to serve on the board and further hope that new people step forward to volunteer in the club next year.

the plate and face any and all obstacles," Feller said. "His dream was to follow in his father's footsteps and join the fire department. He was proud to do that and proud to be a Marine."

Following in his father and grandfather's footsteps, Martin became a volunteer firefighter with the Elsmere Fire Company in 1995 and served until 2000.

Feller said, as a boy, Martin loved games like Pictionary and Trivial Pursuit.

"We always lost at Trivial Pursuit because his sister, Nicole, was so good, but we often had a chance at Pictionary — if we could decipher Shawn's drawings," he said.

Feller said Martin was someone who was living his dream.

"He got to do with his life what he wanted to do; he experienced fulfillment of his dream. Not many people are able to do that," he said.

Feller urged mourners to use Martin as an example in their own lives.

"Let us live with integrity, have high morals and values, and be people of good character. Let us be the first to step up at the plate no matter what the risk and be willing to risk it all if necessary," Feller said.

Martin was part of a special division responsible for defusing roadside bombs. He had been in Iraq just five weeks when a nearby bomb exploded, killing him.

In an e-mail sent to his family weeks before his death, he said he looked forward to seeing them again and said he thanked God every day for the chance to put on his uniform knowing that the sacrifices he makes will allow his friends and family to have a better future.

Mourners laughed when Martin's uncle Brian Mosher said Martin was trying to one-up everyone, even Jesus.

"Jesus said there is no greater love than giving up one's life for a friend. Well, Shawn gave up his life not only for his friends, but for those who never knew him and would never know him," Mosher said.

Sobs were heard throughout the church as members of the Marine Corps slowly wheeled out Martin's flag-draped coffin. Clutching a Marine's arm, Martin's wife, Marianne, slowly followed Martin's parents Dawn and Paul out of the church.

Martin was a 1995 graduate of Bethlehem High School. He was buried with full military honors in Saratoga National Cemetery.

example of local government using technology to improve service delivery," said Supervisor Jack Cunningham. "After last year's reassessment, residents said they wanted more assessment-related information online and OARS delivers that right to your home computer."

In November, the town received a $12,112 state grant to pay for the new system. The money came from the New York State Real Property Tax Administration Technology Improvement Grant program, created to help municipalities implement a comprehensive Web-based assessment lookup tool to enable taxpayers to gain access to assessment data with greater ease.

The town's Web-based system not only allows residents to view information but also allows users to gather, sort and compare data. Those tools include comparable property sales and assessment searches, residential property inventory characteristics for comparable searches, current tax rates and parcel level details and photos. M. David Leafer, the town's assessor, said this will be a useful tool for house hunters and sellers as well.

"Last year, for the very first time, we provided online access to assessment information including residential parcel and sales data information," said Leafer. "That information, however, was in a PDF form that was not interactive. OARS takes our previous capability to a whole new level by allowing residents — and town staff — to quickly sort through data, pull appropriate comparable information and do other research in a fraction of the time."

Leafer said before the PDF format, residents had to leaf through thick books of information kept in the assessor's office.

"There's no question that our new OARS system will save residents time and effort in researching and preparing for meetings with our staff," said Leafer. "With residents and staff basically getting the same access to information, we can all truly work from the same page."

To access the OARS system, a new link was created on the town's Web site main page — www.townofbethlehem.org — called "Online Services." On the left-hand side of that page is the link to the OARS system, as well as links to other online services and forms, including the town's monthly e-Newsletter, water and sewer billing information, tax bill information and a sign-up page for the town's new monthly community clean-up day. Taxpayers can also sign up to pay their taxes through the automatic electronic bill paying system.

Leafer said he only sees one shortcoming on the site — the inability to look up property by owners' names. He was unsure if there was a security issue involved in leaving that function out, but said he will try to address it shortly.

"Our new online assessment system is the latest in a long line of technology upgrades the town has made — and will continue to make — to provide greater public access to information, communicate better and more frequently with residents and allow for more interaction between town government and taxpayers," said Cunningham.

"The OARS system is one of several Web-based technology improvements the town has made over the last few years," said Jeffrey Cammeyer, Bethlehem's Director of Management Information Services, at the town's June 27 meeting. "We also set up a public computer station in the assessor's office at Town Hall to provide access to OARS for residents who do not have a home computer or Internet connection."

Cammeyer said the computer is handicapped accessible.

Business in the Spotlight

True brilliance lasts long after the spark

As we paused to celebrate our nation's birthday, the one thing I was most struck by was the incredible amount of fireworks set off, both legally and illegally, across the country. Makes one first and foremost give pause to our addiction to arson and fire in the sky! Beyond that, I am in awe of the beauty that lights up the night sky, the power and strength that it takes to make the flames burn so brightly and the response that it elicits from the appreciative crowd. Conversely, it always amazes me how quickly those bright lights fade away, and all we are left with is a happy memory.

In the advertising and marketing world, the fireworks translate well into a metaphor of the business. Over the past almost 30 (gulp, do I dare admit that in print?) years I have been in the business, I have witnessed so many flashes of brilliance that illuminated our market and then burned into our consciousness as pleasant memories. Great sales people who were going to take over the world; wonderful creative talent that would reshape the way we look at advertising and marketing; new ad agencies that would redefine how this market perceives the business - they all arrived with that wonderful burst in the sky only to fade away with a quiet sputter.

The true luminescence has come from the steady ongoing strong work ethic of folks who have managed to keep focused, yet malleable to market changes and general changes in business convention. Those people are able to absorb new ideas, both technical and ethereal, and respond to the demands of the customer are the ones that experience true longevity in the business. I am truly not certain what pearls of wisdom that might impart to you, but it was simply an observation that occurred to me while we all "oohed" and "ahhed" over the brief but wonderful excitement that lit up the night sky.

Notes from the

Advertising Desk

We are in a period of excitement throughout the region with the onset of summer. Washington Park is about to light up with music of the '50s as Park Playhouse begins its 19th season with "Grease." Congratulations to Albany Mayor Jerry Jennings and Playhouse Producer Ven Borromeo on keeping free theater alive in the city. Patrons will be excited by the return of Albany theatrical icon Mimi Scott, co-founder of Park Playhouse along with her late husband, Barry, as she takes to the stage in this season's production. "Grease" runs July 10 through Aug. 19, weather permitting ... The National Museum of Dance in Saratoga will be home throughout the month to a wonderful photographic exhibit entitled "The Moving Figure." Area photographers Sue

Gersten, Pat Connell and Jill Paolucci are among the nine photographers represented in the show ... also in Saratoga, Wesley Health Care Center of the Wesley Community has announced that Sandra McLenithan has been named certified nursing aide of the year ... The Adirondack Trust Company has announced that Kathie L. Duncan is president of the North Country region. Duncan will be responsible for building Adirondack's Glens Falls market ... Weichert Realtors - Northeast Group added Christina Jahn and Deena Pietrocola to their roster of sales associates ... John DeCelle has been promoted to executive vice president of sales and marketing at SEFCU... best of luck to Barb Ostroff as she begins a new endeavor with the opening of Delmar Florist on Delaware Avenue at the former Destiny Threads locale. ... Finally, on a personal note, congratulations to my old friend Ed Dague, former WNYT anchor, on being inducted into the New York State Broadcasters Hall of Fame, a well-deserved honor for an individual who devoted his professional career to elevating the level of professionalism of television news reporting in our market.

And that just about clears my desk for the next few weeks. Be sure to check out my online blog for updates or catch me right here. As always, if you have anything you'd like to see in the column, feel free to e-mail me at kellertw@spotlightnews.com. We can't guarantee it will all get in, but we'll give it our

Diversity quilt on display at library this summer

We are delighted to honor the work of Bethlehem students by displaying the "diversity quilt," conceived by Bethlehem Central High School art teacher Diane Segal, designed by high school art classes, and embellished by students throughout the district.

Funded with support from Bethlehem Opportunities Unlimited, the quilt project brought students together several years ago to collaborate on a message about the cultural richness of our world.

Segal's teaching continues to be inspired by a 2006 sabbatical to Guatemala, where she lived and worked in the Mayan community, famous for its weaving and vibrant culture. Segal went to the Lake Atitlan region to work with Mayan Hands and Mayan Traditions, two nonprofit fair-trade organizations for women working and living in conditions of extreme poverty.

Since her trip, Segal has visited schools throughout the district to talk about her Guatemala experience and display the quilt, inviting students of all ages to add decorations.

The diversity quilt will be in the library lobby through July and August, after which it will be on permanent display at the high school. You are invited to write your comments about the quilt in a journal located at the information desk.

Cemetery records, family histories

Local cemetery records and family histories have been organized and filed in our Local History Reading Room. These family histories, though unverified, are a good starting point for further research.

Another local history tool has been developed on our Web site. Obituary notices in the Delmar Spotlight from January 1996 to June 2007 are now indexed for your convenience. Go to www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org and click on the "search" tab, then on "genealogy and local history."

This searchable index will be updated on a regular basis. We will also be working in the other direction, regularly adding citations previous to 1996.

All issues of the Spotlight from 1957 are available in the library.

Adult services librarian Dorothy Heffernan has worked tirelessly to organize these local history resources, and we thank her for it.

Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy receives grants

The Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy, serving Albany, Schenectady and Montgomery counties, has received two grants totaling $15,900 that will help the organization achieve its goal of saving special places in the Capital District.

The awards were announced

June 19 by Department of Environmental Conservation Commissioner Pete Grannis and leaders of the Land Trust Alliance at a State Capitol press conference.

One of the grants was one of 13 Conservation Capacity and Excellence Grants, which are designed to strengthen the impact and effectiveness of land trusts. The $10,000 grant will be used to help develop and launch a comprehensive fundraising and donor development program in the Conservancy's expanded service area of Albany, Schenectady, and Montgomery counties.

IN BRIEF

Art exhibit open to public on Sundays

Every Sunday from July 1-Aug. 26, the public is invited to see "Everyday Life in the 1930s and 40s," an art exhibit at the Cedar Hill Schoolhouse Museum, 1003 River Road, Selkirk. The public viewing is from 2 to 4 p.m. Admission is free.

For information, call 767-9432.

BC Class of 1967 plans reunion

Bethlehem Central High School is planning its 40th reunion for Oct. 6 at Normanside Country Club.

For information, call 439-3041 or e-mail bchs1967@yahoo.com.

Cemetery requests benches be removed

The Bethlehem Cemetery recently announced that all benches on cemetery grounds that are not granite and do not have a foundation must be removed immediately by lot owners due to liability concerns. In order for grounds to be kept orderly and safe, all non-compliant lot decorations (balloons, glass, candles, statues etc.) will now be removed by the cemetery. Call 439-2394 with questions or concerns.

Jug band to play at library

Washboard, kazoo, harmonica, musical saw, mandolin, autoharp and accordion are just some of the instruments played by the Rambling Jug Stompers, the premier jug band in the Capital District. You will be tapping your toes to the lively music when they perform at the first Together at Twilight concert on the library lawn on Wednesday, July 11.

The concert begins at 7. Bring chairs or a blanket.

There will be additional handicapped parking on the side of the building. You also may call Susan Kidder at the New Scotland Town Hall at 439-9038 to reserve a place on the Yellow Bus, which transport seniors to and from this event.

Junior Nimblefingers

A popular program is back for kids in grade 3 and up who want to learn to sew. The Nimblefinger Ladies will work with kids on Tuesdays from 1 to 2 p.m. to teach basic sewing skills. Registration is required for this five-week program and you must be able to come to at least three of the five sessions. Our first project will be a sewing box. Check out the Web site for more information or stop at the library for a supply list.

Summer reading program

• Monday, July 9, at 2 p.m., explore math and science with simple hands-on investigations. (kindergarten to second grade)

• Tuesday, July 10, 10:15 a.m., preschool storytime; 1 p.m., Junior Nimblefingers (grade 3+)

• Wednesday, July 11, 2

Voorheesville Public Library

p.m., investigate some real-life mysteries such as the Mary Celeste, a ship that was found in 1872 adrift on the open sea, with no captain, crew or passengers. (third and fourth grades)

• Thursday, July 12, 2 p.m., "Journals and Anime," fifth grade+. We will give you a journal to personalize with rubber stamps and cool paper and help you create a perfect book for your words with guest Stacey Roussain.

Still stitching: V'ville group expands after 15 years

By KARINE ABALYAN
abalyank@spotlightnews.com

Betty Smith remembers knitting wristlets for World War I soldiers when she was a little girl. She remembers learning needlepoint and cross stitch and making her own clothes.

"We grew up behind the sewing machine," said Smith, 97, of Voorheesville, who is now knitting a dishcloth for the church bazaar.

Smith is one of about 20 women who make up the Nimblefingers group, which meets at the Voorheesville Public Library on Tuesdays to knit, quilt, crochet, embroider and work on other crafts, and to teach a new generation of girls the secrets of needlework.

"It's a wonderful group," said Alberta Pahl, 74, of Guilderland, who learned how to quilt when she joined Nimblefingers. "They're always helpful."

Pahl and her sister, Nancy Hopper, 61, are now working on paper embroidery, a Dutch craft they've introduced to the club. The women sew designs on cardstock, which they later turn into greeting cards.

"I don't know any other library that has a program like this," said Julie Stump, a librarian who joined Nimblefingers in 1995 and became the group's coordinator a year later.

What began as a five-week needlework course in 1992 has since become an organized club, allowing members to share their crafts, learn new techniques and socialize.

Last summer the library expanded the project, adding a Junior Nimblefingers group. Over the next two months, school-age children will return to work with the older women and learn how to use sewing machines.

Nimblefingers members come mostly to share advice and improve their own pieces, but they also work on collective projects, such as the quilt and craft show they put together every February. Their quilts have been raffled off at Friends of the Library fundraisers and donated to community members who have fallen ill.

On occasion, Stump invites local experts to teach the group new crafts.

"They're mostly older women, and I feel it's very important to keep active mentally, socially, physically," said Stump.

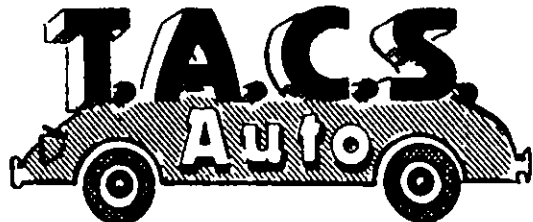

Men are welcome, but thus far none have joined, Stump said.

Group members said they enjoy one another's company. Getting away from household distractions, they said, helps them

Nimblefingers members meet on a recent Tuesday at the Voorheesville Public Library to knit, quilt, crochet, embroider and work on other crafts.

Flying with the 109th

Five days, eight videos, lots of pictures, online and in print. It was time to find out about the NY Air National Guard 109th Airlift Wing in Scotia.

We have all heard of global warming and the changes taking place in our environment. The 109th is intimately involved in science, or at least they allow the science to happen. Most of the research in the Arctic and Antarctic has a common thread, the 109th. When scientists need to move equipment or themselves to the research stations near or at the poles, they fly on a LC-130. The planes of the 109th are the only ones with skis.

The members of the 109th take the unit's mission very seriously. Getting people and equipment off the ice sheet in Greenland is a dangerous job. When I was with the unit in Greenland during the last week of June, one of its planes landed at a research station north of summit. The plane landed, but could not return to Kangerlussuaq due to sticky snow and bad weather. The crew had to endure four days of "camping" on the ice.

This is a group of professionals, but they are also familiar to many of us.

Because the 109th is a NY National Guard Unit, most of its members are citizen soldiers who fly when needed, then return to the community to live with us. I spent many hours with the men and women of the 109th and I was amazed at how many are involved in our communities.

They leave their families and day jobs to train in Greenland and support the research stations in Antarctica during the week, and coach baseball at home on the weekend. They all had a story of what they do as civilians and how appreciative they are of those who enable them in the mission.

Most of the 109th train one week in Greenland during the summer and at least one week in Antarctica in the winter.

The 109th is currently training for a mission in Southeast Asia. Recently repainted wheeled C-130s are sitting at Stratton waiting for a tour in a combat zone. The C-130s have no weapons as the movers of the military. They will be flying supplies in Afghanistan before winter hits.

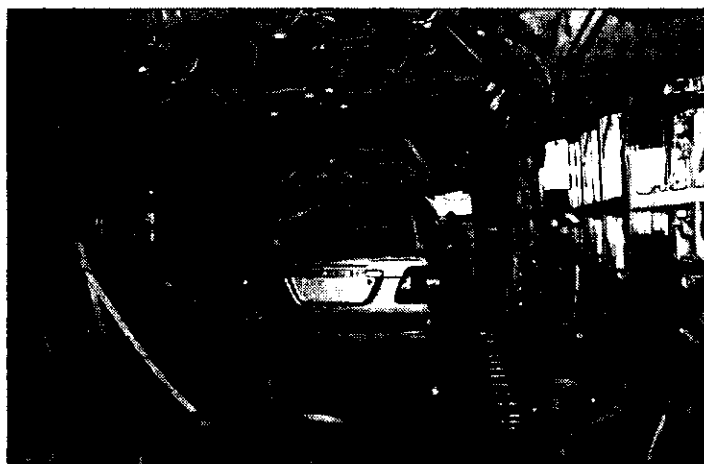

I would like to thank the soldiers of the 109th for their service and professionalism. I was an outsider, yet we had much in common. Now, when I see an LC-130 overhead, it is like seeing a friend.

A look over the shoulder on the way home, top, and the view from the Stratton runway, above.

Loading a LC-130 for a trip to Summit. The crews can fit a lot in a plane, plus 25 passengers.

On our trip to the Summit research station, far right, the crews fired the rockets to get off the ground. It took two attempts to get in the air due to sticky snow, bad visibility and snow.

The Russell Glacier, bottom right, is only 30 km from Kangerlussuaq. We chartered a trip to reach the edge of the ice. A river carries the melted ice to the sea through the fjord.

Shelter's fees raise town's hackles

IN BRIEF

Per animal cost has New Scotland seeking alternatives for strays

By KARINE ABALYAN
abalayank@spotlightnews.com

New Scotland is looking for alternatives to using the Mohawk and Hudson River Humane Society in Menands, which has raised fees this year, but the town has had little luck finding a different shelter to meet its needs.

Currently, the town pays $275 for each stray dog brought to the shelter. With three dogs brought there between April and June, the town paid $825, which is almost a third of the $2,500 New Scotland paid in all of 2006.

"Nobody was planning on having such a big jump like this" when the budget was prepared last fall, said Kevin Schenmeyer, animal control officer.

Unlike last year's contract, when the town paid a flat rate for the entire year, the new agreement requires payments per animal. In 2006, the shelter boarded 34 animals for $2,500, according to town records. This year the same number of animals would cost the town $9,350.

"All the communities in the area are looking for alternatives to using (the Humane Society)," said Supervisor Ed Clark.

The new fees are representative of what the Humane Society spends on animal care, said Brad Shear, executive director of the shelter. Previous contracts, Shear said, didn't fully compensate the organization for its costs.

The society serves 15 municipalities and sees 9,000 animals annually.

"Now what they're paying is the real cost of the shelter," Shear said. He expects fees to go up next year, but details have not been released yet.

In addition to the per animal plan, the humane society offers towns the option of paying a per day fee of $55.

By state law, unidentified animals have to remain in the shelter for five days before they are adopted out or euthanized. Identified animals are held for seven days.

Shear said towns are better off paying the per day fee "if they have a lot of animals that get picked up by the owner after a day or two."

New Scotland favors the switch, but Clark said officials are not sure if the per day option will save them money.

"It's possible that we're going to come out worse," he said.

Officials are now searching for a less expensive shelter, but nothing has caught the town's attention thus far, Clark said. Other ideas include building a shelter in New Scotland or charging owners for boarding their pets.

Schenmeyer said he doesn't expect big changes in the near future. At present, animal control officers are working harder to identify animals and return them to their owners to avoid the high fees.

"We're doing the best we can," Schenmeyer said. "It's given us a little more incentive to do more leg work and find the owner."

JCC to host Globetrotters Camp

The Sidney Albert Albany Jewish Community Center will host the Harlem Globetrotters Summer Youth Basketball Camp from Aug. 20 to 24.

The camp offers traditional on-court drills, teaches basketball fundamentals and includes sessions on academics, character, leadership and good citizenship. The camp, available in both morning and afternoon sessions, is open to children 6 to 16 years of age.

Instructional workstations take place on the basketball court emphasizing the important ideals of teamwork, leadership and physical fitness. Children will also learn from a classroom setting that involves role-playing and discussions, the importance of a good education, making the right choices, improving self-esteem, avoiding peer pressure and appreciating a healthy lifestyle.

All campers will get an official Harlem Globetrotters Summer

To register, go to www.harlemglobetrotters.com, click the Summer Camp link under Kids Court or call 800-641-HOOP. The camp costs $175 (for JCC members), and $200 (for non-members). Early registration is encouraged. For information, visit www.harlemglobetrotters.com.

Hudson River Valley Ramble set

The eighth Annual Hudson River Valley Ramble is scheduled for Sept. 15, 16, 23, 29 and 30. Covering 12 counties with more than 160 events, the ramble gives participants the opportunity to explore the Hudson River Valley and Hudson River Estuary by boat and on foot through a variety of guided walking, hiking, kayaking, canoeing and biking experiences.

Many ramble events offer an in-depth exploration of heritage themes such as the Revolutionary War, and the Hudson River School of Art, while others celebrate the Greenway Trail or Hudson River Estuary. In 2006, more than 160,000 people participated in ramble events.

All ramble events are led by naturalists, ecologists, historians, geologists, and trained volunteers from participating groups, which include environmental, land conservation, trail and historic preservation organizations. Events are offered for all abilities, most are free and many are family oriented.

Events for the 2007 Hudson River Valley Ramble will be posted on the ramble Web site this summer, so visit www.hudsonrivervalley.com to find an event near you.

Jonny Lang to perform at the Egg

Jonny Lang will perform a concert at The Egg on Friday, July 20, at 8 p.m. as part of the American Roots and Branches series. Since his arrival on the blues scene in the mid-1990s at age 15, Lang has continued to fan the flames of his status as a guitar hero with his series of rock, soul and gospel infused recordings and explosive concerts. The Alternate Routes will open the show.

Tickets to the concert are $34.50 and are available at The Egg Box Office at the Empire State Plaza in Albany, by phone at 473-1845 or on-line at www.theegg.org.

Hilton Center to host musical

The Hilton Center will showcase the musical "How To Stay Sane In Paris," on Friday, July 20, and Saturday, July 21, at 8 p.m.

Tickets for the musical, which is directed by Ominike Akinyemi, are $26 for general admission, $20 for seniors and $15 for students.

The center is next to Westgate Plaza on Central Avenue, Albany. For information, call 453-1048.

Stay Cool! this summer and save money

NYSERDA offers summertime cooling tips for comfort and savings

According to the United States Department of Energy (DOE) and Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the average family spends $1,900 a year on energy bills, nearly half of which goes to cooling and heating.

This summer, the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA) has developed Stay Cool!, a campaign that reaches out to New Yorkers with energy-saving tips to help them keep their home comfortably cool without busting the budget.

NYSERDA also encourages New Yorkers who are in the market for a new room air conditioner to purchase ENERGY STAR® qualified models that use less energy and save money. Energy-efficient air conditioning can make a real impact on comfort and monthly electric bills, as well as reduce energy use when demand is high.

"Home cooling represents a huge opportunity for New Yorkers to reduce their energy use and carbon dioxide emissions, as well as save money," said Peter R. Smith, president and CEO of NYSEDA. "With just a few simple changes, New Yorkers can use their air conditioners without wasting energy. It's really the way to 'stay cool' this summer."

The New York Power Authority (NYPA) is co-funding the Stay Cool! campaign to help more

New Yorkers save energy this summer.

"It's never been easier to stay cool," said Timothy S. Carey, president and CEO of NYPA. "Homeowners can do it just by switching to ENERGY STAR appliances and following basic energy-saving tips."

So you want to Stay Cool! this summer? NYSEDA and NYPA offer these simple, cost-effective tips to reduce summer energy bills.

Turn In. Turn On.

ENERGY STAR qualified room air conditioners use up to 25 percent less energy than a standard new model and up to 40 percent less energy than a model that is more than 10 years old. Look for a high Energy Efficiency Ratio (EER). Units with high EERs cost less to operate. Turn in your old, room air conditioner to your local waste management facility and turn on a new ENERGY STAR air conditioner.

Size it Right

A properly sized air conditioner will operate more efficiently and dehumidify more effectively. An oversized unit will cycle on and off more frequently. Short cycling reduces an air conditioning system's life, and a short cycling system will not reduce humidity effectively. Undersized equipment can reduce the efficiency of air distribution and accelerate wear on system components, leading to premature failure.

No Dirty Business

A dirty filter will increase energy use and can damage the air conditioner leading to early failures, so check the filter every month and replace as needed.

Work in the Morning or Evening

Use ovens, washing machines, dryers and dishwashers in the early morning or late at night when it's generally cooler outside. Use a microwave oven to cook, or barbecue outside, if possible.

Chill Out in the Shade

A unit operating in the shade uses as much as 10 percent less electricity than the same one operating in the sun.

Don't Forget the Adoring Fans

ENERGY STAR qualified ceiling fans can help cool a home without greatly increasing electricity use. They improve airflow and create pleasant breezes.

Just Chill When You're Home

For central air conditioning, a programmable thermostat allows homeowners to automatically adjust to a more comfortable temperature when they are scheduled to be home. Homeowners can set the temperature to use less cooling when they are normally away.

Residents save three percent on energy costs for each degree they turn up the thermostat from 72 degrees. ENERGY STAR window and through-the-wall room air conditioners also typically include programmable thermostats or timers.

A Home Needs Shades Too

Block out heat by keeping blinds or curtains closed during the day, especially on south facing windows.

Take the Whole House Approach

Houses work as a system. Insulation, heating and air conditioning, air sealing, water heating, ductwork, windows and doors all work together to determine efficiency. A Home Performance with ENERGY STAR contractor can perform a home energy assessment to help residents map a plan to improve a home's energy efficiency.

Turn It Off

Save electricity and reduce waste heat by shutting off lights. Seldom used home electronics should actually be unplugged from the wall. Items like DVD players, VCRs and cordless phones use 40 percent of their energy while in the off position to power functions like clocks and remote controls.

For year-round energy-saving tips and programs to help you improve the energy efficiency of your home, visit www.GetEnergySmart.org.

NYSEDA uses innovation and technology to solve some of New York's most difficult and environmental problems in ways that improve the State's economy. Visit www.GetEnergySmart.org or call 1-877-NY-SMART for more information about Stay Cool! and other energy efficiency programs.

NYPA is the Empire State's largest supplier of electricity and provides energy-saving services and clean energy technologies to public institutions such as schools, hospitals and universities. Visit www.nypa.gov to learn more about the New York Power Authority.

HOW COOL IS NEW YORK?

TURN IN, TURN ON, STAYCOOL.

Turn in your old, inefficient window air conditioner and replace it with a new ENERGY STAR® qualified model. Always select a unit that has a higher Energy Efficiency Rating (EER) for even better energy savings.

Neighborhood garage sells to a neighbor

Bailey's owner talks about friends and the importance of good tire pressure

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY
mccarthyk@spotlightnews.com

Arline Cohen had a 1995 Honda Civic that racked up 192,000 miles – and only ever had one clutch.

Bruce McBride called from Las Vegas to talk about the garage that kept his 1996 Pontiac Bonneville running for 210,000 miles.

The common denominator for the Delmar residents? Bailey's Garage on Oakwood Road, which Steve Kaplan is selling after 22 years of running the business.

"The Baileys opened this business in 1938," Kaplan said. "The business ran out of a barn adjacent to a house that was here. After World War II, Bud Bailey purchased a Quonset hut, and in 1965, the concrete front went on." Kaplan owned New York Auto and Radiator on State Street in Albany, and Bailey had sent some customers to him. His longtime manager there was Delmar native Bob Buttercase, who is buying Bailey's from his former boss.

"He's a reasonable guy, and likes to work with people," Kaplan said of Buttercase.

Head mechanic Frank Brady will stay on at Bailey's, and Kaplan will stay around for a while to smooth the transition.

In a career of owning two full-service garages, Kaplan has seen a lot of change.

"Twenty-odd years ago, car maintenance was done on the suggestion of a mechanic," Kaplan said. "Now, cars must be maintained. Cars are better, but they run hotter; and fluids are more important."

Kaplan said he's sunk a lot of money into equipment to keep new cars – and cars like Cohen and McBride's – running. He has invested in state-of-the-art alignment equipment, sophisticated computer systems, and classes for Brady and part-time mechanics who work for him.

Mostly, Kaplan is a believer in preventative maintenance to keep cars running.

"People need to take care of the oil, coolant and transmission fluids," he said. "Rotation and balance of tires is important. The majority of people don't check their tire pressure, and wear out their tires 50 percent sooner. Stay on top of the spark plugs, and keep the engines from building up slush by-products. I'd guess the average car costs $25,000 now. After a home and education, cars are our next largest investment."

As the business has changed, so have the kind of cars he sees.

SUVs?

"They're an interesting breed," he said. "They've become a significant percentage of the market. They're notorious for poor gas mileage, but we all need to get someplace somehow. We may change our driving habits, but we'll still need fuel."

Hybrids?

"They're a wonderful idea," he said. "People who drive them enjoy them. People are hesitant; it can cost $3,000 to replace the battery, which I've heard lasts three to five years."

In spite of his in-depth knowledge of cars, Kaplan is clear about one thing.

"I'm not a mechanic," he said. "I prefer to stay out front and communicate with the customers."

Some of those customers have become friends.

"I'm sorry to see Steve go," Cohen said. "I've always trusted him. I once had the van all packed for a family trip to Boston. I had a question, and I just swung by Bailey's to ask it."

McBride has had similar experiences. "If I had a flat, they'd come and fix it," he said. "Steve was also a hockey and lacrosse fan, so you could get updates on that from him."

McBride also had praise for Buttercase.

"Bob's a very good mechanic," he said. "When I worked at the state university headquarters downtown, I took my car to New York Auto."

Cohen said she considers Bailey's the house she built, since she estimated she's been going there for close to 20 years.

"Steve always said I drove more than two people," she said. "He's kept me on the road a lot of years."

"This is like the last of the neighborhood garages," McBride said.

"We go out of our way for our customers," Kaplan said. "I always tried to be honest with people, and to let them decide. I offered my opinion, but let them make the final decision. I've been honest. My prices are what my prices are. I don't give things away, but we use quality products."

With retirement nearing, 59-year-old Kaplan plans to spend winters in the south. Currently a resident of Guilford, he has lived in Delmar, and grew up in Colonie – when Wolf Road businesses were anchored by the Colonie Country Club and a shack called Platt's Ice Cream.

Kaplan hopes to do more acting after he sells the business. He's played Willy Loman in "Death of a Salesman" twice, and been in and directed Neil Simon's "Rumors." "I'm a big football fan, and an even bigger hockey fan," the longtime RPI hockey season ticket holder said.

Buttercase is looking forward to operating a business in his hometown, and is ready to heed Kaplan's advice about being honest and working with people.

RCS grads ready for the next step

With a jubilation not seen at recent commencements, the RCS Class of 2007 graduated on Saturday, June 23, sending approximately 147 students onto bright futures.

A constant theme among the administrators who spoke at the ceremony was that the class conducted itself with class, maturity and grace while demonstrating leadership throughout its years at RCS.

"You are truly a classy class," said Grades 9/10 Principal Greg Chase.

"Class of 2007, thanks for showing your leadership during your time here. Continue to exhibit that leadership and more doors will open for you," said Grades 11/12 Principal Hakim Jones.

Ninety-six scholarships and awards were bestowed during the ceremony that featured traditional speeches by the valedictorian, salutatorian and class president, as well as Jones.

A new feature during the event was a memories movie that class advisors Jean Hanlon and Shannon Cavanaugh created and edited. The movie featured pictures of the students throughout their school years, as well as baby photos, Cub Scout pictures and family pictures contributed by the parents and grandparents of the graduates.

The production brought more than its share of laughs, "ooohs" and ahhs" from the several-hundred parents, friends and family members on hand for the ceremony. During the speeches, valedictorian Brendon Palmer encouraged his classmates to take risks and live a full life.

"In a few short years, some of us will still be living in Ravena, some of us will live on other continents, some will be wearing Armani suits ... and some will be living paycheck to paycheck," Palmer said, adding that no matter the course you choose, live a full life and take chances.

Salutatorian Janaki Vakharia recalled class memories, including a National Honor Society induction ceremony when a student lit her hair on fire and a junior dance when the person with the "best dress, best make-up and best purse was a 6-foot, 175-pound Irish male."

Congratulations Class of 2007.

CLASS OF 2007

Recent grads should focus on résumés

When you're ready to enter the workforce after high school or college, compiling your first résumé can feel daunting – you know you have the skills and a good head on your shoulders, but how do you convince someone else that you have what it takes to do the job well? However vicious the cycle seems, quell your worries and the anxieties of future employers by really focusing on your resume.

When you're first entering the workforce, resist the urge to compile a traditional résumé. If you don't have previous experience working at the job title you are applying for, then you shouldn't have a conventional résumé that will only highlight your lack of experience as opposed to showcasing your relevant skills. In addition, tailor your résumé to the specific job for which you are applying. Examine the specific qualifications the employer is looking for, and evaluate how you could meet those standards. This is just the beginning; below are some helpful tips for ways to elevate your first résumé:

* Don't write a chronological résumé. If a specific degree or level of education is required, list your education at the top of your résumé, followed by a section entitled, "Relevant Experience" that details the skills you'll bring to the table. If a degree is not required, put this at the bottom of your resume.

• Find a job description for your ideal position by using job postings on popular Internet job boards and identify key terms used within. Under the "Relevant Experience" section, use your experiences from life, high school or college to mirror the job description, and try to use the same terminology used within the job description. For example, if you're looking for a job in sales, and the job description requests experience with "cold calling," you might list any fundraising calls you've made as, "Performed cold calls for fundraising efforts." Using the same terminology will tie your experience to the specific skills the employer is looking for in a candidate.

• List internships and job experience in chronological order at the bottom of your résumé, and specify if a position was summer employment. If you held a position for a few months this could raise flags for a potential employer. But, you can avoid being crossed off the list by offering clarification. Next to these entries on your résumé, you Change machines like this one by Coinstar can help parents save money for college.

Creativity can help ease burden of college costs

To put into perspective the ever-rising cost of college tuition, consider this: chances are good your first car cost less than your child's first year of college. And if your child opts for private school education, the total bill for four years could come close to what you paid for your first home.

According to a recent report by the College Board, Trends in College Pricing, the average tuition at four-year public colleges and universities for 2006-07 was $5,836 – 6.3 percent higher than it was in 2005-06. When you add fees, room and board, the costs rise to $12,796. The costs at four-year private colleges are even higher – $30,367 total charges, an increase of 5.9 percent from 2005-06.

Financial experts agree that the best way to tackle the cost of your child's college tuition is to start saving when they are still infants. Even if your child is already school age, putting aside money now can help defray the cost of their higher education in a few more years. With a wide array of savings and college funding plans offered through financial institutions, states and federal governments, parents need only think ahead and perhaps get a little creative.

For Kevin and Kara Weinand of Washington, that meant looking to their container of loose change – roughly $1,500 originally intended for a vacation – which they'd accumulated over the years and kept in a 5-gallon water bottle at home. And with the help of the "big green" coin-counting machine at their local supermarket, the Weinands were able to start a college savings account under their should provide a brief explanation in parentheses such as, "Summer/Part-time employment to finance education."

• Highlight extracurricular activities and your role within the organizations to which you belonged. Showing employers that you are able to balance extracurricular activities with other activities demonstrates time-management skills. Likewise, if you held leadership positions in any organizations, you should list those to exhibit your leadership abilities.

Before you mail off your résumé, remember that it will be your first impression – spell check your cover letter and résumé thoroughly. If you're in college or even high school, ask a career counselor to go through your résumé to check for grammar and spelling errors. Once you have your base-model résumé completed, it will be easier to adapt the document for other positions that interest you.

state's version of the federal 529 college savings plan.

"Originally I started putting my spare change aside a number of years ago with the plan of using it someday for a vacation," says Kevin. But the birth of his son, Kyle, changed everything, including his savings plans. "When Kyle was born, I imagined what things would be like when he got older. I knew that the cost of education increases every year and thought it would be wise to put this money to a better use."

Many college savings plans under the 529 federal tax code allow parents to pay in advance for their child's college tuition. In Washington, where the Weinands live, the state guarantees the funds. "Essentially, we're pre-paying Kyle's tuition 18 years from now at today's tuition rates," Kevin explains. "The fund is not tied to any particular school and we can use it at any public or private university that honors the 529 programs through the U.S. Department of Education."

Coinstar coin-counting kiosks are in supermarkets and other convenient retail locations across the country, so it's easy for just about anyone to start a college fund or apply their new-found money for other purposes. Consumers simply take their change to a Coinstar kiosk, have it automatically counted, and receive a receipt exchangeable for cash.

"Dealing with the financial demands of parenthood, new parents can often find spare cash in short supply," says Alex Camara, senior vice president and general manager of worldwide coin at Coinstar, Inc. "But almost everyone has spare change. Saving those coins and cashing them in can be a great way to supplement their effort to save for their child's college education. The average American household has about $90 in spare change lying around the house."

and have a line out front on hot nights.

Take a stand

Here are just a few of the many area places we love to go to get our licks:

Ross Shake Shack

Close your eyes and picture the quintessential ice cream stand, then open your eyes to find the Ross Shake Shack in Slingerlands. The shack could fit in an average backyard and store a lawn mower, but offers a broad menu including veal, onion and peppers on a hard roll.

What people are screaming for here is Pillsbury cake and ice cream, and yes, that's a real flavor.

"It's vanilla cake chunks, vanilla ice cream, with the frosting and sprinkles on cake blended right in," explained Jessica Giglio, scooping cones on a recent weekday. There are picnic tables and a swing set, but parking can be iffy.

Kurver Kreme

With its low, wide building and distinctive deliberately misspelled name, Kurver Kreme has been hallowed ice cream territory for more than 50 years on JJ's Snack Bar in Ballston Spa offers "Ittibitz," tiny beads of quasi-ice cream rumored to melt slowly and have an intense flavor.

Cari Scribner/Spotlight

Central Avenue in Colonie.

Kurver Kreme offers specialty sundaes, signature sundaes, banana splits, soda floats and slush floats, sherbet coolers, low and no-fat yogurt thick shakes, cookies, smoothies, Arctic frosts and the popular "coffee blast." Plus, a small menu of hot dogs and nachos with cheese.

But size matters at Kurver.

"The bigger, the better," said Kim Ciprioni, working on a recent weekday. "Our brownie sundaes are really big, and people come out for them every weekend."

Dairy Haus

At the Dairy Haus in Saratoga Springs, ice cream is made on the premises every day in flavors as drool-inducing as nutty buddy, vanilla with chocolate pieces and crushed sugar cones blended in. You can buy freshly scooped Italian ice, in grape, watermelon, and even chocolate. The soft cone specialty is an unusual lemon custard - black raspberry blend.

There are also burgers, and a large tented area near the parking lot with wooden swings to perch on while downing a cone.

"Banana Oreo is our best seller," said Kristina Czizik, who's spending her summer scooping at Dairy Haus. "You have to forget what it sounds like and just try it. I haven't seen a single person not like it."

JJ's Snack Bar

Kids may request a visit to JJ's Snack Bar in Ballston Spa for the large, fenced-in playground. There's a large drive-up area, and the windows at JJ's have lots of information about family events. The menu is enormous, although the running favorite is the chocolate chip cookie sundae, and a vanilla cone with blue raspberry dip.

JJ's also serves "Ittibitz," those tiny beads of quasi-ice cream that are said to melt more slowly and have more intense flavor.

It's surprisingly cool at the metal picnic tables under the large awning, and chances are you'll run into a village neighbor or friend.

Guptills Coney Express

Mention favorite local ice cream haunts, and you'll likely hear the name Guptills Coney Express in Latham. Opened in 1995 next to the long-standing Guptills roller-skating arena, the "stand" is a long, low building with several windows facing the huge parking lot.

Most customers go to Guptills for a waffle cone. Specifically, the dream cone.

"People love the dream cone," said Jessica Stah, filling cones on a recent weekday. "It's a waffle cone with chocolate dip pressed in chocolate sprinkles, or a cherry dip rolled in rainbow sprinkles. It really makes the whole ice cream experience complete."

Looking to appease your conscience? There are low-carb scoops and no-fat flavors, including fat-free chocolate fudge brownie frozen yogurt.

The Country Drive-in

The Country Drive-in in Clifton Park is celebrating 38 years in business, and the small cluster of picnic tables out front are almost always full with devoted customers. It's quite a feat that so many menu items can be churned out from the tiny hut showing its age, but you can order everything from mini-hot dogs to a cheeseburger to Spiedie chicken sandwiches.

Two ice-cream concoctions stand out in the crowd: the upside-down banana split and the homemade ice cream sandwiches.

"I buy the chocolate ice cream sandwiches and bring them home to the freezer," said Emily Meyers of Clifton Park, sitting at the Country Drive-in on a recent weekend. "Now I have to hide them from my husband. He can smell if I've been eating them."

Bumpy's Polar Freeze

Bumpy's Polar Freeze in Schenectady, operating formerly as Creamie's for 50 years, gets its unusual name from the bumper boats and gas-powered rafts for adults and kids.

Bumpy's offers a staggering 130 flavors of soft serve, thanks to a mixing machine that creates palate pleasers from mango to cranberry to eggnog and strawberry cheesecake.

Head to Bumpy's for an "elephant poop" sundae with brownies, mini-marshmallows and caramel, or the "soggy bottom," with Oreos, vanilla ice cream, marshmallow, peanut butter, whipped cream and a cherry, served up in a Chinese food takeout container.

"People have their favorites," said Byrnes. "We have a diverse nationality range in Schenectady, and there are flavors for everyone here."

Mario's

The orange and white color scheme of Mario's on Route 50 in Burnt Hills heralds the stand's signature flavor: soft orange sherbet and vanilla twist. Mario's is a blast from the past. The menu, including fresh popcorn for 65 cents, root beer from a barrel, and cranberry dry soda starting at 59 cents, is etched into a wooden sign; prices go up a few pennies a year.

Sundaes are served in cups rather than dishes and the root beer floats hearken back to the days of sitting at the soda counter sharing one straw.

Ocean Blue Fish Fry and Ice Cream

Located in Milton, Ocean Blue is a fairly new addition to the local sweets scene. It's an idyllic set-up, with a wide wooden dock and large number of picnic tables clustered under an awning. The business includes the adjacent Mill Creek Mini-Golf course.

Bring the pooch along for the ride; Ocean's offers "Doggie Dishes" for $1.50.

There's seafood on the menu, and popular icy treats are mocha and banana shakes and killer Flurries brimming with add-ins like M&M's and Heath Bar.

This is by no means a complete list of local ice cream stands. Check the long listing in the yellow pages under "ice cream," or better yet, ask your friends for recommendations.

Cold

where people made 10 grand in three months. It's a good college job, I heard."

Papaliosas is clocking six to seven hours a day, seven days a week, on the road. He hopes to return to his sophomore year at St. John's University with some spending cash. He studies film.

As ozone choked the air and temperatures reached 92 degrees shortly after 1 p.m. on Tuesday, June 26, Papaliosas stocked his truck at the Colonie headquarters to make the 45-minute trek south to Averill Park. Hot days equal hot sales.

Last year, the driver of that route set a Ding-A-Ling record, $12,000 for the summer.

Papaliosas can only hope his biggest seller since he started on Monday, May 21, the SpongeBob SquarePants popsicle, can get him close. He sells roughly 15 a day. The kids throw them down like nothing, he said.

The siren song of the Ding-A-Ling truck has been beckoning children since 1973. After city of Albany legislators almost put the kibosh on the vendors on wheels in the 1950s, the ice cream man and woman returned after several successful court challenges. The laws sought to keep the trucks 1,000 feet from intersections, not let drivers handle ice cream; and that there be a law requiring that there be one person to drive and one to sell the ice cream.

To this day, one man has claimed all of the Capital District turf and stomping grounds in neighboring states.

His name is Brian Collis.

His story is legendary in each and every one of the 66 trucks that idle by hungry masses from Utica to Pittsfield, Mass., in the east; Middletown, Orange County to the south; and to the north in Burlington, Vt.

Mr. Ding-A-Ling truck driver Jim Papaliosas shows off his best seller, a SpongeBob SquarePants popsicle.

Graham S. Parker/Spotlight

"By the late 1960s, all ice cream trucks went out of business. I did some research and found that back in the 1950s there were three or four in the Albany area," said Collis, Mr. Ding-A-Ling owner.

It began with a letter to the Good Humor ice cream company. Collis, 20 at the time, bought his first truck for $7,500. He stocked it and drove it around the Wolf and Albany Shaker roads route for eight years before he incorporated. Soon the signature chime of his trucks washed over the area.

It is now an entrepreneur's job, he said.

"Some people can't work on their own. But there are others that are out there in the rain," said Collis. "They can make $600 to $700 a week."

Each driver leases the truck from Collis and is responsible for gas and keeping it stocked with ice cream. After that, drivers have between April and October to peddle their frozen wares on planned routes. What they make is up to them.

"A lot of the kids aren't in the neighborhoods. You have to find them in the parks or at summer camp," said Papaliosas.

On a good day, the Bishop Gibbon graduate brings in $200 to $300. To date, he estimates he has netted roughly $700 to $800 since he started one month ago. The secret is keeping a stocked truck and expenses to a minimum. He spends roughly $700 to fill up the truck with ice cream, minus the daily restocking of SpongeBob popsicles, $200 per week to lease the truck and $100 a week in gas. Half of what you make goes towards ice cream, he said.

Yvette Murray

Yvette Murray (nee Bolduc), 87, of Glenmont, died Saturday, June 23, at the Good Samaritan Lutheran Home in Delmar. Born in Sherbrooke, Quebec, she immigrated with her parents from Canada to the Albany area in 1923.

Mrs. Murray worked for Mohawk Brush Company, Farm Bureau in Glenmont and Key Bank in Elsmere for 20 years. She was a member of the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard American Legion Post Auxiliary.

She was the widow of David Murray.

Survivors include two sons, David (Linda) Murray of Saratoga and Ronald (Joan) Murray of Albany; and a daughter, Patricia (John) Manning of Glenmont; nine grandchildren; one great-grandchild; and a sister-in-law, Eleanor Bolduc.

Services were from the Meyers Funeral Home. Interment was private in Calvary Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the Good Samaritan Health Care Center Activity Funds, 125 Rockefeller Road, Delmar, 12054.

Adelaide Skaskiw

Adelaide Skaskiw, 83, of Delmar, died on Saturday, June 23, at home. Raised in Little Falls, she was a graduate of St. Mary's Academy in Little Falls and the Utica School of Commerce in Utica. After raising four children, Adelaide worked as the office manager of the Wildwood School in Schenectady and as the office manager at the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce.

She was a past member of the Bethlehem Business Women's Club and the Progress Club.

Survivors include her husband, Bernie Skaskiw; three sons, Will (Christina) of Edinburgh, Scotland, Greg (Sue) of Bridgewater, Vt., Kevin (Robin) of Clifton Park; a daughter, Lynne Skaskiw-Potter of Delmar; and six grandchildren.

Services were from St. Thomas the Apostle Church in Delmar. Interment was in Calvary Cemetery in Glenmont.

Contributions may be made to Community Hospice of Albany, 445 New Karner Road, Albany, 12205 or the American Lung Association, 3 Winners Circle, Suite 300, Albany, 12205.

Shawn Martin

Sgt. Shawn P. Martin, USMC, 30, died Wednesday, June 20, in Saqlawiyah, Iraq, while serving his country. Born in Albany, he was a 1995 graduate of Bethlehem Central High School, where he had been a member of the varsity football team.

He had been involved in scouting, played baseball with Tri-Village Little League, and had been pursuing his black belt in Tae Kwon Do. He was a communicant of the Church of St.

Thomas the Apostle.

Sgt. Martin had been a proud member of the Elsmere Fire Department, where he volunteered with his father.

He enlisted in the United States Marine Corps in February 2000 and was promoted to sergeant in March 2004. He had been serving as an elite member of the Marines Explosive Ordnance Disposal Team.

Survivors include his wife, Marianne (Thomes) Martin; his parents, Paul and Dawn (Mosher) Martin of Delmar; a sister, Nicole of Delmar; his grandparents, Vivian Greshel of Herkimer, Hazel Mosher of Colorado, and Leland and Patricia Martin of Feura Bush; two aunts and three uncles; a niece and two nephews; his parents-in-law, William Thomes, Jr. and Cleo Adams of Mohawk; two brothers-in-law, William Thomes III and Jonathan Thomes; and cousins.

Services were from the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle in Delmar. Burial with full military honors was in Gerald B. H. Solomon Saratoga National Cemetery, Schuylerville.

Contributions may be made to the Shawn P. Martin Memorial Fund, an educational trust fund established for his nieces and nephew c/o any Citizens Bank branch.

Charles Szelest

Charles Szelest, 84, died Sunday, June 24. Born in Albany, he was a lifelong area resident.

He served in the armed forces during World War II as an MP in the U.S. Marine Fleet Forces. He was a communicant of the former Church of St. Casimir and a member and past vice commander of the Lt. Herman Silverstein Post #218 and the Guildland and Colonie Elks.

He was a contractor and a retired member of the Carpenters Local #370.

He was husband of the late Teresa Masiewicz Szelest.

Survivors include three sons, David Charles (Margo) Szelest, Bruce (Denise) Szelest and Glenn (Paula) Szelest; a daughter, Regina (Frank) Frederick; eight grandchildren; and nieces and nephews.

Services were from St. Thomas the Apostle Church in Delmar. Interment was in Our Lady of Angels Cemetery in Colonie. Contributions may be made to Community Hospice of Albany, 445 New Karner Road, Albany, 12205.

By KATHERINE MCCARTHY
mccarthyk@spotlightnews.com

Children of children who came to Shakespeare & Co. are now enjoying the shows put on in the Lenox, Mass., theater.

"Some of the actors here came to Shakespeare & Co. as children, and saw our productions in their schools," said Elizabeth Aspenlieder, an S & Co. actor who also works as the publicity director at the company.

"That's very significant," said Aspenlieder, particularly as the company celebrates its 30th anniversary this year.

"The time has flown by," Aspenlieder, who herself came from Toronto for a summer in 1995 and still performs with the company.

This season, Shakespeare & Co. is offering "A Midsummer Night's Dream" and "Antony and Cleopatra" by the Bard, plus two modern pieces, "Rough Crossing" by Tom Stoppard and "Blue/ Orange," directed by Timothy Douglas.

"It's fun to mix it up," Aspenlieder said of the inclusion of modern plays in the repertory. "We revel in the writers. We're committed to text and words."

That commitment is what uniformly earns Shakespeare & Co. praise from critics.

"A lot of critics — including those from The New York Times and The Boston Globe — say that they haven't seen Shakespeare performed with as much clarity and understanding of the text," Aspenlieder said.

Michael Hammond, who is directing this summer's production of "Antony and Cleopatra," and is the company's associate artistic director, echoed that statement.

"Critics praise the clarity of speaking the text that takes place here," Hammond said. "We stress truth, clarity and passion. That makes the plays accessible.

People come away from here saying, 'I had no idea.'"

"All of the training — the movement, the voice, the text, the Elizabethan music — that means our actors are committed 100 percent," Aspenlieder said. "We all have a desire to tell a story, which carries through to the audiences and gives them a singular experience."

Hammond is directing the founder and artistic director of Shakespeare & Co, Tina Packer, in "Antony and Cleopatra." Packer is Cleopatra; her husband, Nigel Gore, is Antony.

Hammond, Packer and Gore have been working on the play since last winter. On June 19, the full cast joined in rehearsals. "That was a luxury," Hammond said of the rehearsal time, which he believes will translate into further clarity for the audience.

"The longer the actor can spend with language, the more he or she can make it their own."

"Antony and Cleopatra" is rarely performed, Aspenlieder said, but Packer felt the time was right.

"We've also brought back 'A Midsummer Night's Dream,' which was the first play performed here," Aspenlieder said. "It's a Valentine to

Beyond the Bard

Shakespeare & Co. looks forward as it celebrates its 30th anniversary

Shakespeare and this play."

Aspenlieder is performing in "Rough Crossing," which she described as funny and quick.

Shakespeare & Co. started out at Edith Wharton's home, The Mount, but moved to its own property, just down the road from the Mount, in 2000.

"We're still on a turn-of-the-century estate," Aspenlieder said. "We have an outdoor, tented theater that will eventually become a replica of The Rose Theater, the 1857 playhouse where Shakespeare's plays were performed." The Founders Theater is the main theater at Shakespeare & Co., an indoor, air-conditioned theater.

In addition to its main performances, Shakespeare & Co. offers preludes before its shows, and runs a separate series on the Rose footprint, that ranges from lectures to demonstrations of all things Elizabethan (food, swordplay) to short plays. Its touring education program reaches students across New York and New England.

And, its walking trails, lush grounds, pretty views and picnic tables make it a great place to catch an evening breeze before a night at the theater.

For information, schedules and tickets, visit www.shakespeare.org or call 413-637-1199.

"A Midsummer Night's Dream" pays tribute to Shakespeare & Co.'s past.

be him one day."

Journeyman founder Frank Popolizio equated the camp to having the New York Giants train in your backyard. "The only difference is we get to physically train with them," he said.

It took eight years for Popolizio to convince Smith to bring his wrestling camp to the payoff, but Popolizio said the payoff is huge for Journeyman.

"I think it's one of the top two biggest things we've been able to accomplish — the first being the Northeast Collegiate Duals," he said.

That's because Smith's camps offer younger wrestlers a taste of what it takes to be successful at the collegiate level. He brought some of his Oklahoma State wrestlers to Cobleskill, including former NCAA champion Zack Esposito.

"It's about giving back to the kids — to try to help younger guys out and become better on the mat," said Esposito, who now serves as a graduate assistant on Smith's Oklahoma State coaching staff.

"I don't give (my wrestlers) much choice" about being camp counselors, said Smith. "I tell them who's going, but it's a great opportunity for them. Although it benefits the kids, it helps them to verbally go over what they're doing and go through the fundamentals."

Fundamentals are at the heart of what Smith teaches his students. He breaks down each move to give them the technique necessary to pull it off.

"Whether you're 5 years old or 18 years old and about to enter college, fundamentals are important," he said.

"I've been learning a lot of technique like how to throw a single (leg takedown) and how to counter that," said Meys. "I'm also learning a lot of finishing points to everything."

Meys seemingly absorbed a lot of what Smith was teaching by the fourth day of the camp Thursday. Smith called Meys out to wrestle Esposito at one point, and Meys was able to earn a draw against the 2005 NCAA champ.

"He's a tough, young kid," said Esposito. "He was wanting to take me down, that's for sure."

"I'm not sure, but I think my technique improves every time I go to one of these camps," said Meys.

But Smith's camps are not always about wrestling. Social activities are mixed in to give the campers a chance to blow off steam including fashioning a slip-and-slide out of some wrestling mats to help them cool off one evening.

"It's a lot longer than other camps I've gone to. It's a lot of fun, though," said McCauslin.

Smith certainly had fun in Cobleskill — so much so that he plans on extending the length of the camp to two weeks next year and promoting it nationally along with his camps in Reno, Nev., and the Oklahoma State campus in Stillwater, Okla.

"I like the setting for training," he said of Cobleskill. "I like the fact that when we run in the morning, it's always a beautiful run."

And if any of the inaugural class of Cobleskill campers go on to achieve greater success, Smith said he will have done his job.

"The greatest compliment I could have is to have one of these kids go on and be a NCAA champion or an Olympic champion," he said.

Fantasy

"Hey, you wanted your team to spend more money on players — you just didn't tell the team what players they should spend money on." If I survive that, I can always grab a deep dish pizza.

Stop 7 — St. Louis. A Cardinals game in the new Busch Stadium and great barbecue. There might not be a closer definition to heaven on earth than that.

Stop 8 — Los Angeles. I'm not much for stargazing, so I'd just head straight to Dodgers Stadium for some Dodgerdogs and hopefully a Dodger loss.

Stop 9 — Seattle. After taking in a Mariners game at Safeco Field, I'd drop by a coffee shop for a cup of locally-brewed iced java. Hopefully, there's one left without the name Starbucks on it.

Stop 10 — Denver. The mile-high altitude might be murder on my lungs, but I have to at least make the effort so I can see Coors Field. I'll avoid the "Rocky Mountain oysters," though.

Stop 11 — Indianapolis. One last stop before returning home — a visit to the Indianapolis Motor Speedway so I can take a tour and pat the bricks at the finish line. I won't kiss the bricks — that's best left to whoever wins the Brickyard 400.

That should satisfy the sports fan in me, if not my stomach.

Drafty Windows?

Summer... it's here and it's time to start thinking about replacing those drafty old windows. Those older windows are a major source of heat loss in the winter, and unwanted heat gain in the summer.

With the price of energy services won't it be nice to look at your bill and see how much you're saving just by replacing those windows?

Replacement windows can change the appearance of your home, and increase your real estate value. Plus think of the time you'll save on window maintenance. It's a beautiful thing!

Our Draft Detectors at Zerodraft have the tightest fitting window in the world... a Soft-Lite window. Soft-Lite windows are the highest standard of quality and craftsmanship. They have an unconditional lifetime warranty against rot, rust, warp, corrosion, and blistering. They're even Energy Star approved!

Call us today, The Draft Detectors at Zerodraft. Ask about our FREE Energy Assessment and FREE triple pane window upgrade available now thru July 31st! Call for zero drafts, "won't it be nice?"

News & Notes

MLL names Leveille an all-star

Delmar native Kevin Leveille has been selected to play for the Western Conference squad in the Major Lacrosse League's All-Star Game July 8 at Harvard Stadium in Boston.

Leveille leads the Chicago Machine with 21 points (15 goals, 6 assists), which also ties him for 10th overall in the league. He has recorded multiple points in the first five games of the season, including a seven-point night in a June 17 game against New Jersey.

It is the third consecutive year that Leveille has been named to the MLL All-Star Game. The University of Massachusetts graduate has five goals and one assist in his two previous trips to the mid-season game. He will also compete in the freestyle event in the halftime skills competition.

The MLL All-Stars were selected by the league's head coaches, general managers and players.

Wrestling the Cowboy way

Smith brings his wrestling camp to Cobleskill

You would think a man who has coached the Oklahoma State wrestling team to four national titles and won four world championships on his own would be stately or curmudgeonly.

Not so with John Smith.

The moment he entered SUNY Cobleskill's gym for last Thursday afternoon's session of the wrestling camp that bears his name, Smith was a bundle of happy energy. His first order of business was to gather the campers in a circle and pick challengers for his counselors — many of whom currently wrestle for Division I college programs — to compete with.

Some of the challengers Smith picked were of equal size to his wrestlers. Others needed several years of growth to get to that size. But it was all in the name of having some fun before getting to the serious business of teaching the young wrestlers (who ranged in age from elementary school to high school) how to compete like an Oklahoma State Cowboy.

And in John Smith's world, having fun is part of being a wrestler.

"First, it's a privilege to wrestle (in college), and once you approach it that way, you'll enjoy the ride," said Smith. "We tend to think it's more work — it's not more work. You're training your body and your mind. And by first enjoying it, you'll become a winner."

This was the first year that Smith brought his wrestling camp to the east coast, and the response was impressive. More than 200 school-age wrestlers from the Capital District and as far away as Maine flocked to the Schoharie County town for a week of learning the techniques that make Oklahoma State wrestlers among the top in the nation.

"I was very pleased with the first year," said Smith. "I was very pleased with the athletes I worked with. We do a lot of camps across the nation, and there are places where you wonder why you came. This is not one of those places."

"It's kind of like a privilege being in this camp because you're working with one of the top programs in the country," said camper Matthew McCauslin, who will be entering ninth grade at Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk High School in September.

Even three-time Section II champion Austin Meys of Shenendehowa said he felt privileged to be at the camp, which was co-run by Niskayuna-based Journeymen Wrestling.

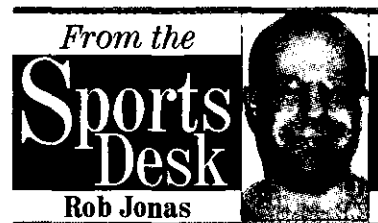

"It's exciting," said Meys. "I look up to (Smith), and I hope to

The fantasy trip: lots of sports and food

As summer begins, I start thinking about all the things I'd like to do now that I have some free time on my hands. That is, if I had the money to travel anywhere for four consecutive weeks (I have to be back for the start of the Saratoga racing season).

What I've come up with is an itinerary that stretches from Baltimore to Seattle and from Los Angeles to Toronto. Where I'd come up with the money I have no idea, but since this is only a fantasy trip, let's fantasize I'd have the cash for this.

Stop 1 — Philadelphia. I'd grab a cheesesteak sandwich at Geno's and then head to Citizens Bank Ballpark for a Phillies game. And to work off the cheesesteak, I'd run up the Philadelphia Museum of Art's steps like Rocky Balboa. Unfortunately, I'd probably only get about halfway up before running out of gas.

Stop 2 — Baltimore. As long as I'm going to visit some baseball parks, I'd better stop at Camden Yards for an Orioles game. After all, Camden Yards begat the "old time" trend in building ballparks, which saved the United States from the evil, circular all-purpose stadiums. Also, I hear Baltimore is a great place for crab cakes.

Stop 3 — Pittsburgh. Big surprise here: another ballgame and another native food stop. This time, it's a Pirates game at PNC Park (where tickets are always available) and a Roethlisburger (a huge hamburger complete with a fried egg — aptly named after Ben Roethlisberger, who's brain was a bit fried after last year's motorcycle accident).

Stop 4 — Toronto. I change things up with this stop. Instead of a Blue Jays game, I'd head to the Hockey Hall of Fame to brush up on my NHL history. I'll also give my body a break by not eating anything that could clog my arteries.

Stop 5 — Detroit. Back to the grind: a Tigers game at Comerica Ballpark. The city may not be much to look at, but Comerica certainly has its charm with its huge tigers on the scoreboard and a tiger carousel outside the stadium. Plus, I hear the Tigers are a pretty good team.

Stop 6 — Chicago. I've always wanted to sit in the Wrigley Field bleachers with those long-suffering Cubs fans and tell them,
