small bites
BIG TROUBLE

Tick threat persists well into fall

But don't let the thinking stop just because summer is over. Ticks are abundant in the Capital District this year and pose a risk to hikers, gardeners and soccer moms well into fall.

Ticks - the tiny deer tick in particular - carry the bacteria that cause Lyme disease in humans. When a tick bites, it latches onto a person's skin for a blood meal during which time the bacteria can gain entry. The risk of transmission goes up the longer the tick is attached.

The summer nymph is the main culprit, said Rick Burstell, an educator with the Cornell Cooperative Extension of Greene County. The nymphs need a blood meal before they can molt into adults.

"We see them mostly in June and July, but also as late as October," he said.

Some doctors have seen a surge of tick-bitten patients this summer.

"We've seen more confirmed and suspected cases of Lyme disease," said Dr. Alexander Brand of Delmar Pediatrics. "I couldn't say there are more ticks, but there's more exposure to ticks, with people spending time outdoors."

An increase in awareness may contribute to people seeking medical help for tick bites and unexplained rashes.

According to the Center for Disease Control Web site, the first sign of Lyme disease is generally a bull's-eye, circular shaped rash. Other symptoms include fatigue, chills, fever, and head and body aches. If left untreated, the disease can cause lingering bouts of arthritis. According to the CDC, antibiotics can cure

It is weeks in the early stages. "I do believe there's mounting concern about Lyme disease, and appropriately so," said Dr. Gerald Shynoll, an internist at Albany Medical Center, who hasn't seen enough cases to say there's a trend.

It's just about that time of year when West Nile virus cases start to pop up in New York, as they have every year since 1999. Several birds have already tested positive for the virus in Schoharie, Onondaga and Niagara counties.

"This is the time that it gets going, as it moves into mid August, late August, Labor Day. We could go from a couple of (infected) birds to a couple hundred," said Dr. Ward Stone, a wildlife pathologist at the state De-

A Delmar resident has been picked to serve as deputy comptroller for the office of the New York State Comptroller.

Kevin Murray has been selected by State Comptroller Thomas P. DiNapoli to oversee the office's Retirement Services Division, the nation's second largest retirement system.

"Kevin Murray brings more than 25 years in public service to help insure the system continues to place customer service at its core," said DiNapoli, who announced the appointment Wednesday, Aug. 8.

Murray most recently served as executive director of the Retired Public Employees Association (RPEA).

"With his experience at RPEA, Kevin is uniquely suited to understand how to best meet the needs of our growing retiree population," DiNapoli said.

Murray's public service with the state began in 1970 with the state Division of Budget, where he advanced to the position of assistance chief budget examiner. He left his public sector employment in 1984 to work for Empire Blue Cross and Blue Shield, where he was named divisional vice-president. Murray returned

Opponents vie for ballot lines in several races

A mixed bag of party primaries will affect Bethlehem voters on primary day Tuesday, Sept. 18.

In the race for Bethlehem town supervisor, Democratic candidate Jack Cunningham and Republican/Conservative candidate Jim Grady are each trying to secure the Independence party line. Grady has said he is the true Independence candidate, even though Cunningham has already received the endorsement of the Albany County Independence Party.

"I am a true Independent who started the party in the town," said Grady who traces his Independence affiliation back to the Ross Perot for president campaign.

Grady believes he did not receive the Independence Party endorsement for supervisor because of Assemblymen Tim Gordon's, I-Slingerlands, allegiance to Democratic Assembly Speaker Sheldon Silver.

"The executive committee interviewed both candidates and unanimously supported Jack Cunningham," said Gordon, an Independence Party member who also serves on the Albany County Independence Party executive committee.

Gordon said he believes Cunningham is the best fit for residents of Bethlehem because he supports ideas and goals promoted both by Gordon and Theresa Egan when she was town supervisor.

"If I thought Jim Grady was a better choice for supervisor, I would support him, but he is not," said Gordon.

Grady said the party has

Man charged with DWI following accident

Bethlehem police charged a 36-year-old man with driving while intoxicated following a personal injury auto accident Sunday, Aug. 12, on Route 9W in Glenmont. David Mastriani, of 2 Market St., Rotterdam Junction, was also charged with driving with more than .08 percent blood alcohol content. Police report that Mastriani failed field sobriety tests at the scene following the accident and was placed under arrest. Police also indicate that marijuana and a glass pipe used for possessing illegal drugs were also found inside the vehicle Mastriani was driving. He was issued tickets and was scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on Aug. 21. The injuries sustained in the accident were minor, according to police.

• Two Albany men were charged with possessing crack cocaine after a traffic stop in Glenmont on Thursday, Aug. 9.

Bethlehem police report that Matthew Ballien, 57, of 11 Dutch Village Apartments, Albany, and Willie McDaniel, 37, of 7 Thompson

St., Albany, were each charged with criminal possession of a controlled substance, seventh degree. The two were traveling south on River Road in Glenmont when, police said, Ballien failed to signal for a turn. A check of the vehicle uncovered glass pipes used for smoking crack cocaine and a cellophane package that, when tested by police, revealed .49 grams of crack cocaine, they said. The two were issued tickets and were scheduled to appear in town court Aug. 21.

The money's in the details

Young entrepreneur starts auto-cleaning business from scratch

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

While many high school graduates spend the summer relaxing with friends or preparing for college, Eli Schaeffer learned how to operate his own business.

With the encouragement of his father, Howard, and his mom, Wendy, Eli began an automotive detailing business called Eli's Auto Detail.

"It started off as an idea, and I just ran with it," said Schaeffer, who brainstormed the idea in June with his dad.

"I was looking for a summer job and realized I like working with cars," said Schaeffer, who received a small infusion of cash from his father to purchase the much-needed supplies like an electric buffer, vacuum and cleaning materials to begin his entrepreneurial venture.

Advertising for the business started with fliers circulated around Schaeffer's Carstead Avenue Slingerlands home, followed by a few ads in The Spotlight and good, old-fashioned word of mouth.

Schaeffer did such a good job with his first customer that news spread around the neighborhood and the business quickly picked up steam.

"So far, every job I have completed, people have been happy with the work," said Schaeffer, who charges $100 to detail a car, $125 for a sport-utility vehicle and $200 for trucks or boats.

In just six short weeks Eli's Auto Detail raked in close to $2,000, and the wheels are turning in the mind of the newest Bethlehem businessman on how he can turn a greater profit with the business next summer after he returns home from Brandeis University, where he will major in physics.

"Next year realistically I could probably make double or triple that," said Schaeffer who is looking forward to college life just outside of Boston.

"I'm nervous but looking forward to it," he said. "I'm excited to be on campus."

Eli's dad said this summer has been a maturing experience for Eli as he made his first foray into the business world.

"He has really taken the initiative to spend his time productively," said Howard Schaeffer, who said his son has learned many valuable lessons he can put to good use in the future.

"He learned how to budget time, deal with people, understand job performance and the value of a referral," said Schaeffer.

Depending on the vehicle, detailing a car can take anywhere between two to four-and-a-half hours from set up to wash and waxing, vacuuming, cleaning the interior and windows.

"It's kind of exhausting," said Schaeffer. "You're tired at the end of the day."

Some benefits of running your own business, according to Eli, are the ability to set up your own schedule and still have some free time left over for yourself at the end of the day.

"My nights are always open," said Schaeffer. "I don't have to bring home work."

Eli's Auto Detailing will take a hiatus for fall and winter but will most likely be up and running in Slingerlands again next spring.

Schaeffer hasn't ruled out taking his work with him to college this fall.

"It's definitely a possibility."

Walk aims to take steps toward a cure

Event to benefit research of pancreatic cancer

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

Neil and Shari Piper believe the annual community walk for pancreatic cancer will outpace the disease that took the lives of three members of their family.

Neil's mother, sister and brother, Bruce Piper, all died from pancreatic cancer. Bruce was able to survive a year with the illness. While undergoing treatment, he learned of a Long Island foundation called the Lustgarten Foundation, established by a prominent businessman who also had pancreatic cancer and who died from the illness in 1999. The Pipers realized after Bruce's death they could not give up the fight to find a cure for a disease that is difficult to detect and even harder to treat.

"I talked to my wife and said I would really like to do something," said Neil Piper, who then learned about the community walks the Lustgarten Foundation began holding in Long Island.

A short time later the Pipers decided to hold the first local community walk for pancreatic cancer in 2005.

"We started small, and the foundation helped us," said Neil Piper. With a lot of effort and support from friends the Pipers were able to raise $4,000 in the first walk.

Last year the 2.4-mile walk was held in Elm Avenue Park along the fitness trail, but as more people signed up, the Pipers realized how many people have been affected by pancreatic cancer.

Neil, along with his nieces and nephews, then all went to get tested to see if they have the disease.

"We all have inflammation of the pancreas," said Piper, who found out in March he was diagnosed with an abnormal growth that turned out to be negative. Piper's niece did have pre-cancerous micro tumors that needed to be removed.

"She decided to have a portion of her pancreas removed," said Piper.

Instead of becoming disheartened, Piper found the news only fortified his belief that every effort needs to be made to find a cure.

The 2007 Community Walk for Pancreatic Cancer is scheduled for Sunday, Sept. 23, at the Elm Avenue Town Park in Delmar. This year's goal is to raise $6,000.

"This is our seed year to make this a big event," said Shari Piper, who said the more people who participate, the more money is raised and the quicker a cure will be found.

"It worries me," said Shari Piper, who expressed concern that her husband may one day end up with the same illness his brother died from.

"I would like to have my husband live to a ripe old age," she said.

For more information on the Community Walk for Pancreatic Cancer, you can contact the Pipers directly at 475-1200 or go online to www.pipertech.net.

The Lustgarten Foundation has raised more than $18 million to support pancreatic cancer research. More information is available online at www.lustgarten.org.

Woman gets jail for fatal crash

A Feura Bush woman was sentenced to serve six months in jail after being convicted of fatally injuring a Slingerlands cyclist in 2006 while driving under the influence of Ambien, a prescribed sleeping medication.

Darlene Kawczak, 52, is the first person in the state to receive a jail term for driving with Ambien in her system.

Kawczak was driving along Route 32 in Bethlehem during the morning hours of July 3, 2006, last year when she struck and killed 49-year-old Joel Melnikoff as he was riding his bicycle along the side of the road.

Police initially charged Kawczak with driving while intoxicated because she admitted to drinking several beers prior to the crash. Tests later revealed Kawczak had twice the prescribed amount of the sleeping pill Ambien in her system. Severe confusion is a known side effect of Ambien.

Kawczak was also given five years probation and will have to perform 160 hours of community service.

Melnikoff was married with two children. A statement was read during sentencing in Albany County Court on Thursday, Aug. 16, by Albany County Stop DWI coordinator Lenny Crouch on behalf of Melnikoff's widow, Susan.

Judge Stephen Herrick said this is the first conviction of anyone in the state under the influence of a sleeping aid.

Finding deals is part of the fun of travel

eat to live."

On a value trip for five days a couple fancy meals are great fun and you can enjoy some local specialties. If you are over 50, you don't need 15 fancy meals in five days. Stop at the grocery store and the wine shop on the way to the hotel to keep your room refrigerator full for cocktail hour and easy light meals. Buy some fruit for snacks and quick lunches, or, better yet, if there is a breakfast buffet, pick up some fruit there. Always check to see if breakfast is included with your room charge. Read the local papers for nightly specials at restaurants near your hotel, and always ask for senior discounts.

The group always checks the Internet for local gourmet grocery stores and specialty bakeries before the trip. On the West Coast, they love the sourdough breads, in the Heartland, the cornbreads, and they eat plenty of the wonderful Italian and rye breads on the East Coast. The sandwiches and wraps are made with a local flair, always high in quality but low in cost compared to stopping for lunch. They check out interesting places for picnics, and often bring homemade meals... special treats that the group loves.

Two of the group's favorite food quotes are:

- 1) "You never see any real old fat guys."
- 2) "To lengthen thy life, lessen thy meals."

Rule Two: We hate rental cars.

Ground transportation

Has this ever happened to you? You drive the rental car from the airport to the resort, it sits there for four days and you drive it back to the airport. This group understands that some people need the security of having a rental car sitting outside. But they believe if you are creative, you can find other ways to get around and have more fun.

Most hotel and resorts have shuttles or can arrange for shuttles to and from the airport, often for free. If you befriend the shuttle drivers, often you can make arrangements with them to take you wherever you want to go. Many resorts make this service available, but few guests use it. Check out the local public transportation; subways and buses can add to the experience of understanding the local ambiance. Many local tours and attractions will pick you up right at the hotel. You can always find a taxi or choices that are within walking distance. This group has also rented bicycles and motorscooters to get around town. Especially in the Caribbean, drivers can be hired for a week or day-by-day.

Their philosophy is enjoy the journey... how you get around should be fun and part of the vacation adventure.

When asked if they felt weird asking if the hotel shuttle could take them out to a local restaurant or attraction, members of the group had this to say: "Not at all. At our age we have to take advantage of maturity's gifts. We hate to generalize, but with maturity do come some gifts like experience, confidence and improved people skills. If the front desk can't help you, the concierge will, and if the concierge can't help, the general manager can. You should never be afraid to ask. We have met so many nice people, like angels, with local knowledge that are happy to help visitors... and we do tip well."

Weather wise or otherwise
Last year in the Albany area, we had only two snowfalls of more than 2 inches. Yep, global warming is true, but our perceptions haven't changed. High seasons, low seasons and shoulder seasons are all changing, take advantage of the off-season rates and pleasant mild weather before the resorts change their prices. Don't assume you know what the weather is going to be. Check in with www.weather.com or watch the Weather Channel and you can take advantage of global warming and last-minute travel deals.

A couple years ago, this group paid $300 for a luxury condo in Myrtle Beach for four nights, four rounds of golf at great courses and breakfast every day plus some free goodies. It was the second week in December. But they played golf in shorts three of the four days.

Cape Cod is wonderful in the fall, when the prices are the reduced, and no traffic.

Rule Three: For a couple of days, you can travel with anyone. If it's over three days, do it only with long term friends and close family.

Miscellaneous hints

Members of the travel group offered the following recommendations:

- Often on an active vacation we use our room for sleep. I don't need the penthouse suite to do that.
- When we think of our favorite travel memories, it's usually about the people that were with us. It's the people not the place.
- Consider locations that are direct flights from your local airport. Save time and money.
- Europe is expensive and leisure travel in the U.S. has been flat for the past couple years. Take advantage of reduced rates at home.
- The best deals are on the Web. Airlines, resorts, food and drink, rentals cars, local activities and free stuff. Always check with the local Convention and Visitors Bureau or Chamber of Commerce, and check the ads in the local papers.
- Just because you are in a group doesn't mean you are tied together at the hip. You can meet later and compare your different daily experiences.

Question: Tell us the best ways for seniors to find out about travel deals. We are moving into that exciting stage in our lives when we have more time to travel by ourselves or with friends. We also are on a fixed income so we like to take advantage of special deals.

Answer: The good news is that there has never been a better time to travel, deals are everywhere. The bad news is there are a lot of mature people who don't like to do the work to find the great deals.

I know a small travel group that makes it fun by turning it into a game. Each of the players takes an assignment like: transportation, accommodations, things to do, where to eat, and food.

Then they each get to work trying to find the best information and deals for the group.

It's a fun way to learn about a destination, save a lot and also a great way to learn about yourself and your friends.

Here are some random thoughts and value hints from a really funny group; you won't find these tips in any glossy travel magazines. This group has been traveling, laughing and saving money together for nine years. You may not agree with their travel style, but you have to love their attitude.

Rule One: If you're a whiner and complainer, you can't come on the trip.

Voorheesville board ends summer hiatus

Group discusses renovations and mentoring program

By ARCANGELA C. MELE
melea@spotlightnews.com

The Voorheesville School Board convened on Monday, Aug. 14, for its first meeting since school ended for the summer, and renovations, a new mentoring program and a gender performance study were the biggest topics of the night.

"We're very excited about the start of the new school year and looking forward to a very positive, successful year," said Superintendent Linda Langevin.

Langevin and the board said they were especially interested in a new study that will be conducted at the middle school that aims to determine why seventh- and eighth-grade girls typically perform better at reading than boys. University at Albany professor Cheryl Dozier, who has a doctorate in reading, will conduct the study, which is expected to begin a few weeks into the start of the new school year.

The board also announced the approval of the Voorheesville Central School District teacher mentor program, which aims to improve the performance of new teachers and increase the retention of promising teachers by assigning them a mentor who will provide them with specific, professional guidance.

Another goal of the program is to meet state requirements for certification.

The board is hopeful that the new program will promote positive interaction between new and veteran teachers, and provide new teachers with an opportunity to receive feedback on their teaching skills and share their research and information.

and safety accessibility needs at the elementary, middle and high schools, is nearing completion of its first phase.

Phase one of the project, which is to be completed by the end of the summer, included the precautionary removal of asbestos that was found in some tile of the elementary school as well as in the asphalt of the middle school tennis courts.

Although the asbestos was determined to be non-friable, which means the chemical was never released into the air, the school has decided to replace both the tile and asphalt with a different product.

Other renovations to the elementary school to be completed by the end of summer include installing a new heating and ventilation system and replacing the water-softening system.

At the middle school, many renovations are under way to repair the gymnasium, including replacing the ceiling, repairing damaged doors and replacing the tennis courts, which were built in 1966 and have had no major upgrades since.

The capital project will continue throughout the school year and is expected to be completed by the end of next summer. The majority of the renovations will take place at the elementary school, making up 89 percent of the proposed costs.

Still time to feel the love

This generally is not the time of year when thoughts turn to travel. There are school supplies to buy and gardens to harvest, and many of us are just now catching our breaths after a whirlwind of summer activity and vacationing.

Despite the onset of late-summer exhaustion, it's never a bad time for New Yorkers to toot their own horns a bit, and that's something the I Love New York tourism campaign has been doing with great success for three decades.

This spring, the campaign celebrated its 30th anniversary with a retooled Web site at www.iloveny.com. Intended to draw out-of-state vacationers, the campaign breaks up the state into 11 regions: the Adirondacks, Capital District and Saratoga, Catskills, Central Leatherstocking, Chautauqua-Allegheny, Finger Lakes, Greater Niagara, Hudson Valley, Long Island, New York City and Thousand Islands Seaway.

Is it really that immodest to say we live in one of the most interesting and diverse states in the country? Without even leaving our borders, we can dip our feet in the Atlantic Ocean, step to the frenetic pace of New York City, march in history's footsteps at Revolutionary War sites, hike to exhaustion on scenic trails in the Adirondacks and beyond, or just take it easy at a B&B after a day of touring wineries along the Finger Lakes. There's Niagara Falls, the Erie Canal, Ausable Chasm and other wonders too numerous to mention.

This is a state that offers the kitschy charm of vacations past in the Lake George and Catskill areas; the satisfaction of a post-camping, $2 breakfast at a diner on the outskirts of Tupper Lake; and the romance of an island fortress — Boldt Castle — overlooking the St. Lawrence River.

If you're making a to-see list, you might want to add a visit to the Baseball Hall of Fame in Cooperstown and the always fascinating Corning Museum of Glass.

And while our thoughts may already be turning to the raking, winterizing and back-to-school frenzy to come, there are still a few summer days left to take a day trip or spend a long weekend exploring some of the great things our state has to offer. Or just take out a map and start planning for next year.

It's OK, you can say it: "I love New York!"

Debunking epilepsy's myths

By JEANNINE S. GARAB
news@spotlightnews.com

The writer is the executive director of The Epilepsy Foundation of Northeastern New York, Inc., a nonprofit organization that provides education and advocacy services to people affected by epilepsy and seizure disorders.

On Monday, July 30, Chief Justice John Roberts suffered a seizure, falling 5 to 10 feet and hitting his head on a dock while vacationing at his summer home in Maine.

According to physicians at Penobscot Bay Medical Center, the nation's 17th chief justice suffered a benign idiopathic seizure — a seizure for which there is no specific identifiable cause such as a scar, growth, stroke or other obvious cause.

News reports also indicated that the Buffalo native, a former judge on the United States Court of Appeals for the District of Columbia Circuit, experienced a similar event in 1993.

By definition, someone who has had more than one seizure without any other cause is determined to have epilepsy. Roberts, 52, joins three million Americans who live with epilepsy, a medical condition that produces seizures affecting a variety of mental and physical functions.

About epilepsy

Epileptic seizures occur when a brief, strong surge of electrical activity affects either part or all of the brain.

In 70 percent of all cases, the cause of the condition is unknown.

For the most part, seizures are relatively brief, lasting from 30 to 120 seconds. Symptoms usually range from convulsions and loss of consciousness to complaints not always recognized as seizures by the person experiencing them or by health-care professionals: blank staring, lip smacking or jerking movements of arms and legs.

Point of View

In most instances, people report feeling back to normal just minutes after experiencing a seizure.

New cases

Every year in America, around 200,000 new cases of epilepsy are diagnosed in individuals of all races and ethnic backgrounds. Although anyone can get epilepsy at any time, it tends to affect both the very young and old.

Twenty percent of cases develop before the age of 5 and 50 percent begin before the age of 25. Epilepsy is also increasingly associated with the elderly, and there are as many cases of epilepsy in those 60 years of age and older as in children 10 and younger.

Types of epilepsy

Just as other disorders come in various forms, there are many types of epilepsy.

The kind of epileptic seizure a person has depends on which part and how much of the brain is affected by the electrical disturbance.

Today, neurological experts divide seizures into generalized seizures (absence, atonic, tonic-clonic, myoclonic), partial seizures (simple and complex), non-epileptic seizures and status epilepticus.

To help them understand which form of epilepsy a patient has, health-care professionals look for specific symptoms and signs, including the age at which the seizures begin, the causes of the seizures, whether the seizures are inherited, the part of the brain involved and factors that provoke seizures.

Classifying a patient's epilepsy as belonging to a certain syndrome not only provides physicians with information about the most beneficial medications and treatments, but also helps them predict whether the seizures will lessen or disappear over time.

Epilepsy's stigma

Despite the fact that epilepsy has been around since the dawn of time and has afflicted numerous famous people such as Aristotle, Julius Caesar, Agatha Christie and Danny Glover, most Americans have little understanding of the condition.

Few recognize that after Alzheimer's disease and stroke, epilepsy is the third-most common neurological disorder in the United States and is equal in prevalence to cerebral palsy, multiple sclerosis and Parkinson's disease combined.

Yet, despite this information — and that one in three adults knows someone with epilepsy and one in 10 adults will experience a seizure during their lifetime — the condition remains one of the least understood of all major chronic medical conditions.

Fear and the resulting social stigma surrounding epilepsy can result in social, and sometimes even illegal, discrimination against those living with the condition.

Further, because epilepsy is a stigmatized condition, some people shy away from using the "e" word — saying instead that they have "seizures" or a "seizure disorder."

To help eliminate and eradicate myths, fears and stigma, it's imperative that the correct term — epilepsy — be used.

Controllable condition

Since the Roberts story broke, a number of news articles have unfortunately questioned his ability to do his job effectively — if, in fact, he had epilepsy.

With the proper medication and treatment, there's no reason why people with epilepsy can't lead full and productive lives, including holding full-time employment.

As the executive director of the Epilepsy Foundation of Northeastern New York (EFNENY), I support and assist people with epilepsy every day.

In reviewing the national and local news coverage of the chief justice, it amazed me how much people still don't understand epilepsy and how much stigma remains. That's why I urge everyone to visit www.epilepsyfoundation.org/efneny to learn more about the condition and the local programs and services we provide.

Our nonprofit organization, which aims to prevent, control and cure epilepsy through services, education, advocacy and research, serves residents of 22 Northeastern New York counties.

Our array of services, which includes counseling, information and referral, seizure first aid training, service coordination, school educational programs and professional in-service training, is designed to ensure that people with epilepsy and their families are able to participate in all life experiences.

Each year, we offer a full-day educational conference for the 40,000 people throughout northeastern New York affected by epilepsy, as well as health care professionals. This year's conference, which will be held Friday, Nov. 2, at the Italian American Community Center in Albany, will focus on pediatric epilepsy.

Our conference topics include antiepileptic drug therapy; dietary, surgical and alternative therapies; memory and attention; behavior issues; and finally parenting a child with epilepsy. To register or receive more information, call 456-7501.

Chief Justice John Roberts isn't the first person who has epilepsy and works in a critical position, nor will he be the last.

Let's use the international media attention surrounding his case as a floodlight to finally bring epilepsy out of the shadows and improve how people with epilepsy are perceived, accepted and valued in our society.

School's Out thanks Egan

Editor, The Spotlight:

A note of thanks for the great article written by Jill Adams about School's Out Inc., and its new executive director, Jayne Maloney, which ran in The Spotlight on Aug. 8. The School's Out program, designed to fit hand-in-glove with the Bethlehem School District's calendar, has become a shining example of our community's unique strength and support. How fitting that The Spotlight, another pillar of the community, would be the first to herald our 25th year.

Entering the 2007-2008 school year, I am mindful that, if not for the solid foundation laid by parents and board members of the organization, School's Out Inc., would not be so well poised for its continued growth and success in carrying out our mission of serving the Bethlehem School District's working families. We are grateful for all of our volunteers, and the school district, led by Superintendent Les Loomis.

School's Out Inc. owes a particular debt of gratitude to Theresa Egan, immediate past president of School's Out, Inc., and immediate past supervisor of the town, for her work over nearly a decade on the board. In her less public former position, she led School's Out Inc., to become a fiscally strong community institution, well past the time her children "aged out" of the program. Her work is to be commended and I am proud to follow her tenure.

Your well-written, distinctive, useful coverage is appreciated.

Eagle Scout grateful for help with project

Editor, The Spotlight:

On July 28, a large number of people and local businesses came together to help me with my Boy Scout Eagle project. Together, we built a raised garden with a brick path, featuring a solar fountain and a stone bench, for the residents of Reilly House. Reilly House, located on Adams Place, provides care for people with disabilities.

I would like to thank the following businesses for supporting my project: Our Family's Harvest, Engrave a Gift, the Home Depot, Renaissance Florist and Lowe's Home Improvement. Please support these local businesses as they have supported our community. Thank you.

Not all against convenience store

Editor, The Spotlight:

Your article by Jim Cuozzo in the Aug. 15 issue of the Spotlight concerning the proposed Cumberland Farms convenience store/station at Route 9W between Maple Avenue and Miller Avenue in Selkirk was basically correct, but implies that all who spoke at this meeting were against it. I am mentioned and the article leads one to believe I was against this proposed project also. This was not the case. In fact, two of us spoke in support of the project.

When I addressed the board, I began by saying "I was in favor of this project." I told them that my only concern was that Miller Avenue currently meets Route 9W on an incline, making egress from Miller Avenue difficult and at times very hazardous. Because of this, I thought perhaps they should consider requiring construction of this store/station to include raising a portion of this street where it meets Route 9W, eliminating the incline and creating a much safer egress.

Race remembrance a beautiful thing

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Saturday, April 28, 2007, 604 runners and walkers participated in the inaugural Capt. Timothy J. Moshier Memorial 5K Run/Walk outside Bethlehem Central Middle School in Delmar. It had been just over a year ago from that morning that Tim was killed in Yusufiyah, Iraq, but the response from the local community proved to be a testament to the impact he had, and continues to have, on all of us.

Tim Moshier was a Delmar native and graduated from Bethlehem Central High School in 1998. He attended the United States Military Academy at West Point and was serving in Iraq as a helicopter pilot when he was killed while conducting a combat air patrol mission. He is survived by several battalions-worth of friends, family and admirers, including his parents; his widow, Katie; his sister, Lauren, and her husband, Devin; and his 2-year-old daughter, Natalie.

Part of the race's vision — in addition to bringing people together to celebrate Tim's life — was to raise money for charitable causes. And, boy, did it ever. All proceeds were being donated or contributed to three worthy causes: Fisher House, a nonprofit organization that assists military families in need; Family Support Gold Star Center, a nonprofit offering assistance to the families of fallen soldiers; and the Timothy J. Moshier Memorial Scholarship Fund.

In May, the BCHS scholarship committee awarded Jessica Venezia, an incoming freshman at St. Lawrence, with $1,000 as the first winner of Tim's scholarship. She distinguished herself in part because of the interests she shared with Tim: a love of reading and learning, and playing the same sports, soccer and track and field.

The number of finishers on race day far exceeded our expectations for an inaugural year and they indicated just how many people are committed to preserving Tim's legacy. I remember Katie mentioning that by just showing up to participate, or just to cheer, their presence spoke volumes about what Tim meant to people.

If that was the gauge — and I think it was — then Tim meant a lot to a lot of people. Traveling from across the country or from across the town, many runners and walkers had their own unique way of celebrating Tim's life. One man ran in full military fatigues and combat boots while waving the stars and stripes high above his head for 3.1 miles. One family transformed their wooden wagon into a patriotic float, complete with a child and her smile from waving her own mini-flag.

The "parade in fast-forward" included a competitive field, but the real fun was being had in the back of the pack, where hundreds laughed and hugged their way to the finish.

After the smoke cleared (from the starting gun, of course) and the funds were audited, the event had officially raised more than $15,000, an astounding amount for a first-time fundraiser. I still remember the look on the faces of the race committee during a pre-race meeting as we sat back in our chairs and began to grasp just how enthusiastically the community was embracing this.

Help came from everyone and everywhere, which was a good thing since most of us had never organized a road race before. Small businesses in the Delmar community — Day Dreams of Delmar Day Spa and Salon, Upper Hudson River Railroad and Skyland Services — matched donations from bigger Albany-area companies like DePaula USA, Bridge Constructors, Inc., and Farm Family Insurance to sponsor the event. Of course, they didn't think of it like that. They had more interest in supporting the event to make it the best it could be than interest in their bottom lines. For me, that was incredibly refreshing.

Proceeds from the race were maximized because virtually all expenses and logistical equipment was donated. Price Chopper and Hannaford donated refreshments and town municipalities — namely, the police, highway and education departments — donated their services with nothing but encouragement. USA Track and Field's (USATF) Adirondack regional headquarters in Troy donated every conceivable item that could be found on any race director's checklist. And then there were the hundreds of hours that were donated by volunteers.

More than anything, it was the hard work of race's volunteers that ensured the event was successful. From registration, to refreshments, to timing and finish line services, the volunteer's desire to help out the cause in any capacity they could was simply amazing.

Come to think of it, being the event's race director wasn't so hard. In short, my deepest gratitude goes out not only to sponsors and donors, but to volunteers and participants as well for their inspiring support. I learned that when so many good people get behind celebrating the life of such a good man, it's a beautiful thing.

Airport moving forward with upgrades

Two new escalators to be added, among other improvements

By GRAHAM S. PARKER
parkerg@spotlightnews.com

Albany County Airport Authority officials have moved forward on several rehabilitation and improvement efforts made possible by more than $9 million in federal and state funds.

The to-do list includes adding new touchdown lights to the Runway One approach; removing runway approach obstructions, including the relocation of a Buhrmaster Road home; acquiring land to expand airport noise overlays and adding new escalators in the terminal's security checkpoint.

Authority board members were presented with the design of the new escalators at their Monday, Aug. 6, meeting. The project is expected to cost more than $2 million. The money, which comes from the Federal Aviation Administration, will pay for the design and construction of two new escalators, bringing the total to four escalators serving the security checkpoint mezzanine and baggage claim and ticketing below.

The project will also include new electrical work and floors.

"It's probably the most complicated project we've done," said John O'Donnell, Authority chief executive officer. "The new project should hold up longer and have an improved maintenance life."

The new escalators follow recent improvements and expansion of terminal security checkpoints. Due to the high volume of passenger traffic and moisture issues, the terrazzo floors have warped. The old floor and escalators lasted roughly 10 years, said O'Donnell. Airport officials hope to get 20 years out of the new flooring, wall treatments and escalators.

However, the high traffic flow also poses a problem during construction. The escalators serve as the sole access points to security, ticketing and baggage claim areas.

Work will be done in phases and during off hours at the airport, said O'Donnell.

News of the newest airport improvements at the meeting was overshadowed by a quarterly airport financial performance report by authority chief financial officer J. Dwight Hadley that showed total revenues were down.

Although the six-month report is without July and August figures, the international airport's two busiest months, the numbers show a decrease compared to last year's figures.

The authority did report revenues in excess of $60,000 from terminal retail and food sales, but revenue from airport operations and parking and car rentals declined.

In all, the report showed a $300,000 gap between airport revenues and expenses.

Described by O'Donnell as a "lot of negatives," the report sparked a brief debate by authority board members and officials about actively recruiting new, competitive airlines.

"We need to keep recruiting as much as we can. If you look at all the major airlines, outside Southwest and Jet Blue, hardly any have aircraft on order," said Hadley.

Southwest is currently Albany International's best performing airline. Jet Blue does not fly out of Albany.

The Authority also voted to accept the final environmental impact statement for the removal and relocation of the Latham Water District's two elevated towers at Utica Avenue. The airport will replace the towers with a new elevated tank, not to exceed adjacent tree height, at an 11-acre site in Loudonville, adjacent to the city of Albany's Loudonville reservoir. The replacement will include the new tank and the installation of 24-inch and 36-inch water mains.

State awards millions to care for public records

The New York State Archives has awarded approximately $10.1 million in grants to hundreds of local governments and community organizations to help care for the records in their custody.

The State Archives, part of the State Education Department, administers two types of grant programs – Local Government Records and Documentary Heritage Program – to fund a variety of projects related to public and community records. These records vary tremendously. They range from judicial transcripts from the mid-1600s when New York was a Dutch colony to sophisticated geographic information systems that maintain detailed records in electronic form on land use.

Local governments use these grants to improve records management systems to better serve the public. Community organizations (historical societies, libraries, museums, etc.) use the grants to ensure that the rich and diverse history of New York State is preserved, while still others provide a hands-on history experience for school children.

For the 2007-2008 funding period, the State Archives received 711 applications for Local Government Record grants totaling approximately $25.3 million and 21 applications for Documentary Heritage Program grants totaling nearly $220,000.

All of these funding requests were evaluated by records management and archives experts from throughout the state. This review resulted in the funding of 311 (54 percent) of the Local Government Record grant requests with an award total of approximately $10 million and the funding of 12 (57 percent) of the Documentary Heritage Program applications with an award total of $94,000.

"The intense competition for both Local Government Records and Documentary Heritage Program grants demonstrates a statewide appreciation for the need to preserve records for future generations," said State Archivist Christine Ward. "These grants also assist local governments and community organizations to continually update their records management systems to facilitate even greater public access via the internet and other technological innovations."

Local Government Records grants averaged $26,233. Twenty-six grants were awarded to County Clerk's offices to improve electronic records keeping systems. Twenty-nine grants were awarded to local governments to develop or enhance Geographic Information Systems while 52 local governments received funding to carry out records inventories and lay the groundwork for developing sound records management programs. Documentary Heritage Program grants averaged $7,834 and ranged from a $919 award to the Friends of History in Fulton to a $16,604 grant to the University at Albany.

Insect program to be held at Five Rivers

A walk to look for insects will be held on Tuesday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m. at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation's Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar.

Center naturalists will lead a walk through Five Rivers' meadows to look for insects and insect homes. Participants will use insect nets to capture insects, observe them up close, identify them (where possible) with insect identification books and then release them back into the wild, unharmed.

This program is free. Participants should dress for an evening outdoors. For information, contact Five Rivers Center at 475-0291.

Community Orchestra seeks new members

The Delmar Community Orchestra, under the direction of Joseph Gumper, seeks new members for its 2007/2008 season. The orchestra particularly needs all strings, French horn, and oboe players.

Weekly rehearsals will begin on Monday, Sept. 10. The Orchestra rehearses Monday evenings from 7:30 to 9:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Town Hall, 445 Delaware Avenue, Delmar.

Instrumentalists of all ages and levels of ability are invited to join. No auditions are required.

St. Stephen's to host juried craft show

Christmas shop for something special on Saturday, Nov. 17, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, Elsmere Avenue and Poplar Drive, Delmar.

There will be gifts for everyone one your list; holiday baskets for your home; framed prints and special verses; goodie baskets; gifts of jewelry, new and old; unusual floral gift arrangements; jams, jellies and homemade candies; handmade cards and inserts.

There will be take-home dinners, fresh soup, home-baked breads and a tasty homemade pie.

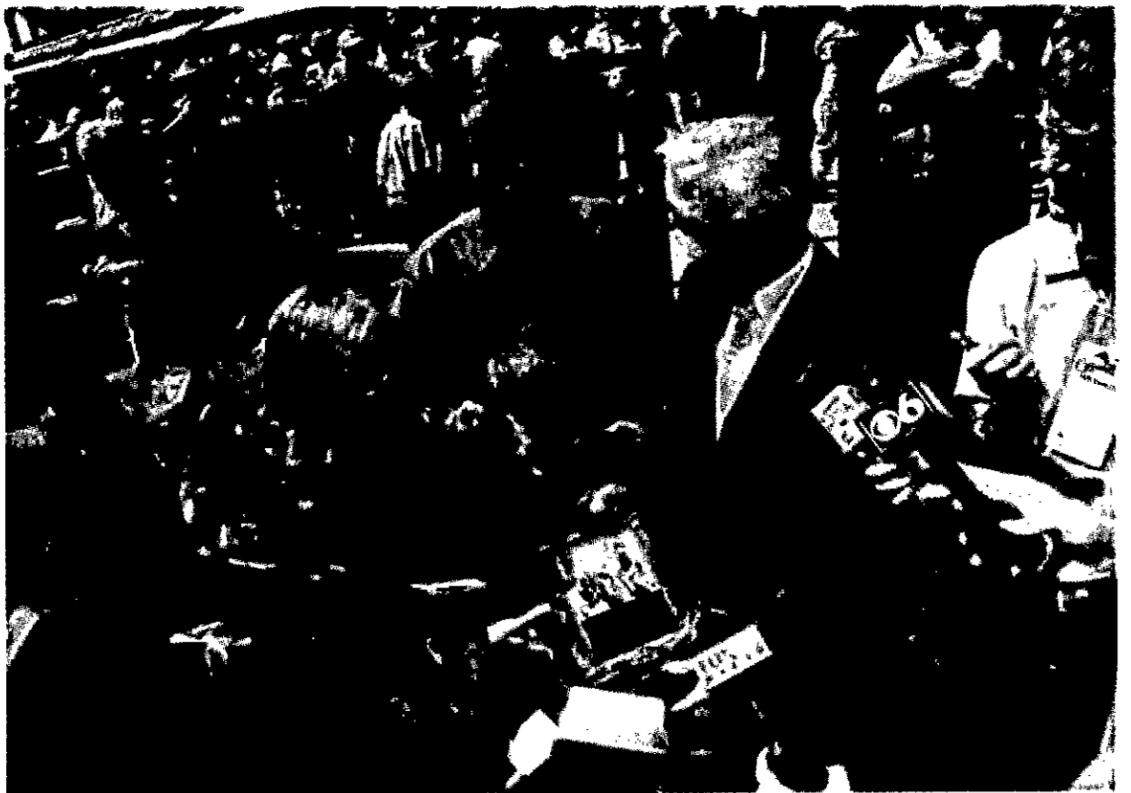

Proceeds will raise money for church outreach ministries.

For information, call 439-3265.

Poker Run to benefit Link to Life

A Run For Life Poker Run will be held on Saturday, Sept. 8, rain or shine, in memory of Anthony Hill. All proceeds will benefit Link to Life, the National Marrow Foundation. Cars and motorcycles are invited to travel a 100-mile scenic ride (route to be determined). Registration will begin at 10:30 a.m. and the ride will start at noon. Start and finish will be at Eastern NY Laborer's Training Center, at 666 Wemple Road in Glenmont.

Pre-registration is $20 per driver and $5 per passenger, but on the day of the ride donations are $30 per driver and $10 per each additional rider. Coffee and donuts will be provided before the ride, and beverages, BBQ, raffles, and music will follow. For information, contact Jesse Turner at 439-9904 or Ella Ruff at 225-6980. Pre-registrations can be made at Cynderella Subs, on the corner of Kenwood and Delaware avenues in Delmar.

"This is pure politics at its most basic level," said Grady.

There is also a Conservative Party primary for Bethlehem Town Justice. Incumbent Democrat and Independence Party candidate Paul Dwyer will face off with Republican candidate Daniel Persing for the Conservative endorsement.

In the 34th Legislative District in Albany County, Democrat Thomas Cotrofeld, the designated candidate of the Independence Party, will be challenged by Republican/Conservative candidate Jared King, who is filing an opportunity to ballot to obtain the Independence line. Cotrofeld was appointed to the 34th District seat this spring after Cunningham stepped down to become Bethlehem supervisor.

Democrat Howard Shafer of Selkirk, will attempt a write-in candidacy against his opponent, newcomer Pat Dorsey. Shafer is the current legislator in the 36th District, however Dorsey received the endorsement of the county Democratic committee. Shafer challenged Dorsey's candidacy in court, but the challenge was thrown out. Meanwhile Dorsey and Shafer will square off in both the Independence and Democratic primaries while Shafer will also file an opportunity to ballot for the Conservative Party line.

Bethlehem Democrats will also be asked on primary day to choose between incumbent Michael F. Connors II or Patricia Slavik for Albany County Comptroller. Slavik, who serves on the Guildersland town board and works for the State Comptroller's office, is the Democratic Party's designated candidate. The two comptroller candidates are each vying for the Independence Party line as well.

Fundraiser to help group that serves children with growth disorders

By JIM CUOZZO
cuozzoj@spotlightnews.com

Russell-Silver Syndrome is a genetic disorder that affects only 1 in 75,000 children, and diagnosis is often difficult. The symptoms include poor growth, low birth weight, short stature, inability to feel hunger and low blood sugar levels.

Prognosis is good for children who, when diagnosed early, are treated through aggressive, sometimes intravenous feeding, and growth hormone injections to keep their growth rate on track.

When Rebecca Hanks of Glenmont found out her daughter, Devan, had RSS, she began to search high and low for information that would assist in her daughter's treatment. That is how she found Mary Andrews and the Magic (Major Aspects of Growth in Children) Foundation based in Chicago, Ill.

"They helped getting a diagnosis and with the knowledge on how to treat RSS," said Hanks who traveled to Chicago in July of 2006 to meet Andrews and other parents of children with rare genetic disorders.

"I cried at first because we saw those kids, and the whole event was just overwhelming."

The Foundation's annual convention allows parents and children to meet one another and to receive one-on-one medical attention from doctors and research specialists familiar with the various types of genetic disorders like growth hormone deficiency, RSS, Turner Syndrome and thyroid disorders.

"We have families from all over the world who come and network," said Andrews, CEO and founder of Magic, now in its 18th year of operation.

"I started it with two other women because my son had a growth disorder and there was nothing like this foundation out there to give us support and information," Andrews said.

Approximately 25,000 people across the world are now receiving information from the Magic Foundation, including Hanks, who is now reaching out to the Bethlehem community by organizing a golf outing at the Normanside Country Club Monday, Sept. 10, to benefit the foundation.

"This event is for our family to be able to give back to the Magic Foundation, who has helped us tremendously the past few years," said Hanks.

Devan, who is now a little over 2 years old, is quite experienced at visiting the doctor's office to see pediatricians, endocrinologists, speech and physical therapists in an attempt to treat the disorder that affects her and her family's daily quality of life.

Devan calls her Delmar pediatrician Dr. Todd Giambetti, "Doctor Todd."

Because of the disorder, Hanks said when Devan has the flu, the illness can become almost life-threatening very quickly.

"She has to have IV fluids when she has a stomach bug," said Hanks.

Devan is also hypoglycemic, and she wears special braces on her feet for walking so her feet do not turn inward, another symptom of RSS.

"Devan couldn't sit up by herself until she was a year old because her limbs were so weak," said Hanks.

Devan also has used a feeding tube to help her gain and maintain weight. This fall she will receive daily growth hormone injections. Much of the medical attention Devan now receives is not covered by the family's current health provider.

"She can be at the doctors sometimes four times a week," Hanks said.

Dr. Madeline Harbison, an RSS specialist who works with the Magic Foundation, is credited with helping Devan receive the proper treatment for her disorder.

"Because it is so rare, most physicians had never heard of it," Hanks said.

Hanks now has an online support group made up of parents she can reach out to for more information on RSS.

Several area businesses, along with the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce, have made donations or are helping Hanks spread the word about the golf benefit at the Normanside Country Club. For information, contact 439-2923. Donations can be made payable to Magic Foundation, c/o Rebecca Hanks, 29 Jefferson Road, Glenmont 12077.

to work for the state in 1987 as executive deputy commissioner for tax policy in the Department of Taxation and Finance.

"I am very excited about the opportunity," said Murray, who has lived in Delmar the past 33 years with his wife and children, who are grown and working in the area as teachers in Shaker and Stillwater schools.

The state pension fund totals $154.5 billion and is the third-largest pension fund in the country. Murray will oversee a staff of 700 employees who assist in providing benefit information to employees. There are currently more than 1 million people in the state retirement system.

"The most important thing we do is to make sure retirees get their pension checks," said Murray, who will be working on upgrading the offices data processing system to serve people better.

"We have a need to do some modernizing of our data processing system to increase the service level to our members," Murray said.

Another aspect of Murray's job will be to hire and retain professional staff.

"We have to devote our attention to recruiting and training because staff resources are a challenge."

Murray assumed his duties with the state Comptroller's office on Aug. 13. His annual salary is $158,093.

NEW YORK STATE DEPARTMENT OF HEALTH      *If you qualify - most smokers do

Threat

"People have friends or relatives who've been bitten by ticks or had the disease," he said. "The concern spreads by word of mouth."

The state Department of Health keeps track of Lyme disease cases by county. During the period 2002-2006, the number of cases reported per year more than doubled in Rensselaer County to 269 and quadrupled in Saratoga County to 81. Columbia County has had the highest incidence rate in the state during that span, some years as high as 1 in 100 people,

"We've seen more confirmed and suspected cases of Lyme disease. I couldn't say there are more ticks, but there's more exposure to ticks, with people spending time outdoors."

Alexander Brand

and was tops in the nation in 2000-2004, said department of health spokeswoman Claire Pospisil.

It's too early to say whether the year 2007 will break any records for Capital District counties.

"We saw a lot in May and June," said Dr. Joanne Van Woert, a physician in Slingerlands.

Blood tests confirmed Lyme disease in several of Van Woert's patients who sought help for rashes.

"People who were working in their yard or in their garden but weren't aware of being bitten," said Van Woert, who urges people to "attend to unexplained rashes."

Not only are doctors seeing more people with bites, county extension offices are receiving more ticks to identify and more calls for information.

Burstell said deer ticks weren't in Greene County 15 years ago. "Around 2000, people started bringing them in. Within two years, we were inundated."

In the Hudson Valley, the river towns were hit first, but the ticks have gradually moved inland - and northward. How they migrate is not well understood, said Burstell.

"On their own, ticks probably don't move more than 20 feet in their lives."

But they can hitch a ride on deer and birds.

Tick populations also depend on the weather, said Susan Beebe, assistant director of the Cornell Cooperative Extension in Saratoga County. The region's recent spate of warm, mild winters has led to an explosion of the wildlife population, she said, including the tick carriers.

Still, it's hard to quantify tick populations, Burstell said. "What's usually measured is how many people actually get ill."

It's also hard to know what percent of ticks are infected.

"If the animals are infected the ticks will be too," said Burstell. Some estimate that as many as 15 percent of small mammals in the lower Hudson Valley are infected with the bacteria. Unlike humans, however, the animals don't get sick.

Public health officials recommend preventing exposure by wearing light colored clothing that covers your arms and legs. Check your clothes and skin for ticks when you've been outside. If a tick is found and is attached, remove it with tweezers.

"If the tick has been attached for less than 18 hours and it's not engorged, the risk of contracting Lyme is very small," said Shynoll.

"The tick check can't be underestimated," said Van Woert.

Ticks and the threat of Lyme disease will be here through October. Take precautions again come next May.

Dr. Ward Stone, a wildlife pathologist at Five Rivers in Delmar, examines a dead bird in his lab. The West Nile virus, which is spread by mosquitoes, has caused illnesses in two patients in Connecticut this year.

Arcangela C. Mele/Spotlight

Pests

partment of Environmental Conservation at Five Rivers in Delmar.

So far this year, there have been no confirmed cases in New York of the virus infecting people, however, two cases involving humans have been confirmed in Connecticut. One is a person from Danbury, which is right on the state border, and the other is from New London, a town on the coast that borders on Rhode Island.

The patients, who were hospitalized in mid July and discharged recently, were both young, in their 20s and 30s. The virus caused one of them to have meningitis, the other encephalitis, two potentially serious illnesses that have symptoms such as high fever, joint and muscle pain, memory loss and headache. These two cases are unique, since most young, healthy people only experience flu-like symptoms when they become infected with West Nile, and some people may dismiss the illness as the flu and never even know they have the virus. Randall Nelson, a veterinarian for the state health department in Connecticut, said neither of the patients had traveled outside the state recently. He also said they hadn't been outdoors more than the average person, and it was likely they caught the virus because they didn't use insect repellent regularly. Nelson said he doesn't know why-the individuals became so sick, but thinks it has to do with the state of their overall health and immune system. West Nile virus tends to only kill people with weak immune systems, like the elderly, who make up the majority of recorded West Nile fatalities. Nelson said he is most curious about why the Connecticut individuals became infected so early in the season.

"What's concerning is that they've occurred earlier than the cases we've seen in previous years, so we don't know what's going to happen, and we have to keep an eye out," he said. Stone is was one of the first scientists to have discovered chester, Bronx and Broome. Stone said last year was relatively quiet one for the disease, with only a few deaths occurring in New York City. However, he said the situation could look different this summer because of warmer temperatures throughout the year.

"When you have lighter, fewer or no frosts, mosquito activity continues, and subtropical or tropical diseases can do better," he said.

Mosquitoes, like Culex pipiens, the one known for carrying West Nile virus, thrive on moisture and typically like to hang out around human habitats, backyards, and wherever there are small quantities of water they can lay their eggs in, such as a bird bath or a cover on a boat. To take precaution, people should dispose of tin cans, plastic containers, ceramic pots or similar water-holding containers in their yards, and make sure any pools of water are chlorinated or changed every other day. Windows and doors should be properly screened and repaired. The obvious and best way to prevent West Nile Virus infection is to simply avoid getting bit.

A good sign that the virus has traveled to your area is if there are several dead birds in the vicinity. The state Department of Health has a hot line people can call to report dead birds (866) 537-2473, as well as a list of several other precautions and information about prevention on their Web site at www.health.state.ny.us.

State DOT announces bus funding recipients

Money will help pay for buses for elderly, disabled

State Department of Transportation Commissioner Astrid C. Glynn recently announced the submission of 99 recommendations to the Federal Transit Administration for more than $7.9 million in federal funds to purchase buses that will provide transportation services to the elderly and disabled.

"Bus service is often the only means of travel for senior and disabled citizens," Glynn said. "That is why it is so important that the Department of Transportation, under the leadership of Gov. Eliot Spitzer, administers these federal grants to provide for essential transportation services to those most in need across New York state."

Program funds cover 80 percent of the cost of buses for accepted applicants. Grantees are required to contribute the remaining 20 percent.

In anticipation of program approval, NYSDOT has notified the recommended applicants of their estimated grants, pending ultimate approval from the FTA. This $7.9 million investment of federal aid will support an almost $10 million investment in bus transportation services statewide.

The program is open to private, nonprofit organizations incorporated within the state, and public bodies in rural counties that certify no nonprofit corporations are readily available to provide services to the elderly and disabled.

Applications for funding are commonly distributed at the beginning of each calendar year. Completed applications are reviewed by NYSDOT, the state departments of State, Health and Education, the State Offices for the Aging, Mental Retardation and Developmental Disabilities, the Office of the Advocate for Persons with Disabilities and, in communities where applicable, by one of the 12 Metropolitan Planning Organizations across the state.

Applications accepted by the state are submitted to the FTA for final approval, expected this fall. Buses will be ordered this fall and deliveries are expected to begin before the end of 2007.

A list of successful applicants in the Capital District and estimated amount of funding follows:

- Center for Disability Services, Inc., Albany County, $245,673 for four vehicles.
- Colonie Senior Service Centers, Inc., Albany County, $28,540 for one vehicle.
- Rehabilitation Support Services, Inc., Albany County, $30,508 for one vehicle.
- Senior Service Centers of the Albany Area, Inc., Albany County, $28,145 for one vehicle.
- Saratoga Bridges NYSARC, Inc., Saratoga County, $87,007 for one vehicle.
- Schenectady County Chapter NYSARC, Schenectady County, $71,638 for two vehicles.
- Senior Care Connection d/b/a Eddy Senior Care, Schenectady County, $61,540 for two vehicles.

Energy Efficient Homes

As fuel costs rise, consumers are paying increasing attention to energy efficiency. This means that, just as car buyers are looking for high-mileage vehicles, prospective home buyers are giving more scrutiny to heating/cooling costs of any house in which they might be interested. Sellers can appeal to this concern by doing their utmost to tout their homes' energy efficiency. Sellers should mention insulation R-values in ceilings/walls, energy-efficient windows, furnace/boiler upgrades, passive solar rooms, wood-burning stoves, and other forms of alternative energy devices. Home improvement dollars spent on fuel related upgrades should yield a good rate of return.

Remember, I know how to market your home's strengths. If you have fuel-efficient home components, let me know, so I can use these selling points to help you get the most money for your property.

Puppet performance closes out summer reading

It's the grand finale to the 2007 Summer Reading Program, and you can plan on fun, fun, fun with the Tom Knight Puppets.

The show is a vibrant collection of original songs and skits, each three to five minutes long, with variety enough to keep everyone waiting to see what will happen next.

Tom Knight has been writing and performing for kids since 1988.

Based in Ithaca, Tom brings his portable stage and hand-made puppets to schools, libraries, theaters and festivals all throughout the Northeast.

It's time to party after a great summer of sleuthing and reading, at the library on Wednesday, Aug. 29, 7 p.m.

Sounds true

The sound imagery workshop meets Aug. 27 at 10 a.m. with percussion artist

Brian Mellick and storyteller Marni Gillard. It is open to kids in grades four and older; registration is required. The students will present a program at 1 p.m. to which the public is invited.

Book discussion

Adult fiction book discussion meets on Wednesday, Sept. 5, at 7 p.m. to discuss Brookland by Emily Barton.

The non-fiction discussion book is The Cold War by John Lewis Gaddis for Monday, Sept. 17. A copy of either book can be picked up at the reference desk at signup.

Lapsit

Sign up for the Sept. 6 story and playtime for caregivers with children younger than 2.

Summer reading contest winners announced

Our reading program kids had a chance to compete for prizes in our weekly "Where In The World Is Ike?" contest this summer. Dog-detective Ike LaRue, the main character in Mark Teague's delightful books, was this year's summer reading mascot. Library staff took him along for photo shoots at various locations in Bethlehem. He also went along with one staff member on her European vacation.

The contest was open to two groups: grades kindergarten to 5 and 6 to 8. Each week a series of photo "clues" was posted — Bethlehem locations for the younger group and European locations for the older group. Correct guesses as to Ike's whereabouts were drawn randomly every week. There were 329 total entries in grades kindergarten to 5 alone!

We're pleased to announce the winners, who received prizes of T-shirts and books at the program's "Cased Closed" party on Aug. 9:

- Grade Kindergarten to 5
  - Week 1 location: Five Rivers. Winner: Tea Mottolese, age 9
  - Week 2 location: Bethlehem Public Library. Winner: Sam Vail, age 6
  - Week 3 location: Bethlehem Police Department, Animal Control. Winner: Nora Derian, age 8 1/2.
  - Week 4 location: Elm Avenue Town Park, Kids Place. Winner: Amelia Clyde, age 5

- Week 5 location: Elm Avenue Park, Splash Island. Winner: Ceili Conway, age 9.
- Grade 6 to 8
  - Week 1 location: New York City. Winner: Ryan Toffel, age 11
  - Week 2 location: Oxford, England. Winner: Ryan Toffel
  - Week 3 location: Paris, France. Winner: Svetlana Agafonov, age 11
  - Week 4 location: London, England. Winner: Kartik Ramkumar, age 12.
  - Week 5 location:

Amsterdam, Netherlands. Winner: Eileen McGraw, age 10.

Bookmark contest winners
Two groups, age 6 to 9 and age 11 to 13, also participated in our bookmark contest. Contestants could enter artwork based on either of two themes: Customs and Cultures, or this year's summer reading theme, Get a Clue @ Your Library. Multiple copies of winning bookmarks will be available in the coming weeks.

- And the winners are...
- Age 6 to 9
- McKenzie Koch, age 8
  - Sophia Koch, age 6
  - David Harvey, age 7
  - Lea Inhaber, age 8
  - Catherine Harvey, age 9
  - Gabby Turi, age 9
- Age 10 to 13
- Owen Pace, age 11
  - Jacqueline Libby, age 11
  - Nathaniel Edgar, age 13

Congratulations to all our winners, and thank you to all our participants. It was great fun!

Elsie F. Stout

Elsie F. Stout, 97, of Albany, died Saturday, Aug. 11.

Born in New York City, she was salutatorian of her graduating high school class. She received her bachelor's degree from Wellesley College in 1930, and pursued graduate work at Syracuse and Cornell universities. Beginning in 1931, she taught mathematics and Latin, and was a much beloved and respected mathematics teacher at Albany Girl's Academy and at Bethlehem Central Junior High School for many years.

She was a member of First United Methodist Church in Delmar, and was an active and competitive participant in several area bridge clubs. She was a longtime and honorary member of Normanside Country Club, where she played golf well into her 90s. In 1999, she received the Capital District Senior Life-Time Achievement Award for her many contributions to senior housing in the Albany area.

She was the widow of Robert Oliver O'Hara, her first husband who died in 1946. She was also the widow of her second husband, Raymond H. Stout who died in 1989.

Survivors include two children, Barbara O'Hara Tagg of Woodside, Calif.; and a son, Robert Philip O'Hara of Washington, D.C.; two stepsons, Richard E. Stout of Amherst, N.H., and Robert W. Stout of Bethesda, Md., 13 grandchildren; and nine great-grandchildren and a close friend, Wesley A. Albright.

Services were held at the First United Methodist Church, Delmar. Contributions may be made to the area mission fund of First United Methodist Church of Delmar.

Arnold Mosmen

Arnold F. "Bud" Mosmen Jr., 64, of Delmar, died Tuesday, Aug. 14, at St. Peter's Hospital.

Born in Albany, he was a graduate of Christian Brothers Academy and Hudson Valley Community College. He honorably served in the Air Force National Guard. He was instrumental in creating the Bethlehem Central Hockey program, and was a founding member and president of the Bethlehem Hockey Booster Club. He was a communicant of St. Thomas the Apostle Church. He loved to spend time with his family and vacation at the family camp on Lake St. Catherine in Vermont. His lifelong interests included boating, waterskiing, fishing and downhill skiing.

Survivors include his mother, Catherine L. Mosmen of Delmar; his wife, Rosemarie Mosmen; three children, Jennifer Mosmen of Slingerlands, Kevin Mosmen of Point Pleasant, N.J., and Craig Mosmen of Philadelphia, Pa., and three grandchildren.

Services were by the Applebee Funeral Home, Delmar. A Mass of Christian Burial was celebrated at St. Thomas the Apostle Church, Delmar. Burial was in Bethlehem Cemetery. Contributions may be made to the American Lung Association, 3 Winners Circle, Suite 300, Albany 12205.

Michael Gibson

Michael Gibson, 52, of Brunswick, died Thursday, Aug. 16, at St. Mary's Hospital in Troy.

Born in Massena, he lived most of his life in the Capital District. He was employed at the Center for Disability Services Sheltered Workshop at 700 North Pearl St. in Albany until April of this year, and had an OMRDD internship, researching housing for the handicapped. He was involved in Self Advocacy and the National Disability Sports Alliance. Before his final illness, he had plans to help form a bocce ball league in the state for people with Cerebral Palsy.

Survivors include his father John Gibson of Delmar; a brother, Martin Gibson of Buda, Texas; five sisters, Nora Gibson of Albany, Nancy Gibson of Virginia, Joan Gibson of Delmar, Susan Gibson of Alaska and Carol Gibson of Ontario, Canada.

Services were held at Church of St. Vincent de Paul in Albany. Arrangements were by the Daniel Keenan Funeral Home, Albany. Contributions may be made to the Center for the Disabled, 314 S. Manning Blvd., Albany 12208.

Arthur Wendth Jr.

Arthur Wendth Jr., MD, 77, of Delmar, died Wednesday, Aug. 15, at St. Peter's Hospital.

Born in Albany, he was a graduate of Christian Brothers Academy, Siena College and Albany Medical College. He honorably served his country as a lieutenant colonel in the Air Force. He was a decorated flight surgeon, having graduated with the highest honor at the School of Aerospace Medicine, Brooks AFB, San Antonio, Texas.

He served as the chief of radiology at St. Peter's Hospital and assisted at several local hospitals. He was the published author of many articles on advanced interventional radiology and a leader in the field of angiography. He was a longtime parishioner of St. Thomas the Apostle Church. He served as a benefactor and as the president of the alumni association of Siena College. He particularly enjoyed being a part of the Delmar Community Orchestra.

He served on the senior services board for the town of Bethlehem.

He was active within the Boy Scouts of America for many years. He served for several years on the National Committee on Catholic Scouting.

Survivors include his wife of 51 years, Marcia Wendth; five children, A. Joseph Wendth III of Slingerlands, Mary R. Williams of Coventry, R.I., Jeffrey C. Wendth of Slingerlands, Ann C. Sullivan of Glenmont and David T. Wendth of Waterford; and 11 grandchildren.

Services were from the Applebee Funeral Home, Delmar. Burial will be in St. Joseph's Cemetery, Richfield Springs, at a later date. Contributions may be made to the St. Thomas the Apostle Memorial Fund, 35 Adams Place, Delmar 12054 or Catholic Charities of the Diocese of Albany, 40 N. Main Ave., Albany 12203.

John K. Wojewoda

John K. Wojewoda, 57, of Voorheesville, died Thursday, Aug. 16, at the Community Hospice Inn at St. Peter's.

Born in New York City, he lived in Voorheesville for the past 33 years. He was a member of the New York Army National Guard for 35 years and was employed as a mechanic inspector for the Guard for 34 years, retiring in February 2005. He was a former usher and Eucharistic minister at Our Lady of Angels Church in Albany. He was also an usher and Eucharistic minister at the St. Francis Chapel in Colonie.

Survivors include his wife, Catherine Cleary Wojewoda; two children, John K. Wojewoda Jr., of Wanamassa, N.J., and Anne C. Wojewoda of Poughkeepsie; and two grandchildren.

Services were from the Reilly and Son Funeral Home, Voorheesville, with a mass at Christ the King Church, Guilderland. Burial was in Our Lady of Angels Cemetery in Colonie.

RCS schedules special district vote

Ravena-Coeymans District residents will head to the polls on Oct. 9 to consider a $2,353,243 capital project for improvements to the district's schools, as well as a separate $390,000 project to improve the district's transportation building.

The $2.3 million project will largely be funded through a special one-time EXCEL grant and additional standard state aid that would leave little cost to taxpayers, said interim Business Administrator Gene Grasso. Meanwhile the bus garage project - while not eligible for EXCEL aid - may still be eligible for standard state aid.

A third proposition on the Oct. 9 ballot is to advise the Board of Education on the public's choice for filling the vacant ninth position on the Board of Education. Residents will recommend through their vote a candidate to fill the slot, but the vote will be nonbinding and the Board of Education will ultimately decide who fills the position.

The nonbinding vote is scheduled because the district can not meet the state time requirements for a binding election and still conduct the election along with the capital projects vote on Oct. 9.

Voting will take place from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. in the high school gymnasium. Residents who want to vote by absentee ballot can do so by requesting one from the district business office at 756-5200, ext. 6000.

The EXCEL (Expanding Children's Education and Learning) Grant Program - which has been utilized by a number of districts around the Capital District in recent months - provides nearly 100 percent state funding for capital projects when combined with state building aid, though school districts may be liable for the interest costs of funds borrowed while awaiting the state aid.

Much of the project's work - such as the replacement of hot water heaters in many of the buildings, the addition of natural gas service to the middle school and the installation of thermal windows in sections of the high school - is designed to reduce energy usage and related costs. As a result, a long-term savings for district taxpayers is expected, school officials said. Much of the work in the project was removed from the 1999 and 2004 capital projects as a result of unexpected cost increases for labor and building materials.

EXCEL aid was included in the 2006-07 state budget; however it was not announced by the state Education Department until October. This funding is separate from and in addition to the building aid the district currently receives.

Using these two forms of state aid, the district can finance $2.35 million worth of building projects with little or no cost to local taxpayers because the state EXCEL aid would cover the share of the project traditionally paid for through the tax levy.

Passage of proposition two for the bus garage work would allow the roof of the garage to be replaced at a projected cost of $266,000, the boiler to be replaced at a cost of $112,000 and the installation of fuel monitoring devices along with the reconstruction of the fuel island at a projected cost of $12,000.

The project may be eligible for the 70 percent state building aid RCS traditionally receives on building work.

Anyone interested in being appointed to the Board of Education can seek a nominating petition from the Business office, 26 Thatcher St., Selkirk.

Nominating petitions must be directed to the clerk of the district, must be signed by 45 qualified voters of the district, shall state the residence of each signer, and shall state the name and residence of the candidate.

All petitions must be submitted by 4 p.m., Sept. 10.

Brianna, 2, and Cameron play in the construction zone.

Diane Kostas, of New Jersey, serves up fake food and education to her son, Chase, and his friends Roman, 5, and Abby Sabatini.

BY WILLIAM R. DEVOE
devoew@spotlightnews.com

Chris, Roman and Abby are tough customers. The two 5-year-old boys and the 3-year-old girl are yelling at the woman behind the diner counter as she struggles to balance a block of cheese, a piece of sushi and an entire chicken on a dinner plate. She succeeds in delivering the meal, but the three young ones aren't satisfied — now they want ice cream.

The woman behind the counter doesn't get upset. She laughs, in fact, and encourages the children to choose healthier foods. She is Chris' mom, Diane Kostas, and she is serving up fake food and real fun behind the counter of the diner exhibit at the Children's Museum at Saratoga.

Her family and that of Roman and Abby Sabatini are on vacation from New Jersey and made special stop at the museum.

"We come up to Saratoga each summer, and we make this part of trip," said Kostas. "It's a great family thing to do."

The Children's Museum at Saratoga has been committed to providing positive opportunities for children, ages 2 to 7, to learn about science, history, community living and the arts since its inception in 1990. Housed in an unassuming building at 69 Caroline St. are many interactive exhibits, most of which are framed in toddler-sized renditions of Saratoga Springs landmarks like Congress Park, Lillian Andrew's attic and the Spa Little Theatre. The facility also hosts special events and workshops designed to encourage children to learn by making discoveries for themselves.

Though all of the exhibits are educational, the most popular are still the ones that are the most fun, said Ashley Terwilliger, director of education at the museum. Case in point: the mock fire engine and firehouse.

"The kids get to jump on board and put on real fire gear and pretend to go off and save the world," said Terwilliger. "The diner is a big hit with the kids too. We have all sorts of fake food and facts about health and nutrition in a model diner, so kids can learn in somewhat of a real-life situation."

Terwilliger said it is not only the children that socialize in the museum. It's a great place for parents to network and meet with other parents, she said.

"We have a lot of parents, mostly mothers, who have met at the museum and have gone on either to meet outside of here or meet at the museum on a regular basis," she said.

Jonathan Vogtner was vacationing in Lake George when he and his two children, Juliette, 3, and Dante, 6, came to the Children's Museum at Saratoga. He learned of the museum when he renewed his membership for the children's museum in his hometown of St. Petersburg, Fla.

"We saw that they had a reciprocal membership program with the Saratoga Children's Museum, so we decided to stop in during our vacation," said Vogtner.

He said in between visiting family with his wife, Karen, and spending time at the Saratoga Race Course, "the children's museum is a great place for the kids to come and play and really have fun with something that is really geared toward them."

The Children's Museum at Saratoga was founded by community parents and educators. The museum occupied donated space in the Downstreet Marketplace building on Broadway in Saratoga Springs before renting space at 36 Phila St. in the fall of 1994. In November 2001, the museum moved from the Phila Street location to 69 Caroline St. To pay for all the new exhibits and renovations at Caroline Street, the board launched a multi-year capital campaign, raising more than $500,000.

The Children's Museum at Saratoga is committed to fostering active parent involvement in children's learning, to serving as a resource for school districts in the area, and to ensuring that its programs and services are accessible to all children.

The museum is open year-round, Monday through Saturday, 9:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.; Sundays in winter from noon to 4:30 p.m.

Admission is $5 per person, children under 1 are free. Terwilliger says families should plan to spend about two hours in the museum to see every exhibit.

For information on the museum, to see its educational programs or special events calendars, or to plan a birthday party at the museum, call 584-5540 or visit www.childrensmuseumatsaratoga.org.

Alysa welcomes guests to the Children's Museum at Saratoga.

pick. Bush won't run for as many yards in New Orleans as Addai will in Indianapolis, but Bush will catch a lot of passes out of the backfield. At least, that's what I'm hoping.

Unfortunately, that was the only pick that went according to plan. Feeling pressure to draft a top-notch quarterback (my signal callers last year were Jake DelHomme, Ben Roethlisberger and Alex Smith — ugly), I chose Bush's teammate Drew Brees in the second round. That cost me several running backs I had on my list as other owners gladly picked up such fantasy studs as Travis Henry, Maurice Jones-Drew and Willis McGahee. I wound up drafting Edgerrin James, who may very well be on the downside of his career. I think the fact that he plays for Arizona indicates that.

By the way, did I mention I was ninth in the draft order? Not a good place to be in a 12-team draft where the order reverses after each round.

Thankfully, the draft didn't take very long. Seventy-five minutes after it began with the selection of LaDainian Tomlinson, the draft ended with Pittsburgh kicker Jeff Reed going to the Buffalo Hunters.

Do you know what happens in 75 minutes at a professional league's draft? Maybe 10-15 players are taken. Certainly not 168 players.

Perhaps that's good for the analysts. But give me the speed of my fantasy football league's draft any day of the week. It's a lot easier to endure than six hours for one round.

Editor's note: Michael Vick was dropped by the fantasy team that the computer stuck him with. He'll probably be dropped by the NFL team that drafted him, too.

Legend

last coming in 1967. Emerson also won two Wimbledon, two French and two U.S. Open singles titles.

"I'm so happy I grew up playing tennis," said Emerson. "I got to meet people, and I got good enough to tour the world."

Loudonville resident Graham Jones remembers Emerson's career well. Jones watched Emerson during the height of his career on television while living in London.

"He was a great player — self effacing, unpretentious," said Jones, an 80-year-old who was attending the adult clinic. "You instantly liked him."

Even those too young to see Emerson play knew of his accomplishments.

"I asked (the 15-LOVE kids) if they knew who he was before they started, and they equated him with Rod Laver and (Bjorn) Borg," said Ellenbogen.

Emerson has no plans to stop playing or teaching tennis.

"As long as I can put one foot in front of the other, I think I'll continue to play because I'd rather do that than go to the gym or work on a treadmill," he said.

News & Notes

Terry, Peterson win HMRRRC Grand Prix race

Albany's Chuck Terry and Voorheesville's Dana Peterson won the overall titles at last Monday's Hudson Mohawk Road Runners Club Grand Prix cross country race at Bethlehem Town Park.

Terry covered the 5-kilometer course in a time of 16:55, edging Delmar's Nathan Hoffman by one second. Mechanicville's Aaron Knobloch was third with a time of 17:31.

Peterson was the top female runner with a time of 19:47. Voorheesville's Penny Tisko was second with a time of 21:26, and Albany's Kari Gathen placed third with a time of 21:28.

More than 120 runners between the age of 16 and 76 participated in the Grand Prix race, which was part of the club's Monday cross country series.

Delmar's Dennis Hurley and Roxanne Wegman won the first race in the cross country series Aug. 6. Hurley claimed the men's title with a time of 17:59, while Wegman won the women's title with a time of 20:32.

The HMRRC cross country series wrapped up Monday at Bethlehem Town Park.

YMCA slates Brenda Deer Run

The Guilderland YMCA will host its annual Brenda Deer Memorial 5-kilometer race Sept. 8 at 9 a.m.

The 3.25-mile road race starts at the Mercy Care Nursing Home on Winding Brook Drive and ends at the YMCA parking lot across the street. The course follows Winding Brook Drive to Nott Road and Campus Club Drive.

The 5k road race is open to ages 10 and older. There is also a half-mile fun run for children. All participants receive a free T-shirt.

The entry fee is $20 for the road race. The children's fun run is free.

For information, contact Derrick Raeder at the Guilderland YMCA at 456-3634, ext. 23.

Learning from a legend

Emerson teaches young and old at clinic

By ROB JONAS

Several dozen Capital District tennis players got the chance to learn from one of the sport's all-time greats Saturday.

Roy Emerson held a pair of morning clinics at Schuyler Meadows Country Club in Loudonville before participating in an afternoon pro-am. The first clinic was for children from the 15-LOVE program, and the second was for adults.

"I like working with kids, especially when they are keen to learn," said the 70-year-old Emerson, who won 28 Grand Slam singles and doubles titles.

"He's great at teaching kids," said Schuyler Meadows pro Jonathan Ellenbogen. "He talks to them in a way that they can understand."

The adult clinic and pro-am were a fundraiser for the 15-LOVE program, which teaches tennis to youth who can't afford to take lessons.

"It's cool," said 17-year-old Rumeal Lewis of Colonie, who is in his fifth year with the 15-LOVE program. "We're like a big family here."

"There's a lot of things to do like going to the U.S. Open," added 12-year-old Akina Ngu, who is in her second year with the Capital District chapter.

Emerson worked specifically with the children on their serves and was a patient teacher as they tried to land their serves properly.

"When I couldn't get my serve through, he helped me with how high to toss the ball," said Ngu.

"He's got a good sense of humor. He was laughing a lot," said Lewis. "But he was also very cool, which I guess is what helped him win all those Grand Slam titles."

Emerson said he feels a responsibility to pass the game on to the next generation.

"The kids, they're the next tennis players," he said. "If we don't take care of them, we won't have tennis players."

Emerson learned the game growing up in Australia. He won his first Grand Slam title in 1959 at Wimbledon as a doubles player and claimed his first singles championship at the 1961 Australian Open. He wound up winning his native country's singles title a record six times, the

Fantasy players are gone in 90 seconds

If every professional sports league's draft went as fast as the on-line fantasy football league draft I participated in Sunday, draft analysts everywhere would have to talk like auctioneers to get all their thoughts across.

Either that, or they'd have to shut up until after the final pick.

The secret wasn't the fact that there were only 12 owners participating in this draft or that there were only 14 rounds. It was that there each owner only had 90 seconds to choose a player or have the computer choose someone for him or her (there's one female owner in our league).

Compare that to the 15 minutes NFL teams get to draft their players in the first round. That's an eternity compared to what fantasy football team owners deal with. That's also an eternity for Mel Kiper Jr. and Chris Berman to yap about drafting JaMarcus Russell over Brady Quinn.

Of course, NFL general managers need those 15 minutes because the future of a multi-billion dollar franchise is in the balance. The only thing that's hanging in the balance of our fantasy league is bragging rights. We don't get anything for winning the league — no money, no trophy and no congratulatory phone call from the President.

Still, when you only have 90 seconds, you'd better think fast or be prepared to have Michael Vick added to your roster by the computer (as one unfortunate owner found out). There's no computer controlling the NFL Draft — or any other professional league draft.

Imagine if there was a computer handling a professional league draft, though. Just think about the possibilities:

With the fifth pick in the 2007 NBA Draft, the computer selects Yi Jianling from China for the Boston Celtics because he was the highest rated player available. Meanwhile in Minnesota, Kevin Garnett packs his bags as he's traded to the Los Angeles Lakers for five role players and a first round pick in 2008.

Hmmm ... not so bad for all concerned, except that Kobe Bryant would complain that the Lakers are still heading in the wrong direction.

The 90 second rule also means that you can't dwell on losing out on a player to another team. That's going to happen in any draft, whether it's fantasy football or the National Hockey League. When I barely missed out on drafting Indianapolis tailback Joseph Addai (who has tremendous upside, despite his relative inexperience as a starter), I followed my plan and picked up Reggie Bush with my first round
