Food pantries across the Capital District brace for a lean holiday season

By CHARLES WIFF
Spotlight Newspapers
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

Unemployment has risen to levels not seen in 14 years. The stock market is tumbling. The prices of many products and services are still spiking and a number of homeowners have foreclosure on the mind.

Just in time for the holidays.

While for most people the economic downturn means forgoing a few presents or a few pounds on the turkey, others are finding that putting food on the table day to day (let alone the traditional holiday feast) seems a distant possibility. And those who are helping the needy might need help themselves.

Feeding America (formerly America's Second Harvest), a nationwide organization of 200 food banks supporting more than 700,000 programs, conducted a nationwide survey of local food banks and pantries in May and found that 99 percent of food banks reported a rise in client numbers in the previous 12 months, with the Regional Food Bank of Northeastern New York estimating a 20 percent jump in users, many of whom are "non-traditional."

That means a lot of people in the Capital District are turning to food pantries for the first time in their lives.

New faces at the food pantry

Karie Cushing, executive director of the Franklin Community Center of Saratoga Springs, said she has noticed the trend locally.

"Traditionally we served people who were very low income; people who usually relied on social services," she said. "Now, we're seeing people who are working two or three jobs

Budget vote set

Bethlehem's proposed 6.89 percent tax levy increase expected to pass

By JARRETT CARROLL
Spotlight Newspapers
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

Arguing that the town still offers among the lowest taxes in the county, Bethlehem officials are set to vote on the proposed 2009 budget and a 6.89 percent tax rate increase.

The town board unveiled its $38.67 million spending plan for next year during its Wednesday, Sept. 24, meeting. The proposed budget is the first item on the agenda for the Wednesday, Nov. 12, meeting at Town Hall, which begins at 6 p.m.

The town board is expected to pass the budget.

The proposed budget constitutes a 2.8 percent spending increase over this year's $37.63 million budget and an overall 6.89 tax rate increase for the town's combined general fund, highway department tax rate, and water and sewer district tax rates.

The proposed tax rate increase would result in a $17.45 increase per $100,000 of assessed value. Supervisor Jack Cunningham said the average home assessment in Bethlehem is $285,000.

According to Judi Kehoe, the town's outgoing comptroller who has taken a job with the Bethlehem Central School District, the tax levy increase is being proposed at 6.89 percent. However, the 6.89 percent increase combined with the expanded assessment base will result in an increase of 7.3 percent in revenues to the town from property taxes, she said.

Cunningham has said on several occasions that balancing this year's budget was "difficult on many different levels," citing a bad economy, poor consumer confidence, and the challenge of balancing "what was desirable and what was absolutely necessary" for the town.

The supervisor said that a large chunk of the budget was going to pay for town employees and their benefits, but that "our

Soares handily defeats Cusick

With 70 percent of the vote, incumbent district attorney gets another four years

By JARRETT CARROLL
Spotlight Newspapers
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

After a contentious campaign against a former opponent, Albany County District Attorney David Soares scored a big win on a big night in Albany and was overwhelmingly re-elected to another four-year term.

Challenger Republican Roger Cusick ran on the Integrity line against the Democrat and netted several big endorsements by the local service unions but ultimately lost the race by 29,128 votes to 80,441 votes.

Soares appeared to be running unopposed during the summer, but Republicans mounted an aggressive campaign against him and created the Integrity

Party to challenge him late in the political season.

Cusick used critical audits by Democratic Albany County Comptroller Michael Conners as fodder to accuse Soares of mishandling public funds in the weeks leading up to Tuesday's election.

In the opponents' only public debate at Albany Law School in October, Cusick repeatedly referred to Conners' audits and made the case that Soares was abusing his public position by using poor financial controls.

Cusick called Soares a "headline chaser" and said the district attorney was using his office to push a personal political agenda and philosophy instead of prosecuting criminals. He also argued that with Albany County being the seat of state government, an opposing political party should be sitting in the prosecution's chair to serve as a watchdog and a check and

Welfare check leads to DWI arrest

An Albany woman told Bethlehem police she had been drinking beer and vodka before she was arrested for DWI on Delaware Avenue.

Danielle R. Grand, 27, was arrested Sunday, Nov. 2, and charged with DWI and driving a motor vehicle with a blood-alcohol content of 0.08 percent or greater.

Bethlehem police said they saw a parked vehicle with its engine running and its light on in a parking lot along Delaware Avenue. Officers observed a female sitting alone in the driver's seat, according to the arrest report.

Police approached the vehicle "for the purpose of checking the welfare" of the woman, the report states, at which point Grand allegedly told officers she drove from a friend's house in Albany and stopped to check a text message.

Bethlehem police said while interviewing Grand, officers could smell alcohol on her breath and said she had watery eyes and showed other signs of intoxication.

When asked, Grand allegedly admitted to "consuming between three and four beers and vodka earlier in the night," according to the report.

Police said she was asked to exit her vehicle and perform field-sobriety tests, which she failed, before being placed into police custody and transported to the Bethlehem Police Department for processing.

Grand submitted to a breath test, which revealed a BAC above the legal limit of 0.08 percent, the report states, and she was scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on Dec. 2.

Her vehicle was towed and she was transported to a residence on Union Avenue in Delmar at her request.

Other arrests

• Matthew R. Ward, 49, of Ballston Lake, was arrested by Bethlehem police on Tuesday, Oct. 28, for fourth-degree grand larceny, a felony.

Police said Ward turned himself in on an active arrest warrant out of the Town of Bethlehem and that he was processed without incident.

Ward was arraigned in front of Town Justice Ryan Donovan and sent to Albany County Correctional Facility in lieu of a $5,000 cash bail or bond, according to the arrest report.

He had a preliminary hearing on Friday, Oct. 31, and is scheduled to reappear at Bethlehem Town Court on Nov.

Delmar Fire rescues boy from tree

This child climbed up a tree approximately 25 to 30 feet behind the house at 412 Delaware Ave. around 8:30 a.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 4 after his brother had "bet him to climb it," according to fire officials. Assistant Delmar Fire Chief Dan Ryan said, "He had his foot caught up in a high crotch of the pine tree and we responded with a ladder truck and harnessed him." The Delmar Fire Department used its ladder truck along with the Slingerlands Rescue Squad to get the child out of the tree and to safety without incident. Nobody was hurt during the incident, according to fire officials.

Gordon holds on to 108th Assembly District seat

State's only Independence assemblyman cruises into second term

By JARRETT CARROLL
Spotlight Newspapers
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

Tim Gordon is going back to the state Assembly for another two years after besting Republican challenger Steve McLaughlin on Election Day.

Gordon, who is the state's only Independence Party assemblyman and Bethlehem's Independence Party chairman, got 34,289 votes to McLaughlin's 22,610 votes. Gordon, who is finishing up his first term in office, campaigned on his record and said there was more work to be done with his Democratic caucus.

"I feel the people have given me a mandate for the next two years," Gordon said. "We won by 12,000 votes, I consider to be significant."

On McLaughlin's first run for public office, he netted roughly 40 percent of the vote. McLaughlin said he was proud of his campaign, which he ran on very little money.

His campaign was highly critical of Gordon, citing taxpayer waste and the dysfunctional Democratic Assembly majority that Gordon sided with. But it wasn't enough to sway the majority of voters in a district that covers four counties and was the former seat of Republican Pat Casale, who endorsed McLaughlin.

"Public corruption has run rampant in state government in recent years. Both former Gov. (Eliot) Spitzer and former state Comptroller (Alan) Hevesi had to resign in disgrace because of their actions, along with a slew of Democrat assemblymen. These are Assemblyman Tim Gordon's colleagues, and he has done nothing to stop the habitual corruption from reoccurring," McLaughlin said while campaigning in October.

McLaughlin campaigned to ease the burden of skyrocketing property taxes through a tax cap, eliminating backdoor borrowing, putting an end to unfunded mandates that drive up the cost of local taxes and make health care more accessible and affordable to businesses and residents.

When asked about the 40 percent of the voters who picked McLaughlin, Gordon responded, "My job is to represent everyone in the district ... so it really doesn't matter."

The state Assembly will remain heavily Democratic, but for the first time since 1964, the state Senate will shift to a Democratic majority, which will give New York a Democratic governor and legislature, which is a first since the Great Depression.

In his first term, Gordon has authored and sponsored 12 bills that passed both the Assembly and the Senate before being signed into law by the governor. He also penned five other bills that passed the Assembly but did not make it out of the Senate. Among those bills turned into law was a Jonathan's Law Amendment.

The first-term assemblyman also authored a bill to allow non-residential electricity producers to use a meter on their wind power to sell back to the grid and netted $3 million for the Vista Technology Campus in Bethlehem as well as an unrestricted $500,000 for the Bethlehem School District.

Now that the Senate has a new Democratic majority, bills penned in the Assembly by Gordon and his Democratic colleagues have a much better chance of passing the other house.

"As we introduce new legislation, we'll be seeking to partner with senators in the majority," Gordon said. "We will also be looking to re-introduce a number of bills from last year."

State Sen. Neil Breslin, D-Delmar, is now the only ranking majority senator in Gordon's district, compared to the three Republican senators in the 108th District, which contains Columbia, Rensselaer, Greene and Albany counties.

Gordon lost his first political race for Bethlehem town supervisor before being elected twice to the Bethlehem Town Board and then to the state Assembly. He said he wants to continue his platform of state reform and wants to help tackle the problems facing New York, such as rising energy costs, costs of living and a statewide population drain.

Tim Gordon

He is the founder of Albany Media Group, an advertising and public relations firm, and has been a community volunteer for many years. As a firefighter in North Bethlehem, he was awarded the Heroic Effort Award in 2004.

Gordon lives with his wife, Christine, and four children in Slingerlands and is a 1978 Shaker High School graduate and a 1982 SUNY Brockport graduate.

"During the next two years, we've got to fight to bring relief to homeowners who are being crushed by property taxes," Gordon said. "And we have to prepare for the transition to energy independence."

Burning body ruled a suicide

By JARRETT CARROLL
Spotlight Newspapers
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem police said the burned body of a 39-year-old Menands man found in a roadway near the town's Henry Hudson Park was an apparent suicide.

Police said they have identified the man as Michael Freeman, who was found on Tuesday, Nov. 4, after a woman leaving the park in Selkirk called 911 when she discovered what she thought was a burning mannequin in the middle of the road.

Bethlehem Deputy Police Chief Tim Beebe said that when emergency crews arrived, they discovered a body still on fire in the intersection of Winnie Road and Cedar Drive.

"We got the call from a cell phone from a woman reporting what could be a body or a mannequin," Beebe said. "It was a body."

He said the call came around 11:30 that morning.

The Selkirk Fire Department extinguished Freeman's body and Albany County paramedics transported Freeman to the county coroner. An autopsy was performed the next morning on Wednesday, Nov. 5, which determined that Freeman's death was caused by asphyxiation.

Beebe said foul play has been ruled out but would not comment when asked if a suicide note was found at the scene.

"We're not releasing that kind of information," he said. "It's been ruled a suicide."

Detectives determined that the accelerant used to burn Freeman's body was gasoline.

"He was right in the roadway," said Beebe. "He did it in the middle of the road."

Police discovered Freeman's vehicle near the scene of the incident and Beebe said that there were other cars in the area because it was in the vicinity of the town park.

Beebe said that in addition to the Selkirk Fire Department, Bethlehem police and the Albany County Paramedics, New York State Police and his department's major crimes unit assisted in the investigation.

"An autopsy was performed ... by pathologist Dr. Jeffrey Hubbard, who ruled the cause of death pulmonary edema," the Bethlehem said in a statement. "Our criminal investigation is concluded and has determined that Freeman committed suicide."

Albany JCC honors six

The Sidney Albert Albany Jewish Community Center honored six individuals with Pillar awards for their outstanding contribution to the Jewish Community Center, the Capital District community and the world on Thursday, Nov. 6, at the center, 340 Whitehall Road in Albany.

Recipients of the ninth annual Pillars Awards were Albany residents Dr. Gerald and Ruth Colman, and Slingerlands residents Murray and Risa Carr and James and Amy Milstein.

Gerald Colman joined the practice of the Plastic Surgery Group after completing his residency in the early 1970s, remaining until his retirement in 2007. He was a member of the JCC Board of Directors from 1991 to 1997. Philanthropically, Colman is probably best known for his work with Operation Smile, a group of plastic surgeons who traveled around the world to poor or underdeveloped countries donating their time and experience to help children in need.

Ruth Colman, a graduate of Albany Law School, practiced in the Albany area for many years, juggling the roles of attorney, wife and mother. An avid community volunteer, she has participated with the American Heart Association, Cancer Society, March of Dimes and was an active participant and past president of the PTAs of School 19, Hackett Middle School and Albany High School. She also sat as a parent representative on the New York State Council on Children and Family Services.

Murray Carr has received the Albany Jewish Federation Young Leadership Award, the JCC Sherer Award for dedicated service to the JCC and the Albany County Bar Association President's Award for extraordinary service to the legal community. He has also served on the Albany Board of Zoning Appeals, Albany County Human Rights Commission and the Board of Congregation Beth Abraham-Jacob. He is also a Little League and Babe Ruth coach and the current coach of the JCC's seventh-grade basketball team.

Besides working as a part-time caterer, Risa Carr is an active volunteer with Congregation Beth Abraham-Jacob, Special Olympics and the Mohawk and Hudson River Humane Society. The Carr family also serves meals at the City Mission every Christmas, makes breakfast at Ronald McDonald House and volunteers at the Regional Food Bank. The Carrs have hosted foreign soccer coaches and summer Schlichem from Israel every summer.

James Milstein is an attorney in Albany and practices with his sister, Susan Milstein, in the law firm of Milstein and Milstein. The Milsteins have continued a tradition started by their late father Jay Milstein, the firm's founder. For the past 25 years, he has been an assistant public defender in Albany County. In addition to his service to the JCC, where he was board president from 2001-2003, Jim Milstein is a past president of the B'nai B'rith Gideon Lodge, a panel member for the New York State Health Department's Board of Medical Misconduct and a member of the Albany County Bar Association. He also coached soccer with the Guelderland Youth Soccer League for nine years.

Amy Milstein is a registered dietitian and certified diabetes educator with Prime Care Physicians. She has volunteered her professional services for many nonprofit organizations and has participated at the JCC's Health Fair since its inception. Milstein is a member of the state Dietetics Association and the National Association of Diabetes Educators. She has also served on several committees at Congregation Beth Emeth, where the Milsteins are members.

Years later, Milton Bradley connects four

By WILLIAM R. DEVOE
devoew@spotlightnews.com

If Grace Bedell had never written a letter to Abraham Lincoln, I wouldn't be the family man I am today.

In early 1860, a gentleman by the name of Milton Bradley started a lithography business in Springfield, Mass. One of the first lithographic works he produced was a portrait of presidential nominee Abraham Lincoln, who, at that point was without his trademark beard. The Lincoln lithograph flew off Bradley's Civil War-era shelves — until about a month after an 11-year-old girl from New York wrote a letter to Lincoln, explaining why he needed to grow a beard in order to get votes.

"I have got four brothers and part of them will vote for you anyway and if you let your whiskers grow I will try and get the rest of them to vote for you," she wrote on Oct. 15, 1860. "You would look a great deal better, for your face is so thin. All the ladies like whiskers and they would tease their husbands to vote for you and then you would be president."

She signed her name at the bottom: Grace Bedell.

It is fortunate that Lincoln did not have thin skin, or that

Commentary:

Pop Culture

he wasn't overly concerned with public opinion, for he replied to the young Grace on Oct. 19: "As to the whiskers, having never worn any, do you not think people would call it a piece of silly affectation if I were to begin it now?"

Within a month, he had grown a beard.

Milton Bradley's little lithograph company back in Springfield, having made its bread and butter on beardless Lincoln lithographs, saw its business drop considerably once the public was used to (as we all are) the iconic, bearded, President Abraham Lincoln. Bradley needed some other product to keep himself in business, and turned to a game he had invented years before, but had put aside in favor of lithography. It was called "The Checkered Game of Life."

It was instantly successful.

Twenty years after Lincoln grew his beard, Bradley expanded into jigsaw puzzles and other games. In 1911, the man died. Today, Milton Bradley, the company — swallowed up by the larger Hasbro toy company in 1984, of course — is the No. 1 maker of games and puzzles in the world.

One such game, Connect Four, was trademarked by Milton Bradley in 1974, one year before I was born, and several years before the birth of my wife. Nineteen years after Milton Bradley first put the game on store shelves around the country, someone placed one on an old cafeteria-style table in a break room in an area big-box retail store where I was working at the time.

I began to assemble the game absent-mindedly when my lunch hour started. It didn't take long. If you're not familiar with the game, it consists of a sort-of cage in which red and black checkers are dropped and stacked. The cage is supported by two plastic legs. The first player to string four of the same color checkers together, in any direction, is the victor.

(I found out today, incidentally, and from the most trusted of sources — Wikipedia — that the original version of this game was called "The Captain's Mistress." How fitting.)

Shortly after I assembled the game, an energetic young blonde sat directly across from me. I'd spoken to her before, mostly work-place chatter, but more recently a little unreciprocated flirting on my part.

I was older than her (in fact, I still am — funny how that works), and she was wary but tolerating of me. I was surprised she had chosen to sit across from me.

She was very direct: "I'm very competitive," she said.

I am not, but I am determined. "Let's have at it, then," I said.

She beat me the first few times we played. It's not a difficult game, Connect Four. Winning is composed of equal parts luck and skill, I think, and I was too busy listening to her talk to pay much attention to the game.

Our lunch hour ended, but we made a "date" to play at the same time the next day.

"Let's make this interesting," she said during our third or fourth game that day. "Let's bet something."

Married to my noncompetitive streak is an unwillingness to wager on anything. I'm interested in sure things only, and of those sure things, only the ones that I have control over. I wouldn't make a bet with someone that the sun would rise tomorrow if I weren't pulling it through the sky myself.

I saw a way to make this a win-win. "How about dinner? If you win, I buy. If I win, vice-versa." She agreed.

It didn't matter who won or lost. All we had to do was finish the game, and I would have won myself dinner with this young, attractive, intelligent woman. But —

"Hey, one of you guys needs to get back out on the floor," a supervisor shouted at us from the door of the break room. "We're getting busy out there."

I was ready to protest and procrastinate. My victory, whether I won or lost, was close. All we had to do was finish the game.

The young blonde got up immediately. She had then, and still has, a better work ethic than I do.

I was crushed. Who knew if she'd agree to dinner again? In fact, maybe it was an aversion to having dinner with me that caused her to so easily leave the game before we were finished. That's the end of that, I thought, and I took apart Connect Four.

The next day, I sat in the break room, alone, for most of my lunch hour. The young blonde came in toward the end and sat across from me. She set up Connect Four and pushed the red checkers toward me.

After a few games she said, "We could bet dinner again."

"We could," I said.

"Or you could just take me to dinner," she said.

And I did.

Three years later we were married. A classy affair, the ceremony and reception of which were held at the Hall of Springs in Saratoga. Too classy for me, some would argue. Certainly classy enough for my wife, those same people would say. On the inside cover of our wedding programs, there was a list of people we wanted to thank for making such a wonderful day possible.

Sandwiched in there, among our friends and family, was Milton Bradley, creator of Connect Four, over which my wife, Jessica, and I met and, well, connected.

I did not know then that I would be here, the father in a family of four, just as I did not know then anything about the history of the Milton Bradley company and its connection to Abraham Lincoln and a little girl from Chautauqua County, New York.

So I would like to say the following:

I love you, Jess, and I thank you, Grace Bedell, for pointing out Abraham Lincoln's skinny face.

Candidate keeps low Election Day profile

Breslin opponent says politics shouldn't be about fancy parties

By DAN SABBATINO
Spotlight Newspapers
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

When the buzz of Election Day descended on the Capital District last week and swarms of politicians huddled around televisions and computer screens in bars, restaurants and meeting halls, one candidate decided that the best place for him to spend the evening was at home with his family.

Charlie Voelker, a Democrat running on the Conservative line in the 46th District Senate, lost to long-term incumbent Neil Breslin, D-Delmar (see related story, page 8).

Despite the outcome, he said running for office was a great experience.

Voelker, who lives in Delmar just across the road from Bethlehem High School, said his decision to watch the historic night unfold from the comfort of his own couch stemmed from a belief that elected office is not about fancy clothes and lavish parties.

"I'm not dressed up for some acceptance speech," Voelker said as the votes started coming in.

While most politicians gather en masse with their campaign volunteers and other party affiliates, Voelker decided on a quiet gathering at home with family.

Voelker, dressed in University at Albany athletic garb, his alma mater, was checking the election results with his wife, whom he said shares his passion for politics. Voelker was using a variety of media to keep him in the loop, including the Albany County Board of Elections Web site and television and radio coverage of races from every level of politics.

"Tonight is about being able to enjoy the big night; the historic night," he said as electoral votes started rolling in for presidential candidate Barack Obama.

Voelker, a self-admitted advocate of change, said he was excited to see history made as Obama became president-elect.

He said he ran for office to bring change to the Capital District, and to fulfill his civic duty.

"I did this for my family," he said. "I've had a good life, and many accomplishments. This was about giving back. I could care less about the titles."

Voelker worked as a commercial engineer, news and sports anchorman, general manager and vice president of the minor league baseball team the Albany-Colonie Diamond Dogs and associate marketing director at the University at Albany.

If he had won, Voelker said he would have brought the same team mentality he had in his previous jobs to responsible government.

"Running was the right thing to do. We need to change the culture of our Legislature and how they go about answering our problems," he said.

Support the arts, to a point

You can't force culture down people's throats.

Saratoga Performing Arts Center officials, in the wake of a few money-losing seasons by the New York City Ballet, shortened the ballet's season for the first time in its 43-year history at the amphitheater.

It's about time.

SPAC and the ballet lost a combined $2.3 million during the ballet's 2008 residency. Though SPAC ended the 2008 season in the black, it saw a drop in classical show attendance from the previous season of 9 percent — a 6 percent drop in ballet attendance alone.

A 2004 attempt at eliminating the ballet's residency because of revenue loss resulted in an investigation into SPAC operations. After the investigation, and amid public outcry at such an ignorant proposal as actually removing something that loses money, the prestigious and dignified New York City Ballet remained. Many members of SPAC's board of directors, including its president, did not.

That's too bad, considering they had the foresight to identify a problem that the current board is only now grappling with: You can't keep the lights on with prestige and dignity.

You can blame the truncated ballet residency on the economy. You can lay it at the feet of the Great Unwashed, who would rather pay to see Rush and the Allman Brothers perform. But the fact of the matter is that for too long, SPAC has overvalued the New York City Ballet in this market.

We at Spotlight Newspapers support the arts. But we also understand the folly of supporting a particular art form to the point of being blind to its limited appeal. The public outcry says that SPAC's classical programming lends the venue a refinement and elegance that, say, Meatloaf and Dave Matthews do not. We say that these musicians are artists in the same vein as any classical act that may grace SPAC's stage, and, what's more, they're profitable.

Area business people are worried that the shorter ballet season will affect their sales. If only Saratoga Springs could host some sort of event throughout August, something that could draw thousands of tourists, so area businesses could try and get some of those lucrative ballet-dollars back. Maybe something involving that race track over there on Union Avenue.

Horse racing too lowbrow? Perhaps SPAC can partner with the New York Racing Association to get an extra week tacked on to the racing season — and host the ballet there.

Rabid fans spoil pregame show

By DAN SABBATINO
Spotlight Newspapers
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

With football season comes so many great things: tailgate parties, camaraderie, great commercials and also patriotism. Sometimes, though, the competitive heat of the match-up can infringe on the rest of the day. I had an experience that I think serves as a good example.

Last week I went to Buffalo to see my favorite football team, the New York Jets, play their division rivals the Buffalo Bills. My fiancée had gotten me the tickets for my birthday, and I was thrilled because I have never made it out to see a live Jets game. She decided on getting tickets to see them play at Buffalo because she knows that my good friend from high school lives there, and it would be a good excuse to visit him. All in all I had a great time, but the weekend did have some strange moments.

We left early on Saturday to spend the day with my friend and go out to dinner that night. He also, coincidentally, had tickets with some of his friends and was going to be going to a sizable tailgating party. He graciously invited us to the party, and I accepted the offer.

I had heard from some of my other Jets fans that Bills fans do not take too kindly to the Jets, and especially do not take kindly to Jets fans. I accepted the offer to tailgate knowing I would need to mask my allegiance if I did not want to get into trouble. After picking up some meat and beer, the staples to a great tailgating party, at a local grocery store, we were off to sleep with the early day ahead of us, and I anxiously awaited the party and the game.

We woke at 7:30 a.m. to get over to Ralph Wilson Stadium by 8. Bills fans, in their Lee Evans

Point of View

jerseys and Trent Edwards attire gathered en masse to get ready for the game. The food was plentiful and included healthy treats like deep-fried turkey and Polish sausage, and the banter was hostile and heated, as to be expected. Football is an intense game. (I was at a Giants game once where they lit a Falcons jersey on fire in the parking lot.)

My friend who invited me to the party knew of my Jets allegiance and he accidentally mentioned it to one of his buddies; a real diehard with no tolerance for "my kind." Some harassment ensued, but it was nothing that couldn't be mitigated with a well-timed Labatt's Blue I gave him from my stash. After a few hours of eating, playing games and defending my team, it was time to head over to the stadium.

The 30-minute walk seemed like an eternity as we passed row after row of Bills fans heckling those brave enough to wear Jets jerseys.

"Brett Favre belongs in a body bag," one fan yelled about the Jets' new, aging quarterback.

"Jets suck," screamed another eloquent Bills supporter.

I felt as though I was behind enemy lines, sneaking into the belly of the beast with nothing to protect myself if I was discovered. I knew that every great play my Jets made, a simple hidden grin was all I had to celebrate with. I knew a shout of joy for a Jets score could mean I might be occupying Brett's body bag, and I had to keep it under wraps.

Once at our seats we met the folks we would be spending the afternoon with. One fan accidentally brushed against my hand, and with a smile on his face apologized very politely.

"I'm sorry buddy," he said. "Unless you're a Jets fan. Then I'll need to punch your teeth in."

I looked at him for a second with absolutely no expression on my face. I laughed.

"A Jets fan," I said. "That's funny! Not me, Lee Evans all the way!"

Evans is on my fantasy team. I hate to admit, so I thought it would be OK to root for him anyway. I still felt like Peter after the cock crowed, though. I had denied my team as I promised my other Jets fan friends I would not have, and I was so disappointed in myself.

It was time for the pre-game ceremonies. The Bills front office decided it was going to honor veterans from wars past and present, starting with veterans from our engagements overseas now, all the way to "the greatest generation," of World War II veterans. It was here that I had the most important experience of my trip.

I should preface this by saying I recently lost my grandfather, a World War II veteran himself, and was happy to hear they were going to have a moment of silence for all the veterans who are no longer with us.

It was then, in what seemed to me the biggest pre-game ceremony debacle I have ever witnessed, that I really felt cheated as a football fan and an American.

During the moment of silence for fallen veterans, someone thought it would be wise to have the Jets come onto the field for the first time and run toward their sideline.

The booing and taunting that ensued was scathing. If someone who didn't know anything about football would have witnessed that moment they probably would have thought the fans were booing the veterans themselves! What type of moment of silence involves booing, let alone any noise at all? Who decided it was then that the Jets should make their grand entrance onto the field? I don't know who to be angrier at, the fans or the genius who organized the show that way.

Maybe I was reacting to the recent loss to my grandfather, or maybe I was just a bitter Jets fan angry at the opposing team's fans, but I can't help but think that this was just football. Couldn't the fans hold off on their disdain toward my team for one minute? I guess not.

I think, though, we need to examine our priorities sometimes and remember that a lot of what is great about our country is great because of the people we were remembering that day, and also this week on Veterans Day, and put the other, less important, stuff aside for a moment. I am not saying this would not have happened in another stadium, or even at the Meadowlands where the Jets play their home games, but I am saying it was wrong. I guess my consolation for the day was the Jets beat the Bills 26-17, and although I couldn't cheer about it at the time, it helped me get over the pre-game debacle I witnessed earlier in the afternoon.

Animals also need help in struggling economy

Editor, Spotlight Newspapers:

Thank you for bringing the plight of homeless animals to the attention of your readers in the Oct. 22 Spotlight editorial, "For the dogs."

The reeling economy has a trickle down impact on pets. Six dogs were recently abandoned in the Town of Bethlehem, including four dogs that were brazenly dumped out of a vehicle near Meads Lane in Delmar in front of a witness.

Local animal control officers are struggling with a surge in abandoned animals, yet the public remains largely unaware that many local municipalities, including the Towns of Bethlehem and Coeymans, either no longer take their animals to the Mohawk Hudson River Humane Society or use it as little as possible to keep down costs.

New York state only requires municipalities to hold stray dogs for five days before they can be euthanized or released for adoption.

Local animal control officers like Dick Watt of Bethlehem and Jim Shear of Coeymans often are unsung heroes who go above and beyond the call of duty to find homes for the dogs in their care so that they will not have to be euthanized.

Bethlehem dogs are kenneled temporarily at Reigning Cats & Dogs on Route 9W and Coeymans dogs are housed in the Town Garage. Dick and Jim volunteer their own time and sometimes money to give their charges extra time and they reach out to local rescue groups like Peppertree Rescue for much-needed assistance in rehoming them.

In fact, local rescue groups are increasingly overwhelmed by the sheer volume of dogs we are being asked to assist.

November is "Adopt a Senior Dog" month.

Peppertree Rescue and other local rescue groups have so many loving dogs waiting, sometimes from your own community. Please consider opening your hearts and home to a canine companion that will return your love tenfold.

Help us and your local animal control officer by offering to foster a dog. You will set a wonderful example for your children by opening your home, even if only for a few days, to save the life of a puppy or dog.

As a longtime Peppertree Rescue volunteer, I am amazed at how fostering has influenced my children and helped them become empathetic individuals. It is very rewarding.

So before you "throw that bone" or give a donation to the local shelter, you might want to learn more about the activities of local groups such as Peppertree Rescue so that you know how your donation is being used. For more information about Peppertree Rescue, go to www.peppertree.org or contact us at 435-7425.

BCSD superintendent to give education-week talk

“Twenty-first Century Schools: Preparing students for the future” is the topic of a talk by Bethlehem Central School District Superintendent Michael Tebbano Sunday, Nov. 16, at 2 p.m. The talk marks the beginning of American Education Week. Tebbano said he will focus on “research and trends that many school districts throughout the country are developing to prepare their students for the uncertain future ahead.”

Tebbano took the reins of the school district when former superintendent Les Loomis retired last spring after 21 years of service. Selected after a national search, Tebbano is nevertheless a familiar figure to Bethlehem residents, serving as the district’s assistant superintendent for educational programs since 2005. He joined the district 11 years ago as the K-12 music supervisor, and became principal of Bethlehem Central High School in 2002.

Before coming to the district, Tebbano was a music educator for 22 years in area school districts. He holds degrees from SUNY Potsdam and Seton Hall.

Tebbano is dedicated to continuing Bethlehem’s educational excellence through innovation, research and collaborative leadership. We are delighted to welcome him to the library.

National gaming day
Teens in grades five and up are invited to participate in “National Gaming Day at Your Library” Saturday, Nov. 15, from 2 to 4 p.m. Teens will compete against players at many other libraries in the U.S. and see their scores in real time online.

In addition, board game giant Hasbro is donating a copy of Pictureka to every participating library; the goal is to set a national record for the most people playing a board game at one time.

To get a sneak preview of the competition, go to www.ilovelibraries.org/gaming/index.cfm to view a map of participants.

Additional programs

- Time out for tales; Saturday, Nov. 22, 11 a.m.; gobble up some yummy Thanksgiving stories. Age 2 and up with family and friends.
- Friends of Bethlehem Public Library; Monday, Nov. 24, 7 p.m.; open to the public.
- Teen book discussion: “Twilight”; Tuesday, Nov. 25, 6:30 p.m.; talk about the first book in the hit series by Stephenie Meyer. Grade six and up.

- “Twilight” party; Wednesday, Dec. 3, 6:30 p.m.; dress up as your favorite character (optional). Play a “Twilight” trivia game. Talk with other teens about the book and the movie. Grade six and up.

Ethics matter on agenda

New Scotland officials will also discuss extending building moratorium

By DAN SABBATINO
Spotlight Newspapers
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

New Scotland officials will discuss extending the moratorium on commercial development, as well as how to proceed on a potential ethics violation, at its Wednesday, Nov. 12, meeting, according to town officials.

Liz Kormos, a member of the Commercial Zone Advisory Committee, has been accused by Committee Chairwoman Roz Robinson of having a conflict of interest regarding her relationship with a potential buyer of the Bender melon farm, a key piece of property inside the commercial zone.

That developer was later outbid by Sphere Development LLC, which is planning to develop the farm with a 137,000-square-foot anchor store, pending the approval of zoning laws recommended by the committee and approved by the Town Board.

Kormos also is a member of advocacy group New Scotlanders for Sound Economic Development, which supports a 50,000-square-foot size cap on commercial retail stores.

Town Supervisor Tom Dolin said the Kormos issue will be an agenda item for the Town Board meeting on Nov. 12, in addition to the scheduled public hearing for extending the commercial moratorium, which has been in place for six months.

The discussion of a potential extension to the moratorium on commercial buildings is scheduled for 6 p.m.

Town Attorney Mike Mackey said town officials could remove Kormos without a hearing, since she is a political appointee, but she would still have the right to an ethics hearing.

The town was planning to have its own ethics hearing, but Mackey said that under the provisions of the General Municipal Law, New Scotland does not have a body in place that constitutes a valid ethics board.

Mackey said in a letter dated Friday, Oct. 31, that in the absence of a valid ethics board, the matter would be referred to the Albany County Ethics Board.

The county ethics board does not have any authority over the matter, Dolin said, but it can make recommendations about how the town should proceed.

Dolin said that board issues advisory opinions only, and he does not believe there is sufficient reason to remove Kormos.

"I do not see any need to go any further, but if the board feels otherwise, I would like to see an advisory opinion from the county ethics board," Dolin said.

Kormos' attorney, Peter Lauricella, said he is unsure what the town plans to do.

"Everything is up in the air right now," Lauricella said.

He said the Town Board has not contacted him since Kormos' original hearing was postponed on two weeks ago.

He said, though, he is aware of the agenda item for the upcoming meeting, but he does not believe the town could remove Kormos from her appointment without an ethics hearing.

Appointed positions generally do not involve litigation for the appointment or removal, however Lauricella said that since the town has begun the proceedings for an ethics hearing, he does not believe they can remove her without following through on those procedures.

Calls to the county ethics committee were not returned.

Lauricella, who is a member of the county ethics board, said he would recuse himself in this instance.

"That would be an issue. I would have to remove myself from that process considering Kormos matter," he said.

Attorney appears in O magazine

Catherine Hedgeman, an Albany attorney and founder of The Stakeholders and the Stakeholders Foundation, is featured in "Women Rule! A Crash Course In Changing the World," an article published in the November issue of O, The Oprah Magazine.

The article details the experiences of the winners of Women Rule!, a national leadership project competition that was a joint venture between O and the White House Project, a non-profit organization committed to advancing women from all backgrounds into positions of power.

In April, O, The Oprah Magazine and the White House Project announced a competition for women who had initiated leadership projects – a non-profit, business or public policy initiative – in their communities and wanted to take those projects to the next level. Out of more than 3,000 women who applied, Hedgeman was one of 80 invited to New York City for an intensive weekend of lectures, workshops and individual coaching by top leaders in business, philanthropy and politics. The leadership training was held June 20 to 28.

Hedgeman's winning project, The Stakeholders, Inc. and The Stakeholders Foundation, are non-profit organizations whose mission is to cultivate an informed and active creative class dedicated to building diverse and sustainable communities throughout the Capital District.

Documentary to discuss 'signature wound of Iraq war'

"A growing number of U.S. troops whose body armor helped them survive bomb and rocket attacks are suffering brain damage as a result of the blasts. It's a type of injury some military doctors say has become the signature wound of the Iraq war."

Gregg Zoroya, USA Today

Lee Woodruff, wife of Bob Woodruff, the ABC newsman who suffered a traumatic brain injury while covering the war in Iraq, narrates a touching documentary recently released by the Brain Injury Association of New York. The short movie called "Beyond the Invisible" deals with the altered lives of three U.S. servicemen who suffered similar brain injuries in the war and are now struggling to live with the consequences.

If you have a friend or family member who has suffered this type of debilitating injury in the military, on a motorcycle or bike, or in a household accident, you should attend this timely and informative presentation Tuesday, Nov. 18, at 7 p.m. at the Voorheesville Public Library.

Col. James D. McDonough Jr., retired director, state Division of Veterans' Affairs, and Judith I. Avner, executive director, Brain Injury Association of

New York, will preview the film, discuss the repercussions and treatment of traumatic brain injury, and answer your questions.

'Helping Hands'

Don't forget the "Helping Hands" program for all of our junior sewers is scheduled for Fridays, Nov. 14 and 21, and Dec. 12 and 19, from 4 to 5:30 p.m. The group will work on lap quilts to be delivered to veterans for Valentine's Day.

Book discussions

• Teen book discussion meets in the high school library immediately after school on Thursday, Nov. 20, and ends in time for teens to ride the late bus home. A recommended book for teens is "Dunk" by David Lubar. Chad lives on the New Jersey shore with his divorced mother. He and his friends hang out on the boardwalk, picking up odd jobs and sometimes getting into trouble. When the chance to become a boardwalk "Bozo"

• All library programming is free (unless otherwise noted) and open to the public. Voorheesville Public Library is located at 51 School Road, Voorheesville. For information, call 765-2791 or visit www.voorheesvillelibrary.org.

IN BRIEF

Delmar resident named top teacher

Donna Shepardson, a Delmar resident, was recently named Educator of the Year by the Business Teachers Association of New York State.

She teaches at Colombia High School and was honored at a luncheon on Oct. 17 in Binghamton.

School to hold craft fair

Hamagrael Elementary School will hold a hand-crafted craft fair on Saturday, Dec. 6, from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

There will be 75 vendors along with a bucket auction and bake sale. Lunch will be sold.

Admission is free. The school is at 1 McGuffey Lane in Delmar.

For information, call Sue Napierski at 478-0735 or Tamara Rowe at 439-4032.

RCS to add time to phys ed program

RCS elementary and middle school students will be more active in the second half of this school year as the district adds class time to the physical education program.

The move will impact all students in grades kindergarten through six, Assistant Superintendent for Instruction Diane Albano said.

The additional time is the result of the implementation of a Healthy Body Healthy Minds Program which, in turn, addresses a need highlighted during a state audit of the physical education program last summer.

The new initiative will involve students in first through third grade spending 10 minutes each day following their lunch walking in a structured program modeled after the walking program that was launched last year at A.W. Becker Elementary School. At the same time, kindergarten students will receive 10 minutes of additional motor skill activities daily in their classrooms.

In the fourth and fifth grades, students will take part in a 10-minute walking program three times a week while in the sixth grade, the Healthy Body Healthy Minds program will focus on nutrition and health, adding two, 20-minute physical education classes a week to the students' schedule, Albano said.

The new classes will address a physical education class time shortfall of 30 minutes per week in grades K-5 and 40 minutes every other week in the sixth grade.

The state requires daily physical education classes totaling 120 minutes per week in grades K-5 and 120 minutes of physical education classes in the middle school, though those classes do not have to be daily.

The initiative has been included into a physical education plan recently sent to the state Education Department.

Coming home to Malta

With development on the way, state of market doesn't worry area real-estate agents

By CHARLES WIFF
Spotlight Newspapers
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

Editor's note: This is the second installment of Spotlight Newspaper's series on AMD coming to the town of Malta.

It seems everyone is talking about change these days.

And in the Town of Malta, there is a definite point at which it will begin: when ground is broken on an Advanced Micro Devices subsidiary fabrication facility, a $4.6 billion project that AMD hopes to have running in 2011. It's been called the most important economic development in the state's history, and with it a huge influx of jobs is expected to come to the area.

There are estimates on the table, including figures from AMD that say the project will bring the immediate area about 6,500 "sustained, long-term jobs," as well as up to 4,300 temporary jobs during the construction of the facility.

It is hard to say exactly how many of these supposed jobs will be filled by current residents of Malta and the surrounding area, and how many will be snagged by those relocating. AMD officials have said it is likely that Fab 4X will be initially staffed by a work force largely made up of the company's current employees, and locals will be phased in over time as education and training programs across the region come online and expand.

If that is to be the case, many temporary workers will no doubt want temporary housing.

"Right now, we're experiencing a lot more rental requests than we did in the past," said Bruce McClellan, broker/owner of Pinnacle Realty, which has offices in Malta and Saratoga Springs. "From the real estate perspective, it's one of the most exciting things going on in the market."

According to September statistics released by the Greater Capital Association of Realtors, the number of home sales closed across the Capital District dropped 13 percent from a year prior. In Saratoga County, the figure was 17 percent.

Those numbers don't worry

BUILDING the FUTURE

Nelson VanUllen, branch manager at RealtyUSA's Clifton Park office.

"Saratoga County has been a county in growth for the last 15 years," he said. "During the so-called housing crisis, we've really fared much better than other areas."

That's chiefly because home prices didn't grow out of control over the past few years, so the collapse of the mortgage market was not quite as painful in the Capital District. With the credit crunch in full swing and most Americans bracing for an economic downturn, it's not surprising that many are forgoing mortgaging a house, but with the region poised for growth, most realtors are optimistic about the future.

"It's one thing to sit there and be optimistic without a cause, but I think that we have a reason," said Stephen Towne, chief operating officer at Roohan Realty. "It's been a tough go for a lot of folks, but I think there's a real optimism that things will start improving."

Realtors aren't only optimistic about residential offerings, but also an increased demand for business space along Route 9 in Malta near the proposed downtown area. New developments offering both are being built presently.

Park Place, sitting on 60 acres of land, is slated to hold 238 condominium units, 60 single-family homes and roughly 115,000 square feet of retail space. The first buildings have already been erected, including a sales office.

Just down the road, Ellsworth Commons will be a more compact development, but still will hold 310 apartments, 21 homes and 70,000-square-feet of retail space on its Route 9 plot of land directly opposite town hall. Developer Albany Partners LLC, who created the nearby Steeplechase Apartments, would hope to have the site up and running by the time AMD opens its doors.

Closer to Fab4X itself, homebuilder Thomas J. Farone and Sons bought 66 acres of land at the Luther Forest Technology Campus in April. The Gansevoort-based firm's exact plans for the plot were not available.

Both Ellsworth Commons and Park Place were begun long before AMD committed to building in Malta.

The two projects aim to be a part of plans for Malta's downtown area. The town has been crafting a set of standards for downtown development for years, and it is often a process complicated by differing visions of what Malta should look like when "built out," and the delicate nature of looking years into the future.

"Once we develop, if we do it the wrong way, it would be somewhat irreversible," said Town of Malta Supervisor Paul Sausville. He doesn't anticipate a population explosion in Malta, but said that with the influx of businesses every decision must be made with care.

"I think we need to be in balance with ourselves," he said. "We need to honor and respect our small town character."

The first buildings are already up at Park Place, off of Route 9 in Malta. It's one of two major developments of living and retail space in the town's developing downtown area.

IN BRIEF

Tax-Aide seeks volunteers

AARP Tax-Aide, the nation's largest, free, volunteer-run tax assistance and preparation service, is starting income tax training classes, and seeking volunteers for tax counseling as well as leadership and administrative positions.

Each year from Feb. 1 through April 15, Tax-Aide volunteers prepare and electronically file federal and state tax returns for low-and-middle-income taxpayers, with special attention to those age 60 and older. Volunteers are especially needed to assist with electronic filing of tax returns and support functions such as coordinating appointments and site operations. Volunteers of all ages and backgrounds are welcome.

Tax-Aide volunteers receive comprehensive training in cooperation with the Internal Revenue Service. Leadership positions coordinate program delivery by volunteers at sites at the local, state, or regional level or manage specific program activities such as technology, training, administration or communication. Although tax training and certification is encouraged, it is not required for many leadership positions. Volunteers are reimbursed on a limited basis for qualified program-related expenses.

For information, call Ronald Streeter at 877-5494, toll-free 1-888-OURAARP (1-888-687-2277), or visit www.aarp.org/taxaide.

Assemblyman's salary up for grabs

Local charities are invited to apply for a share of Assemblyman Robert Reilly's salary.

When Reilly ran for office, he pledged to donate his entire salary to charity, and his pay was put into a fund established by the Community Foundation for the Greater Capital Region. A committee appointed by Reilly will select and recommend the amounts and recipients of grants from the fund.

In selecting recipients, the committee will consider organizations whose revenues derive principally from charitable giving, whose objectives and activities are encouraged by most observers, and whose focus is localized in Colonie, Clifton Park and Halfmoon. Preferred areas of activity will include but not be limited to social, educational, cultural and environmental fields, including care and assistance for those in need and certain planning and economic development activities. The committee will not favor activities that are political, religious or controversial in nature. Preference will be given to proposals from organizations whose directors are active as volunteers and/or donors.

The fund will not give to annual fund drives or individuals.

Grant requests should not exceed $10,000. Applications are due by Monday, Dec. 1, and can be obtained by e-mailing jmahoney@cfcr.org.

Applications can be e-mailed or sent by regular mail to:

Cellist returns for concert

Ken Olsen's musical journey has landed him prestigious role in orchestra

By ARIANA COHN
Spotlight Newspapers
cohn@spotlightnews.com

When Ken Olsen left home to become a professional cellist, he had no idea how rough life could be.

Until his bank account dropped to $90 last February, and he was beginning to grow tired of living out of a suitcase and spending many nights on the couches of friends. Still, he did whatever he could to ensure he got a full four hours of practice in every day, even if it meant practicing while his friends watched television.

Olsen had a hard time finding the orchestra he would call his family, though close friends say he never lost sight of his true calling in life. He tried out three times for openings in the cello section in the Boston Symphony Orchestra and twice he auditioned for the principal position, a position Empire State Youth Orchestra Manager Julie Shapiro labeled the highest honor a cellist can receive, in the Saint Paul Chamber Orchestra and the San Diego Symphony.

Finally, he auditioned for a position as assistant principal, the second highest honor, in the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Olsen received a call that he had got the position, and his life changed.

"My life did a total 180 in one day - upside down. I was freaking out, thinking, 'Here I am, in the cello section of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra, and last week I didn't have a job, an apartment, or much of anything else,'" he said.

Ken Olsen will perform with the Albany Symphony on Friday, Nov. 14 at 8 p.m. at Troy Savings Bank Music Hall.

While Olsen was surprised to have earned such a prestigious and high-paying title, old friends of his who knew him when he was younger, were not shocked to hear that he had made it to the top.

"I knew his teacher, and she said she'd never seen anyone play this well," said Shapiro, who used to manage Olsen while he was playing in the Empire State Youth Orchestra.

Shapiro said she had known

Olsen from when he was between the ages of 10 and 11 and that he had come to her house because he was accompanying her husband to a recital.

"I said, 'This kid is good.' He was young and he was good," she said.

While Olsen was not available for further comment, Shapiro said the young cellist became part of the Empire Youth Orchestra in the mid-'90s and that he eventually left the orchestra, after more than four years, to play in the New England Conservatory.

"It's not common," she said. "But it's not uncommon for our really skilled [performers]."

After graduating from Colonie Central High School, Olsen attended the Cleveland Institute of Music, according to Shapiro. Shapiro also said she thinks that Olsen's graduate school years may have been the time that he was living out of a suitcase.

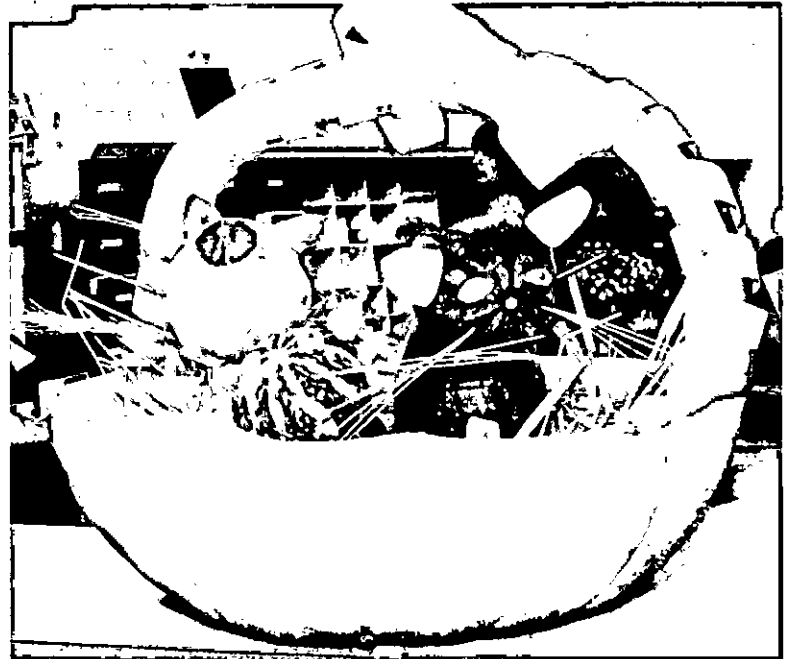

Shapiro has not seen Olsen for a number of years, but was very pleased to hear of his new position with the Chicago Symphony Orchestra. "We are very proud of him," she said.

Shapiro explained that as assistant principal, Olsen must be prepared to take over as the lead cellist in the orchestra should the principal fall ill, or not be able to attend a concert. But according to her, Olsen has experience as the principal, as he has played the role in a number of concerts, she said.

Olsen will be making a return to the Capital District and performing with the Albany Symphony on Friday, Nov. 14 at 8 p.m. at Troy Savings Bank Music Hall. Tickets range from $25 to $49 and are $15 for students. To purchase a ticket, call Troy Savings Bank Music Hall at 273-0038.

Olsen will also be visiting his alma mater, Colonie Central High School, on Wednesday, Nov. 12.

Purr-fect pumpkin

Delmar Animal Hospital held its annual Halloween pumpkin carving competition last week, with each employee carving, sculpting or dressing a pumpkin for the contest. Winners were chosen by clients visiting the practice. Kathy Verzulli, who carved a "Basket o' Kittens," above, won first prize. Her pumpkin basket was filled with kittens made of gourds. Verzulli is a veterinary technician. Second prize was the "Halloween Pirate," carved by Michael Sleurs, kennel manager. Third prize was "The Regurgitator," carved by Dr. Carrie O'Loughlin. Fourth prize was "Joe the Plumber," carved by Dale Gallagher, office manager.

Chamber program wins award

The Capital Chamber Foundation Inc. of the Albany-Colonie Regional Chamber of Commerce has earned the New York State Entrepreneurial Assistance Program 2008 Award for Excellence from Empire State Development Corporation.

The award recognizes the Chamber's Entrepreneurial Assistance Program (EAP) for outstanding program performance and achievement in all program areas and dedication to the state's entrepreneurs.

Administered locally by the Chamber and funded by the ESDC, the state's EAP is designed to provide business assistance to aspiring entrepreneurs, increase the formation of new businesses and strengthen the operations of businesses during the early stages of development.

Services include classroom instruction and one-on-one counseling, peer support groups and business mentoring from experienced business owners, who have been through the ups and downs of starting and running a business. Entrepreneurs learn business skills and how to develop a business plan, and they complete a rough draft of their business plan by the end of the course.

The EAP achievements measure number of businesses started, number of businesses retained, number of new clients enrolled in the program and number of businesses financed.

Need

who used to live paycheck to paycheck, but just can't make ends meet anymore."

That story is being told at pantries all over. Lynda Schuyler, executive director at Food Pantries for the Capital District, a group that helps 48 pantries across Albany and Rensselaer counties meet their goals, said that 2008 will likely be a historic year.

"September was about the busiest month on record," said Schuyler. The rising cost of food has weighed heavy on many for months, and a flagging economy is pushing some over the edge. Schuyler said people tend to push off going to a pantry for as long as possible, which can be a poor choice.

"We didn't see the increase right away," she said. "The first thing you're going to do is start using your credit cards ... then you hit a wall with another monthly bill."

Jane Sanders, an outreach worker with the Town of Bethlehem Senior Services, which runs the town's food pantry, said Bethlehem has encountered similar trends.

"The numbers have been going up," she said. "We have seen some new, first-time users."

Many of the newer faces are the recently jobless or those working part-time, who just can't make ends meet, said Sanders. The pantry serves around 35 families monthly.

Donations dry up

The same factors pushing people to pantries are having an effect on donations, as well.

"The number of people we serve goes up, but our donations continue to dwindle," said Cushing.

The Franklin Community Center's food pantry is somewhat unique in that it relies solely on community donations to stock its shelves. Many pantries accept funds or donations from food banks, large organizations that shuffle millions of pounds of food every year toward pantries and sometimes buy in bulk.

Cushing says the relatively successful Saratoga Springs community makes this possible through its generosity.

"Saratoga is viewed as an area of affluence, but there are pockets of poverty," she said.

With demand rising and supply dwindling, it's clear that food resources must be properly managed. Unfortunately, the United States and the world as a whole do not use the entire food supply — far from it, in fact.

According to a government study conducted earlier this year, Americans waste 27 percent of the food available for consumption. The EPA study figured that the country discards around 30 million pounds of food waste per year, comprising 12 percent of the total waste stream. Virtually all of it ends up in a landfill, as programs to compost or use spoiling food for animal feed are not widespread.

The waste originates at multiple sources. Households regularly toss food or leftovers as they "clean out the refrigerator." But cafeterias, restaurants and bakeries are often guilty of throwing out tons of unfinished or unsold meals, as well.

Fortunately, at least some prepared goods are put to use rather than being chucked.

Food Pantries for the Capital District has two trucks dedicated to picking up day-old donations of bread, milk and produce from bakeries, grocery stores and the like. Rather than going to waste, the food can then go to needy persons to supplement the non-perishable selection in food pantries. In 2007, the program rescued over 230,000 pounds of food.

"Food that would put out for donation at 8 or 10 last night is going to be on a food pantry shelf by 10 this morning, and used in someone's meal tonight," said Schuyler.

Hannaford Supermarkets, who has stores across five northeastern states, makes it a point to guide unsold foods to pantries whenever possible. They participate in the Movable Feast program through the Regional Food Bank of Northeastern New York, in which refrigerated trucks pick up perishables pulled off shelves before the expiration date.

The food pantry at the Franklin Community Center in Saratoga Springs relies on community donations to put meals on the tables of needy families. The center is anticipating a landmark year for pantry need.

Charles Wiff/Spotlight

The program is particularly useful because it gets dairy, meats and other protein-heavy foods to pantries. They are often in short supply because of their cost.

How to help

From now until Dec. 27, shoppers at Hannaford Supermarkets can elect to purchase $10 boxes of food to be donated directly to local pantries as part of the fifth annual Fund a Feast program. Shoppers can also purchase $5 Hannaford gift cards, to be distributed through the Northeast Regional Food Bank, beginning Nov. 30.

Of course, people can always donate directly to their local food pantries. The Town of Bethlehem Food Pantry, for instance, has donation boxes set up at town hall, the YMCA and at the Delmar Marketplace.

Donators are urged to check the expiration dates on the items they hand in, though; it is unlawful to distribute expired items.

"We're at the point where we expect to throw out at least 20 percent of what we receive," said Sanders. She also said that the pantry is always looking for gifts of toiletries, which many people might overlook when putting together a holiday donation.

"We always need toiletries and personal care products," though.

"The community has always come through for us, but this year there's a huge jump," said Cushing. "It's the first year I can honestly say that there's a little bit of concern."

Though the Franklin Community Center will distribute food with essentially no questions asked, at many pantries, first-time users will be asked to go through an application process that may include information on occupation, income and the composition of the household. The procedure differs from pantry to pantry, so users should contact their local provider, and do so in advance of their time of critical need.

"I'm worried for people, that they don't realize that if they're going to need help for Thanksgiving or Christmas, they need to ask for help now," said Schuyler. "If people are going to need help, they need to contact their pantry now."

"The community has always come through for us, but this year there's a huge jump. It's the first year I can honestly say that there's a little bit of concern."

Karie Cushing

said Sanders. "People can't buy these things with food stamps, and they're often very expensive."

The good news is that none of the local food pantries said they were anticipating having to turn away the needy, increased demand or not. There was agreement that it will be a very different holiday season,

The Perfect Gift

Why is it that we exchange gifts at the holidays? Is this tradition based in religion or merely propagated by the retail industry? Perhaps the true essence of gift giving is the expression of appreciation for one another. Therefore, the perfect gift may simply be the gift of time to treat oneself to something special. A gift certificate from Fusion Spa provides the ultimate in relaxation. Everyone from teenagers to the young at heart need to destress and rejuvenate. ## Louise Nuccio

Louise C. Nuccio, 78, of Glenmont, died on Saturday, Oct. 25, at St. Peter's Hospital in Albany.

Born on Long Island, she was the next youngest of seven children and the daughter of the late Dominick and Rose Nuccio. Learning and education were very important elements to her life.

She received a bachelor's degree from St. John's University; a master's degree from The State University of New York at New Paltz; and did additional graduate studies at Hofstra University, Long Island University at C.W. Post, the University at Albany and the College of St. Rose.

Ms. Nuccio received her state certification in five areas of education: elementary, reading, English, special education and education administration. Her first job was with Time-Life in Manhattan and she then had a long career as a teacher.

She was an elementary teacher for St. Peter of Alcantara Catholic School and the Half Hollow Hills School District in Long Island and for the Department of Defense School at West Point Military Academy.

Ms. Nuccio taught literacy classes at IBM in Poughkeepsie, and taught English at Marist College for several summers. She was also a reading specialist for the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk School District for 25 years until her retirement.

She had many interests including, reading, gardening, cooking, travel and entertaining family and friends at her home. Ms. Nuccio was a devout Catholic and was a communicant at the St. Teresa of Avila Church in Albany.

"She was a kind unselfish person who lived life with courage and joy. She was a wonderful mother who loved her daughter very much and encouraged her in everything, especially to be a faithful Catholic," her family wrote in a tribute. "She was an excellent role model to all who knew her."

She was the widow of Robert Schrecongost in 1960.

Survivors include her daughter, Louise; two sisters, Marie and Yolanda; a sister-in-law; and sixteen nieces and nephews.

Services were from the St. Teresa of Avila Church in Albany and interment was in the Calvary Cemetery in Glenmont.

Contributions may be made to the Association of Marian Helpers, Marians of the Immaculate Conception, Stockbridge, MA 01263.

Anne D. Schlereth

Anne (Dunham) Schlereth, 94, of Delmar, died Friday, Oct. 31, at St. Peter's Nursing & Rehab Center in Albany.

Born on Staten Island, she was the daughter of the late Arthur Leroy and Florence Pentz Dunham.

Mrs. Schlereth graduated in 1932 from Curtis High School on Staten Island and remained an active member of the alumni association all her life. Her interests included amateur theater, camping, swimming, marionettes, Staten Island history and her family's activities.

While raising her family, she was active in the PTA, fundraising and writing publicity. She often entertained school children with the troupe of marionettes and plays that she created.

Mrs. Schlereth worked for the New York Public Library as a clerk and was a communicant of the Calvary Presbyterian Church on Staten Island. When her family was grown, she returned to her own education, earning an associate's degree from Staten Island Community College, a bachelor's in English and a master's in early elementary education from the College of Staten Island.

After earning her teaching certification at age 55, she taught pre-school children for ten years before retiring. She enjoyed traveling with her husband, particularly to visit with family and often in search of family tree information.

After her husband died in 1982, she took driver education classes and continued her explorations, often driving upstate or out on Long Island. She moved to Delmar in 2000, and quickly became involved in new social activities with the Bethlehem Seniors, the Delmar Progress Club, and the Clarksville Community Church, among others.

She was the widow of George M. Schlereth.

Survivors include a son, Paul (Maureen) Schlereth of Greenville; a daughter, Susan (Burl) Cable of Clarksville; five grandchildren; a step-grandson; seven great-grandchildren; a nephew; and three nieces.

Services were from the Clarksville Community Church and interment will be in the Moravian Cemetery on Staten Island at a later date.

Contributions may be made to UNICEF at www.unicef.org, or to the ASPCA at www.aspcanet.org.

A meal kids will be thankful for, too

Don't overwhelm children with a Thanksgiving menu just for grown-up tastes

During the weeks leading up to Thanksgiving, I am waiting in anticipation for the holiday. I spend a lot of time pondering menus, wines and guests. A fair amount of time is devoted to planning desserts as well.

But this warm and fuzzy feeling was not always so. When I look at the Thanksgiving of my childhood, I see brussels sprouts, oyster stuffing and creamed onions. Definitely not kid food.

The brussels sprouts were deemed disgusting by my sister and me. And the oyster stuffing? I used my fork as a shield, to prevent my mother from putting any of the scary-looking stuff on my plate.

As an adult, I do want to give her credit. In the 1970s cooking world, oyster stuffing was elegant and exotic. I am sure that it was enjoyed by every adult at the table. Unbelievably, my mother was shocked that we refused the oyster stuffing. And the creamed onions. And the brussels sprouts. My plate was always empty, save for a scoop of mashed potatoes.

My sister and I sat in our fancy dresses, bored and itchy. The adults talked and talked. The table felt like our own personal prison, and we were dying to escape. Finally, after much asking and whining, we were excused. Thankfully, there was the promise of dessert, so we didn't stray too far. That's how it was, year after year.

And then I grew up and left home.

Paul and I moved to Colorado directly after college, and so it was time for us to create our own Thanksgiving traditions. We always had a big, festive gathering with our friends. Most of the people we knew in Colorado were transplants, like us, and did not travel home for the holiday. So we would invite everyone we knew to celebrate with us.

This was not the Thanksgiving of my youth. I remember many of the dishes brought for our potluck dinner: barbecued tofu, corn pudding and baked beans. One year someone even brought ribs.

The thing was, those holidays completely changed the way I perceived Thanksgiving. It had become my event. The day would be fun, casual and filled with all of the foods I love to eat. And there would be no oyster stuffing or creamed onions.

Since we have had children, our Thanksgiving table has been full with people of all ages. Relatives come. Friends

From a Caterer's Kitchen

and neighbors are invited. Children organize ball games and make place cards and table decorations. The adults nibble appetizers and sip wine. I spend the day going between the kickball game, the stovetop and the living room. The day is always blissful, with the food and the company.

A few years back, we invited Paul's brother and his family to spend the holiday with us. Peter and his wife came, with their two boys in tow. At the time, our oldest kids were just 5 years old, and I will never forget how disappointed our nephew Mason was in the Thanksgiving desserts. He looked at the table - the pumpkin pie, pear tart, and the ginger cheesecake - and then he started to cry. Really cry. We all rushed over, trying to help, but his mother stopped us.

"It's because there isn't any chocolate," she explained. I sympathized with him. Here is one meal that people look forward to all year. And it didn't include his most favorite food. Who wouldn't be disappointed?

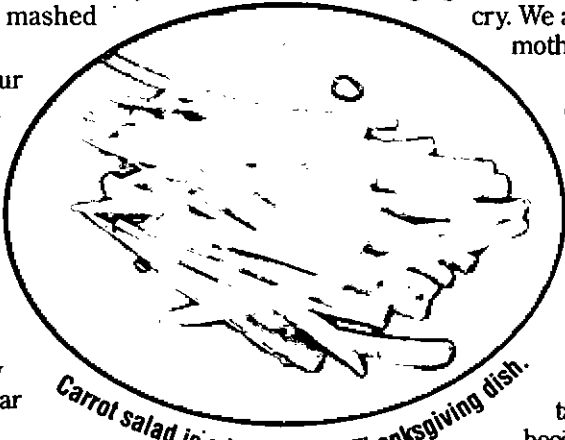

It was that moment I realized what I had done: I had created the Thanksgiving of my childhood.

Our meal revolved around adult tastes. My mother's oyster stuffing had become my sausage and cornbread stuffing; her creamed onions - my balsamic roasted onions. Not exactly kid food. So I vowed to make a change. Our holidays from then on would be created equally. Kids. Adults. All of them well fed at our table. There would be no more plates with only a serving of mashed potatoes.

This year, I asked my kids what their most favorite things to eat on Thanksgiving are, and we came up with this list. Lucy's hands-down favorite is the chocolate zucchini bread. Elliot, the carrot lover, will eat bowls of carrot salad. And Zoe, she loves applesauce. Loves it so much that I have to guard the container after I make it. Otherwise there wouldn't be any for the dinner table.

On the day of Thanksgiving this year, I will try to spend time with my family, put a beautiful meal on the table, and please all tastes. A tall order, I know. But I believe that both Mason and my mother would approve.

The author is the food writer for Spotlight Newspapers and the mother of three children, Lucy, age 9, Zoe, age 7, and Elliot, age 4. She can be reached at news@spotlightnews.com.

Carrot salad is a kid-friendly Thanksgiving dish.

Carrot salad

6-7 large carrots, washed and peeled
2 Tablespoons maple syrup
2 Tablespoons apple cider vinegar
1/2 teaspoon salt

Cut the carrots into thin strips and place in a large glass bowl. Combine the remaining ingredients, and pour over the carrots. Allow to marinate for 4-5 hours. Serve chilled or at room temperature.

Chocolate zucchini bread

1/2 cup packed brown sugar
1 cup white sugar
2 teaspoons salt
2 teaspoons cinnamon
2 teaspoons baking powder
1/4 teaspoon baking soda
2-1/3 cups white whole wheat flour
1/2 cup unsweetened cocoa powder
2 medium zucchini, grated (about 3 cups)
3 eggs
1 cup applesauce
1 tablespoon vanilla

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Grease two loaf pans. Mix dry ingredients in a large bowl. In another bowl, mix the wet ingredients, and then pour it into the dry mixture. Mix well, and pour into the prepared pans. Bake for 45 minutes, or until the tops are spongy. Cool before slicing.

Roasted apple applesauce

1 peck of apples (about 40 apples)
1/2 cup honey
2 tablespoons cinnamon

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Slice the apples into quarters. Arrange on 4 baking sheets, skin side down. Drizzle the honey over, and then the cinnamon. Bake for 30 minutes, or until the apples are very soft. Allow the apples to cool. Working in batches, scoop about a half of each baking sheet into a food mill*. Process all of the apples and store in an airtight container in the refrigerator. It will keep for a week, but ours is always gone after a day or so.

* If you don't have a food mill, peel and core the apples before baking, it's more work but still worth it. You could also purchase a food mill for about $30 at any kitchen store.

*A note about last month's recipe for doughnuts:

A sincere apology to anyone who tried to make the doughnuts printed here last month and failed. The error was mine, as I forgot to add 1/2 cup applesauce to the recipe. The dough should be very soft, like biscuit dough.

Ed McMullen was a bit of a latecomer to acting. He was in his 30s when he appeared in his first production in Schenectady.

It didn't take him long, though, to realize community theater wasn't his calling.

Community theater tends to be "safe," he said, and he and a core group of theater friends like to put on shows that are a bit of a risk, both for themselves and the audiences.

"We want to give them something that's going to make them think," he said.

That mindset led to the creation of McMullen's production company and its latest show, Neil LaBute's "Wrecks," which will be staged at ZuZu's Wonderful Life Café in Albany on Nov. 15, 16, 21, 22 and 23.

McMullen launched his company, D&M Productions, in the mid-1990s with Paul Dellio. Like McMullen, Dellio was excited by the thought of having a hand in plays that branched out beyond standard community theater fare.

"Things can get a little limited in the community theater area," Dellio said.

Over the years, the two collaborated on plays such as "Murder in the Cathedral," "Faith Healer," "Molly Sweeney," and "You Can't Take it With You."

Their partnership dried up when work and other commitments cut into their theater time. D&M Productions went dark until two years ago, when McMullen decided to revive it.

As a rule, he said, he likes to keep productions small, with minimal casts and settings. Part of the reason is that he finances his productions himself, but beyond that, he thinks that smaller productions allow actors to really sink their teeth into their roles.

"There's much more actors can do," he said. "It's much more concentrated."

"Wrecks" has one of the McMullen's smallest casts yet. It's a one-man show, starring McMullen as Edward Carr, a man who recently lost his wife. At her wake, Carr looks back on their long and happy marriage, taking a trip down memory lane that Dellio thinks will endear him to the audience.

A simple love story, though, isn't the type of play LaBute writes.

"He's kind of the bad boy of film and theater," Dellio said. "He's constantly sticking his finger in the eye of everyone."

As such, the story takes a twist at the end that both floored and fascinated McMullen.

"I was shocked," he said, remembering the first time he read the play. "I just didn't see it coming."

So when another play McMullen was planning to put on fell through, he called Dellio and asked him to consider directing "Wrecks."

Dellio read it, and he, too, was hooked.

"It's very rich," he said. "There's an intensity about it. It really asks us to consider things in a whole different light."

When the two got together to rehearse, McMullen found he didn't have trouble being the show's only star. He's so comfortable on stage that "it's easy enough to be out there without the support of another actor," he said.

But the process of learning his lines did present some difficulty. The play is about 75 minutes long, requiring McMullen to memorize about 30 pages of dialogue.

"When I was younger, my memory was a steel trap," he said. "It's not quite as sharp as it used to be. I find I have to work harder."

Not that he's complaining. McMullen's interest in acting was piqued when he was just a teenager and saw Marlon Brando in "On the Waterfront." But McMullen was a jock in high school; he didn't really have the time or inclination to act.

"I never got on stage," he said. "It didn't seem to be the thing to do. I was involved in a different crowd."

After that initial show in Schenectady, though, "I was hooked," he said.

Dellio is his favorite director and describes the pair's collaboration as free of egos and star trappings. Instead, each works to help the other realize his vision – and the writer's vision – of the play.

"The end product is not what either of us envisioned," Dellio said. "It's really kind of a birthing process."

The end product with "Wrecks" has a little bit of everything. The show is deep, but it's funny, Dellio said. McMullen called it "quite beautiful."

And of course, there's the "jolt" at the end, which neither McMullen or Dellio wanted to give away.

"On the surface, it's a nice story about a husband," McMullen said. "He's your guy next door, so to speak. But he pulls something on you that you don't see coming."

Tickets for "Wrecks" are $15. Show times are 8 p.m. on Nov. 15, 21 and 22 and 2 p.m. on Nov. 16 and 23.

ZuZu's Wonderful Life Café is at 299-301 Hamilton St. For information, call 522-7273.

Ed McMullen takes center stage as Edward Carr, in Neil LaBute's "Wrecks." Performances are Nov. 15, 16, 21, 22 and 23 at ZuZu's Wonderful Life Café in Albany.

LEGAL NOTICE

SCOPING NOTICE October 8, 2008 Lafarge Modernization Project Town of Coeymans, Albany County Albany County - The New York State Department of Environmental Conservation (NYSDEC), as SEQR lead agency, has determined that the proposed Lafarge Modernization Project may have a significant impact on the environment and that a Draft Environmental Impact Statement (DEIS) must be prepared. Written comments may be submitted on the draft scoping outline and will be accepted by the Department until COB on November 10, 2008. A Public Scoping session is scheduled for Wednesday, October 29, 2008 at the Revera-Coeymans-Selkirk High School auditorium from 7 to 9 PM, which will provide the public an opportunity to comment on the Draft Scope. The proposed action involves modernizing the existing Lafarge cement facility, replacing the existing wet manufacturing process with a dry manufacturing process. The proposed modernization includes the construction of a new tower of 525 feet, and increased carbon monoxide emissions. Other emissions and operations such as water use, effluent discharge, and generation of solid waste will decrease or remain relatively unchanged. The facility is located in the town of Coeymans, Albany County, east of Route 9W approximately 2.25 miles north of the intersection of Route 143 and Route 9W. Copies of the Environmental Assessment Form, the Positive Declaration, and the draft Scoping Outline are available for review at the website www.bethlehemcha.com/modernization or at: Town Halls Coeyman's Town Hall 18 Russel Avenue Ravenna, NY 12143 Sunsteyves Town Hall 5143 Sunsteyves Town Hall 5143 Chatham Town Hall 488 State Route 295 Chatham, NY 12037 Kinderhook Town Hall 4 Church Street P.O. ## LEGAL NOTICE

November 12, 2008 New York State Housing Trust Fund Corporation (HTFC) 38-40 State Street Albany, New York 12207 (518) 473-0457 On or about November 20, 2008, the New York State Housing Trust Fund Corporation (HTFC) will submit a request to the U. S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) for the release of HOME funds under Title II of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act (NAHA) of 1990, in accordance with section 288 (42 U.S.C. 12838), to undertake a project known as ACRH HOME Program, for purposes of performing moderate rehabilitation on 20 single-family homes owned and occupied by low-income households throughout Albany County (excluding the City of Albany). The activities proposed are categorically excluded under HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58 from National Environmental Policy Act requirements. An Environmental Review Record (ERR) that documents the environmental determinations for this project is on file at: Albany County Rural Housing Alliance, Inc. 24 Martin Road Voorheesville, NY 12186 and may be examined or copied weekdays 9 A.M. to 3 P.M. PUBLIC COMMENTS Any individual, group, or agency may submit written comments on the ERR to Barbara H. Wigzell, RA, Director, Environmental Analysis Unit, NYS Housing

LEGAL NOTICE

Trust Fund Corporation, 38-40 State Street, Albany, New York, 12207. All comments received by November 19, 2008 will be considered by HTFC prior to authorizing submission of a request for release of funds. RELEASE OF FUNDS HTFC certifies to HUD that Ms. Barbara H. Wigzell, RA in her capacity as Certifying Officer consents to accept the jurisdiction of the Federal Courts if an action is brought to enforce responsibilities in relation to the environmental review process and that these responsibilities have been satisfied. HUD's approval of the certification satisfies its responsibilities under NEPA and related laws and authorities, and allows HTFC to use Program funds. OBJECTIONS TO RELEASE OF FUNDS HUD will consider objections to its release of funds and HTFC's certification received by December 5, 2008 or for a period of fifteen days following its actual receipt of the request (whichever is later) only if they are on one of the following bases: (a) the certification was not executed by the Certifying Officer of HTFC; (b) HTFC has omitted a step or failed to make a decision or finding required by HUD regulations at 24 CFR Part 58; (c) the grant recipient or other participants in the project have committed funds or incurred costs not authorized by 24 CFR Part 58 before approval of a release of funds by HUD; or (d) another Federal agency acting pursuant to 40 CFR Part 1504 has submitted a written finding that the project is unsatisfactory from the standpoint of environmental quality. Objections must be prepared and submitted in accordance with the required procedures (24 CFR Part 58) and shall be addressed to: Director of Community Planning and Development U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development 26 Federal Plaza New York, New York 10278-0068 Potential objectors should contact HUD to verify the actual last day of the objection period. ## Section II teams dominate state cross country meet

It was another stellar state cross country meet for Section II teams.

Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake swept the boys and girls Class A titles, while Shenendehowa claimed the boys Class AA crown and Greenwich won the girls Class D title at last Saturday's state championships at Sunken Meadow State Park on Long Island.

BH-BL was locked in a duel with Section V champion Pittsford Mendon in the boys Class A race, but the Spartans got their first five runners across the finish line before Mendon's top five finished the hilly course. BH-BL finished with 51 points, while Mendon settled for second place with 67 points.

Otis Ubrico led the Spartans with a second-place finish in a time of 16:32.85. Scott Maughan was 11th in a time of 16:47.07, and Kent Harlow finished 13th in a time of 16:56.29. Sean Pezzulo (43rd, 17:43.84) and Matt Rusilas (45th, 17:55.34) rounded out BH-BL's top five.

Niskayuna's two representatives in the boys Class A race also fared well. Louis Serafini was 24th in a time of 17:17.45, and Marshall Pagano placed 33rd in a time of 17:33.10.

There was less drama in the girls Class A race, as BH-BL placed five runners in the top 15 to take the team title with 23 points, 34 points ahead of runner-up Cornwall.

Sam Roecker and Molly Pezzulo led the Spartans with top-five finishes. Roecker was fourth in a time of 18:59.40, and Pezzulo placed fifth in a time of 18:59.77. Meaghan Gregory finished eighth in a time of 19:36.04, with Riley Wilk (12th, 19:47.44) and Alyssa Drapeau (13th, 19:48.37) rounding out BH-BL's top five.

Niskayuna's Chelsea Trant took 22nd place with a time of 20:02.63.

The Shen boys had two runners in the top 10 and five runners in the top 25 to claim the Class AA state title with 30 points, 17 points ahead of Section III champion Fayetteville-Manlius.

Alex Leuchanka led the Plainsmen with a second-place finish in a time of 15:59.47, 2 seconds behind state champion Alex Hatz of Fayetteville-Manlius. Dan Harris (eighth place, 16:27.74) was Shen's second runner, while Jamie Glover (15th, 16:37.72) was the third Plainsmen to cross the finish line. Mike Danaher (17th, 16:40.35) and Brian Trainor (25th, 16:54.64) sealed Shen's victory.

Section II's individual representatives also fared well in the Class AA boys race. Saratoga's Demetri Goutos was seventh in a time of 16:26.83, while Shaker's Craig Weiss placed 28th in a time of 16:59.71. Saratoga's Sam Place (41st, 17:17.00) also finished in the top half of the 105-runner field. Bethlehem's Yosef Zaid placed 58th in a time of 17:34.96.

Saratoga's girls team placed second to defending state champion Fayetteville-Manlius in the Class AA race. F-M won with a score of 22 points, while Saratoga finished with 48 points.

Cassie Goutos led the Blue Streaks with a fifth-place finish in a time of 19:09.06, less than two seconds behind Shen's Lizzie Predmore, who was the top Section II runner with a fourth-place time of 19:07.71. Brianne Bellon followed in 14th place for Saratoga with a time of 19:23.58. Then, there was a group of three Blue Streaks - Keelin Hollowood (16th, 19:29.50), Amanda Borroughs (17th, 19:35.83) and Sydney King (18th, 19:39.57).

Shen's Cara Janeczko (20th, 19:43.47), Jordan Westcott (21st, 19:43.92) and Alex Burtnick (45th, 20:32.49) all placed in the top 50 of the Class AA race. Colonie's Mikala Anson finished 47th in a time of 20:36.26.

Voorheesville's girls team finished seventh in the Class C race with 187 points, 15 points behind sixth-place Saranac Lake. Bronxville won the state title with 47 points.

Michelyn Little led the Blackbirds with a 35th-place finish in a time of 21:10.22, but no other Voorheesville runner placed in the top 50.

Schenectady Christian's Kyle Galarneau finished 23rd in the boys Class D race with a time of 18:12.60, and Voorheesville's Conor Cashin placed 31st in the boys Class C race with a time of 17:53.40.

Livonia (Section V) in Saturday's championship game at Homer High School.

"At this point, I think they would be disappointed (with a loss) because who would want this to end?" said Wolfe. "But at the same time, they know that they've already accomplished a great deal."

Bethlehem denied on penalty kicks

In other girls soccer regional last week, Bethlehem's Class AA playoff run came to an end with a loss to Section III champion Baldwinsville on penalty kicks.

The two teams battled to a scoreless tie through 110 minutes of regulation and overtime at Chittenango High School, leaving both of them with a share of the regional title. But, Baldwinsville ultimately advanced after winning the penalty kick round 3-2.

Bethlehem (21-0-1) reached the regional round after dismissing Niskayuna 2-0 in last Wednesday's Section II final at Broadalbin-Perth High School. Taylor Teal scored midway through the first half, and Emily Rudolph tallied in the final 10 seconds of regulation to help the Eagles win the Class AA crown for the first time in six years.

Hendrick Hudson and 2008 Class C champ Eden to move into the same division as R-C-S and 2008 Class B title-holder John Glenn.

"We've had the philosophy all year that we will go out and play anybody," said R-C-S coach Ron Racey. "If we beat them, I'm sure they will thank us for a great match. If they beat us, we will thank them for a great match."

The Indians (24-0) will get a crack at all three teams during Saturday afternoon's pool play. If they wind up with one of the top two records after the round-robin portion of the tournament, they will play for the state title Sunday at the Glens Falls Civic Center.

"We wanted this so badly at the beginning of the season," said senior captain Karlie Haack. "Coach Racey asked us at the beginning of the season what our goal was, and it was to go to states. Now that we're going, we want to win states."

R-C-S earned its state tournament berth after dispatching Section X champion Franklin Academy of Malone 3-0 in last Saturday's regional final at Shenendehowa High School. The Indians never let the Huskies into the match as they won by scores of 25-6, 25-8 and 25-15.

"At this level, you've got to play at your best every day," said Racey. "We watched them during warm-ups, and we knew they could serve (well). We had to make sure we played our game."

Haack led R-C-S with 11 kills and three blocks, while senior captain Kaitlynn Franks contributed 10 kills and eight digs. Junior captain Brittney Lintner added 29 assists to help the Indians reach the state tournament for the first time.

"We always look to take one step at a time," said Haack. "The first step was to win our league (the Colonial Council), which we did. The second was to win our Section. But to be undefeated this far into the season is pretty incredible."

C-S at the state tournament, but the Eagles lost to Section III champion Baldwinsville 3-1 in the Class AA regional at Shen.

"They put forth a tremendous effort, so we can't be too disappointed," said Bethlehem coach Lisa Kniffin. "Section III always puts tremendous teams together, and they play at a higher level than we usually see all year."

Baldwinsville (18-2) won the first two games 25-14 and 25-16 before Bethlehem (15-5) rallied for a 25-23 victory in game three. The fourth game was close until the Bees went on a 17-8 run to close out the Eagles with a 25-13 victory.

"I think (winning the third game) was a confidence boost for our kids," said Kniffin. "They never give-up, anyway, but I think it was a confidence boost."

Christianne Ludwick had 13 kills, and Paula Gadowski added 17 assists for Bethlehem. Lauren McVey recorded 17 kills and five digs for Baldwinsville, which advanced to its second state tournament appearance in the last three years.

Bethlehem made it to regionals after sweeping Ballston Spa 3-0 in last Wednesday's Sectional final at Skidmore College in Saratoga Springs. All three games were close, but the Eagles managed to come out on top by scores of 25-20, 25-22 and 25-20.

"It was awesome," said Kniffin. "We haven't had (a Section II title) in 20-something years. We made it a goal this year, and it's great that we achieved that goal."

Ludwick led Bethlehem with 14 kills, while Gadowski chipped in with 32 assists. Jaci Oskam added the title-clinching points for the Eagles with a kill and an ace in the final game.

Kara Zebrowski, Kelsey Barbour, Chloe Sosnowski and Olivia Samson finished with a time of 1:51.11, less than three seconds off All-American consideration time. Bethlehem's team of Tara O'Donnell, Grace Ayer, Lily Powell and Elle Van Cott earned a state meet berth with a second-place time of 1:53.88.

Bethlehem freshman Bethany Powhida gave Eagles fans something to chirp about when she won the 200 freestyle in a time of 1:55.95. Niskayuna's Emily Whitaker was second in a state meet-qualifying time of 1:56.72, and Saratoga Springs' Taylor Sloane finished third in a time of 1:57.03 to punch her ticket to Buffalo.

Powhida came back strong from her 200 freestyle victory and dominated the 500 freestyle final. Powhida swam the first 100 yards in under a minute and steadily pulled away from the competition to win with a time of 5:08.67 - 14 seconds ahead of Saratoga Springs' Alyssa DiFabio.

Niskayuna's Laura Manor held off a hard-charging Zebrowski to win the 200 individual medley in a time of 2:09.44. Zebrowski made up nearly two body lengths in the final 50 yards, but she had to settle for second place in a time of 2:09.50. Barbour (third place, 2:11.85) and Powell (fourth, 2:14.01) also qualified for states.

Zebrowski made up for her disappointment in the 200 individual medley by winning the 100 backstroke. The senior finished with a time of 58.72 seconds, .09 seconds ahead of O'Donnell. Guilderville's Jenna Bickel placed third in a state meet qualifying time of 59.63 seconds.

Powell picked up an individual title in the 100 butterfly, as she was the only swimmer to finish under one minute. The Bethlehem junior won with a time of 59.96 seconds.

The 100 freestyle final produced five sub 55-second times. Samson claimed the Class A title with a time of 53.56 seconds, while Sloane touched the wall in second place with a time of 54 seconds. O'Donnell was third in a time of 54.61 seconds, .09 seconds ahead of MacDonald and .3 seconds ahead of Whitaker.

Bethlehem's Kirstie Russell also qualified for states. Russell finished second in the diving competition with a score of 492.80 points.

& NotesMcMurry leads Tigers past Indians

Hudson Falls tailback Joe McMurry had another big game against Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk.

McMurry rushed for 234 yards and scored all of the Tigers' touchdowns in a 21-0 victory over the Indians in last Saturday's Section II, Class B football championship in Amsterdam.

McMurry gave Hudson Falls (9-1) a boost early on when he broke free for a 67-yard run deep into R-C-S territory. A short time later, McMurry scored on a 2-yard touchdown run to put the Tigers ahead 7-0.

The score remained the same until the third quarter when McMurry intercepted R-C-S quarterback Keith Hoyt and returned the ball 40 yards for a touchdown. Craig Riggi's extra point went wide, leaving Hudson Falls with a 13-0 lead.

McMurry capped the Tigers' victory with a 60-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

Hudson Falls' defense kept R-C-S (7-3) at bay for most of the game. Tailback Nick LaMountain gained 43 yards on nine carries, while tailback C.J. Murray only had 24 yards on nine rushing attempts.

It's the second year in a row that R-C-S has lost in the Class B Super Bowl.

Eagles open with two tourneys

The Bethlehem hockey team begins its season by hosting two tournaments.

The Eagles start with the Albany Cup Nov. 21 and 22 at the Bethlehem Area YMCA. Bethlehem meets Guilderland at 8 p.m. Nov. 21 and plays Saratoga Springs at 7:30 p.m. Nov. 22.

One week later, the Bethlehem Thanksgiving Invitational takes place at the BAY. North Rockland, Cicero-North Syracuse and Newburgh Free Academy are the other teams in the field for the tournament, which takes place Nov. 28 and 29.

In between the two tournaments, Bethlehem begins its Capital District High School Hockey League schedule. The Eagles host LaSalle Institute at 7 p.m. Nov. 25.

The Eagles return several players from last year's team, which reached the Section II, Class B finals. Erik Hill, Packy Carroll and Stephen Russo are among the returning forwards.

The Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk girls volleyball team celebrates its first regional title after dispatching Section X champion Franklin Academy in three games at last Saturday's Class B final at Shenendehowa High School.

Indians past

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Just call the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk girls soccer team the queens of the comeback.

The Indians (16-7-1) rallied from multi-goal halftime deficits to win both of their Class B regional games and advance to Friday's state semifinal against defending champion Briarcliff (Section I) at Tompkins County Community College outside Cortland.

"We're pressing our luck," said R-C-S coach Danielle Wolfe. "It seems like they need to get behind before they start playing. They intrigue me."

It looked like the Indians' season was going to end in the regional semifinal against Section III champion Westhill last Tuesday in Chittenango. R-C-S trailed 3-0 midway through the second half before scoring three goals in a 12-minute time span to force overtime. Then, Ashley Wilson tallied in the second 10-minute overtime period to give the Indians a 4-3 victory.

There were more second-half heroics in last Saturday's regional final against Section VII champion Plattsburgh in Chazy. Slogging through a rain-soaked field, the Indians rallied from a 2-0 halftime deficit to edge the Hornets 3-2.

"The field was atrocious. The girls could have swum better on that field than they could have played soccer," said Wolfe.

Wilson got R-C-S going with her fourth goal of the regional round early in the second half. Emily Scott soon followed with her first goal of the regionals to tie the game at 2.

The game nearly went into overtime before the Indians pulled it out. Wilson had a one-on-one with Plattsburgh goaltender Emily Higgins. Wilson's initial shot was stopped by Higgins, but Ashley Ten Eyck charged in and knocked the ball past Higgins into the net with 1:28 left in regulation to put the Indians ahead.

R-C-S goaltender Teagan Waddingham made two saves in the rain. Melanie Berriere was the only Plattsburgh player to beat Waddingham, as she scored both of the Hornets' first-half goals.

The victory over Plattsburgh propels R-C-S into its first-ever trip to the state's final four and headlong into Friday's semifinal match-up with the defending Class B champions from Briarcliff. The winner meets either Cold Spring Harbor (Section VIII) or
