G'land supervisor says chief shed light on former top cop's suspicious activity

Town Supervisor Ken Runion has identified Guilderland Chief of Police Carol Lawlor as the "whistleblower" who alerted town officials to former Chief James Murley's gambling while on town time.

The revelation comes following recent accusations by Town

Councilman Mark Grimm that Runion knew that Lawlor, Murley's subordinate at the time, knew about the gambling.

Lawlor was eventually hired by the town to replace Murley, and Runion said she had acted appropriately.

"I don't believe Chief Lawlor did anything wrong," Runion said.

Runion said Lawlor told officials

BC teacher's union to make concessions

Group hammers out deal that could save the district thousands

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

First reported on Wednesday, April 22, at 2:45 p.m.

The Bethlehem Central Teachers Association has renegotiated its union contract with the school in a move that district officials said contains "significant concessions" and could save hundreds of thousands of dollars.

The amended contract includes a two-year extension as the current one expires in 2010 and would carry through until the end of the 2011-2012 school year. Superintendent Michael Tebbano said if the renegotiated contract passes a union vote, it would save the district more than $600,000 by the end of next year.

"We have renegotiated the teacher's contract and on Monday [April 20] we entered into a memorandum of agreement with the BCTA and the school district in what I would consider significant concessions that will garner huge savings in the next few years," Tebbano told The Spotlight in an exclusive interview on Wednesday, April 22.

"I believe the way the district and union were able to reach an agreement ... is a tribute to the leadership on both sides."

Dave Round,
BCTA president

The main concessions come in the form of deferring cost-of-living increases for four months next year and for three months the year after, but also include moratoriums on sabbaticals and professional development stipends, saving $97,500, and a freeze on coaching

Intoxicated driver found with 12-pack

Guilderland police arrested a 62-year-old man for felony DWI after he was found driving erratically on Fuller Station Road with a 12-pack of beer.

Elbert C. Oakes, of 6758 Fuller Station Road, was arrested on Tuesday, April 7, and charged with felony DWI, with prior conviction; misdemeanor DWI; operating a motor vehicle with a BAC of 0.08 percent or greater, a misdemeanor; and three infractions: failure to keep right, a traffic device violation, and operation of a motor vehicle by an unlicensed driver.

Guilderland police report that Oakes was seen driving on Carman Road and attempting to make a left turn onto Fuller Station Road, when he failed to keep right and then made a left turn "in an unsafe manner" by failing to yield to a right-of-way at a green light.

Police stopped Oakes and pulled him over in a parking lot, at which time he began to open his driver's-side door, according to the arrest report.

Officers on the scene said Oakes had "a blotchy red face, watery, bloodshot eyes and [there was] a strong odor of an alcoholic beverage" coming from inside of his vehicle, the report states.

Oakes was given a field-sobriety test, which he failed, and tested positive for alcohol before being taken into custody, according to Guilderland police.

Police said Oakes made "several statements" about not wanting to complete the field-sobriety test, and allegedly told officers, "Just do what you have to."

Officers observed a 12-pack of beer in the front passenger-side seat of Oakes vehicle, which he said he purchased from a local grocery store on his way home, the report states.

Oakes admitted to recently being convicted of DWI and told officers at the scene he had consumed "four beers," but later at the Guilderland Police Department stated he had "two beers at home."

Other arrests

• Justin T. Potter, 19, of 117 Elsmere Ave., Delmar, was arrested at the Guilderland Police Department on Thursday, April 16, for second-degree course of conduct against a child less than 13, a felony, and a misdemeanor count of acting in a manner injurious to a child.

Police said the charges stem from Potter inappropriately "touching ... a 12-year-old female for sexual gratification."

He was also charged with a misdemeanor for "sending and requesting inappropriate text messages from the same victim," according to the arrest report.

• Christopher F. Sidoti, 29, of 559 Route 9J, Schodack Landing, was arrested on Thursday, April 16, for felony first-degree Owner Harvey Quinn said he still intends to rebuild after he finalizes with his insurance company. The site has to be filled in with dirt he said on Monday, April 27, until construction can begin and the entire foundation is dug up and repoured. Quinn said he hopes to be back in operation by year's end.

criminal contempt, physical contact, and second-degree criminal trespassing, a misdemeanor.

Guilderland Police said Sidoti engaged in a verbal argument with the victim on Executive Drive and was told to leave the residence, which he did.

However, when Sidoti was outside of the home he "started banging on the front door for the victim to let him back into the residence," according to the arrest report, but she refused to let him back him.

Sidoti then opened a closed screen window and opened a closed glass window and entered the victim's residence without her permission, the report states.

Once inside, police said Sidoti stood at the bottom of the stairs and yelled for the victim "to come and talk to him," at which time she called 911 after telling Sidoti that she would do so.

Sidoti then left the residence but his actions violated an active "no illegal contact" order of protection that was issued by a Schodack Town Justice on Jan. 11, which Sidoti was present for and did acknowledge to police that he was aware of, the report states.

• Jeremy M. Bacon, 30, of 273 Spring Road, Delanson, was arrested on Wednesday, April 22, for felony first-degree criminal contempt, order of protection; fourth-degree stalking, causing fear, a misdemeanor; and second-degree harassment, a violation.

Guilderland police said officers saw a "vehicle known to be operated by" Bacon, who was wanted on active arrest warrants, parking in front of Stewart's on the corner of routes 20 and 146.

• Officers located Bacon inside of the store and took him into custody and transported him to the Guilderland Police Department, according to the arrest report.

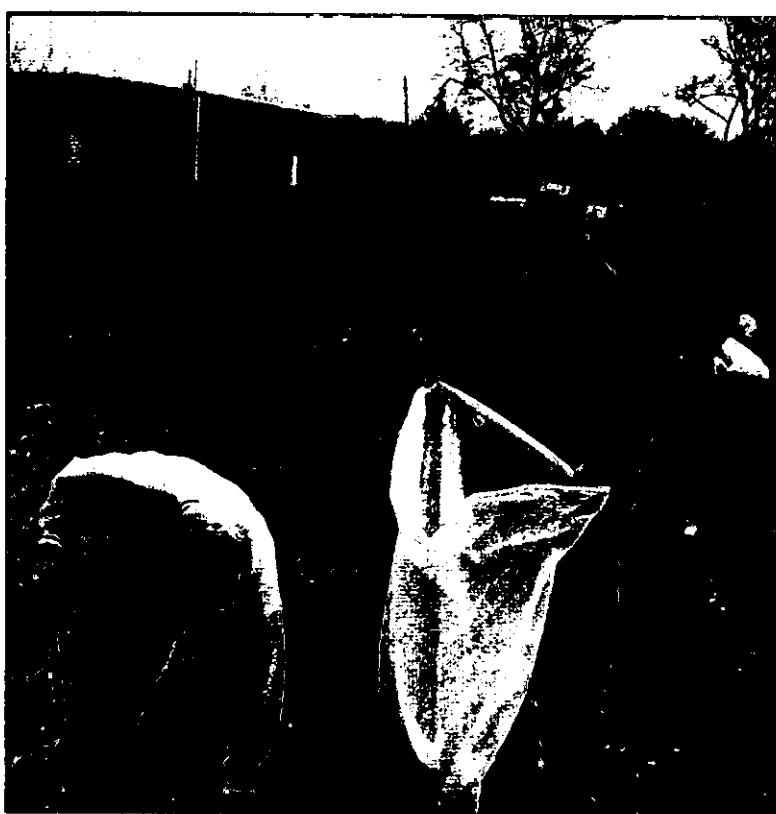

Bacon was arraigned by Guilderland Town Justice Denise Randall and his vehicle was towed, the report states. It was later discovered that Bacon's vehicle was found to have switched license plates on it from another vehicle and the plates were taken into evidence.

Concerns aired at landfill forum

Residents challenge expansion, cite odor and health issues

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

Village of Colonie Mayor Frank Leaksponsored a community forum Wednesday, April 22, that allowed area residents to air concerns about a proposed expansion of the Rapp Road landfill.

Residents from the Town of Colonie, the Village of Colonie and neighboring communities, including Guilderland and Ravena, used the forum to warn of the health hazards and smell associated with the landfill, and said an increase in birds around the landfill would pose a danger to aircraft. Many also blasted what they called shortsighted economic planning regarding the proposed expansion.

"Everyone has the right to live a free and healthy life," said Elaine Sacco, a Village of Colonie resident.

Some of the people attending the meeting asked for governmental oversight from health agencies to determine the safety of the landfill's expansion.

The landfill was first expanded in 1991. Since then it has grown twice, with the last expansion in February 1999.

The planned lateral expansion would cover close to 15 acres, with two of those acres falling in the "existing landfill operations area," and 13 of those acres in undeveloped, city-owned land to the northeast of the landfill, according to the Oct. 8 Department of Environmental Conservation environmental impact notice.

The expansion also includes plans for the restoration of neighboring wetlands, with the creation of 22.14 acres of new wetlands, as well as improvements in quality and function, according to the Department of Environmental Conservation, to an additional 27.45 acres of existing wetlands.

Rick Georgeson, a spokesman for the DEC, said there are alternatives on the table that do not involve expanding into the wetlands.

The expansion, Georgeson said, could include going into federally protected wetlands, but not into designated Pine Bush Preserve land.

Albany Mayor Gerald Jennings' executive assistant Bob Van Amburgh said the mayor "inherited" the issue, and a DEC consent order to find a suitable place for area waste was already filed before the mayor took office. Van Amburgh said Jennings is looking for the best alternatives and technology to handle waste management, and the expansion would buy the administration much-needed time to do so.

"[The mayor] has always been very, very, concerned about the need to expand the landfill," Van Amburgh said. "He doesn't want to be in the trash business."

Jennings said at a Dec. 3 hearing that the landfill generally takes in close to $11 million each year, and that revenue will go toward other waste management solutions. The landfill also generates natural gas for electricity.

Grace Nichols, an Albany resident, said the landfill poses a danger, due to air and water pollution. She also said that Clough-Harbor, the engineering firm hired by the City of Albany, misled DEC officials about levels of harmful pesticides used at the landfill.

Frank Lavardera, vice president of Clough-Harbor, said the landfill does not use pesticides at the site, but does have contracts to combat rodents and insects in administrative offices and several other buildings.

Lavardera said Clough-Harbor told the DEC that, to its knowledge, the chemicals were not used as part of the landfill portion of the operation.

Several members of the environmental advocacy group Save the Pine Bush asked that the landfill not expand into federally protected lands.

"We should stop destroying this beautiful land. Enough is enough," said Sandy Scudder, of Save the Pine Bush. "I'm begging the DEC to stop this."

Carm Privitera, a resident at the Avila retirement home and former biology professor at the University at Buffalo, said he was concerned with the "nano," or extremely small, particles from the landfill, and those particles' effects on health.

"It doesn't have to stink to be hazardous," Privitera said. He said he does not want those particles anywhere near him or his body, citing his "spleen, his liver or his left testicle," as important organs.

Steve Garry, a business owner with property near the landfill, complained that expanding the landfill will drive down property prices for homes in the area.

"No one's going to want [property] regardless of the price," Garry said. "We'll have to sell to welfare recipients. That's the end of the village."

Garry also noted that when Mayor Jennings was a city councilman representing the area the Pine Bush is located in, he made a number of comments opposing the landfill's expansion.

"That's quite a turnaround," Garry said.

At the meeting, there was some friction between Tom Lutz, an advocate against the expansion, and the evening's moderator, Henry Landau. Lutz passed out literature earlier in the evening questioning the absence of New York Assemblyman Bob Reilly, D-Colonie, from meetings regarding the landfill, including Wednesday's.

"We're not going to entertain any political bashing," Landau responded.

Lutz said he was trying to explain "how we got here," and that was his motivation for making the comments.

"We're here today because the political process has failed," Lutz said.

He later claimed that he was rudely, incorrectly and illegally asked to "sit down and shut up."

Landau later announced that Reilly's Chief of Staff Tim Nichols was at the meeting.

In a later interview, Reilly said he is interested in the process, but he should not interfere with the process designed by DEC to come up with a compromise for all the interested parties. He also said he resented comments Lutz made that he supports the landfill. Reilly said he is sympathetic to the situation and is hopeful for an adequate solution.

"The solution to this issues is not an easy one," Reilly said.

CSX spruces up on Earth Day

Rail company holds event that features displays, cleanup and tree planting

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

CSX, an international rail company, celebrated Earth Day, Wednesday, April 22, with informational displays, animal exhibits and a 1.5-mile cleanup around its Selkirk facility.

"We really work hard to be good stewards of the environment," said Bob Sullivan, a spokesman for CSX. "We're an important part of the community, and we enjoy being here."

Trains operated by CSX service 23 states and 21,000 route-miles, according to Sullivan.

The day began with dozens of CSX employees viewing informational displays about local bodies of water, wildlife and ways to preserve the environment. Information about the Onesquethaw Creek was also available.

Supervisor of Environmental Field Services Paul Watson said the creek is one of the places CSX discharges, and it is useful to learn how the creek is affected by CSX.

Michele Segerberg, a licensed wildlife rehabilitator, was on hand with several great horned owls, which she said are the most populous owl in New York and can be seen in several areas around Bethlehem. She was able to provide information to CSX workers about wildlife in the area and answered several questions about the animals' characteristics.

Watson then led the volunteers on a cleanup of a portion of the perimeter of the 3.25-by-3.5-mile property. Watson said debris that has blown onto the site along one of the public roads is unsightly, and the volunteers regularly keep an eye on it.

"Every year we try to police it and keep it clean," Watson said.

The events at Selkirk were part of a larger Earth Day initiative, in which employees from facilities all around the country participated, according to CSX.

"While CSX and its 30,000 employees respect the environment every day, Earth Day offers us an annual opportunity to acknowledge our accomplishments, learn something new and renew our commitment to continually increasing our role and responsibility as an environmental steward," said Skip Elliott, CSX vice president for public safety and environment.

Sullivan and Watson also both pointed out that exercise from the walk also plays into the company's wellness initiative and its emphasis on good health.

The group planted three trees near the facility's wastewater treatment plant on the cleanup walk.

"It's a combination of health and wellness and cleaning up the environment," Sullivan said of the day's efforts.

Bethlehem GOP holds off selection

Still no official slate after April 21 meeting, Republicans in talks with incumbent councilman

Bethlehem Republicans held their full committee meeting Tuesday, April 21, but held off on making any formal selections for the 2009 fall elections in town.

Chairwoman Melody Burns said in early April that she wanted to make sure the candidates being interviewed were "fully aware" of the commitment needed to run for public office. Currently there are five townwide seats up for election — supervisor, two town board seats, town clerk and highway superintendent.

There has been no official word as of yet on what offices will be sought by the Bethlehem GOP and who will be selected to run for those seats.

Longtime Republican Town Clerk Katherine Newkirk has announced that she will not seek re-election after serving for 18 years. (See related story, Page 10)

Town Democrats have nominated Planning and Zoning Board Administrative Assistant Nanci Moquin to run for town clerk. The Democrats have also endorsed Jack Cunningham for supervisor, incumbent Kyle Kotary for councilman and Bethlehem Independence Chairman Mark Jordan for councilman.

They did not run a candidate against incumbent Republican Highway Superintendent Gregg Sagendorf.

The Democrats also did not endorse incumbent Councilman Sam Messina, who is an Independence Party member, but he told The Spotlight that he had "informal talks" with town Republicans.

Messina did not elaborate on whether he was seeking a possible Republican endorsement and has not made any official announcement about seeking re-election, although several letters to the editor in The Spotlight have been sent in support of Messina's tenure as councilman in recent weeks.

Bethlehem Republicans are expected to announce their slate of candidates sometime in May.

G'land spring cleaning requires extra effort

G'land crews spent month removing debris from December storm

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

"The crews have done a great job."

Superintendent of Highways
Todd Gifford

The Guilderland Highway Department has wrapped up its spring cleaning of debris from an ice storm in December that downed branches and knocked out power across the region.

Cleanup efforts began March 30 and continued until Monday, April 27.

Superintendent of Highways Todd Gifford said the town brought out four front-end loading trucks to handle the debris, a number that has not been needed since damage from an early 1990s "microburst."

"It was very isolated but did incredible damage," Gifford said of that storm.

He said damage from the storm this winter was not as bad but still warranted the extra equipment.

"It's been just an incredible amount of material we brought into the [waste] station," Gifford said.

He said that the ice storm in December left a number of downed trees, especially pines, and brush in need of removal. A brush chipper accompanied the front-end loaders to aid in the efforts, which, Gifford said, required a lot of fuel to operate.

Spring cleanup was necessary, Gifford said, because snow hampered efforts to clean the brush at the time of the storm.

"We were hauling more snow than brush," Gifford said.

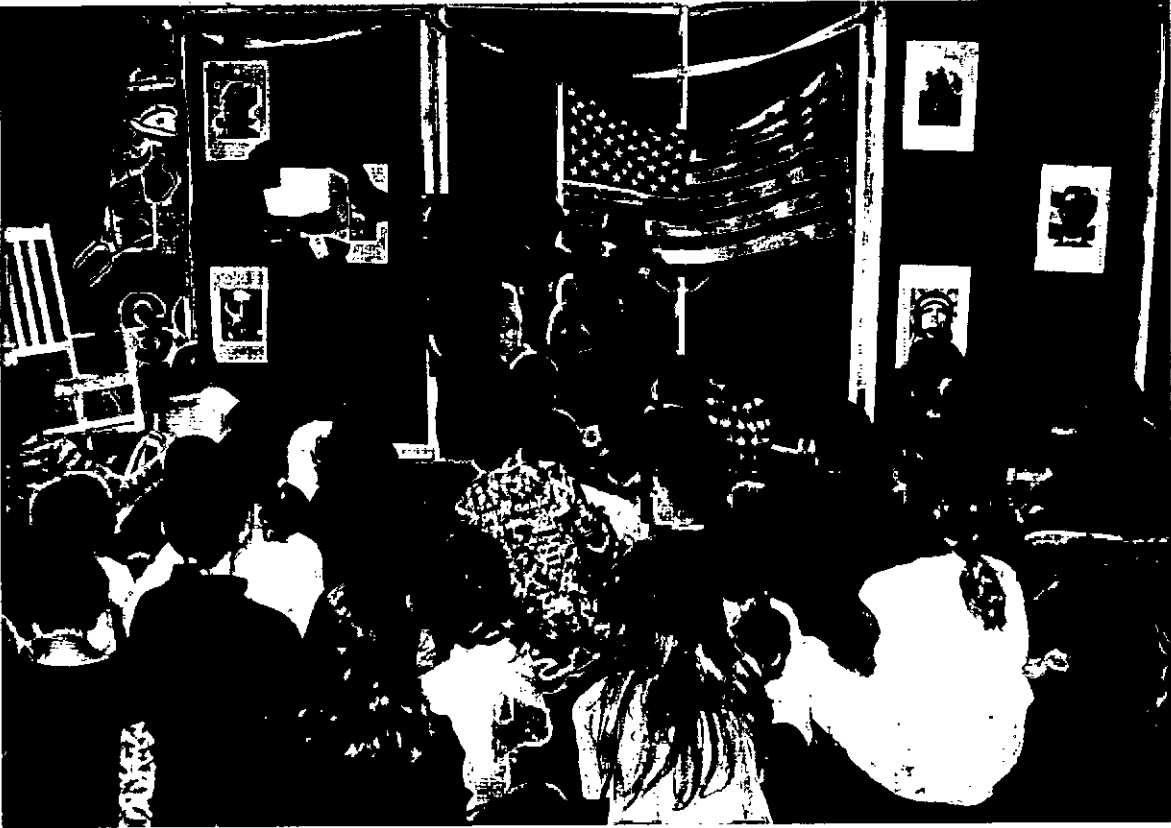

Gifford said normal spring brush removal requires only two "packer trucks" each week.

"The crews have done a great job," Gifford said of this year's cleanup.

He said it was imperative to make sure the brush was removed in a timely fashion since the coming months will be busy.

"We have a tremendous amount of summer work to do," Gifford said.

Information on the town's Web site added that the highway department will return at a later date to make necessary lawn repairs as a result of the cleanup efforts.

Guilderland Elementary ends celebration with visit from Doreen Rappaport

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

Doreen Rappaport, an author of children's books, including biographies and historical fiction, discussed the planning, structure and execution of writing in a talk Tuesday, April 21, at Guilderland Elementary School.

"I talked about how you'd write your book ... so we can reinforce what the teachers are doing," Rappaport said of her presentation to students. "There's no good writing without rewriting."

She also explained to the students that the best way to tell a story is to "show, don't say," and she invited young authors to describe the emotions the characters are feeling, rather than simply stating them.

Rappaport said she has made the rounds in her 25 years of writing and has been to schools in Altamont, West Sand Lake and other nearby districts.

She has penned such works as "Abe's Honest Words: The Life of Abraham Lincoln," "Dirt on Their Skirts: The Story of The Young Women Who Won The World Championship" and "Eleanor, Quiet No More: The Life of Eleanor Roosevelt," as well as works about John Lennon, Martin Luther King and the American Indians.

Guilderland Elementary School Librarian Meg Seiberger-Hughes said the Young Authors Celebration lasted from Monday, April 6, to Friday, April 24, and featured an extensive calendar of daily activities, designed to stimulate students to read and write.

Seiberger-Hughes said students' works will adorn the hallways of GES, and they will also have the opportunity to share their work in the "author's chair."

She said every day of the Young Authors Celebration had a different theme, ranging from reading to writing, to poetry to nonfiction.

Events featured during the two-week celebration included the "literary line of the day; clever quotes day; sharing of poetry during morning announcements; award-winning book day; and favorite author day," according to the school district.

Former teacher to run for Guilderland board

Nelligan says he is 'sick of partisan rancor'

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

Matt Nelligan, a former public school teacher and coordinator for the state Senate Office of Conference Services, announced he will run for a position on the Guilderland Town Board.

"I am very excited about the upcoming campaign because I believe that public service is a noble profession and that working together, we can solve any problem," said Nelligan.

Nelligan said he is planning to "address the concerns of the residents" and bring "much-needed reforms in town government."

"I intend to run a forward-looking, positive campaign that focuses on ideas and not on political posturing," Nelligan said. "I invite all people of good will to join me in this effort."

Ted Danz, the Republican Party chairman in the Town of Guilderland, said the party is planning to endorse Nelligan but has not formally announced its slate of candidates for this year's elections.

David Bosworth, the Democratic Party chairman, said Nelligan's announcement does not change his party's strategy, but he noted the party has not made any official nominations yet.

"It would be unusual for us not to support the incumbents,"

Bosworth said. "Our strategy is to go with the people who can do the best job and have the best chance to be elected."

Bosworth said it is in the best interest of the party to round up a slate as soon as possible, so it can begin seeking third-party nominations for candidates.

Town Supervisor Ken Runion has said he has not decided if he will run for re-election.

Nelligan is also seeking endorsements from the Conservative and Independence parties.

"My values and ideas fit with those parties as well," Nelligan said. "I'm sick of partisan rancor stopping progress. Good leaders recognize the concerns of those they represent and then fight to have those concerns addressed."

Nelligan was the source of controversy when he was involuntarily transferred from Guilderland High School to Farnsworth Middle School due to a "culture climate survey." Nelligan resisted the move, causing him to take the job with the Senate.

Matters of Opinion in the Spotlight

Public spectacle is not public service

It seems that more and more public officials are engaging in public spectacle, and public spectacle is great for media exposure, but not so much for actual public service.

The Spotlight sees a lot of this: A city councilman Saratoga Springs promises to kiss another councilman's rear end if his budget numbers actually pan out; the Bethlehem Town Board proposes a vacuous, feel-good climate study initiative and a councilman, in turn, rails against it at length; and Guiderland town officials refuse to accept e-mail from one another.

There are a couple of ways to take all this.

The grandstanding, unwillingness to communicate and, at times, downright stubbornness of some of our elected officials can be seen as a local translation of the never-ending election cycles that occur at the national level.

The town or city council meeting is no longer the forum to conduct the people's business. It is an extension of the press conference, the media advisory, or a means to rebut news reports that have appeared since the last meeting. Lacking the resources to conduct a 24-month campaign, as was done in the recent presidential election, local officials have brought their campaigns to the meetings they preside over. The business of municipal governance has taken a back seat to continuous campaign posturing.

Another way to translate the lack of communication on so many boards in The Spotlight's coverage area is this: Some public officials may actually think pigheadedness is a correct response to ideas or proposals with which they disagree.

They are wrong. Collaboration is key when you are part of a governing body elected to represent people of differing backgrounds, morals and values. Merely pointing out what is wrong within that governing body is criticism, and criticism without action is worthless.

And while these critical officials may tell you that they are doing this for the betterment of the people — obstinacy can be sold as a virtue when done in the face of "the opposition" — their actions, or inaction, prove otherwise.

The Spotlight's view is this: Whichever explanation you subscribe to, officials who bicker, throw tantrums or refuse to communicate with their fellow elected representatives are the embodiment of adolescent selfishness. They are putting their own wants and emotions before the business of the people.

Drive aims to stamp out hunger

On Saturday, May 9, Campbell Soup Co. will join forces with the National Association of Letter Carriers (NALC) for the 17th annual Stamp Out Hunger! food drive, benefiting the one in eight Americans who struggle with hunger.

The Stamp Out Hunger effort is the nation's largest single-day food drive, having collected more than 909 million pounds of food since its inception in 1993. Last year, letter carriers across the country collected more than 73.1 million pounds of food, but with hunger striking many needy Americans recently — including working families, children and the elderly — help is needed now more than ever.

According to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, more than 36.2 million Americans live in food-insecure households, and approximately one in every three are children. Additionally, a recent survey conducted by Feeding America (formerly America's Second Harvest — The Nation's Food Bank Network) of its food bank members reported a 30 percent increase in requests for emergency food assistance. The most prominent contributors to increases in demand included rising food costs, increasing unemployment and underemployment, the cost of fuel and mortgage/rent costs.

Food banks are also notoriously bare during summer months, since most food drives are conducted around the holidays and those donated goods are distributed by the spring. Summer donations are even more critical since many hungry children no longer have the benefit of their school lunch programs.

One in four children in a soup kitchen line is a child, and the statistics are no different in the Capital District.

Fighting the myth about hunger is a start, according to Tracy Martin at the Regional Judy DeMarco, a Feura Bush resident and 13-year veteran of the U.S. Postal Service, poses for last year's "Stamp Out Hunger" event. This year's food collection will be held Saturday, May 9.

Food Bank.

"We have to break through the myth of hunger only affecting those who are the most down and out. Hunger can happen to hard-working families who lose a job. It happens, and it happens locally," said Martin.

Martin said that a majority of the one-time clients seeking emergency food assistance from the Regional Food Bank and its agencies are typically hard-working families living below the federal poverty line. Martin said food is one of the few flexible items in a family's budget, and very often people do without it to pay other bills.

To help Stamp Out Hunger, simply leave a sturdy bag containing nonperishable foods, such as canned soup, canned vegetables, pasta, rice or cereal, next to your mailbox before the regular mail delivery time on May 9. Food items should be in nonbreakable containers, such as boxes and cans. The nation's 230,000 letter carriers will do the rest—collecting donations from homes across the country and delivering them to food bank members of Feeding America and other hunger relief organizations in more than 10,000 local communities.

As part of its support for the drive, Campbell will donate 1 million pounds of food to food banks across the country and is sponsoring a reminder postcard mailing sent to 120 million homes.

Bethlehem Board of Education race heats up

Five people vie for two open seats

In a tumultuous budget year where hard decisions have been made and discussions have been passionate, five residents have decided to make a run for the Bethlehem Board of Education.

The district has released the names of the five candidates that will appear on the ballot on Tuesday, May 19, when voters also get a say on a $87.56 million budget, a $1.2 million bus proposition and local library budgets.

The five candidates are Rudy A. Arias, Patrick Greene, Lynne Lenhardt, Peter B. Shawhan and Charmaine Wijeyesinghe.

Rudy A. Arias, of 12 Murray Ave., Delmar, is seeking his first term on the Board of Education. He works for the State Office of Mental Health and has been a district resident for 12 years. Arias and his wife, Margaret, have two children in the district, Benjamin, a fourth-grader at Patrick Greene, of 70 Gullane Drive, Slingerlands, is seeking his first term on the board. He is an attorney with Stockli, Greene, Slevin and Peters and a district resident for 19 years. Greene and his wife, Ellen Sax, have two children in the district, Matthew, a ninth-grader, and Kyle, a sixth-grader.

Lynne Lenhardt, of 13 Magdalen Road, Delmar, is seeking her eighth term on the Board of Education. She is a substitute teacher and math tutor and has been a district resident for 37 years. Lynhardt and her husband, George, have two children, Brian and Kimberly, who are both Bethlehem Central graduates.

Peter B. Shawhan, of 57 Wakefield Court, Delmar, is seeking his first term and is an attorney in private practice who retired from the state's Department of Transportation. A district resident for 24 years, Peter and his wife, JoAnne Parnes Shawhan, are the parents of two Bethlehem Central graduates, Mark and Andrew.

Charmaine Wijeyesinghe, of 147 Dumbarton Drive, Delmar, is seeking her first term on the Board of Education. She is an independent consultant and author and a district resident for 12 years. As president of the Elsmere Parent Teacher Association, Wijeyesinghe and her husband, Christian Lietzau, have two children in the district, Andreas, a sixth-grader, and Rebecca, a third-grade student at Elsmere.

Board members serve volunteer three-year terms, which begin on July 1.

Current board president James Lytle, who is not seeking re-election this year, said he was delighted to see five people running for school board and wished all the candidates well, calling a board a "rewarding experience."

Five candidates to run for G'land school board

There will be five candidates running for three positions on the Guilderland Board of Education, according to information provided by the district.

Two incumbents, Board President Richard Weisz and Denise Eisele, are running, as well as three newcomers, all of whom sat on the Citizens Budget Advisory Committee. They are Julie Cuneo, Allan Simpson and Elijah Sharma.

Both incumbents' seats, in addition to the late Hy Dubowski's seat, will be up for grabs. The three highest vote getters will sit on the board, and a subsequent vote for board president will follow.

The filing deadline to run was Monday, April 20, and the election is scheduled for Tuesday, May 19.

Bethlehem installs plate readers on school buses

Theresa Eagan, deputy director of the state's Department of Motor Vehicles and a former Bethlehem supervisor, speaks during a press conference on Thursday, April 23. Eagan was joined by Peter Mannella, executive director of the state's Association for Pupil Transportation, and others to announce a new pilot program to put license plate readers on Bethlehem school buses.

District officials team up with state to crack down on school bus violations and educate public

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

If you try to pass a school bus in Bethlehem or don't come to a complete stop for yellow or red flashing lights—smile, because you're on candid camera.

In a joint press conference held at Eagle Elementary on Thursday, April 23, the state's Department of Motor Vehicles and Association for Pupil Transportation, NYAPT, teamed up with State Police, Bethlehem police and local officials to announce a new pilot program targeting those who violate traffic regulations meant to promote bus safety.

Bethlehem Central school buses are being equipped with digital license plate readers in order to crack down on vehicle violations. District officials wouldn't say which buses or which routes would have the plate readers so that drivers would assume that each bus is equipped with such equipment.

The announcement served as a kickoff to Operation Safe Stop 2009, a statewide effort to educate the public about the dangers of passing a school bus or not stopping completely for flashing lights. It is illegal to pass a school bus, according to the state's Vehicle and Traffic Law, Sec. 1174.

Executive director of NYAPT, Peter Mannella, said that 2.3 million of the nation's children ride school buses and that each and every one of them deserves safe passage to and from school each day.

"Every day throughout the school year, at least 50,000 motorists will make a choice to pass a school bus illegally," Mannella said. "They will make the choice to take the chance of injuring or killing one of the children, potentially one of the school children in this very district today."

Theresa Eagan, deputy director of the state's DMV and former Bethlehem supervisor, said the program would help keep kids safe.

"The plate reader program is going to go a long way to changing the perception that passing a school bus is OK," she said.

Bethlehem Superintendent Michael Tebbano echoed Eagan's sentiments.

"There's nothing more important than the safety of the children," said Tebbano. "We are hopeful this will be a successful pilot program."

Bethlehem Police Chief Louis Corsi said that tickets would not be immediately handed out to violators caught by the plate reader, but that warnings would be sent to motorists as part of an investigation into the matter.

He called it "an education process," but said repeat offenders would be dealt with appropriately.

Charmaine Wijeyesinghe, president of the Elmsere PTA, and a Bethlehem Board of Education candidate, said children and parents have to do their part, too.

"Our children have a role in obeying the rules of the bus ... and we as parents have a responsibility to their safety," she said. "This is a wonderful opportunity to engage in a dialogue with the community."

Mannella said that participating police agencies have issued more than 1,200 tickets on the annual Operation Safe Stop day.

The pilot program was used on a school bus in Syracuse in 2008 and is being debuted this year in the Bethlehem, Canandaigua and Brewster school districts.

Bethlehem clerk filing final minutes

Katherine Newkirk to retire after serving for more than three decades

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

After 18 years of filing town minutes and dedicating 32 years of her life to Bethlehem Town Hall, Katherine Newkirk is ready to take a few minutes for herself.

First running in 1991, Newkirk took office the following year and has been the town's clerk ever since. She started working as a zoning board of appeals part-time clerk stenographer and then a building department clerk stenographer before moving into the clerk's office.

"This year I've decided I'm not going to run; I'm going to go play," said Newkirk. "I've been with the town for 32 years, and I want to do some traveling and spend some time with my nine granddaughters and just be able to relax and enjoy what I feel like doing."

"It's nothing political," she said.

Newkirk said she was first offered the opportunity to come into the town clerk's in 1985 as a deputy clerk, and it was in that office where she stayed.

"Caroline Lyons was the town clerk at that time, and when I started, she said she figured she would be there 10 years. Well, she didn't stay there 10 years," Newkirk said. "And of course she encouraged me to run for the position of town clerk, and that's how it all came about really."

After a family discussion, Newkirk was running a campaign.

"So I said, 'Well, I've got to go home and talk to the kids,'" said

Newkirk of her four children. "And the kids are like, 'Go for it,' and here I am."

Every election was different, she said. Some years were more competitive than others.

"The first year of course, I had competition. That's perfectly normal when you have someone new coming into the position," she said. "I did have a number of years without opposition, but the last, I think, four terms I've had opposition."

Over the years, Newkirk has seen administrations come and go, and flexibility and foresight, she said, are a must.

"I don't have a problem with looking to the future, and I think that there's been a lot of things that have been good for the town," Newkirk said. "Of course that's the main thing, just being able to look forward and being able to be flexible enough to move forward with the changes."

Newkirk is quick to point out, though, that an office needs a good support staff to be flexible.

"I think a lot of times people tend to get in a rut and think it has to be this way, and I don't usually believe in that," she said. "And I've been very fortunate with my personnel over the years that when I want to make changes or try something new or get involved with a pilot program, they are very good with trying to do that, and that, of course, makes my job a lot easier."

Of her tenure as town clerk, Newkirk said she was proud of the records management program, which was started when she first took office.

Her experience, which she said is very important for a town clerk position, included studies at the Vincentian Institute in Albany and Sage Evening Division of Russell Sage Colleges, as well as her certification as a registered municipal clerk with the state's Town Clerk's Association.

She became a master municipal clerk from the International Institute of Municipal Clerks in May of 2005.

Newkirk also has a list of volunteer service behind her name, including putting in 1,049 hours of driving the Bethlehem Senior Van, which she began doing in June of 1990. She also volunteered with the Girl Scouts and Little League and was a parent committee member and chair of the Boy Scouts, Troop 58.

As for advice for the next town clerk: "Just be flexible," said Newkirk. "Accept change and be willing to try new things."

Bethlehem votes to become climate 'leader'

Town adopts Climate Smart designation 4-to-1; Messina calls resolution 'too vague'

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem officials adopted a resolution to become a Climate Smart Community, one of only a dozen municipalities statewide with that designation.

Gov. David Paterson's assistant secretary for the environment, Peter Iwanowicz, who is also a Bethlehem resident, urged the Town Board to adopt the resolution and be a leader for the rest of the state.

Iwanowicz said that although some still argue over whether humans have altered the weather, it is time to take action to lower carbon emissions.

"For us in the state, the debate is really over," he told the board. "What we need to do is roll up our sleeves."

He told the board that New York's climate could turn into that of Georgia's by the century's end if carbon emissions are not significantly reduced.

"This is where climate change is real - at the local level," he said, calling it a "great first step" after the resolution was passed. Iwanowicz, who is internationally recognized for his environmental work, said that if he were a board member, he would vote in favor of the resolution.

He added that state funding would be available for Bethlehem to make the initiatives possible.

Councilman Kyle Kotary talked about the program during an April 8 meeting and about teaming up with the state's DEC and the governor's office to make Bethlehem one of the first Climate Smart Communities.

"I'm pleased the board passed the Climate Smart Community resolution with the assistance and support of the state's leading expert on climate change, Peter Iwanowicz," Kotary said.

He was critical of Councilman Sam Messina's vote against the resolution.

Messina said he opposed the resolution because the language was too vague and contained words like "may result" and "investigate," and he wanted a chance to strengthen the wording.

"I want to make sure that we do it right and don't just pass it because it's Earth Day," Messina said at the meeting. "Energy and 'green' issues are not new to me ... and I commend my colleague Kyle Kotary for bringing this forward."

Kotary was unhappy with Messina's vote.

"I was very disappointed that Sam Messina voted against the Climate Smart Communities Resolution after he implied support for it, and can only hope he was not putting his personal agenda, politics or process ahead of our community, our environment and our future," Kotary said. "This was a historic first step for Bethlehem and demonstrates that, once again, Bethlehem is a leading community in New York state."

Messina and Kotary ran together for town board in 2005. This year, Democrats opted to endorse Kotary but not Messina.

The adopted resolution has a list of 10 goals that would be set by the town to help create a Climate Smart Community.

They include investigating programs to reduce greenhouse gas emissions; reducing consumption of gasoline and electricity use for local government operations by 15 percent no later than 2015; encouraging the use of renewable energy; investigating additional recycling programs; and informing the public about ways to reduce energy use.

"The Town of Bethlehem believes that climate change poses a real and increasing threat to our local and global environments," the resolution reads. "And the effects of climate change may negatively impact our infrastructure, economy, farms, food supply, ecological communities; encourage the spread of invasive species and exotic diseases; reduce drinking water supplies; and pose health threats to our residents."

Iwanowicz called the resolution a "responsible sort of approach."

G'land board taxed by sales revenue debate

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

Guilderland Town Board Councilman Warren Redlich said he is concerned about decreased sales tax revenue, while Supervisor Ken Runion said the hit to Guilderland is not as bad as expected.

Redlich cited a Wall Street Journal article that stated sales tax is down 12 percent in 2009, from last year's figures for the same time period.

Redlich asked for the sales tax figures to be brought to the next meeting, while Runion instructed Redlich to contact the Town Comptroller's office for the figures. Redlich said the numbers should be presented to board members if requested.

"Are you refusing to tell us how much sales tax we get," Redlich asked at the Tuesday, April 21, Town Board meeting.

Runion countered, "I'm not here, Mr. Redlich, to spoon feed you. If I give you a figure, and it is off by 50 cents, I'll be reading in some blog how I contradicted myself."

Runion told The Spotlight in a later interview that revenue for the first quarter of 2008 was $2,615,867.90. That revenue is received in April. He said in the first quarter revenue of 2009 was $2,442,372.32. This is $173,495.38 less than 2008, or 6.63 percent.

Runion said the town made cuts in spending at 8.5 percent, in case sales tax declined, and the 6.63 percent falls within that range. He said any drop is not a good thing, but that it was better than expected is a good sign.

The budget was reduced to $9.7 million, from its original $10.4 million through cuts in spending.

"We want to be very cautious and careful with our spending," Runion said.

Redlich said he was concerned that the future might hold worse revenue than now.

"Are we insulated or are we just lagging it?" he said of Guilderland's economy. "Are we going to get hit harder later?"

Lawlor

about Murley's gambling shortly after he was placed on administrative leave following sexual harassment allegations in February 2007.

Grimm said he is accusing Lawlor of acting inappropriately, not illegally, for using a code name to contact Murley while he was gambling, and for not bringing the issue to anyone's attention that her husband, John Tashjian, loaned money to Murley.

"The use of a code name indicates deception," said Grimm. "That's what code names are used for."

Runion said that the information provided by Lawlor in early 2007 led to an investigation to find out if Murley was gambling on sick time. Runion said State Police were able to subpoena records from the casino showing Murley had been there on town time. Eventually, Murley accepted a plea deal on charges stemming from him using sick leave at Turning Stone Casino on more than 50 occasions.

Runion said a 1992 "gag order" prohibiting members of the police department from discussing "department policy or any department business," with Town Board members prevented Lawlor from bringing the issue up prior to Murley's suspension.

"It was the chain of command," Runion said. "My opinion was that Chief Lawlor was under this order, and it prevented her from raising suspicions until Murley was on administrative leave."

Grimm said Runion should have overridden the order, since Runion was Murley's supervisor, but Runion said he was unaware of the order until after Murley was placed on adminis-

Taking root

Town officials joined Elsmere Elementary students and Earth Week Committee members to plant a Kwanzan cherry tree at the school's playground on a very sunny afternoon, Friday, April 24. Price Green Leaf gave the group a discount on the tree and a flat of strawberries in honor of the events held at Elsmere to commemorate Earth Week. trative leave.

Grimm also said the order itself was illegal, and the chief of police should not be allowed to prevent board members access to police officers.

"Whether it was legal or illegal is inconsequential," Runion said.

Lawlor was nominated in 2008 for the position of chief of police. Grimm said at the time she was interviewing, he was unaware that she had brought information to the Town Board about Murley.

Grimm has criticized Runion for supporting her even though he had knowledge of the code name and money transfers, however Runion said to prevent her promotion based on her husband loaning money to Murley, her use of a code name with him, or any information she brought to the board, would be illegal based on a section of the town code that protects whistleblowers.

"What I may or may not have known would have been irrelevant to the hiring process," Runion added.

Runion told The Spotlight that all of the board members had the opportunity to view the town's investigation of Murley prior to Lawlor's interview, and Grimm and Councilman Warren Redlich declined to view the information.

Grimm said he was never offered any information about the Murley investigation, and has recently made a Freedom of Information Law Request for the files that was denied.

Grimm also said he believed the approval of Linda Cure to a full-time position as public relations officer is partly related to the matter, and also the wrong decision in light on the economy.

"What Runion is doing now is trying to prop his image up," Grimm said. "He's doing it now because he's under fire."

Grimm said using the money to restore emergency service workers cut due to budget constraints would be better.

Runion said Cure's move to full-time was merit-based, and she has done a lot of good work for the town in the past.

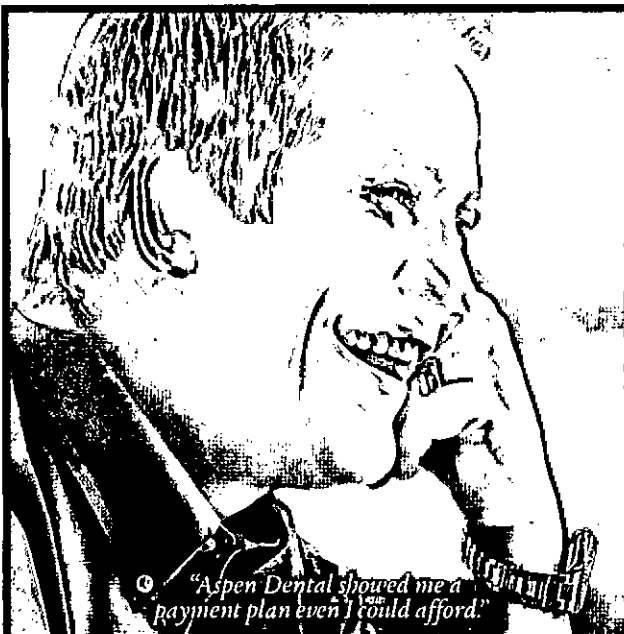

Grimm said Cure is a fine employee, and was not questioning her capability, but only the creation of her position in light of the economy.

"I'm not beating up the employee, I'm challenging what Ken Runion did," Grimm said.

Runion maintains that Lawlor had committed no wrongdoing, and the lack of charges against her is evidence of that.

Grimm is "out of touch with reality," Runion said.

Lawlor has not been charged by any investigating entity including the Albany County District Attorney, and New York State Police for wrongdoing. She was unavailable to comment before press time.

Union

salaries, which will save $25,000.

There will also be a fringe benefit savings of $75,600 according to the terms of the tentative contract.

Information detailing some of the contract's terms can be found on the district's Web site at bcsd.k12.ny.us.

Retirement incentives are also being offered in hopes of replacing some teachers at a cost savings to the district, according to Tebbano, who said about 44 teachers are currently eligible to take advantage of early retirement over the next two years.

Currently, teachers are scheduled to receive a 3.25 percent cost-of-living increase, combined with step increases the union contract calls for an average of 5.63 percent in salary increases.

After next year's cost-of-living adjustment, the new contract would give teachers a 2.75 percent cost-of-living increase in 2010-11 and a 2 percent increase in 2011-12 that could increase an additional 0.5 percent if the economy picks up.

It would be subject to the inflationary rate of that year, according to Tebbano.

The new contract is tentative at this point, according to district spokesman Matt Leon, and has to be voted on by the union and passed by two-thirds of its membership before it can be adopted by the board of education and put into effect. The teacher's union currently covers 465 employees at the school.

Tebbano and the board of education formally announced the contract renegotiation during the April 22 board meeting when the district was adopting its $87.6 million budget for the 2009-10 school year. (See related story, page 17.)

Teacher representatives came back to the table and reached a new deal after previous talks broke down in February. The Bethlehem Board of Education held an executive session with union members on Wednesday, April 8.

However, the board didn't hammer out all of the details and did not formally vote on any contractual changes that evening.

"The contract had the full support of the executive committee of the BCTA," Tebbano said. "From what I understand, they will have an intensive information session over the next two weeks."

Tebbano said that the executive representative council of the teacher's union was supporting the new contract. Dave Rounds, president of the BCTA and executive representative, said it was an important step for the community.

"The agreement between the BCTA and the BCSD provides the community with significant savings during this difficult economic climate, while at the same time providing economic stability for the staff and the district," Rounds said. "I believe the way the district and union were able to reach an agreement in this difficult environment is a tribute to the leadership on both sides. We will be able to maintain a quality educational program, save the community money, and maintain the integrity of working conditions. It is a good agreement for this community."

Tebbano also said if the union does not adopt the new contract then full contract negotiations with the district will take place next year. Tebbano said if that happens "nothing would be guaranteed" and the cost savings from a new contract would be less immediate to the district.

He praised the BCTA's decision to come back to the contract as a cost-saving measure, but also noted that it wasn't a "job-saving measure," as some teacher positions were already eliminated from the budget proposal before contract talks re-opened.

"The teachers were the ones who came forward," Tebbano said. "I commend the teachers for not making demands on the school district. ... I want to be up front about that because they've been very honorable about this."

Board of Education President James Lytle also thanked the union's willingness to make concessions for the sake of the community and for education.

"We credit the union leadership who supported this proposal," Lytle said at the April 22 announcement. "We are grateful to the teacher's association for working with us."

Lytle added that he didn't know how unique the situation was but that he has heard of very few contract concessions around the state.

The BCTA is expected to vote on the new contract on May 5, and, if the union adopts it, the district's Board of Education would have to vote on the contract amendment to make it official. Depending on the outcome of the union vote, the board of education is expected to adopt any contractual changes on May 20, after the district-wide budget vote.

Tebbano said the board has given him permission for a memorandum of agreement, which he said, "means the board is behind this."

With 465 employees covered by the teacher's contract, the district's budget increases each year by hundreds of thousands of dollars just to cover the salary increases. There are two other union contracts with the district: The Bethlehem Central United Employees Association and Bethlehem Principals Association.

Tebbano said the board has reached out to the other unions, but that there "is nothing to report right now."

The BCUE covers 509 employees, such as maintenance workers and other essential staff; and the BPA covers the district's 16 principals and administrators that typically collect the highest salaries.

"I believe this is an excellent step for the teacher's and for the school district, we've brought the salary increases under control," Tebbano said. "I would like to emphasize we are not shortchanging the quality of our teaching staff ... these are wonderfully competent individuals who work incredibly hard. ... People move to this community because of this school district."

Size cap

single-building construction that was recently passed by the New Scotland Town Board.

In March, fellow NS4SED member Edie Abrams asked the Bethlehem Town Board to send a letter of opposition against the Bender Melon Farm development to the Town of New Scotland.

The motion to adopt the size cap, primarily drafted by New Scotland Councilman Rich Reilly, passed unanimously at the town's April 15 meeting. Councilman Doug LaGrange and Town Supervisor Tom Dolin supported an amended version of a zoning law featuring a 50,000-square-foot size cap to be sent along with Reilly's draft, but it failed 3-to-2.

The proposed New Scotland zoning law also caps a "community shopping center" at 250,000 square feet, according to the local law being presented to county planners.

Mackay said Bethlehem has a stake in defeating the size cap, which is significantly larger than the 50,000-square-foot cap that he and his organization supported.

"I just wanted to give you an update on what's happening in the neighboring town," Mackay told the board. "In the opinion of my organization and many of the residents in town, the wrong size cap was passed, a much higher one [was passed] than we think is appropriate for the site and appropriate for the neighboring hamlet of Slingerlands and thus the town of Bethlehem."

Mackay contends that in the proposal that was defeated, a subdivision restriction was included that would have prevented putting multiple sites of construction in one area that could individually meet the 250,000- and 85,000-square-foot caps.

The law proposal passed with the larger size cap does not contain such a provision, he said.

"In the local law that was passed, the Bender Melon Farm could be subdivided multiple times, and multiple projects of 250,000 feet could be built in each of those subdivisions," he said. "So it's not just one project of 250,000 square feet, it's multiple projects of 250,000 square feet."

Discussions about New Scotland's zoning laws were prompted by a proposal from by Sphere Development LLC to place a 137,000-square-foot anchor retail store at the corner of Routes 85 and 85A, and a desire for the town to upgrade the laws to coincide closer with its comprehensive plan.

The county's planning board will hear the law and potentially make a decision on the size cap on May 16. A public hearing is then scheduled to be held on the new local law on June 16.

Mackay said the Bethlehem board can help show support, as it has in the past by attending public hearings in New Scotland, by sending a letter of opposition to county and speaking out against the possible negative effects such a large project could have.

"I think the Town of Bethlehem has a very significant role to play should you be concerned with what's happening just over the town line," Mackay told the board. "I guess I would urge the town ... to consider your role in communicating with the county planning board ... about traffic impacts and environmental impacts or just the impact on the hamlet of Slingerlands."

Bethlehem Councilman Mark Hennessey, who has vocally opposed the development, said the larger size cap was the wrong fit.

"I think it's of deep importance to the people who live in Slingerlands," he said. "I think as it is envisioned right now, I don't think it would be a positive development for Slingerlands. I think it would be a negative one."

COMICS FREE-FOR-ALL!

EVENT AIMS TO ATTRACT NEW READERS TO THE WORLD OF BATMAN, ATOMIC ROBO AND TINY TITANS

BY JACQUELINE M. DOMIN
DOMINJ@SPOTLIGHTNEWS.COM

When J.C. Glindmyer was a kid, his mom was adamant that he read.

"My mom was a little unconventional," he said. "She said, 'Reading is reading. I don't care what you read as long as you read.'"

That was the spark for Glindmyer's lifelong love of comic books. He indulges that love these days as the owner of Earthworld Comics on Central Avenue in Albany.

On Saturday, May 2, Glindmyer and other comic shop owners around the globe will share that love with people of all ages on Free Comic Book Day. It's pretty much just what the name implies: Stop in at a participating shop and leave with a free comic book.

"It's designed to attract new people to stores," said Jevin Katsch, manager of Electric City Comics in Schenectady, which will take part in Free Comic Book Day as it has every year since the event was launched in 2002.

Free Comic Book Day was the brainchild of comic book publishers, Katsch explained. They supply the comic books that are given out, which say "Free Comic Book Day" on the front. That means people can't just walk in a shop and pick out any comic they want and expect to get it for free, but there is a wide variety available.

"There's something for everyone," Glindmyer said.

For instance, this year's offerings include action comics like "Atomic Robo and Friends," a comic based on the movie

"Cars," a high-school themed comic called "FCHS" that's billed as "Archie meets 90210" and even a "DC Kids Mega Sampler," designed to introduce kids to Tiny Titans, Billy Batson and Batman.

Glindmyer remembers thinking that the free titles could probably draw a few people that first year. Instead, there was a steady stream of visitors.

So, the next year, "We decided to kind of raise the bar," Glindmyer said. Earthworld had someone dress like Wonder Woman and greet Free Comic Book Day visitors and again got a strong response.

Earthworld's Free Comic Book Day festivities have been growing ever since. In fact, they're so elaborate that Katsch even has fliers advertising them at his store.

This year, members of the Green Lantern Corps will be on hand, along with author Ron Marz, who's written "Green Lantern," "Witchblade" and "Dragon Prince" and artist John Hebert, whose work includes "Punisher," "Ghost World" and "Captain Action."

"It's kind of cool to see someone draw," Glindmyer said, joking that like every kid who likes comics, he's tried over the years to draw his own, but watching a professional work is completely different.

Of course, there are a lot of comic book aficionados who don't need a promotion to draw them to the stores. Katsch said that in addition to Electric City's regular customers, there are those who turn out when there's a big happening in the comic world, such as when Captain America died or when President Obama was recently featured on the cover of "The Amazing Spider-Man."

"People have no problem finding me," Katsch said. "We're very much a destination."

Still, a love of comic books has to start somewhere, and that's the idea behind Free Comic Book Day.

"It gets comics in kids' hands," said John Belskis, whose Ballston Spa store, Excellent Adventures, will be giving away books from noon to 5 p.m.

Belskis tries to get as many comics in kids' hands as they're interested in, while giving adults a couple apiece. But he noted people should arrive early for the best selection.

"We go through them pretty quickly," he said. "We probably go through 80 percent in the first couple of hours."

Other local participating stores include Paragon Comics in Schenectady, Zombie Planet in Albany and Spa City Comics in Saratoga Springs. For a complete list, visit www.freecomicbookday.com.

Are You My Daughter?

by Barbara Vink

No, I answer
I am the oak and the acorn

I am the hot sun and the cold breast of the earth

I am the caterpillar crawling the green stalks, hiding under the brown leaves

No, I answer
I am the bluest of skies
the loudest thunder
the deepest snow

I am the clouds
riding the escarpment

Who else would I be?

This month our featured poet is Barbara Vink, coordinator of the Every Other Thursday Night Poets, who meet at the Voorheesville Library. Barbara's poem can be interpreted more than one way: is this a conversation of a mother and daughter, or a much broader question and response about who we are as children of the earth? Having just celebrated Earth Day, and with Mother's Day just around the corner, this is the perfect poem for May.

You can reach Barbara at vinkb@uhs.lib.ny.us. Check out the EOTNP's blog, which Barbara writes, at www.voorheesvillelibrary.org.

Help For Homeowners In Foreclosure New York State Law requires that we send you this notice about the foreclosure process. Please read it carefully. Mortgage foreclosure is a complex process. Some people may approach you about "saving" your home. You should be extremely careful about any such promises. The State encourages you to become informed about your options in foreclosure. There are government agencies, legal aid entities and other non-profit organizations that you may contact for information about foreclosure while you are working with your lender during this process. To locate an entity near you, you may call the toll-free helpline maintained by the New York State Banking Department at 1-877-BANK-NYS (1-877-226-5697) or visit the Department's website at www.banking.state.ny.us. The State does not guarantee the advice of these agencies.

Eagles break out the bats

Bethlehem rallies from 4-0 deficit to beat Averill Park

By ANDY CAHILL
sports@spotlightnews.com

The writer is an intern in the Spotlight Newspapers sports department.

Through the first seven and a half innings of Bethlehem softball this week, it was the same old story. The Eagles allowed a total of seven runs while scoring none.

But all of that changed in the bottom of the first inning of last Friday's game against Averill Park when Bethlehem scored three runs. The Lady Eagles went on to defeat the Warriors 12-4.

Bethlehem needed to get on the scoreboard quickly after pitcher Toni Edwards gave up four runs to Averill Park in the top of the first inning.

"Same old situation happens; first inning blues," said coach Karen Gentile.

Then, before the top of the second, while the rest of the team was warming up, co-captain Erika Danz went out to the mound. She put her hands on Edwards' shoulders and said something, and whatever she said, it worked. Edwards allowed as many hits over the next six innings as she had runs in the first inning (four), she didn't allow a run and she had 10 strikeouts.

While Edwards dominated the lineup, the rest of the Lady Eagles dominated Averill Park's pitchers. In five out of the six innings that Bethlehem was up to bat, they scored. They had four stolen bases and nine runs batted in.

"Our bats came alive today," said Gentile. "It shows you our potential, and (the result) wasn't even as good as it could have been."

This, however, was not the case in last Wednesday's 3-0 loss to Columbia. The Blue Devils scored all of their runs in the first two innings, which proved to be enough as Bethlehem managed only one hit – a Mary Beth Dombrowski single in the bottom of the first inning.

Despite getting one hit, Bethlehem did get solid contact on most of its outs, striking out only twice during the game. It was obvious from this performance that the Lady Eagles were poised to "break out soon," Gentile said.

The Lady Eagles must continue to hit and pitch as well as they did in the last six and a half innings of last week if they want to try and compete with Shenendehowa for the Section II title. If they do, there is no telling where they could go.

Win face-offs, win the game

Dutchmen dominate fourth quarter against Lakeland

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Guiderland boys lacrosse team used a big fourth quarter to pull off a key non-league victory.

The Dutchmen (8-1) outscored Lakeland/Panas 5-0 over the final 12 minutes to defeat the Rebels 15-10 last Saturday in Lakeland.

"It was back and forth all the way, but we possessed the ball for pretty much the entire fourth quarter," said Guiderland coach Sean McConaghy. "We won all the face-offs in the fourth quarter. That was the turning point of the game. We never let them have the ball."

Dan Lee and Paul Jones each recorded hat tricks, while Bryan Dyer added two goals and three assists for Guiderland, which led 9-7 at halftime. Seven more Dutchmen scored goals including E.J. Genzano, Travis Moore and Rory Nunamacher – all of whom also had one assist.

Guiderland entered Saturday's non-league game off a 13-2 Suburban Council victory over Shenendehowa last Thursday.

New (old) name, same old results

You can give a team a new (old) name, a new (old) logo and a new (old) color scheme, but you can't make that team win.

Such has been the case with the Albany Firebirds (nee ConQuest). Through five excruciating games, the Firebirds are winless and among the worst in Arena Football 2 in scoring points.

Last Saturday's 70-26 home debacle against Wilkes-Barre/Scranton is a perfect example. The Firebirds turned the ball over three times and failed to convert on third or fourth down. The visitors didn't turn the ball over once and scored at least two touchdowns every quarter.

Simple translation: Wilkes-

Barre/Scranton's offense was efficient, while Albany's offense was not.

Sadly, offensive inefficiency is nothing new to the Firebirds. They've only scored more than 30 points in a game twice – a number that normally should be reached in arena football with its 50-yard fields crammed into hockey rinks. Their defense doesn't force many turnovers (only seven in five games), and they don't pressure opposing quarterbacks (six sacks and nine quarterback hurries as opposed to 17 sacks and 20 hurries by their opponents).

This is all bad news for a franchise that was looking to turn its fortunes around by invoking the name and color scheme of the Firebirds – one of the most successful Arena Football League teams of the 1990s.

Unfortunately, the only things these current Firebirds have in common with the team that won the 1999 ArenaBowl in front of a capacity crowd at the Knickerbocker Arena (now Times Union Center) is the name, the logo and the black-and-orange color scheme.

You know what I realized last weekend? I haven't done a power ranking for any spring high school sport. So, I'm going to rectify that right now with my overall boys and girls lacrosse power rankings. This isn't totally scientific, but what helps is that the No. 1 boys and girls teams were extremely easy to pick.

Boys

1. Niskayuna – The Silver Warriors helped their statewide and national profiles by beating up Massachusetts power Duxbury 13-2 last Saturday to improve their overall record to 8-0. Given what the rest of their schedule looks like and how dominant they've been so far (they've outscored their opponents 90-15), I'd say it's a good bet they'll be undefeated entering the playoffs.

2. Guilderland – Outside of a 15-2 loss to Niskayuna April 15, the Dutchmen have been just as dominant as the Silver Warriors within the Suburban Council. And with Niskayuna moving to Class B this season, the path looks clear for Guilderland to claim the Class A title, provided the Dutchmen stay healthy.

3. Shaker – The Blue Bison's success is based on their stingy defense led by goaltender Kenny O'Connor, who is third among Section II netminders in save percentage (.760). The only thing Shaker is lacking is a high scoring offense, but when you're not giving up 10 or more goals a game, you don't need a high scoring offense to win games.

4. Colonie – The Garnet Raiders possess two great scorers, Garrett Dollard and Jon Charton, and a strong goaltender in Matt Hamilton. But until they learn how to beat a Suburban Council Blue Division opponent (they're 0-2 thus far), they can't move up into the top three.

5. CBA – The Brothers aren't overwhelming their opponents, but they're pulling out victories. That ability to win close games will help them in Sectionals, but the question is can they beat a quality Suburban Council team in the playoffs?

Honorable mentions: Columbia, Shenendehowa, LaSalle and Schenectady.

Girls

1. Guilderland – With every blowout win, it's becoming more obvious that the Lady Dutch have no competition in Section II. Their offense is nearly unstoppable (eight players have scored 10 or more goals), and their defense simply doesn't give up a lot of goals (opponents are scoring an average of 4.3 goals per game). Scary stuff.

2. Shaker – The Blue Bison have the same 5-1 record as Bethlehem, but they've won their games by a wider margin of victory than the Lady Eagles. Therefore, Shaker gets the No. 2 spot. That may change Wednesday; though, when the Blue Bison meet Bethlehem for the first time.

3. Bethlehem – I'd have a little more confidence in the Lady Eagles if they had beaten Colonie and Columbia by wider margins than two and four goals, respectively. Still, this is a quality Bethlehem team with a solid, balanced attack. The Lady Eagles will give any team a run for its money – except for Guilderland (see above).

4. Niskayuna – The defending Class B champions scored a nice 13-8 victory over Averill Park last week to even their record at 3-3. The Silver Warriors may be rebuilding after graduating most of last year's starters, but they are still a dangerous team.

5. Averill Park – The Warriors were cruising along until last week's losses to Saratoga Springs and Niskayuna, but it was too hard to keep a 5-3 team out of the top five. We'll have to see how Averill Park handles the second half of its schedule.

Honorable mentions: Saratoga Springs, Schenectady, Emma Willard, Holy Names, Albany Academy.

Next week, I will attempt some baseball power rankings. Given the amount of parity at the largest class levels (AA and A), I may wind up picking names out of a hat to determine my top five.

Senior Whole Health promotes health-care literacy initiative

'Ask Me 3' program encourages seniors to ask health care providers three key questions

By EDWARD PARHAM
On behalf of
Senior Whole Health

According to recent government studies, more than 89 million American adults have low or limited health literacy skills, meaning they struggle to read, understand and act on health information.

Over the past decade, this problem, which effects people of all ages, groups, income and education levels and especially the elderly, has cost the United States tens of billions of dollars — a figure that is likely to climb as patients take an ever-increasing array of medications and are asked to undertake more complicated self-care regimens.

In an effort to improve health outcomes and foster clearer communication between health care providers and seniors living in Albany, Rensselaer, Schenectady, Saratoga, Dutchess and Ulster counties, Senior Whole Health of New York (SWH) has teamed together with the Partnership for Clear Health to offer free, informational presentations to seniors based around the "Ask Me 3" patient education program.

A nationwide initiative, "Ask Me 3" encourages patients to ask their providers three simple, yet essential questions in every health care interaction: What is my main problem? What do I need to do? And why is it important for me to do this?

"Patients should ask these questions to their doctors, pharmacists or nurses when preparing for a medical test, a procedure or when they get their prescriptions filled," said Gabriel Martinez, SWH director of marketing and branding.

"Posing the right questions will help them understand how to get better."

"Many people, even highly literate people, have trouble understanding words used in health care," Martinez added. "In some instances, a word may be totally unfamiliar. In other cases, a word may be familiar, but the

"Studies show that people who understand health instructions make fewer mistakes when they take their medicine or prepare for a medical procedure," he continued. "They are also at less risk for unnecessary hospitalizations, emergency treatment and medication errors, and may also get well sooner or be able to better manage a chronic condition."

The Partnership for Clear Health Communication is a coalition of national organizations working together to promote awareness and solutions around the issue of low health literacy in order to improve health outcomes.

Committee members include the American Federation for Aging Research, American Medical Association Foundation, American Nurses Association, American Pharmacists Association, American Public Health Association, National Alliance for Caregiving, The National Council on the Aging, National Health Council and the National Medical Association.

For more information or to set up a presentation, call 472-5200, or visit www.seniorwholehealth.com.

person may not understand it in a health care context."

Health literacy includes the ability to understand instructions on prescription drug bottles, appointment slips and medical education brochures.

It also includes understanding doctors' directions, food labels and consent forms, as well as the ability to negotiate complex health care systems.

"Health literacy requires reading, listening and decision-making skills, as well as the ability to apply these skills to health situations," Martinez explained.

"By giving presentations at senior centers, community centers and elderly residential buildings, we plan to help seniors better understand and act on health information, which can lead to better health outcomes."

Simple ways to stay active

You've worked hard your entire life to earn your retirement, and now you should enjoy it. But you won't be able to actively socialize with friends, family and neighbors, enjoy spending time on your hobbies or taking trips to see the grandchildren if you don't maintain good health and a good quality of life.

Here are a few ways you can take care of yourself at home:

- * Monitor the information your doctor wants to know. The Lumiscope Blood Pressure Arm Monitor found at Montgomery Ward (www.Wards.com) allows you to track your blood pressure at home.

- * Involve your friends, family and neighbors in a weekly yard game of bocce ball, croquet, horseshoes or badminton, to name a few.

- * Get your hands dirty and plant a garden.

- * Relive some of your childhood fun. Try a daily workout with the Cory Everson Trampoline (www.Wards.com). The trampoline provides a good cardio and muscular workout complete with a stability bar to assist your balance.

- * Join a book club and invite the members to your house.

Allen Zieker M.D.

ALBANY-TROY CATARACT & LASER ASSOCIATES

Q: I have cataracts and I plan on having surgery. After cataract surgery, will I still need to wear eyeglasses?

A: "Cataracts are one of the leading causes of preventable blindness worldwide. Cataracts often cause blurry vision and glare at night while driving. A cataract is the stiffening and clouding of the natural lens, and the result is that the lens cannot focus light as well as it did before. Cataracts are common in most patients over fifty. There usually comes a time when a change in one's eyeglass prescription will not do much to improve vision, and surgery should be considered."

"Up until about ten years ago, all patients were very dependent on glasses after cataract surgery. Today, with the availability of premium (multifocal & accommodative) implant lenses, patients can enjoy reduced dependency on eyeglasses. These lenses act like a healthy natural lens, focusing light from all distances, from reading to far distance. You might expect to spend most of your day out of glasses with these implant lenses. You might just need reading glasses to fine-tune small print. There are several brands and styles available such as Crystalens®, ReStor®, and ReZoom®. A patient's lifestyle and health history help me make the decision regarding which lens would be the best fit for a patient."

Embury Apartments renovation under way

State, local officials attend groundbreaking ceremony at Saratoga's Embury Apartments

After the wall demolition ceremony, officials toured existing, gutted and rehabilitated units to see the building's dramatic transformation.

"We are proud to partner with our friends at Omni Development and are grateful

Saratoga Springs Mayor Scott Johnson and New York State Division of Housing and Community Renewal Commissioner Deborah Van Amerongen, along with a representative of Governor David A. Paterson and state legislators, joined Duncan Barrett, COO, Omni Housing Development LLC and J. Brian Nealon, CEO of The Wesley Community in demolishing a wall to continue the $18 million rehabilitation of Embury Apartments on Tuesday, April 7.

Embury Apartments, Inc., the not-for-profit entity that has been the owner and property manager of the site since it was originally constructed over 35 years ago, along with current co-developer Omni Housing Development LLC, anticipates completion of the project in the summer of 2010.

for the support of Governor Paterson and state officials, whose commitment to Embury will ensure its viability as a senior housing complex for the next 50 years," said Nealon. "Our founders would be honored to witness these improvements which are indeed a validation of their original concept to provide independent housing for seniors without the burden of home ownership."

Embury's two 14-story towers helped to redefine housing opportunities for area seniors when they were completed in 1972. Originally conceived by the founders of the Saratoga Retirement Center, the forerunner of the modern-day Wesley Community, the Embury towers offered subsidized, independent living for active seniors aged 62 and older. One year later, the towers were joined by the addition of the Wesley Nursing Home to provide Embury residents easy access to healthcare services.

Today, Embury is part of the much broader Wesley Community, a 36-acre not-for-profit campus, which serves the needs of the elderly, as well as active seniors, adults and children. The Wesley Community's unique continuum of care provides independent and assisted living for seniors, subsidized independent senior housing, adult day services, short-term rehabilitation and long-term care, as well as outpatient therapies, which are available for all ages.

Wesley is sponsored by United Methodist Health and Housing, Inc. Among those attending the ceremony was Eva Barron, whose late husband, the Reverend Ralph

Take care of your ticker

Cardiovascular disease remains the No. 1 cause of death for both men and women in the United States. While heart-related illnesses are widespread, the good news is that your lifestyle choices can have a significantly positive effect on your overall heart health.

Sodium is one of the biggest contributors to heart disease and hypertension; and, as a general rule, you should not exceed 2,400 milligrams of sodium per day. Buyer beware: high amounts of sodium lurk in many of the everyday foods you love, including soups, breads and even beverages. Help stay within your daily sodium recommendation and opt for the low salt or reduced sodium options of your favorite foods, when available.

Look for heart smart options in the grocery store. Products such as Del Monte's 50 percent Less Salt Whole Kernel Corn and Sweet Peas display the American Heart Association heart-check mark on the label as they meet the Association's food criteria for saturated fat and cholesterol for healthy people older than age 2.

Other low-sodium options readily available at the supermarket include Pepperidge Farms reduced-sodium breads, lower sodium soups from Campbell's and Progresso, and Orville Redenbacher's SmartPop popcorn. For great ways on switching out those high sodium foods with lower salt versions, visit delmonte.com/solutions/recipeTools.aspx for delicious recipes.

Herzog can help nursing home residents preserve assets

With correct legal assistance from experienced Elder Law Attorneys such as Phil Tribble, Harry Miller and Deb Verni of the Herzog Law Firm, a nursing home resident can preserve a substantial amount of their assets, in many instances up to half of what they now own.

The planning which permits this to occur is done in complete compliance with all Medicaid rules and regulations. It is essential to seek qualified legal assistance because the procedure must be done carefully to make sure the Medicaid rules and regulations are complied with and the proper legal documentation is signed.

This planning is available even if a person has done no prior Medicaid planning and can be utilized even if someone has been in a nursing home for a period of time already. If a nursing home resident is incompetent but has a valid power of attorney or a court appointed guardian, the same planning advantages are available.

Attorney Phil Tribble of the Herzog Law Firm has been a speaker for both the New York State Bar Association and the National Business Institute regarding this and and that they are available to pay for nursing home cost. However, with correct legal guidance, assets can be transferred and Medicaid applied for immediately.

Please be aware of the importance of understanding the rights to which you and your family members are entitled under the Medicaid law.

If you have a friend or family member who is now in a nursing home or may need nursing home care in the near future you should contact an experienced Elder Law Attorney such as Phil Tribble, Harry Miller or Deb Verni of the Herzog Law Firm and find out how existing Medicaid rights can be properly utilized to benefit a nursing home resident and their family members.

More information is available and an appointment can be arranged by calling 465-7581, ext. 126 and ask for Stacy or by going to herzoglaw.com.

other strategies for protecting assets while complying with all applicable Medicaid rules and regulations.

In order to qualify under Medicaid a person's assets, together with those of their spouse, must be below a certain financial level and assets that the person or their spouse gave away within five years of applying for Medicaid are treated as if the person or their spouse still owns them

Ignoring diabetes is risky business

Are you taking risks with your life without even knowing it? You may be one of the nearly 6 million Americans who have type 2 diabetes and don't even know it.

Diabetes affects nearly 24 million children and adults in the United States and another 57 million have pre-diabetes, a condition that places them at increased risk for developing type 2 diabetes. If you don't know the risk factors or symptoms for diabetes, you may very well be risking your life to this silent killer.

Many people can live with the disease for years and never find out that they have it until they start experiencing diabetes-related damage that can lead to a heart attack, stroke, vision problems or kidney disease. In fact, most people with type 2 diabetes do not notice the symptoms because some signs of diabetes aren't easy to recognize. Symptoms of diabetes include being very thirsty, urinating often, losing weight without trying and having vision problems, such as blurred vision.

Diabetes is a serious disease, but early diagnosis and treatment can help people with diabetes live healthy and active lives. A person's risk for diabetes goes up as they get older, gain weight, or if they do not stay active. So how can you find out if you might be at risk for diabetes? Risk factors include being overweight or obese; not being physically active; having a family history of diabetes; having high blood pressure; having diabetes during pregnancy or having a baby weighing more than 9 pounds at birth; and being older than 45 years of age.

Diabetes is also more common in African Americans, Latinos/Hispanics, Native Americans, Asian Americans and Pacific Islanders.

To find out if you or a loved one are at risk for type 2 diabetes, you can take the American Diabetes Association's Diabetes Risk Test. This is a simple test that asks questions about weight, age, family history and other potential risk factors for diabetes. Based on your response, you can find out whether you are at low, moderate or high risk for diabetes. You can take the test online at www.diabetes.org/alert or by phone at (800) DIABETES (800-342-2383).

If you find that you are at high risk for having diabetes, talk with your doctor to find out for sure. Only your doctor can determine if you have diabetes.

Constant ringing in your ears? Hearing aids offer hope

If it seems like your ears ring constantly, it's probably not your imagination or the economy... and you're not alone. You may have tinnitus, an inner ear ailment that affects between 25 million to 50 million Americans -- with about 12 million people experiencing such severe symptoms it affects their daily lives.

The good news is treatment, including hearing aids, can offer relief to some suffering the persistent ringing, buzzing or humming associated with tinnitus, says the Better Hearing Institute (BHI).

Dr. Sergei Kochkin, BHI's executive director, and Dr. Richard Tyler, a professor in the University of Iowa's otolaryngology and communication sciences and disorders departments and editor of The Consumer Handbook on Tinnitus (Auricle Ink, 2008), published an article in the December 2008 "Hearing Review" on their survey of 230 hearing health professionals in the United States and Canada. Their survey found that six out of 10 patients reported some tinnitus relief when using hearing aids and two out of 10 reported major relief.

While hearing aids are not a cure for tinnitus, they may be able to help tinnitus patients by:

- Improving communication and reducing stress, which makes it easier to cope with the condition.

- Amplifying background sounds, which can make tinnitus seem less loud and prominent.

To learn more, visit www.betterhearing.org or call the Better Hearing Institute hotline at (800) EAR-WELL (800-327-9355).

Silver Alert helps keep seniors safe

If you've got a senior citizen in your life suffering from dementia or Alzheimer's disease, you probably worry about them wandering away and not being able to find their way home. A new law that addresses this issue is under consideration right now.

In September, the House of Representatives passed the National Silver Alert Act. Much like an Amber Alert for missing children, the act would establish a formal, public notification system to spread information about senior citizens who are missing. The bill was introduced after an 86-year-old Florida woman wandered away from an assisted living facility and was later found dead.

Visiting Angels, an organization that provides in-home care for thousands of seniors across the country, is urging everyone to call and write their senators to encourage them to sponsor the bill.

"Senior safety is first and foremost for Visiting Angels," says chief operating officer Patricia Drea. "The National Silver Alert Act would give families the peace of mind that, if their loved one is missing, the public would be notified and on the lookout for them."

Currently Silver Alert programs operate in about a dozen states and the National Silver Alert Act would provide federal support to the state initiatives and assist in the expansion of Silver Alert. The bill, S 3579, would create a Silver Alert Coordinator within the Department of Justice, who would set voluntary guidelines and monitor state Silver Alert programs. The coordinator would consult with agencies such as the Federal Communications Commission, the Department of Transportation and the Administration on Aging to develop best practices and provide federal funds to implement state Silver Alert programs.

"Reuniting missing seniors with their families requires a rapid and united response," says Drea. "With the National Silver Alert Act our communities can use and build on existing resources to help keep our seniors safe."

Visiting Angels and other organizations serving senior citizens are asking the public to contact their senators and encourage them to become a co-sponsor of S 3579 and to support the bill when it comes to a vote on the floor. You can find your senator at www.senate.gov.

The successful method to growing young

As we grow older, we look forward to the changes that life brings — retirement, grandchildren, financial security and travel. Other changes that we might not accept so readily are the aches, pains and mental slowdowns that leave us longing for the good old days of our youth.

We think we have to put up with degeneration when aging, but that is not true. Staying active is key for a healthy lifestyle, but what else can we do to benefit our bodies as we age?

The human growth hormone (HGH) might be a key element in feeling your best as you age. When HGH was first discovered, its only purpose was thought to be to stimulate body growth to adult size. Recent studies have found that one of the main reasons the body ages is because of the decrease in HGH, which helps the body regenerate.

It is possible that aging symptoms — rise in blood glucose, high blood pressure and even skin wrinkles — can be treated by maintaining HGH levels in the body. Receptor sites for HGH exist in almost every cell in the human body, so regeneration and healing effects can be quite comprehensive.

Until now, HGH therapy was injectable, costly and messy, available only to celebrities and the very wealthy. In 1997, a group of doctors and scientists developed an all-natural source-product which causes your own natural HGH to be released again. GHR, manufactured by GlobalHealth Products, is a capsule that works as a natural releaser for HGH. It has no known side effects, unlike the synthetic version, and has no known drug interactions. Aging baby boomers and seniors can feel young again by realizing HGH potential.

Some think that HGH is so comprehensive in its healing and regenerative powers that it has the capability to displace many prescription and non-prescription drugs. HGH is known to help treat hemorrhoids, autoimmune diseases, macular degeneration, cataracts, fibromyalgia, angina, chronic fatigue, diabetic-neuropathy, hepatitis C, chronic constipation, high blood pressure, sciatica, kidney dialysis, and heart and stroke recovery.

As seniors and others deal with health care coverage problems, it is important to look at what you can do for yourself to ensure your healthiness. HGH can be particularly helpful to the elderly who, given a choice, would rather stay happy, healthy and independent in their own home. HGH gives the possibility of real health, not just treating sickness.

For more information on HGH and the GHR capsule please visit www.BIEHealth.us or call (877) 849-4777.

Driver Fitness Center draws seniors' interest

Special to the Spotlight by Edward Neary, executive director, CSSC, Inc.

Since the opening of the innovative Driver Fitness Center in December 2008, CSSC has been busy setting up meetings and presentations for senior clubs and organizations to get the word out to fellow seniors.

Seniors and their families are interested in learning about steps they can take to stay on the road longer and more safely. The Driver Fitness Center is also helpful when the time comes to give up the car.

When this happens, seniors and their families can feel secure about alternative transportation resources available in Colonie to make the transition easier. Developed in cooperation with the Capital Region Older Driver Assistance Network, the Driver Fitness Center is located within the Beltrone Living Center and is available to all area seniors and caregivers.

Recently, the Driver Fitness Center received a phone call from a community relations officer at the Town of Colonie Police Department about an older driver.

A counselor from the Driver Fitness Center was able to reach out and connect with the driver and his family who came in to discuss what happened and seek information.

This is exactly the ideal course of events initiated by our informed and concerned police department and exactly the outcome CSSC planned for when we implemented a training program with the Colonie Police Department to help officers assess the needs and challenges of senior drivers.

Both the information center and the training program are designed to ensure the safety and independence of older

How to prevent bathroom hazards

An elderly woman slipped in her bathroom while brushing her teeth and had to be rushed to the hospital. A month later, an older man couldn't get out of his bathtub and was stuck in it for five days surviving on water from the facet before a neighbor found him. We've all heard tragic stories of the elderly being injured in the bathroom. That might leave you to wonder, how safe is the bathroom in your home?

These stories are sad, but not surprising because the bathroom is one of the most dangerous areas in a house. A small area with frequent water use makes it a prime location for injuries from falls. And for older people the bathroom can be a real hazard.

"Falls are the leading cause of death from injuries among older persons and the death rate from falls continues to climb. Each year, one in three Americans age 65 and older fall and almost a third of them need medical treatment as a result," according to the AARP.

"Research shows that 75 percent of household accidents happen in the bathroom," says Karen Grassle, spokeswoman for Premier Care in Bathing. "It is crucial, especially for older individuals, to create a bathroom that is both accessible and safe."

For most elderly, remaining in their home to live an independent lifestyle is extremely important. And a safe home environment can be possible if the bathroom is assessed and if need be, renovated to fit their needs. Installing grab bars, non-slip rugs and bright lights is a great start, but the bathtub is one of the most important components to consider.

Regular bathtubs can become more difficult to use as we age. To avoid injuries while still remaining independent, you might want to consider putting in a new tub that is specifically designed for use by those with limitations.

Premier Bathrooms, a company that specializes in walk-in bathtubs, disabled bathrooms and assisted bathing products, has a range of tubs that are safer and easier to use. One thing you should look for when shopping for a new tub is how you will be getting in and out. This is when a lot of fall-related injuries occur and it is important that the entry and exiting process can be done safely and with ease.

Whether you and your spouse are aging and you want to remain independent in your home, or you have parents and you'd like to help them live more comfortably, consider making the bath a safe and secure place that will remain free from accident and injury.

Money matters: Tips from a pro about taxes after retirement

Even though the income tax deadline has passed, people shouldn't lose sight of how the tax decisions they make today can affect their retirement plans tomorrow.

If you are within five years of retirement, it's time to fine tune your future finances.

"When you look at retirement assets through a tax lens, it becomes clear that decisions regarding whether you have an appropriate level of guaranteed lifetime income, how to maximize Social Security, whether you should work in retirement and how you deploy your assets are very much linked," says Robert Fishbein, vice president and corporate counsel for Prudential Financial. Here are Fishbein's top tax considerations for those planning for retirement:

• Personal income tax

Most people assume their personal income taxes will be lower after retirement because they won't be generating as much income and, therefore, will be in a lower tax bracket. But due to the recent economic downturn and losses in retirement assets, the dismal personal savings rate over the last decade – which has only just recently begun to rise – and the decline of traditional pension plans, and the increase in the full retirement age under Social Security for those born after 1954, many retirees are choosing to take on part-time jobs. Regardless of the reason for working in retirement, the income earned, combined with use of retirement savings, might create a situation where you will be taxed at the same level or an even higher rate than when you state income tax; residents there are taxed at 9.3 percent.

In addition to state income taxes, there are sales and property taxes to consider. Some states derive more of their revenue from these taxes than from income taxes. You should understand how all of the taxes in the state and town in which you plan to retire will affect your income.

• Future tax rates

Another thing to consider when figuring out your post-retirement income is how federal and state taxes might change in the future. It's hard to predict whether were working full time. Keeping this in mind, it's important to have both taxable and non-taxable retirement assets upon which you can draw in retirement so that you can manage taxes and maximize your income in the long term. Talking with a financial advisor is the best way to create a custom plan that will help you maximize the number of years you can generate income to maintain the same standard of living you enjoy today.

• State and local taxes

There's a reason, besides warm weather, that people retire in states like Florida and Texas. Where you retire can have a significant impact on your after-tax income because state and local taxes can affect how long your retirement savings will last. Florida and Texas have a state income tax rate of zero, so they are attractive to many retirees who want to maximize their retirement assets. California, on the other hand, has the highest they will remain the same, be lower or increase. A good indicator of future federal income taxes is to look at history and take an educated guess. Doing so suggests that rates are at historic lows right now, which likely means an increase in the near future. An indicator of future state taxes might be the current budget position of the state, which, at the moment, suggests that many states may be looking to increase their income, sales and/or property taxes in the short term.

What does this mean for retirement planning – especially in those critical five year periods just before and just after retirement? Basically, if federal or state taxes go up, your retirement savings and assets will be depleted sooner. You will have to save more to make your money last longer or you will have to adjust some of your spending habits.
