Conservatives give nods

Endorse Messina and Jordan in Bethlehem

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

With the endorsement of the the Conservative Party, Bethlehem Independence Councilman Sam Messina has received his first ballot line in his race for supervisor against incumbent Democrat Jack Cunningham.

The Conservative Party has also endorsed Bethlehem Independence Party Chairman Mark Jordan for Bethlehem town councilman, Nanci Moquin for town clerk and Gregg Sagendorf for highway superintendent.

The party's Albany County chairman, Richard Stack, said he chose Messina because of his track record of independent voting, describing him as "a diamond in the rough."

"We felt his independence and his ability to speak out for the common person far exceeded the incumbent, Jack Cunningham," Stack told The Spotlight after the vote on Thursday, May 14.

Cunningham, who has the endorsement of the town's Democratic Party and is a former Albany County legislator, said his tenure speaks for itself.

"I'm running on my record,"

Support Dolin's re-election campaign in New Scotland

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

Town Supervisor Tom Dolin told the Spotlight on Friday, May 15, he is planning a re-election bid for New Scotland supervisor.

Dolin, a Democrat, has formally received the endorsement of the Conservative Party, according to county Chairman Richard Stack, and Dolin said he is pleased the Conservative Party chose to put its support behind him.

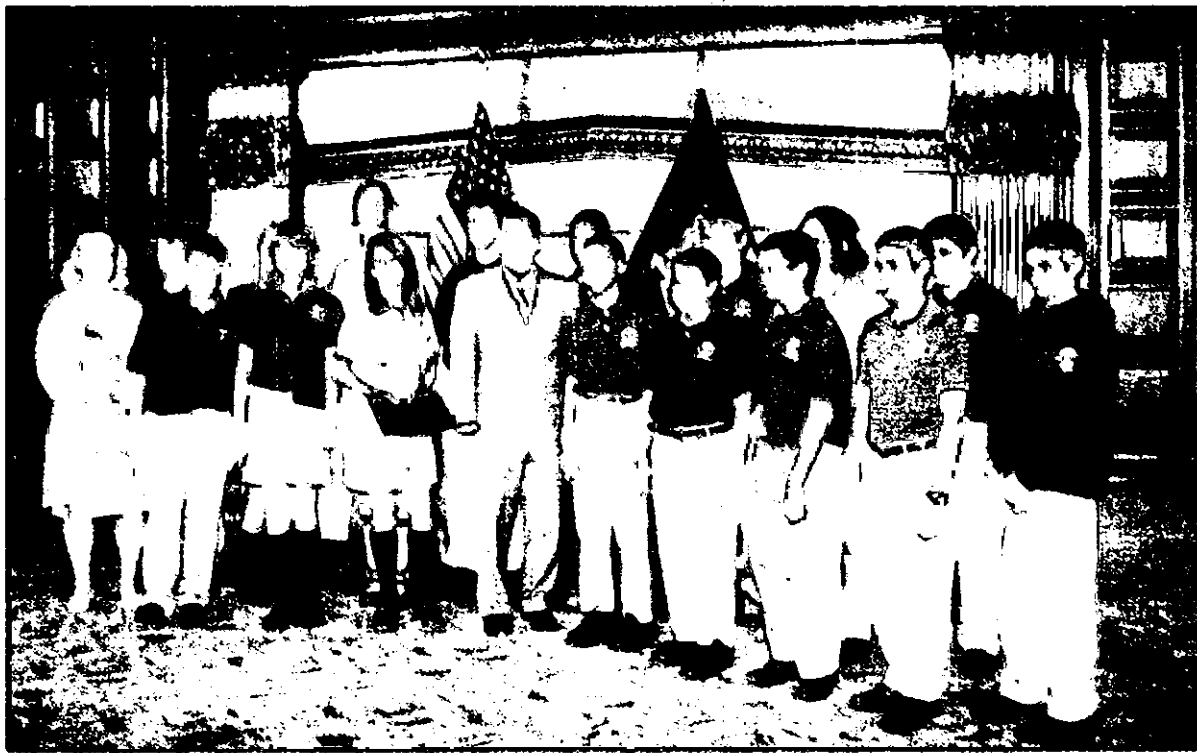

Dolin said several factors contributed to his decision to seek re-election. He said before he decided he first wanted to scope out the political landscape, and was also motivated by the desire to follow through on some key issues in the town that began during his administration.

"I was exploring what support I had," Dolin said. "I am pleased they are willing to endorse me."

Dolin, a former town justice in New Scotland, is launching his first re-election campaign for supervisor, but said he has received the nomination from the Conservative Party before when running for that position.

Bethlehem's vision is 20/20

Committee gives progress update on future outlook

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

They say hindsight is 20/20, but town officials here are hoping a little foresight will help shape Bethlehem's vision for the future.

A group of residents, professionals and town officials past and present, known as the 20/20 Committee, has been piecing together a sort of planning report on what can be expected by the year 2020.

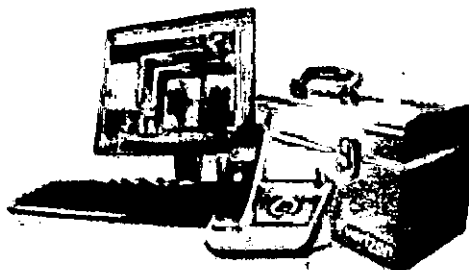

Supervisor Jack Cunningham said the committee's name is a play on words, but the work it is conducting is a very serious look at how the town's aging infrastructure should be replaced and maintained over the

Truck and trailer troubles

A trailer detached from a truck that crashed on, River Road in Glenmont, on Thursday, May 14, at close to noon, according to officials. The crash happened near Retreat House Road. There was one injury, and three vehicles in addition to the the trailer were involved in the crash. The Bethlehem Police Department is investigating, and has already issued several uniformed traffic tickets to the driver of the pickup truck.

Police use Taser on man after two crashes

Bethlehem Police say they had to use a Taser on a man multiple times inside of a Glenmont Mobil before brining him to compliance after he walked away from two crashes in a vehicle he didn't own.

David J. Hanna, 36, of 195 Schuurman Road, Castleton, was arrested on April 15 for a slew of charges, including third-degree criminal mischief, a felony; third-degree criminal possession of stolen property, a felony; fourth-degree criminal possession of stolen property, a felony; resisting arrest, a misdemeanor; DWI, a misdemeanor; third-degree aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, a misdemeanor; disorderly conduct, a violation; and six infractions — leaving the scene of property-damage auto accident, failure to keep right, unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle, failure to reduce speed for grade/curve, no seatbelt and crossing pavement markings.

Bethlehem Police said they received a call about a property-damage auto accident on Glenmont Road when a suspect crossed the double yellow line while heading west and struck another vehicle before, he "took off from the scene."

Hanna was allegedly driving the car in the first accident, according to police reports, and was involved in a second crash near Vagele Lane, where a car was left in front of a home.

Police said Hanna fled on foot from the second crash and headed toward Route 9W.

A man stopped and told officers at the scene of the first car accident that his roommate's dog and vehicle were missing from his River Road address. Police discovered a dog at a Vagele Lane home near the vehicle, but not Hanna, the reports state.

The dog was identified by the witness, who stated Hanna had spent the previous night at his house, and was returned to him.

Bethlehem Police said they then received a call from the Albany County Paramedics about a subject matching Hanna's description at the Glenmont Mobil with "blood on his hands and ... dirt and grass on him."

When police arrived on the scene, witnesses identified Hanna inside of the store, and, upon approaching him, Hanna appeared to be intoxicated and had "bloodshot eyes and a flushed face," according to the arrest reports.

Hanna was unresponsive to initial requests from an investigator when approached, and continued "in his attempt to purchase a package of tobacco," the report states.

Selkirk man killed in rail yard accident

CSX officials and police investigating incident

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

Police and CSX officials have released the name of a 33-year-old Selkirk man who was fatally injured at CSX rail yards in Bethlehem.

Jared C. Boehlke died after being hit by a train on the evening of Sunday, March 10, at the rail yard where he worked. He was reportedly a member of the United Transportation Workers Union Local No. 212.

Bethlehem Police said the matter is under joint investigation between its department, CSX police, CSX safety personnel, the Federal Railroad Administration and OSHA.

"We received a call at approximately 6:42 on Sunday night for a man down," said Bethlehem Police Lt. Thomas Heffernan. "He was working on the line at the time."

CSX spokesman Bob Sullivan confirmed the incident and said a thorough investigation would be conducted before any details are released on the matter.

"It's currently under investigation," he said. "It's obviously a tragedy. ...I'm not getting into commenting or speculating until a full investigation is completed."

Sullivan did verify that Boehlke's family was notified immediately following the incident.

The different agencies will be conducting individual investigations, but will also be working together to piece together the incident.

Heffernan said that Boehlke may have been working on a coupling between two trains when the incident occurred and that he was still alive when emergency crews arrived on the scene. Albany Medical Center pronounced him dead upon his arrival to the hospital, according to police.

Sullivan and Heffernan said more details would be released to the public once a report is finalized.

According to W.C. Brady's Sons, Inc. in Cossackie, services were held for Boehlke on Friday, May 15, and he will be buried in the Stanton Hill Cemetery in Hannacroix. His obituary said he was employed as a conductor for the CSX railroad for the past eight years and described him as a man who was "extremely devoted to his family and his child."

Boehlke was a lifetime area resident.

Holiday parade planned

Memorial Day event gears up to honor American soldiers and commemorate Hudson quadricentennial

From there, the parade will turn right onto Adams Street before taking a final right onto Delaware Avenue and ending at the Bethlehem Memorial Park. At the park there will be a flag raising and wreath-laying ceremony, a prayer service and the playing of taps and the National Anthem.

There will also be a formal veteran's ceremony at the Bethlehem Cemetery in Delmar at 9:45 a.m.

Parade Chairman Don Geurtze said the public is invited to return to the American Legion Post for refreshments after the ceremony. Those interested in participating in the parade this year should contact Geurtze at 439-7848 or at the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard Post No. 1040, 16 West Poplar Drive, Delmar 12054.

This year's parade will also have a 400-year anniversary theme in commemoration of the quadricentennial celebration of Henry Hudson's exploration of the Hudson River and Samuel de Champlain's discovery of Lake Champlain. It also marks the 200-year anniversary of Robert Fulton's steamboat voyage from New York City to Albany.

Program plays it safe

Nationally recognized assault prevention program offered to GHS girls

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

As many young women receive acceptance letters to colleges around the state and country, the Guilderland Police Department and school district are teaming up to show them how to be safe when they're on their own and defend themselves against attackers.

A group of 39 Guilderland High School senior girls completed a nationally recognized rape-defense program Wednesday, May 13.

Officer Nick Ingle, one of the administrators of the Rape Aggression Defense program, said college-age women are especially vulnerable.

He said statistics show one out of four women 18 to 22 will be the victim of sexual assault or rape.

He said excessive alcohol and drug use and social and sexual encounters in college contribute to the problem.

"It's an excellent hunting ground for predators," Ingle said of the college scene.

RAD has been offered in the town before, but it is now being implemented through the school district, officials said.

"It is a program of realistic self-defense tactics and techniques for women. It is a comprehensive, woman-only course that begins with awareness, prevention, risk reduction and risk avoidance, while progressing on to the basics of hands-on defense training," according to information from town officials.

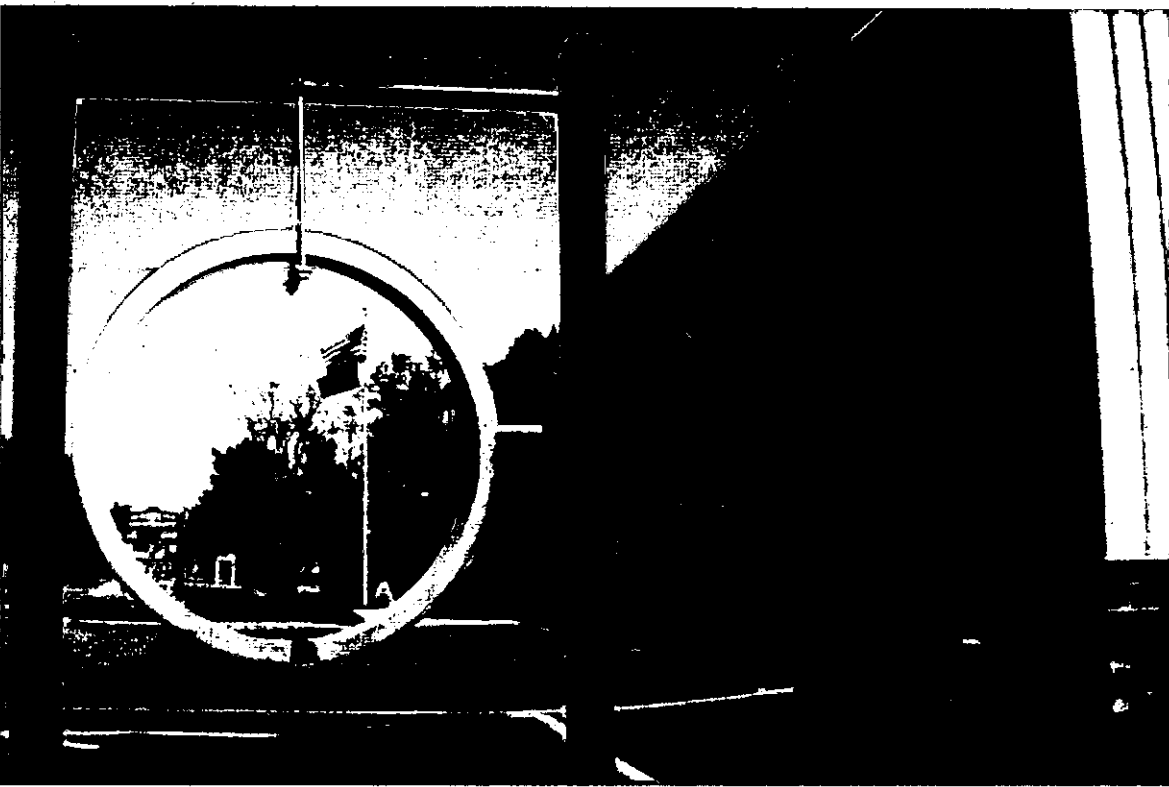

Ingle said risk reduction strategies are discussed before any self-defense is taught.

"Hopefully the [need] for self-defense will never happen in the first place," Ingle said.

The training course includes two, six-hour sessions and a "simulation" where the training is implemented.

"We teach them a lot of technique," Ingle said.

Ingle said the specifics of the simulation are kept confidential to preserve realism. Prior to going into the simulation, the training officers do not tell the trainees

The Guilderland Center Fire Department is the location of a training program teaching women how to defend themselves from assault. The nationally recognized program is being integrated into the physical education program at Guilderland High School.

Dan Sabbatino/Spotlight

what will happen.

"You're not going to have knowledge of an actual attack," Ingle said.

The program was brought to the schools after an assembly was held at Guilderland High School, where avoidance and rape prevention was discussed. The option to volunteer for the self-defense course was then offered, said Colette Gallagher, a teacher and senior advisor at Guilderland High School.

Gallagher also participated in the RAD program.

The program has been offered for five years to the general public, but this is the first time it is being integrated into the high school, Ingle said.

"This was a trial program, and they seemed to be very receptive. The school is going to implement that as part of its curriculum for senior girls," Ingle said.

It will be part of the physical education course curriculum.

"This is an important lesson in protection and safety for girls who are entering a new phase of their lives as college freshmen or entering the work force. We can send these young women into the next chapter of their lives more prepared for their safety and well-being. I am very excited to introduce the pilot program this spring and in September offer it to all high school seniors," said Guilderland Chief of Police Carol Lawlor in a written statement.

Gallagher said she recommends the training course to students, parents and teachers.

"I can't imagine anyone who would take this class and not think it was worthwhile," she said.

Gallagher credited the program for its realistic approach to rape prevention.

"Whatever situation you're going to be in is unknown. They prepare us for everything," Gallagher said. "It's scary, but it's empowering at the same time."

Gallagher said it is important for young girls going away to college to have the necessary information, skills and tools to make the best decisions.

"It's important for young women to be very cautious of the decisions they're making," she said. "They're much more accountable for their own health and safety than ever before."

Amelia Lochner, 18, is going to college next year, and she said being ready for anything is a priority.

She and her mother agreed it would be a good idea for her to take the self-defense program, Lochner said.

"You need to be prepared for a situation when it happens," she said.

Even though she considers herself to be in shape, the program and simulation were extremely strenuous, she said.

She plans to attend Maria College for two years, and then move to Syracuse for the remaining two years of her undergraduate degree.

Lauren Oliver, 17, also a senior at GHS, said most girls think "this can't happen to me," but the possibility is always there.

Oliver, who is planning to attend the University at Buffalo in the fall, agreed that "it's good to be prepared."

RAD classes are scheduled for faculty members for May 26 to 28 and June 1 to 4. Additional student classes are scheduled for Tuesday, June 16, and Wednesday, June 17.

Ingle said the possibility of a RAD program for boys dealing with anger issues and appropriate ways to deal with intimacy, as well as some self-defense, is in the infant stages and could be implemented sometime in the future.

Tackling clutter, one throat lozenge at a time

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR
news@spotlightnews.com

Every day on the way to and from work, the same guy lectures me about how my house is full of crap. He says I let my stuff own me instead of the other way around, and that I'd literally be able to breathe more easily if I had fewer belongings. There are moments when I want to kick him out of my car. I mean, it's not like he's even chipping in for gas. But, then, I know that much of what he says is true.

Anyone with a low tolerance for clutter would most likely faint if they toured the upstairs of my house. The "guest room" boasts not only a queen-size bed, nightstand, dresser and vanity desk, it contains newspapers, magazines, a tall stack of large-sized plastic storage bins, a short stack of medium-sized plastic storage bins, several boxes of photographs, an end table, a coffee table, an old laundry basket filled with I'm not sure what, a bag of plastic bags and a two-foot high ceramic giraffe. Every horizontal surface is covered, and there's a 2-by-3-foot mirror on the floor leaning against the wall. I should probably post a warning sign: "Objects around mirror are more numerous than they appear."

I've always been a pack rat, but the level of my clutter reached an all-time high about two years ago. My parents downsized from a four-bedroom house to a two-bedroom apartment. When that happened, a portion of the clutter they had amassed over half a century ended up in my home. Some of the items I took willingly (like assorted table linens and photographs), and some I took out of sheer guilt (like Nana's couch).

Luckily, my husband has a relatively high tolerance for clutter. Actually, he has a high tolerance for me, and clutter is part of the package. He's also both tall and agile, so he can easily step over and around things. Still, I'm pretty sure he wishes there was more open space in our house.

The secret for staying neat and organized, a college roommate once explained to me, is to live by the mantra, "A place for everything and everything in its place."

Unfortunately, the "place" for a lot of my things is "wherever they land," because there is no room for them to have an official "place."

Also, many of the things that do have an official "place" tend to enjoy extended stays on the kitchen counter or the dining room table or the family room floor. The things in my house like to mingle and socialize and hide under other things. They never take the initiative to get up and return on their own to their drawers, closets or bookshelves.

Over the years, I've made several attempts and spent many, many hours trying to make my home neater. What usually happens is that I end up just shifting the clutter around instead of reducing it. I sift through the papers and objects in a box, and a bunch of memories come spilling out. "Oh, it's my old thingamajig from grade school," or "This makes me think of the time when we did such-and-such."

I pull out a pair of rainbow-colored fuzzy dice. But I don't see just the dice, I see the light-green '77 Chevy Impala where they hung (briefly) from the rearview mirror. And I think about how that car had only AM radio. And how I took it to college my senior year at Binghamton. And off I go down memory lane.

I find an old Sucrets lozenges tin filled with tiny rubber bands in an assortment of colors. Do they even make Sucrets anymore? I see the tin and I think about the cherry-flavored lozenges that I'd suck on when I had a sore throat. I recall that they soothed the soreness only while they were in my mouth. Once they dissolved, I was left with a red tongue and the aching throat.

When I spot the tin, I know without opening it that the tiny rubber bands are inside. I have no memory of what the rubber bands were used for. I surmise that I used them to fasten the ends of hair braids. What other use could they have had? They are too small to hold a ponytail. And they aren't the kind you use with braces, although I probably still have a baggie of that type left over from when I got my teeth straightened in college.

Someone artistic could probably decorate and make some sort of use or display out of the cute tin. But I don't need the tin. I don't need the rubber bands either, especially since I don't even know what I'd do with them. And I've never enjoyed having a swollen, scratchy throat, so I don't know why I feel nostalgic about the memory of the cherry lozenges.

I confessed to my husband, "I came across a Sucrets tin filled with tiny rubber bands. I feel a connection with the tin, although I have no use for the rubber bands. But instead of throwing away any of it, I put the tin, contents intact, back in a larger cardboard box."

He said, "It's OK, the tin is a small item. It doesn't matter whether it's empty or full, it takes up the same amount of space either way."

I was surprised by his reply. I expected him to say, "Throw it out."

I know the tin is a small item, but small items band together and fill large boxes. Large boxes take up space. Lots and lots of attic, garage and basement space.

There are boxes in our basement we haven't looked through in years. I don't even know what's down there. But when I look through a box, the memories surface, and I can't let go of the items. The guy in my car, however, tells me that I should keep only things that I use or that add beauty to my home. The little tin doesn't meet either of those criteria.

No, I don't carpool with a neat freak. I'm actually the only person in my vehicle. The "guy" is just a voice coming from the CD player. He's the author of a book on getting rid of clutter.

I have begun a concerted sorting and purging effort. The CD provides extra motivation.

Non pack rats will still label my house as cluttered, although I prefer to say that it sports a "lived-in" look. And I will always have some crap in my home, but it'll be the crap that means the most to me. So, if you happen to stop by, don't mind the mess.

Guilderland school district honors employees

Ceremony recognizes 11 for dedication, hard work

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland Central School District honored district employees for dedication and service at the 32nd annual Employee Recognition Award ceremony, held Tuesday, May 13, at Guilderland High School.

The district honored 11 employees including teachers, administrators, custodial staff, a nurse and an aide at the event.

Superintendent John McGuire and Board of Education President Richard Weisz presented the awards to the recipients, and Lin Severance, assistant superintendent for human resources, hosted the ceremony.

"We're very proud of the recipients tonight," said Severance. "Each of the candidates exhibited strong leadership qualities and acted above and beyond what was asked of them."

Since its inception, the award has been given to more than 400 staff members for service, leadership, creativity, innovation and accomplishments, according to the district.

"I'm very proud. It's an honor to be recognized," said Nancy Marsh Haggerty, a sixth-grade special education teacher at Farnsworth Middle School who won the award.

"Every day is something new," she said of the excitement her work brings.

Al Martino, a foreign language supervisor in the district, was recognized for his six years of administration in the district.

"I'm surprised to get this award. ... I'm very proud to be employed by the Guilderland Central School District as an administrator," said Martino.

He said Guilderland has some of "the best programs, staff and students" he has seen, and he called it a privilege to work with all of them.

McGuire said Martino has been a staple in the foreign language department and has been a valuable source of information for years.

"Al Martino was, and is, the go-to person in language instruction and so much more," McGuire said.

Brian McCann, principal of Guilderland High School, recognized Mitch Hahn for his hard work in the district. Hahn is an English teacher who works toward anti-bias and diversity training and was also recently the recipient of the Capital District YMCA Outstanding Educator Award.

McCann said Hahn is an asset in the district for many reasons, but his rapport with the students is especially valuable.

"Students know him, they respond to him and they respect him," McCann said. "If we had a staff full of Mitch Hahns, we could move mountains."

Mike Schaffer, a physical education teacher, was presented his award by Jim Dillon, principal of Lynwood Elementary School. Schaffer showed hard work and dedication by handling the research, coordination and details of a building project sponsored by the Lowes Corporation. Dillon cited a number of activities Schaffer has coordinated, and contributed to, including coaching athletic teams and bus safety.

"He expanded the notion of physical education to life education," Dillon said.

Leo Guelpa, assistant supervisor for transportation, sat on the committee to choose the recipients.

"It's a great thing," he said. "It's always a joyous night."

The other recipients of the award were Linda Dagostino, a teaching assistant at LES; Mike Liegeot, a custodian at Westmere Elementary School; Tracy Martone, a teacher at WES; Pat Spawn, an aide and monitor at FMS; Mary Weeks, an art teacher at WES; Sandi Worona, a learning workshop teacher at Pine Bush Elementary School; and Mary Zwagerman, a nurse at Guilderland Elementary School.

Cessation group needs volunteers

The Seton Health Center for Smoking Cessation is seeking volunteer facilitators for its new program, "The Courage to Quit: Tobacco Recovery," for low-income and homeless individuals.

Volunteer facilitators are needed to conduct group counseling sessions for clients of homeless shelters, and others who are at-risk and who wish to stop smoking.

Those interested in volunteering for this program should possess some experience with adult education or counseling skills and be a non-smoker. Volunteers would be asked to commit to facilitating a group for one hour per week for six months. A stipend of $400 will be paid at the end of the six month commitment.

The Courage to Quit is being held at the Capital City Rescue Mission and the Sheridan Hollow Drop-in Center in Albany, the Schenectady City Rescue Mission, the YWCA and the Bethesda House Day Shelter in Schenectady, and Joseph House/Lansing Inn and the YWCA in Troy. Sessions at these sites are one hour, once each week.

To become a facilitator or for information, call Barbara Gaige or Debbie Keefe at 459-2550.

Matters of Opinion in the Spotlight

Don't put your money where your mouth is

This week, The Spotlight brings you the news that the Town of Colonie will lose its director of town operations to the Watervliet Arsenal. We wish him luck and are sure that he will be missed around town offices. We have one more thing to say to the town as it makes this transition:

Don't replace him.

When a person has a title like "director of town operations," you may wonder how the streets would possibly be plowed in the winter or how the parks would be maintained in the summer if Colonie were not to replace him or her. But the reality is, the majority of the director of town operations' responsibilities are in the field of communications — drafting press releases, handling reporters and the like — all for a hefty, $70,000-plus salary.

We at The Spotlight feel the town supervisor — the real director of town operations, as it were — should handle these duties, whether it is in the Town of Colonie or the towns of Clifton Park or Guilderland, which also employ public relations specialists, at salaries of more than $42,000 and $35,000, respectively.

Communication skills are a prerequisite of our elected representation, and personal interaction goes a long way in establishing a good working relationship with a constituency. (And, quite frankly, it pays more dividends around Election Day than any canned press release or slick mailer could hope to.)

The Spotlight understands that the demands on our town supervisors are great, but we refute the idea that any municipalities in our coverage areas are so large that they require going through two secretaries and a PR flack before you can get to an elected official. Governing requires interaction, not distance, and what is a press officer, for all the good that could be argued he or she brings to the town, but another level of bureaucracy that the public must go through?

So, supervisors of Colonie and other towns who employ "communications officers," "public relations specialists" or "directors of public affairs," the next time you're looking to save money, look at the name at the top of the correspondence that goes out of your office. If it isn't yours, consider getting rid of the person it belongs to.

School election results

Due to The Spotlight's production schedule, school board and budget-vote results for the municipalities covered in our Albany County publications (The Spotlight, The Colonie Spotlight and The Loudonville Spotlight) will be posted online at www.spotlightnews.com before inclusion in our May 27 print editions.

Results for the municipalities covered in our Schenectady and Saratoga County editions will be included the week of the vote, and will also be posted online.

Go Red for Women at luncheon

By BARBARA HESS
news@spotlightnews.com

The writer is the chief administrative officer of SEFCU and a resident of Niskayuna.

How could you save a life? You could become a doctor, a nurse or an EMT. You could learn CPR. But if you eat healthy food and exercise every day, you save your own life.

Another way to save lives is to fund the research and programs that lead to healthier, better lives in our community. At SEFCU, we believe in investing where we live, and that's why we are the Capital Region Goes Red Sponsor of the American Heart Association.

I agreed to be the chairwoman of the Go Red for Women Luncheon scheduled for Thursday, May 28, when I learned that heart disease is the No. 1 killer of women in America. I'm a woman; the majority of SEFCU's employees are women, and I have a teenage daughter. I want to be around for a good, long while, and I want all the women around me to live healthy, long lives.

I have learned a lot since agreeing to chair the luncheon. Cardiovascular disease kills about 460,000 women a year. Shockingly, 64 percent of women who die suddenly from coronary heart disease have no previous symptoms. Fortunately, cardiovascular disease is largely preventable.

I had heard that women's heart disease symptoms can be different than men's, but it's a wake-up call to meet someone whose heart attack was initially diagnosed as indigestion. I now know the warning signs of a heart attack and I hope you will learn them, too. They are:

- Chest discomfort. Most heart attacks involve discomfort in the center of the chest that lasts more than a few minutes, or that goes away and comes back. It can feel like uncomfortable pressure, squeezing, fullness or pain.

Point of View

- Discomfort in other areas of the upper body. Symptoms can include pain or discomfort in one or both arms, the back, neck, jaw or stomach.

- Shortness of breath. This feeling may occur with or without chest discomfort.

- Other signs of discomfort. These may include breaking out in a cold sweat, nausea or lightheadedness.

Women are somewhat more likely than men to experience some of the other common symptoms, particularly shortness of breath, nausea/vomiting and back or jaw pain.

I work in a credit union, so I work with numbers every day, but a new group of numbers has become familiar to me, and I hope you will learn more about these numbers as well:

- Blood pressure
- Blood sugar
- Total cholesterol
- LDL cholesterol
- HDL cholesterol
- Triglycerides
- Waist circumference

The American Heart Association's Web site, GoRedForWomen.org, will show you how those numbers relate to heart disease. The site will let you plug your numbers into a risk calculator to determine your chances of having a heart attack. The good news is that if the chances are high, you can make some changes that will help you lead a long and healthy life. If you're not sure where to start making lifestyle changes, GoRedForWomen.org has great information and advice about leading a healthier life.

Women are often the primary caregivers in their families — sometimes caring for aging parents as they raise their children and work. The same people who wouldn't dream of letting a child miss an annual physical are often guilty of doing just that for themselves. Please, take some time to take care of yourself.

In addition to caring for your family, take some time out to have some fun. Why not start with the Go Red for Women Luncheon? Find something red to wear, and head for the Desmond Hotel and Conference Center for a lunch much more elegant than the one your toddler will be having today, or the sandwich you'd eat while finishing up just one more thing at work. Schedule a few hours for yourself, and join us for the activities that make the Go Red for Women Luncheon so much more than a meal.

The day's agenda includes the following activities.

Albany Medical Center will be providing health screenings — come learn some of those critical numbers.

Allusions Hair and Nails will offer manicure touch-ups — red, of course!

You might find something you've always wanted at the silent auction.

Join one of our breakout sessions: "Relax and Restore: Fighting Stress Where it Hits" or "Feeding a Fast-Moving Family."

Benita Zahn, news anchor of WNYT News Channel 13, will moderate and be a panelist for the "Relax and Restore" session; she has also volunteered to the mistress of ceremonies for the luncheon.

Laura Daniels, co-host of B95.5's "Ric and Laura in the Morning" will moderate the "Feeding a Fast-Moving Family" session.

There will, of course, be a delicious and heart-healthy luncheon. Local florists have designed the beautiful centerpieces, which attendees will have the chance to win. Each guest will also receive a goody bag to take home.

We are honored this year to have Dawn Manogue tell her story of surviving heart disease, only to find out shortly afterward that her young daughter also had heart disease.

We'll see the strength of the women in our community when three female scientists talk about the work they're doing to improve heart health across the nation. Katharine Halligan and Michelle Lennartz both do research at Albany Medical Center; their former colleague Julia Brosnan will join them and talk about the work she now does at Pfizer, using research to create lifesaving medication.

The Go Red for Women Luncheon is a great example of the power of women. SEFCU has long known what a strong community the Capital Region is, and we are happy to support the American Heart Association as it works to fight heart disease in women. I hope that you will join me at this great event. It could be a great way to save a life — perhaps even your own.

The Go Red for Women Luncheon is set for Thursday, May 28, at the Desmond Hotel and Conference Center at 660 Albany Shaker Road in Albany. Registration starts at 10 a.m. Tickets are $100. For information or reservations, call Kelly Heaney at 869-4051.

SEFCU is the Capital Region Goes Red sponsor. Media sponsors are Spotlight Newspapers, Times Union, WNYT NewsChannel 13, B95.5 and Capital Region Living.

Garden Tour lets you do more with less

Editor, The Spotlight:

Bethlehem Garden Club's 13th Annual Garden Tour, Plant Sale, and Fine Gardening Raffle is on Wednesday, June 10. There are some changes this year to make it easier for people to do more activities with less time and money.

First, the price for advance tickets (available until Wednesday, June 3, at 439-9171 or BGCgardenTour2009@yahoo.com) has been rolled back to the 2004 rate. The cost of an advance ticket is $10. Tickets sold after June 3 and day-of-tour tickets are $15.

Second, the plant sale in the library lot on Borthwick will be open from 3 to 7:30 p.m., an hour before the garden tour begins, to allow attendees to shop for plants first and then take a leisurely stroll through the gardens. As usual, the plant sale requires no ticket to attend and is open to the public. It is a great place to shop for garden club member's plant divisions as well as unusual nursery-grown plants.

Third, the Fine Gardening Raffle (tickets available at the Plant Sale and on the Garden Tour) has been expanded to include garden items and gift certificates as well as the grand prize of at least 12 hours of fine gardening performed in your garden by club members on the date of your choice.

The Garden Tour continues the practice of reflecting the best of gardens in the Town of Bethlehem. There are large, medium, and small gardens with various styles and accessories. You loved last year's "clustered gardens" (park once, visit multiple gardens in the area), so we have selected several gardens in close locales.

Advance tickets may be redeemed at the Plant Sale as well as at the day-of-tour ticket locations (Price Chopper parking lots – not inside the store – in Slingerlands and Glenmont) from 4 until 6:30 p.m. on June 10. The gardens on the tour will be open from 4 until 8 p.m.

This is a wonderful evening to meet your neighbors, talk with the garden owners, see what can be done with landscaping, purchase some plants for your own yard, and perhaps win some garden articles for yourself. As always, the profits from the Garden Tour are used to create and maintain gardens around the town, and proceeds from the Plant Sale provide an educational grant awarded to a local elementary school for garden-related projects.

We hope to see you on Wednesday, June 10. Make it a party and carpool with your friends.

Marcy Corneil
chair, Garden Tour

BCS says 'thank you' to community

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Saturday, May 2, Bethlehem Children's School hosted its inaugural Day of Simple Giving.

This unique fundraiser supported over 20 different community charities and organizations in need, while raising money for the school.

Many thanks to the sponsors and donors of the event including: St. Sophia's, Brown McMahon and Weinraub, the Vascular Group, Friar Tuck, Eazy Lift and SEFCU. Donations of goods were provided by Hannaford and Price Chopper, Nicholls Supermarket, Hannafin Home Builders, Curtis Lumber, Hewitt's Garden Center, Verstandig's, Party Warehouse, Coca-Cola, Log Cabin Fabrics, Jewish World News and the Four Corners Luncheonette.

Many local businesses also supported us through advertising. Without the support of all these businesses, the event would not have been such a great success.

In addition to raising $11,000, BCS was able to support local community organizations with the following items created on the day: 78 dozen cookies; 60 pillow cases; four lap quilts; a quilt; 75 soups in a jar; 40 packs of play dough; 100 bird houses; and 70 plants in a pot.

In addition to these homemade items, we also collected four large boxes of toiletries; five boxes of children's books; loads of gems in the traveling bead bowl; and coins to purchase 60 CTDA bus passes for area shelter residents.

The material goods created on the day were distributed to many organizations, including Focus Food Pantry, Veterans Housing, City Mission, St. Catherine's Marillac Center, Habitat for Humanity, Restore, Five Rivers, Albany City Mission, Albany Medical Center, Ronald McDonald Room, Sheridan

Hollow Drop-In-Center, Albany Boys and Girls Club, Capital District Community Gardens, Habitat For Humanity, Interfaith partnership for the Homeless, and the Fresh Air program.

This extraordinary event harnessed the power of the local community to support each other and give generously, both in body and spirit.

Thank you to everyone who helped make this event successful.

Deb Monteith
director,

Bethlehem Children's School.

Bethlehem middle school grows its green image

Regional News Network looking for Northeast's 'greenest school'

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem Central Middle School is looking to become a lean, green, organic growing machine.

The school has recently garnered attention in its mission to bring eco-friendly initiatives into the classroom and freshly grown vegetables onto lunch trays. Bethlehem is one of four regional schools competing to become the Northeast's "greenest school" and most environmentally friendly.

The contest is being put on by the Westchester County-based Regional News Network (RNN), which sent a television crew to the middle school and will be featuring the four schools and their green initiatives on its Web site.

Bethlehem Middle School is being featured for its "kitchen garden," which will include organic vegetables to be served at the cafeteria.

The winner will be decided by the number of votes received in an online poll.

Voting begins Wednesday, May 20, and runs through Memorial Day on Monday, May 25. District officials and staff are urging parents and residents to get online and vote at www.rnntv.com/ion.php.

Bethlehem Middle School Assistant Principal Mark Warford said he is excited to be a part of such a contest and is even happier to see the excitement of the students to be involved.

"This year the district has really ramped up its environmental initiatives and its recycling," Warford said. "This contest is great because we have been working hard. We weigh all the paper we recycle and have gone back to metal flatware in the cafeteria, so there's no plastic utensils being thrown out."

The whole thing came about after Warford caught a downstate promotional ad on television.

"I called about it and ... they called us back and announced that we were one of four finalists," he said. "Then they sent down a TV crew to interview us about our garden and recycling programs."

Warford said the gardens are being installed, and the sod has already been removed and aged compost has been tilled into the ground. The district will be creating its own compost soon and will also be adding raised beds to the garden.

"Mr. Kleinke from the Kleinke farm has donated some well-aged compost for the garden," said Warford. The school's Parent Teacher Organization has played a key role in getting the program off the ground, according to Warford, and has helped the district secure 100 percent recycled lumber for the raised beds. The lumber is partly created from recycled car dashboards.

"If we win the contest, we'll get $5,000, which will go a long way for our programs," said Warford.

The school is hoping to start a garden club to incorporate the garden program into the curriculum and have students help plant, cultivate and harvest the crops, which will be used in their daily lunches.

"We're going to have a composter so we can compost some of the cafeteria's food waste, which will ultimately go back to the cafeteria from what we grow with it," Warford said. "The goal here is to make the kids aware of what goes into growing our food and of the importance of buying local."

The school is hoping to finish the garden by the end of June or beginning of July and a planting of fall crops such as tomatoes and peas can be started. Warford said the students would have enough room to provide the cafeteria with both spring and fall crops.

Superintendent Michael Tebbano said the contest is a great reflection of the district's commitment to the environment and the steps it is taking.

"We are excited about the many green initiatives taking place across our schools," he said. "This is an area where we will obviously continue to focus, particularly as it relates to saving money through efficiency and conservation and modeling good stewardship for our students as well as learning from them. We clearly benefit in this district and community from people with such a passion for these issues."

The other contestants in the running and their projects are: Ward Elementary School in New Rochelle (rain garden); Whisconier Middle School in Brookfield, Conn. (bat conservation project); and Briarcliff Manor High School in Briarcliff (recycling program).

Physics talk gets to heart of the anti-matter

Glenmont researcher to discuss the science in 'Angels & Demons'

The particle physics community is taking a walk down the red carpet and invites everyone to join in.

Sony Pictures Entertainment recently released "Angels & Demons," a motion picture based on Dan Brown's best-selling novel. Starring Tom Hanks and directed by Ron Howard, the film focuses on an apparent plot to destroy the Vatican using antimatter made at the Large Hadron Collider and stolen from the European particle physics laboratory CERN.

Through a series of public lectures, scientists are using this opportunity to tell the world about the real science of antimatter, the Large Hadron Collider and particle physics research. Across the United States and Canada, scientists from more than 30 colleges, universities and national laboratories will host public lectures as part of the "Angels & Demons Lecture Nights: The Science Revealed" event.

There will be a public lecture at the Bethlehem Public Library on Thursday, May 21, at 6:30 p.m. in the Community Room. Salvatore Rappoccio, a Glenmont research scientist who works at CERN and graduated from Bethlehem High School in 1996, will speak.

Worldwide, scientists working on experiments at the Large Hadron Collider will host lectures and other "Angels & Demons"- related events for press and the public. Lectures are planned at particle physics institutions across Europe, Asia, Central and South America.

More information about the series, including a list of lectures and local contacts, is available at www.uslhc.us/Angels\_Demons.

For more information about CERN, visit CERN's Web site at www.cern.ch.

Bethlehem Garden Club schedules tour and sale

On Wednesday, June 10, The Bethlehem Garden Club will hold its 13th annual Garden Tour from 4 to 8 p.m. A plant sale will be held in conjunction with the tour, beginning at 3 p.m. in the Bethlehem Public Library parking lot on Borthwick Avenue in Delmar to give tour-goers the opportunity to purchase plants before the event starts.

Advance tickets may be redeemed and day-of-tour tickets may be purchased at the plant sale or in the parking lot of Price Chopper plazas in Slingerlands or Glenmont.

Advance tickets can be purchased for $10 until Wednesday, June 3, by calling 439-9171 or e-mailing BGCGardenTour2009@yahoo.com. Tickets will cost $15 on the day of the tour.

Because of the positive comments about "clustered" gardens last year, where attendees could view several gardens at one general location, the garden club has continued that tradition, to save those viewing the gardens time, parking and gas.

The gardens represent a variety of sizes and types.

Fine gardening raffle tickets will be sold at the plant sale and near the gardens on the tour. The grand prize is a minimum of 12 hours of fine gardening with members of the club weeding, transplanting and improving the winner's yard. There are also prizes for gifts at local garden stores.

The profits from the plant sale fund an education grant awarded annually to a local elementary school project that is garden-related. The profits from the garden tour are used to establish and maintain public garden areas in the Town of Bethlehem.

The plant sale will run until 7:30 p.m. and feature divisions from members' gardens and plants selected from a local grower. There is no charge to attend the plant sale; it is open to the public. Offerings are grouped according to sun or shade requirements. Parking is available behind Town Hall.

He said the commercial zone, and a limit on the size of retail developments inside of it, is an important issue to him. He said a project to close the Youmans Road railroad crossing and construct an alternate route to cross it, and finding funding for development of new water districts, such as Johnson Road, are also priorities.

The town's Democratic Committee has not met yet to discuss its endorsement for this year's election, and will be hosting a party caucus to officially choose its candidate on Tuesday, June 23, said

Mike Mackey, the party chair and town attorney in New Scotland.

Conservative Party Chair Richard Stack said the party also endorsed Republican Chuck Voss, who sits on the planning board, and incumbent board member Doug LaGrange, a Republican, for Town Board.

Stack cited their stance on "big-box" development as the No. 1 reason for supporting them, and said Albany County Sheriff James Campbell, who is also seeking reelection this year, suspects that an additional four sheriffs would need to be hired to handle a big-box retail development.

Stack said incumbent Peg Neri, a Democrat, did not receive the Conservative Party's endorsement because of her stance toward big-box retail development. Neri did not support a 50,000 square foot-size cap for retail buildings in New Scotland.

Daniel Mackay, a newcomer planning to run on the Democratic and Independence lines, did not seek the Conservative Party's endorsement and did not interview with them, but noted that LaGrange and Voss are the "sound planners" and deserve the Conservative endorsement.

"They're the two best candidates on that side of the ledger. It's entirely appropriate that Doug and Chuck run on the Conservative line," Mackay said.

Mackay is a founding member of New Scotlanders for Sound Economic Development, an advocacy group that supports a 50,000-square-foot cap on retail buildings in the town of New Scotland.

He added that the Democratic Caucus will be a "very important event" and he is looking forward to it.

Attempts to contact Neri, LaGrange and Voss before press time were unsuccessful.

IN BRIEF

Clowns to join church service

"The King's Clown Troupe" will join the 9:15 a.m. service at the First United Methodist Church-Voorheesville on Sunday, June 7.

All are welcome. The church is at 68 Maple Ave. For information, call the church office at 765-2895.

Knox group to open homestead

The Knox Historical Society will open the historic Saddleire Homestead for the 2009 season on Monday, May 25, at 11 a.m.

Traditional music will be played from the porch, rain or shine, until the Knox parade steps off, and ancient fife and drum music will be played immediately following the memorial ceremony.

The Saddleire Homestead, commonly known as the Knox Museum, contains many exhibits depicting early life in the Pill Box Capital of the world.

The Saddleire Homestead is on Route 156 in Knox, next door to the fire department. Traditional music will be played from the porch each Sunday from 2 to 4 p.m. during the summer, rain or shine. For more information, call 872-1199.

Home Performance with ENERGY STAR®

Ensure Quality Improvements with a BPI-Accredited Contractor

Many New Yorkers are making energy efficiency improvements in their home to save money and take advantage of the latest rebates and incentives in the marketplace.

The first and most important step to saving energy in your home is to schedule an energy assessment through New York's Home Performance with ENERGY STAR® Program. Administered by the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority (NYSERDA), this Program has already helped more than 24,000 households save more than $16,800,000 in energy costs annually.

Using qualified contractors accredited by the Building Performance Institute (BPI), the Home Performance with ENERGY STAR Program provides a comprehensive assessment of your home to determine where you're losing energy while also checking for certain health or safety features. Only BPI-Accredited contractors can provide you with incentives through NYSEDA's Program. If you are counting on NYSEDA's financial incentives to complete your project, be sure to verify that your contractor is participating in NYSEDA's Home Performance with ENERGY STAR Program by logging on to www.GetEnergySmart.org or calling 1-877-NY-SMART.

What sets NYSEDA's award-winning program apart from many others, is the fact that participating contractors must first be accredited by the BPI, a national organization that sets the standard for building performance. New York currently has more than 150 participating BPI-Accredited contractors in the Home Performance with ENERGY STAR Program. BPI-Accredited contractors are certified in building performance science, a systematic approach to improving the whole house, not just a part of it. Whole-house building performance incorporates energy efficiency, comfort, durability, and health and safety into one comprehensive package.

Only participating
BPI-Accredited contractors can provide you with incentives through NYSEDA's Program.

If you want detailed advice on ways to save energy in your home, consider having a professional energy assessment. Many experts agree that it is best to hire a trained professional who is certified by an independent credentialing organization such as BPI to conduct a complete assessment.

In addition to assessing a home's energy efficiency, participating BPI-Accredited contractors may install recommended improvements, subcontract the work, or refer the customer to another BPI-accredited, participating contractor. For quality assurance purposes, participating contractors are subject to random third-party inspection of their projects to ensure that their work adheres to industry standards and equipment is properly installed. Customers can be assured that their contractors meet high standards, that the work scope is reviewed, and, in some instances, the work is inspected to ensure the job is completed properly.

During the assessment, the participating contractor will test the home for air leakage using a blower door and will look for opportunities to improve the home's insulation and overall building envelope. The windows, appliances, and lighting will be assessed. The contractor also will test combustion appliances such as heating equipment, ovens, and water heaters to make sure dangerous combustion gases like carbon monoxide are not leaking into the home. In several cases, life threatening carbon monoxide levels have been identified and immediately addressed by a BPI-Accredited contractor.

After the assessment, the contractor will provide a report with recommended health and safety and energy-efficiency improvements, as well as the cost of making those improvements. The contractor will also identify the financial incentives available through NYSEDA. In addition to attractive financial incentives, this program can reduce your home's energy use by up to 40 percent.

Owners of one- to four-family homes in New York who receive electric service from Consolidated Edison Company of New York, Inc., Orange and Rockland Utilities, Central Hudson Gas & Electric, National Grid, New York State Electric and Gas (NYSEG) and Rochester Gas and Electric (RG&E), are eligible for the program. Income-eligible households may also receive grants for up to 50 percent of the cost of the work; more in some areas.

If energy costs have you digging deep into your wallet, look closely at the Home Performance with ENERGY STAR Program. Only participating, BPI-Accredited contractors are eligible for NYSEDA incentives, so make sure your contractor is participating. To find a participating BPI-Accredited contractor near you, visit www.GetEnergySmart.org or call toll-free 1-877-NY-SMART.

UAlbany to host Kidney Walk

The National Kidney Foundation of Northeast New York's annual Kidney Walk will take place at the University at Albany on Sunday, June 7.

Registration begins at 9 a.m.; the walk will start along the university's track and football field at 11 a.m.

Activities include a kid's zone with a carnival area and prizes, Kizmet the Kidney Clown and her clown friends, food and refreshments, and a celebrity dunking booth featuring CBS 6 morning news anchor/reporter Carey Proctor. B95.5's Ric Mitchell will emcee the event.

The Albany Kidney Walk is designed to raise awareness and funds for important community programs, such as free kidney disease screenings, patient assistance programs, public education, and healthcare advocacy.

Five Rivers to hold fungi program

Five Rivers Center will hold a program on common fungi Saturday, June 6, at 2 p.m.

Center naturalists will lead an afternoon walk, emphasizing the importance of fungi in the life of the forest community. Participants will learn to identify common fungi and understand some of the rich folklore associated with these organisms.

The program is free and open to the public. The center is at 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar.

For information, call Five Rivers at 475-0291.

G'land summer programs make for happy campers

Town's parks and rec department offers a number of enrichment opportunities

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland Parks and Recreation Department is offering half-day camp and a number of enrichment programs throughout the town, and there is still time for residents to sign up their children.

The Tawasentha Summer Adventure Day Camp begins on Monday, June 29, and runs for three, two-week sessions until Friday, Aug. 7, according to information from the Parks and Recreation Department.

"We have plenty of availability," said Dennis Moore, director of the Parks and Recreation Department.

The camp costs $99 for a two-week session. The fee includes busing to and from camp, and the option to sign up for swim lessons taught by certified swim instructors. Hours are from 8 to 11:45 a.m., according to the town.

Moore said parents are attracted to the camp because children are assigned one counselor for the whole program, and they build a relationship with that counselor. Counselors range in age from high school to college to adults. The summer programs offered by the town include sports, recreation, canoeing, rock climbing and other activities, Moore said.

The Parks and Recreation Department is also offering a number of athletic and enrichment camps at other locations, such as DiCaprio Park and school facilities in town.

Enrichment camps often have an educational element to them, such as reading, science or math. Moore said SAT and grammar boot camps are offered, as well as archeology programs. He said one summer program outlines American history through toy dolls, and a comic book camp allows kids to do something fun while reading.

"That's why a lot of parents are interested," Moore said. "We've added those over the years."

Deb Escobar, a teacher at Farnsworth Middle School, said it is important to keep children physically and mentally active over the summer.

"It keeps their minds sharp over the summer — keeps them reading and thinking," Escobar said.

She said summer is a good time for kids to explore academic interests through enrichment camps because it gives the students time to investigate and learn.

There is a list of day camps and enrichment camps available to students in Guilderland at www.myteacherpages.com/webpages/fmsenrichment.

Moore said camps now are different than the "playground" type summer programs kids were used to in the past.

Town residents can also pick up season passes for the pool, park stickers and sign up for pavilion rentals in the Parks and Recreation office located at 181 Route 146.

For information, call the office at 456-3150 or visit www.guilderlandrec.com to view the 2009 Spring and Summer Recreation camps and register.

Stewart's part of No. 1 Pizza, pizza Beth condo deal

PDD application integrates a commercial project into residential development

By JARRETT CARROLL
carrollj@spotlightnews.com

A Planned Development District application for a project on Russell Road is seeking to build 56 condominiums and incorporate a Stewart's shop in North Bethlehem near a residential park.

Developers said the addition of a store, along with some sidewalks, would create a type of "mom and pop store" atmosphere and provide for non-motorized access to basic goods.

Daniel Hershberg of Hershberg and Hershberg, an engineering and land-surveying firm, is representing the applicant and made an initial presentation to the town's Planning Board on Tuesday, May 5.

Plans call for creating a PDD, which was initially reviewed by the Town Board and sent back to the Planning Board for a recommendation, building the condos in eight units and constructing a 2,900-square-foot "non-traditional" Stewart's on the corner of the lot at 572 Russell Road.

"It will not be your standard Stewart's," Hershberg said, adding the project avoids disturbing any of the wetlands. The project is proposed for the corner of Krumkill and Russell roads, but the traffic impact is only expected to delay stops at the intersection by two seconds, according to Hershberg.

"Stewart's would be anxious to start as soon as they can hit the ground," he told board members about developing the 11.5-acre site.

Michael Morelli, the town's director of planning and economic development, said the project has a ways to go before reaching approval for the 1.9 acres of build out. Developers still have to conduct an archeological and historical study of the site and produce a more detailed elevation plan, among other requirements, he said.

Stormwater is another issue being discussed, as there will be two different water runoff systems for the residential and commercial portions of the site. The condos will have above-ground water retention and the Stewart's will have a type of subterranean catch basin.

The unique design of the Stewart's caught the attention of several board members.

"It is the façade that they are changing. They have a similar looking one in Manchester, Vt.," Morelli said. "But it's a little different because they don't allow a canopy over the gas stations, but in this part of the country it can be somewhat of a liability not to have one."

Hershberg joked that apparently it was always sunny in Manchester.

Tom Lewis, a Stewart's representative, said the only difference between the proposed Russell Road location and an ordinary location would be the façade, roof and entrance. He stressed that the store would not be like the small-sized Stewarts on the corner of Russell Road and Western Avenue in Albany.

He said the company would "certainly want to work with the town's boards" on the project and specifications.

When board member Kate

Powers asked Hershberg what the proposed price range of the condo would be, he said it is hard to propose a concrete price.

"So much is depending on the break out of the economy right now," he said. "If I had to guess today, I would say between $240,000 and $325,000."

Board member John Smolinsky asked about the land division between the residential site and the commercial site with the same PDD application. Morelli said a PDD does not have to be a single type of development.

"There has been a lot of development in the North Bethlehem area in the last 10 or 15 years, primarily residential," he said. "The applicants are really quite flexible and are willing to work with us here."

Morelli said despite all of the residential development in the area, there is little in the way of local business to serve to people living there.

National EMS Week – May 17-23, 2009

On the occasion of National Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week, we thank the dozens of hometown heroes who provide emergency ambulance service in the Town of Bethlehem. It is our privilege to salute the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs), Advanced EMTs, ambulance drivers, and firefighters of Delmar Volunteer Fire and EMS and Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance.

The residents of our community benefit every day from the skill and commitment of our EMS volunteers who are dedicated to saving lives and limiting suffering. They are selfless professionals who dedicate the time, day after day, to respond to the emergency needs of their neighbors.

Together, in partnership with our colleagues at the Albany County Sheriff's Department EMS Unit, these caring men and women answered more than 3,000 calls for medical assistance in the Town of Bethlehem during 2008. In addition, the volunteers dedicate tens of thousands of hours each year to being on-call for medical emergencies and accidents, practicing their skills, taking training classes, mentoring new members, and maintaining equipment.

Our community is remarkably fortunate to have so many individuals that are committed to caring for their neighbors. Please join us in saluting our community's selfless EMS professionals.

Sincerely,

The Directors and Officers of Delmar Volunteer Fire and EMS and Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance

Steven Kroll, Assistant Chief for EMS
Gregory Gould, Chief
David Scoons, Chairperson
Delmar Fire and EMS

Rod Raynor, Captain
Wenda Raynor, President
Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance Service

Delmar Volunteer Fire and EMS is made up of more than 85 dedicated men and women who provide round the clock fire protection and ambulance service for the communities of Delmar, Elsmere, and Slingerlands. Bethlehem Volunteer Ambulance provides ambulance service for the communities of Glenmont, Selkirk, and South Bethlehem 24 hours a day.

Guilderland Center hamlet study under way

Town looking to improve sidewalks, traffic conditions

By DAN SABBATINO
sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

A grant provided by the Capital District Transportation Committee is funding a study of the Guilderland Center hamlet, which is seeking improved sidewalks and transportation, according to officials.

A workshop was held on Thursday, May 7, to discuss the matter.

"It was a very well attended meeting, which we're very pleased about," said Mike Welti, of Behan Planning and Design, which was hired to conduct the study.

He said the meeting helped officials gain a full understanding of the concerns of the people in the hamlet area.

Welti said the speed of the traffic, trucks and buses in the hamlet have become an issue, and a committee has been set up to begin the preliminary stages of studying traffic patterns and sidewalks.

Another workshop is scheduled for September, Welti said, and another one will likely follow that.

He said traffic engineers Creighton-Manning are also working on the project, as well as the Capital District Transportation Committee, which used a $32,000 grant to hire Behan.

"The intersection of School Road and Route 146 is a problematic intersection," Welti said. He said residents have complained that traffic prevents them from moving in and out of their driveways.

Despite the issues, though, he said the residents of the hamlet were positive and optimistic, and they exhibited strong community ties.

"It is evident that these people really care about where they live," Welti said.

Chris O'Neill, a senior transportation planner at the CDTC, said better crosswalks in the hamlet are also being studied.

He agreed with Welti that sidewalks and traffic flow were issues that need to be addressed.

The CDTC, Behan and Creighton-Manning will be analyzing traffic patterns to determine ways to make the hamlet more efficient. O'Neill said $681,000 of federal funding has been allocated for the sidewalk improvement for the sidewalk at the Route 146 and School Road intersection.

O'Neill added that although there was not much discussion at the Thursday, May 7, workshop dealing with improving the hamlet, a potential residential development still in the works, Dutchman Acres, is being accounted for.

"As developments may occur in Guilderland, we look for what kind of vision residents have," O'Neill said.

He said traffic studies would take into account additional cars and trucks that could be generated by the development.

He said that the industrial park and school district are stakeholders and are being included in discussions. Guilderland High School and a bus garage are located in the hamlet.

Town Supervisor Ken Runion said it is important to have planning in place so when money becomes available for the projects in Guilderland Center, the work is ready to be done.

"It makes your grant proposal much stronger if you have a plan," he said.

Runion said it could be years before the funding becomes available for many projects, but stimulus money could help speed that process up.

He said the town has contributed $6,000 to the effort.

"We want the residents to plan their community," Runion said.

Cross-state bike tour planned for July

The 11th annual cross-state bicycle tour along the Erie Canal, Cycling the Erie Canal, is scheduled for July 12 to 13.

Cycling the Erie Canal is an eight-day, 400-mile, recreational bicycle tour from Buffalo to Albany along the legendary Erie Canal.

The bicycle tour passes through historic canal villages and rural countryside. About three-quarters of the ride is off-road, on the traffic-free Canalway Trail; the rest is on rural roads with good shoulders.

Last year's Cycling the Erie Canal drew riders from 38 states. Over one-third of the riders were from New York.

Included in the $525 fee for Cycling the Erie Canal are camping accommodations every evening with showers and toilet facilities; eight breakfasts and six dinners; two refreshment stops daily stocked with fruit, snacks and beverages; entertainment and historical presentations each evening; guided tours of the Canal, historic sites, museums, and other attractions; T-shirt and water bottle; sag wagon and mobile mechanical support; baggage transport; daily maps and cue sheets; and marked routes.

Two weekend ride options are available, from Buffalo to Pittsford on July 11 to July 13 and from Canajoharie to Albany on July 17 to July 19. A shuttle will be available at the beginning of the ride to transport riders and their bicycles to Buffalo. Non-cycling friends and family of riders with their own transportation are welcome. Youths under 18 pay a half-price rate.

Funds raised will help support Parks and Trails New York's trail programs, including its work on the Canalway Trail. When complete, the 524-mile Canalway Trail will be the longest intra-state multi-use trail system in the nation.

The "Sweet" Life: Nadja Piatka finds success through adversity

By KAREN ZALEWSKI-WILDZUNAS
Senior Vice President
KeyBank N.A.

Nadja Piatka's life changed forever the moment she and her daughter hid under a table in their house to avoid being seen by a bill collector knocking at the door. For the single mother of two, it was a humiliating moment that gave her the resolve to take a $100 investment and grow it into a multimillion dollar food company supplying some of the world's biggest companies—Subway, McDonald's, Sodexo and many others.

Since then, Piatka has not looked back, and she has not backed down. She competed against corporate giants, and she won. She battled cancer, and she survived. And the story she has told to America's most popular entertainment shows, including the Oprah Winfrey Show, Today and The Big Idea with Donny Deutsch, she will tell to women of the Capital Region as this year's keynote speaker at the Eighth Annual Key4Women Forum, "Now Is Not the Time to Retreat," which is being held on June 5 at the Glen Sanders Mansion in Scotia.

Here Piatka shares some of her thoughts about staying positive in a down economy, overcoming adversity and growing a successful business from a $100 investment.

Karen ZW: The title of your presentation is "Now Is Not the Time to Retreat." Can you talk about what that means for you and for the women you will be speaking to at this year's Key4Women Forum?

Nadja Piatka: A lot of people are scared right now. There is so much uncertainty and in the search for answers it's easy to be influenced by the beating of the drums telling us how bad it all is. It's become impossible to read a newspaper or turn on the television without hearing how terrible things are. It can be demoralizing, and I believe it affects the way people think and feel. So the message is to keep a positive attitude, because if you're going to sell your product, services or business, you need to be positive.

I also think it's important not to roll over and give up when things get hard because adversity is an opportunity to discover your strengths. Things are going to get better, and what you do now positions you for success when they do. Thomas Edison said it so well: "If we all did the things in life that we are truly capable of, we would literally astound ourselves." But if we don't dig, if we don't challenge ourselves in difficult times, we will never get there.

KZW: You went through your own adversity to get to where you are. In fact, there was a turning-point moment for you, when things go so bad that you knew you needed to take charge of your life. What happened?

NP: I was a divorced mother of two with no income, no money and no training. In life, we have embarrassing moments. They're sometimes funny. We talk about them. Then there are humiliating moments. We don't talk about them. They are not funny. And when you have a humiliating moment in front of your child, there is nothing worse, because they are part of it. My moment was when a bill collector came. I had a drill. When they would come I would hide under the table, which was under the window, so that they would peer around, not see anything and eventually leave.

One day a bill collector came and my daughter was home for lunch. So I said to her, "Veronica, let's get under the table. There's a bill collector." And I remember, we were on the floor, nose to nose, hands to hands, and I made her sit with me for 15 minutes. I'll never forget the way I felt, the way she looked at me, and I decided no one was going to make me feel this way ever, ever again.

KZW: So you resolved to make a change. But finding a job wasn't easy?

NP: I was out of work for a long time. I sent out 30 resumes and only got one interview. It was a dreadful interview. Really. I decided that the only person who was going to hire me was me. I had a passion for baking, and I love sweets. I thought there was room for guilt-free options.

KZW: Yet you had no business experience? How did you build such a successful company?

NP: I just started working. I was down so far that I had nowhere to go but up. And I think that's the lesson. You don't need a lot. I had $100. Too many people wait for things to be perfect, to have all the assets they think they'll need. Also, there's not as much to fear as people may think. The terrible outcomes we imagine happening if we fail aren't really so terrible. I never could have imagined losing my beautiful house, but I did, and it wasn't as bad as I thought it would be. The fear was worse than the reality. It goes back to adversity. Going through it takes away a lot of fear. You realize you can dig in or give in.

KZW: I think it's easy for people to see stories like yours and say, "I can bake. How did she get so lucky?" But you didn't get lucky. You were passionate, disciplined and committed.

NP: There really aren't any overnight success stories. I started by working at 4 A.M. in my kitchen. Did I want to? No. But I had to. It was hard work. Eventually, I contracted a local bakery to do my baking and deliveries for me. That's when it became a different situation. I realized the power of me. I started working on the business instead of working in the business.

Nadja Piatka will be the keynote speaker at the Eighth Annual Key4Women Forum, "Now Is Not the Time to Retreat," on Friday, June 5, at the Glen Sanders Mansion in Scotia. To register to attend visit www.Key.com/womensforum or contact Francine Yanulavich, Marketing, KeyBank, 518-257-8838 or fran\_yanulavich@keybank.com. For more information on Nadja Piatka visit www.nadjafoods.com, her company web site, or www.ultimategirlsgetaway.com, the Web site for The Ultimate Girls Getaway, a vacation event she plans for the girl in every woman.

KZW: You have made appearances on Oprah and The Big Idea. On both shows you talked about the importance of having a passion for what you do. Why is passion so important?

NP: I believe to be successful you have to be passionate about what you do, especially in a recession, when things get hard and people get discouraged. Passion is what gets you through it, because if you love what you do you can still be enthusiastic about it even when things are bad. Enthusiasm is contagious. It will make you stand apart from the competition.

KZW: You've been able to build a life by embracing your passion. You have shared your worst and best moments with your daughter. In a way, you've come full circle together. What does this mean to you?

We really have come full circle. She is graduating with her MBA and will be working with me full time. It is the most rewarding thing for me. The bill collector experience was something we didn't really talk about, but years later I was being honored as a Woman of Vision at a luncheon, and my daughter was there, and I looked at her and said, "Veronica, today we're sitting at the table instead of under it."

KZW: What advice do you have for other women?

NP: See adversity as an opportunity to discover your strengths. Do what you know and love. Be creative and diversify. Take your product where it fits. And remember: you're never defeated until you decide you are.

Bethlehem library to display large-scale art quilt

"Adriaen and Mahican," a large-scale art quilt by fiber artist Estelle Kessler Yarinsky, depicts the life and work of Adriaen van der Donck, who from 1641 to 1645 managed the van Rensselaer lands that became present-day Albany and Rensselaer. The quilt is on display at Bethlehem Public Library this month.

Van der Donck was keenly interested in the flora, fauna and Native American language and culture of the Hudson Valley and "the river that flows both ways." His lively book, A Description of the New Netherlands, provided the impetus for Yarinsky's quilt.

Yarinsky's work has been shown at many exhibits in the Capital District and around the country.

Trained as a commercial textile designer at the Fashion Institute of Technology in New York City, Yarinsky also excels in silkscreen techniques, woodblock printmaking, and life drawing. She has resided in the Albany area for more than 40 years.

How will the loss of funding affect private schools?

By Zach Lewis

newsroom@cnylink.com

The current strain of the economy is not only affecting people, but businesses as well. And, a wealthy business that has been hit hard by the American economic slowdown is education, especially public and private colleges and universities.

A national trend is showing that college wealth and endowments are steadily dwindling. Not only are big-name, national institutions like Harvard reporting financial losses, but regional colleges are as well.

Few schools are giving exact numbers, but University of Rochester is reporting that their endowments have dropped by 25 percent since June of this year, and locally, colleges are not fairing well either.

Colgate University's Manager of Media Communications Anthony Adornato said that as of late October, Colgate's endowment has dropped nearly 11 percent or $75 million.

"Similar to our peer colleges and universities," Adornato said, "our endowment has lost significant market value throughout 2008. A lower endowment market values will require Colgate to, at the very least, substantially reduce the annual growth rate in endowment spending in 2009-10."

An endowment, which is primarily money donated to a college, will normally fund student scholarships, building projects, creating new academic programs and also help to keep tuition somewhat low.

And, when endowments drop, so do these projects and programs.

Recently, President of Colgate Rebecca Chopp outlined her college's line of defense against the economic downturn in two press releases viewable on Colgate's Web site.

In what she calls "immediate measures," Chopp lists four ways she is planning on combating financial issues.

First, Colgate plans to "substantially reduce next fiscal year's operating budget allocation to capital projects." In doing this, they will significantly reduce renovation and maintenance of the college.

Second, the president has asked "all deans and vice presidents to identify five percent savings in their operating budgets from 2009-10." This would give Chopp an idea of what cuts she can make without severely impacting Colgate's "educational mission."

Third and fourth, Chopp will now review and approve "vacant non-faculty positions" before there is permission for a search. And, along with strict hiring approval, the press release states that, "while Colgate remains committed to offering appropriate and competitive compensation, we are now in a time where we must be prudent with our resources even in compensation."

Cazenovia College, like its Colgate neighbor, has been reducing costs to deal with the economy as well. Although Cazenovia did not mention hiring freezes, Cazenovia College President Mark J. Tierno did mention reduction of travel, cutting significant purchases and holding off on some capital improvement projects as a few of their outlines, to stay afloat in the diving economy.

And, again like Colgate, Cazenovia has been dealing with their endowment losing its value, too.

"At the start of the academic year, [our endowment] was $30 million," Tierno said, "Now, the endowment value has been fluctuating between $20 million and $25 million—depending on the performance of the market on a particular day."

"The instability of the market is directly impacting the value of our endowment every day."

Although it is state-assisted and has considerably cheaper tuition than the private colleges, Morrisville State College has been forced to absorb approximately $2 million or 10 percent in cuts for the 2008-09 budget year according to Director of Public Relations and Government Affairs Jessica Decerce.

Decerce says to deal with these cuts, Morrisville has taken a few actions to save money.

A hiring freeze was put into action that has held 15 positions vacant so far, reductions were made to departmental budgets, limits have been put on travel, they postponed equipment purchases, and, to save on heating costs, all thermostats have been turned down two degrees.

"Our main goal in dealing with these budget cuts is to protect the students by preserving the quality of their Morrisville experiences, both inside and outside of the classroom," Decerce said.

Unlike its competing private colleges, Morrisville endowments are sufficiently diversified to protect against major losses, and according to Decerce, there has been no major affect on their endowment despite the hard economic times.

However, the State University of New York, which is the main resource for the nation's largest comprehensive system of public higher education, has had to take in approximately $210 million in cuts throughout its 64 dispersed campuses.

And, to deal with these cuts, the SUNY Board of Trustees has voted and passed to increase tuition to $620 a year, beginning with a $310 increase for the Spring 2009 semester.

"We realize New York State is facing an unprecedented economic crisis," Decerce said, "and we are willing to make—and have already made—sacrifices for the general good; however, those sacrifices should not come at the expense of New York state students."

Unlike the normally steady tuition costs of state schools like Morrisville, Colgate increases its tuition about five percent from year-to-year, but now with the sliding economy it is uncertain how much more it will rise.

"It's unclear how the current economic downturn—and the subsequent impact on Colgate's endowment—will affect tuition for the next academic year," Adornato said. "The economic news changes daily, and we must have time to factor in the significant efforts we are making to alleviate budget pressures."

Ask the expert

Mistakes to avoid in the college application process

1. Believing it's much harder to get into college than ever before.

Of the 2,500 colleges and universities nationwide, only 150 accept less than 50%. Most colleges accept 7 out of 10 applicants.

2. Believing the more well-known or selective a college is, the better that college is.

3. Not doing careful self assessment and research.

The key is to find a school that is a "good fit."

4. Believing you can control the outcome of the admissions process at very selective colleges.

5. Not viewing all your choices as "first choices."

Build a college list from the bottom up, not from the top down.

6. Not understanding how financial aid works.

Parents should understand the difference between "need-based aid" and "merit aid. Need options require that students applying for grants or loans to make up the difference between tuition costs and what they can afford.

Merit involves the school's financially supporting a student it desires.

7. Procrastination.

It makes the process worse, because there is less time for research and preparation for strong applications.

8. Failing to keep the college process in perspective.

Admission is not an evaluation of someone's worth or potential success.

The Meaning of Populism in Difficult Times

By Richard C. Iannuzzi

The rise of populism – when ordinary people rise up against their society's elite – seems to be an explanation and a defense for almost anything these days.

In political circles, the "left" credits a popular uprising for sweeping Barack Obama into the White House, while conservatives on the right see a populist movement rising up against the new administration, big government and crushing taxes.

On Wall Street, populist rage is used to justify the anger over bonuses paid with federal bailout money while that same rage is why thousands tossed copies of the stimulus legislation overboard at Boston-Tea-Party-like events.

Populists on the right want to negate union contracts; populists on the left want to negate the contracts of top executives.

Anger, rage, wrath and fury seem to be the order of the day as Americans try to cope with an economy that has eliminated hundreds of thousands of jobs, evaporated retirement savings and crushed the dreams of so many. Mass enthusiasm for striking out against someone – anyone – seems very appealing.

How much of that came into play last month, when Jiverly Wong walked into the American Civic Association building in Binghamton and took the lives of 13 innocent people before committing suicide?

In a rambling letter to a local television station, Wong spoke of losing his job and struggling to find employment because he struggled with weak English skills. He claimed the police were harassing him and that the government-funded unemployment system cheated him.

Was this senseless act symptomatic of the current anger in society? Was it populist rage giving rise to violent behavior? And, what about the gruesome killing of five children by their father in Washington, or the killing of three police officers in a domestic dispute in Pittsburgh? Both of these horrifying acts of violence occurred within days of the Binghamton tragedy.

Do these violent acts reflect how individuals too often respond to far-reaching changes in society that they just can't understand?

If so, then it's arguable that populist outrage against changes demanded during the civil rights movement led to the murder of Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. 41 years ago. Or, that the populist support for Robert F. Kennedy as he spoke for the growing discontent for the war in his time and the injustices in society, led to his assassination only two short months later.

For some, blaming populist rage might be a plausible explanation. It certainly answers nagging questions about "why" and allows guilt to be spread broadly – and diluted neatly.

But, fortunately, there's another side, including the historic events following the assassinations of Martin Luther King and Robert Kennedy. The social gains realized have not been equaled since. Overwhelmingly, people – populism – responded in ways that affirmed the lives of those great leaders.

Richard C. Iannuzzi is president of the 600,000-member New York State United Teachers

In the same way, the good people of Binghamton – and around the state and country – responded with caring, sympathy and understanding to this most recent tragedy. Their generosity and support reaffirm the lives of those lost – immigrants trying to better their lives to become fully productive players in the American dream and a teacher, a NYSUT member, who was trying to help these hard working individuals become part of that American dream.

In a democracy, populism is a powerful tool. It can have devastating results or it can define us in ways that make us proud.

One school has it all. Diverse academic program options, outstanding internship choices, honors programs, and excellent opportunities for overseas study. Consider the highly qualified, supportive faculty and staff, and a rich campus life – not to mention the beautiful setting on the shores of Lake Ontario – and it all adds up to a great education. # Budget talk

learn all you can about your school's budget

We've said it before.

Civic responsibility does not simply mean voting. It means become educated about your elected officials and local municipalities. It means speaking up when people and boards aren't doing what you elected them to do.

On May 19, all of our area school districts will put their budget up for vote, as per New York State Law. As taxpayers well know, this budget affects not only the education of their children, but their pocketbooks as well. During the next few weeks, districts are holding public information sessions about the budget and the variety of factors that affect it this year, including the economic situation, the state budget and the federal stimulus bill—not to mention local issues unique to each district.

Last week, at least two school districts in the area held public information nights that not one member of the public attended aside from media and school officials. With such a crucial vote just around the corner, it is pertinent that the voting public gets educated before pulling the lever next month.

Call your local district to find out when the next information night will be held. Some districts even have call-in shows on local television and radio stations about the budget.

Don't just look at the tax increase headlines in the local papers. Why is that increase necessary? School officials and board members are prepared to answer questions from the public (it is their job, after all). So ask them. Find out how much state aid the school is getting this year and how much money is allotted to them from the federal government.

Are programs being cut? Was spending looked at carefully?

There are a lot of questions that need to be asked and without the answers, it is irresponsible to show up at your designated polling place—whether you're voting for or against the budget.

As members of the public, we have a responsibility to hold our leaders accountable and ensure that they are doing the best job possible. In the case of the school board, it's providing the best education possible for our children—not an easy task.

So, show up and educate yourself. Then on May 19, you can make the decision based on facts rather than on what you assume to be true about this year's budget.

CNY School Budget roundup

Baldwinsville Central School District

On April 6, the Baldwinsville Central School District Board of Education adopted the proposed $93,669,512 budget for the 2009-10 school year.

While this is an increase of 1.03 percent over the 2008-09 budget, there is no increase in the $46,780,000 tax levy. This means the tax rate in the towns of Lysander and Van Buren is projected to decrease by one percent and the tax rate in the town of Clay is projected to remain the same (depending on the change in the equalization rate for Clay).

"[This budget] maintains the integrity and quality of our educational and extra-curricular programs," said District Superintendent Jeanne Dangle. "The proposed budget reflects the continued commitment of district administrators and the Board of Education to be fiscally responsive to our community, particularly during these difficult economic times."

The budget vote and school board elections will be held from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. May 19 in the auditorium of Baker High School.

Cicero-North Syracuse

The estimated tax increase was 1.59 percent as of April 6, and is now down to 1.1 percent.

Melvin reminded the board that Gov. Paterson's Deficit Reduction plan would have resulted in a $4.4 million cut in state aid for the school district. The cut in state aid could have resulted in the loss of about 54 teachers and four administrators.

However, without those reductions, the tax rate could have jumped by more than 11.4 percent, instead of the 1.1 percent recommended tonight, said Melvin.

The vote on the budget is inching closer as the official date stands for Tuesday, May 19. However, the next board meeting is on Monday, May 11 which will be the last time the board meets to cut the budget any further or discuss revisions from here on.

Liverpool Central School District

The Liverpool Central School District Board of Education further discussed the proposed 2009-10 budget at Monday night's meeting. The budget totals $132,936,007 and includes both staff reductions and some program cuts. There is no tax increase planned for the district with a budget-to-budget decrease of 0.03 percent. The estimated tax levy-to tax levy decrease is 1.10 percent.

The budget was discussed and then adopted with a 7-3 vote that will carry the budget over to a public vote on May 19. Further discussion on the budget will be heard during the public hearing scheduled for 6:30 p.m. on May 7 at the district office.

Jamesville-DeWitt School District

Jamesville-DeWitt's tentative budget proposes spending a total budget of $47 million, an increase of 2.9 percent over last year's budget. The tax levy will increase by 2.7 percent which equates to a 1.6 percent tax rate increase, said Bill McIntyre, business executive. Also on the ballot is a proposition for three new buses for $283,430 and funding for the DeWitt Community Library from $1,034,000 to $1,126,500.

"In an effort to control costs, the district eliminated three instructional and two non-instructional positions," McIntyre said. "Additional reductions in supplies and equipment were made in the maintenance and transportation budgets. These targeted cuts allowed the district to propose a reasonable budget which continues to provide a quality education for all our students."

East Syracuse-Minoa School District

East Syracuse-Minoa's tentative budget proposes spending a total budget of $69,755,537, an increase of $1,485,497 or 2.18 percent over last year's budget. The tax levy will increase 1.87 percent. Also on the ballot is a proposition for the purchase of three new school buses not to exceed $324,000, and funding totaling $135,000 for the East Syracuse Free Library.

The new buses, to replace the oldest and most expensive buses to maintain/repair, include a 65-passenger conventional bus, a full-size flexible-seating wheelchair bus and an 81-passenger transit style bus. The purchase would come from the 2007 Bus Purchase Reserve Fund; any balance will be raised by the levy of a tax that will be collected in annual installments. The district receives state aid for all bus purchases.

The East Syracuse Free Library is requesting a $55,000 increase over last year's $80,000 that voters approved. The increase would result in a $135,000 annual budget. Under education law, the amount of taxes that voters approve for public library purposes remains the same until changed by further vote. The Minoa Free Library, which is funded $200,000 annually, did not submit a request for an increase this year.

A budget public hearing will be held at 6 p.m. Monday May 11 in the ES-M High School library.

Fayetteville-Manlius School District

Representatives from the F-M School District did not respond to requests from the Eagle Bulletin by press time.

Cazenovia

Cazenovia's proposed budget totals $25,681,681, a 2.49 percent increase from last year's budget. The budget calls for no increase in the tax levy, Assistant Superintendent Bill Furlong said. Also on the ballot will be the purchase of four school buses not to exceed $364,053 — 70 percent of that purchase and interest will be covered by the state. The Cazenovia and New Woodstock libraries' total proposed budgets of $473,679 will also be on the ballot.

Skaneateles Central School District

The Skaneateles Board of Education adopted its proposed 2009-10 budget during the board meeting on Wednesday April 22.

Assistant Superintendent and business manager Dale Bates said the total spending in set at $29,231,236 — a 4.74 percent increase over last year's budget, or $1,321,929.

Much of the budget-to-budget increase is because of debt service for Project 2007. The funds from the project have caused an increase in the 2009-10 budget of $986,472.

Along with the budgetary increase, taxpayers will see a 3.05 percent increase in the tax levy. According to Bates, the increase is less than it has been in the past.

When residents go to the polls on May 19, they will not only be faced with voting on the budget, but also with one proposition, which is the purchase of two school buses at a cost not to exceed $198,000.

Included in the bus proposition would be approval to install digital camera systems in the existing fleet at a cost not to exceed $25,000.

The total cost of the proposition is not to exceed $223,000. The local cost after aid of the bus purchase and camera installation is an estimated $122,650.

The May 19 vote will also include the election of three Board of Education members. Running unopposed are Michael Card, Evan Dreyfuss and Katherine Cogswell. Each are seeking reelection for three-year terms.

A budget information session will be held at 7 p.m. May 5 at the Waterman School auditorium. Budget vote and school board elections will be held from 7 a.m. to 9 p.m. May 19 at the Waterman School auditorium.

West Genesee Central School District

West Genesee Central School District residents will vote on a $68.8 million budget that would result in a 1.4 percent tax levy increase. The budget represents an estimated 1 percent tax rate increase. Three propositions will also be on the ballot: to purchase six school buses; to levy a $26,800 tax to support Solway Public Library; and to levy a $192,000 tax to support the Maxwell Memorial, Fairmount Community and Onondaga Free libraries, and increase of $97,000 over the current levy.

Jordan-Elbridge Central School District

The tax levy will remain level at 1.8 percent with no increase this year. Taxpayers last year approved a $21.9 million capital project and were able to maintain a 91 percent building aid ratio.

Marcellus Central School District

Voters will be faced with a $29.7 million budget that if passed would raise the tax levy 3.95 percent. A proposition to purchase three school buses for $314,030 will also be up to voters.

Oneida City School district

Oneida's budget calls for a $1.5 million increase, which will raise the tax levy by 2.91 percent. The total budget is $38.9 million.

Superintendent Ron Spadafora said the increase is the lowest in recent years.

Tom Laurin, head of the budget committee said he thought the budget was good for the students and fair for the taxpayers.

Vernon Verona Sherrill

In the Vernon Verona Sherrill School, district there will be a tax levy increase of 1.5 percent and a 2 percent increase in spending, bringing the total budget to $32 million.

Superintendent Norm Reed said that the budget kept the spending increase down despite increased costs to the district in tough economic times.

Canastota Central School

The Canastota Central School District budget shows a 3 percent increase for a total budget of $24.7 million. The tax levy increase will be a 2.68 percent increase.

There are no proposed staff or program cuts, according to audit committee head Don Campanaro.

next decade, what kind of development patterns can be expected and the overall fiscal future of the town.

"One of the overall themes is to address the infrastructure," he said of the committee. "The name refers to having 20/20 [vision] in looking forward at our needs and the competing principles involved."

An update was given at a town board meeting Wednesday, May 13, by former town supervisor and co-chair of the committee Theresa Egan. Board members were told they can expect a final report sometime in the end of June.

The committee's final report will be used to help guide the town's future fiscal decisions.

Part of the committee's report will include a survey that was sent out to 1,500 town residents, out of which 22 percent, or roughly 322 people, responded. Cunningham said the survey asked for opinions on issues such as infrastructure needs and the costs associated, as well as the satisfaction of current town services. It also asked about residents' feelings on the consolidation and sharing of services and asked people to rate the town on various aspects.

The research institute conducting the survey told the board that the numbers could serve as a litmus test for residential opinion and could be sufficiently reliable to include in the 20/20 Committee's final report.

"They were very comfortable that the numbers reflected an adequate representation of the town," Cunningham said.

However, at least one resident disagreed and identified himself as a Siena College employee before telling the board that there wasn't a broad enough spectrum used in creating the survey.

"He argued that the polling wasn't large enough to effectively represent the town's view," said Cunningham.

Councilman Kyle Kotary, who as public relations specialist has experience with polling himself, said the survey would serve the final report well.

"It wasn't done as a public opinion poll, it was done as a community survey," said Kotary. "It's a snapshot of time."

He said the work being done is important.

"It was great to hear the presentation from a large contingent of the 20/20 committee. I appreciate all of their hard work," Kotary said. "In a nutshell, the community responses indicate that the town is heading in the right direction as a result of its leadership."

Continuing, Kotary said the supervisor is a big part of Bethlehem's positive outlook.

"I have to give Jack [Cunningham] credit on this one," he said. "This was his idea to put together a bi-partisan committee like this."

Bethlehem planning board Chairman George Levielle said the committee was initiated by Cunningham and the Town Board to get residents more involved in the town and help gauge financial decisions.

"The committee was created to bring in some ideas on how does the town face financial challenges in the future," Levielle said. "The survey was to get broader insight into the residents' views ... and try to help the town think about more broad issues as it thinks about its fiscal health."

Cunningham said the survey results would be interpreted by the 20/20 Committee and included in their final report due for June. He thanked the committee and said the work will be an important tool to help lay out Bethlehem's future.

He has also interviewed with his own Independence Party.

Jordan, who chairs the party in Bethlehem, said that his party is expected to make a decision about a slate of candidates by the end of the month. Much like the Conservative Party, Jordan said the Independence Party will hold a countywide meeting to endorse candidates running throughout Albany County.

He, too, was pleased with his endorsement for Bethlehem Town Board.

"I'm delighted and honored to have the Conservative line," Jordan said. "I'm looking forward to having a great campaign season."

Jordan said he has received "nothing but positives" about his campaign thus far and he added that he is also pleased to have received the endorsement of Bethlehem's Democratic Party.

This constitutes Jordan's second official ballot line for Town Board and it is expected that Independence Party Chairman Paul Caputo will lend the party line to him as well. Taking over the party reins from Assembly Tim Gordon, I-Bethlehem, this is Jordan's first run for office.

He works as Gordon's chief of staff.

Conservatives back G'land Dems

GOP candidates say party is out of touch

By DAN SABBATINO

sabbatinod@spotlightnews.com

Albany County Conservative Party Chairman Richard Stack announced the party will support incumbents Ken Runion, Patricia Slavick and Paul Pastore for supervisor and town board, respectively, at a Thursday, May 14, meeting.

Runion now has the backing of the Democratic Party and the Conservative Party.

Runion said he has received the Conservative Party's support each time he has ran for supervisor because he holds many of the same values as the party.

"I have strong family values," Runion said. "We look to improve the quality of life of our residents through parks and recreation."

His opponent, Mark Grimm, a Republican and town board member, said he did not receive the Conservative line in his bid for town board and was still able to secure the seat.

"Can I win with one line? Already have," Grimm said.

He said he is not in the pocket of the party bosses, and this has helped him gain rapport with his constituents.

"That's one thing voters like about me," he said.

Stack said he did not choose Grimm because he did not interview for the nomination, and the party supported Runion because of his record.

Stack questioned whether Grimm would even stay in the race for supervisor.

"I don't believe Mr. Grimm is going to run," Stack said. "But that's a story for another time."

Grimm could not be reached to respond to that comment, but earlier he said he suspects the Conservative Party choose Runion simply because he is the incumbent.

Stack said the decision to support an incumbent is based mainly on how close he or she kept to the Conservative ideals of the party, and Runion has done so during his tenure.

He said support for an incumbent is not automatic, and the Conservative Party is not endorsing incumbent supervisors in Bethlehem and Knox.

Grimm said his record shows he is more "fiscally conservative" than Runion. He cited tax increases of more than 4 percent and fee increases of more than 20 percent enacted in the Runion administration.

Runion contested those statistics, calling them "misleading." He said Guilderland has the lowest taxes of any town in Albany County, and since 1999, taxes have gone up from 25 cents per $1,000 to 26 cents per $1,000. He said legal fees spent on investigations brought about because of complaints by Grimm, and Republican Board member Warren Redlich, have contributed to the tax increase.

Runion said fees have been raised, but they pay for services in the town and lower insurance costs due to fire and building inspections.

"Mr. Grimm doesn't understand local government and hasn't taken the time to learn it," Runion said.

Stack said on Thursday, May 15, the party also interviewed Matt Nelligan but declined to endorse him. Nelligan is a former Guilderland High School teacher, co-chair of the Republican Party and employee of the state Senate, and although, Stack said, the party "found him to be a nice gentleman," the incumbents were endorsed based on their previous experience.

Stack said questions about Nelligan's "temperament" played a role in the party's decision to not endorse him. He cited the "reasonableness" of him leaving his position in the Guilderland Central School District, and worries about a Republican voting block of Nelligan, Grimm and Redlich as other reasons for not supporting him.

Nelligan has cited on numerous occasions his "independent mindedness" as a strength for his campaign.

He said the lack of endorsement "demonstrates how out of touch the Conservative Party is with the average person's needs."

He said the decision will only further the influence of "Democratic insiders" in town politics.

He said, though, he is disappointed to not receive the bid since he has consistently held strongly conservative views.

"It's something I've embodied my whole life," Nelligan said.

He cited the irony of media reports labeling him as a "conservative teacher" last summer when he was involuntarily transferred to Farnsworth Middle School from Guilderland High School as the result of a "culture climate inquiry."

He said Slavick and Pastore have voted "lock-step" with Runion, and the town knows little about their stance.

"They're supposed to be a party of principle," he said.

Pastore, who did not receive the party's endorsement in 2005, was thankful for the bid, and said he is pleased to be the Conservative Party's choice.

"I'm thrilled to hear about the endorsement," Pastore said. "I look forward to being their preferred candidate. We've worked hard to uphold the ideals and principles of the Conservative Party."

Pastore said working toward a balanced budget, prudent spending and smart growth are important. He classified himself as a fiscal conservative.

He said the unique sense of community, along with a mix of residential, conservative, retail, agricultural and light industrial land use makes Guilderland "a very special place," and he looks forward to applying conservative ideals to managing them if re-elected.

Councilwomen Patricia Slavick also said she was thankful for the endorsement and was "privileged and honored to receive it."

he said. "I've been the supervisor for over two years, and I'm hoping the residents will continue to support me."

The number of ballot lines doesn't matter to Cunningham — he said he's ready for the fall elections no matter what.

"I will continue to run on my record," he concluded. "I've gotten some very positive feedback from residents about my campaign so far."

Messina said he was pleased to receive the endorsement.

"I feel great about it. I've reached out to all the parties and am pleased to get their support," he said. "Some folks have labeled me as someone who can't compromise, but for the past 45 years that simply hasn't been the case."

Messina said he is seeking "broad-based support to deliver broad-based leadership."

"I am pleased to have [the Conservative] endorsement and am continuing to seek other endorsements," he said.

Messina has met with the town's Republican Committee, who will be announcing a slate by month's end. He said he doesn't expect support from the Democratic party after the town's party-dropped him in his interview for re-election to Town Board.

By JACQUELINE M. DOMIN
dominj@spotlightnews.com

When Greg and Rosalie Clarke moved to the Capital District from Maine, they were eager to find some cheap ways to entertain their two young daughters.

They heard about the GottaGetGon Folk Festival and decided to check it out, even though they weren't really into folk music.

Suffice to say, that quickly changed. Forty years later, the Clarks are still attending the festival, which will be held Friday to Sunday, May 22 to 24, at the Saratoga County Fairgrounds in Ballston Spa. What's more, their daughters, who are grown now and live in Ohio and Arizona, often come back home to attend GottaGetGon.

"It's an incredible sense of community," Rosalie Clarke said.

That's a sentiment repeated often by the people who attend GottaGetGon. Yes, the music is great. Camping is fun. But above all else, the weekend forms unbreakable bonds.

Emily Clark, for instance, attended her first GottaGetGon with her mom and dad when she was just 2 months old. Some of her earliest memories are of playing with friends at the festival, drifting asleep surrounded by the sound of folk music.

Today, Clark lives in New York City and is a mother herself. She still comes to GottaGetGon, and she hangs out not just with people her age, but with people she knew as her parents' friends when she was growing up.

Festival features fine folk

GottaGetGon event in Ballston Spa has strong sense of community

"It's like a big extended family," she said.

Organizers are proud of that vibe, which they have cultivated since the first GottaGetGon in 1970. The festival is sponsored by the Pickin' and Singin' Gatherin', a participatory folk music group, and features concerts and workshops.

The formal activities are only part of what makes the weekend special. Long after the sun sets, songs echoes through the fairgrounds as people gather around campfires to sing and socialize.

Bill Kelsey of Berne, a member of the performer selection committee, explained that acts are told, "You come to spend the weekend with us. You sing to us, you sing with us."

That means that more often than not, performers spend the whole weekend at the campground, eating and sleeping alongside attendees. A crew of attendees provides the performers with snacks and meals throughout the day, and at night, campers take turns hosting the musicians for a meal.

"A big part of what happens is eating and feeding people," said Clark, who, a week and a half before GottaGetGon, was busy making cookies to bring.

Acts come from all over the country, and even occasionally from other countries, to play at GottaGetGon. Kelsey said that since the festival features only four performers each year, it's not hard to find talent – and fresh talent, at that.

"We have pretty much stuck to a policy that we would not bring anyone back for 10 years," he said.

showcase young musicians from the area. Saturday night features a family dance, while Sunday's highlights include an open stage, where everyone is invited to perform.

Clark, of Malta, counts the open stage as one of her favorite parts of the weekend, especially when some of the younger attendees perform.

"The children are just adorable," she said.

Kelsey loves seeing the younger set not just taking the stage themselves but appreciating the musicians who sing throughout the Eden MacAdam-Somer performs at the 2008 GottaGetGon Festival.

The performer selection committee is responsible for keeping the new acts coming. Kelsey, who attends a number of folk festivals each year, often brings music by acts he's heard and liked to committee meetings, and other members do the same. Sitting in one member's kitchen, they listen to CDs and decide on which performers to pursue.

There are times, too, when musicians contact festival organizers and ask to be considered, including acts who have played GottaGetGon before.

"Their 10 years is up, and they'll say, 'We would like to try again,'" Kelsey said.

This year, the lineup includes Alexander Mitchell, a multi-instrumentalist and singer whose repertoire includes bluegrass, Celtic, klezmer, traditional-roots dance music and swing; Debra Cowan, who sings traditional and traditional-style songs, a cappella and accompanied by guitar; blues guitarist Del Rey, and duo Jean Rohe and Liam Robertson.

On Friday night, the New Generation Folk Concert will weekend. He choked up remembering a girl from a recent New Generation Folk Concert who approached a father and son duo and told them how much she had enjoyed their music.

Similarly, he loves recounting the story of a couple of teenage girls he heard on their cell phones telling friends about GottaGetGon.

"They said, 'This is a cool place. You've got to come up here,'" he said.

It's a message he hopes reaches people of all ages.

"If you want a place where friendly people enjoy good music, this is it," he said.

Admission to GottaGetGon is $38 for adults (age 20 and up) and $19 for students (ages 12 to 19). Admission for one day is $20 for adults and $10 for students. Children under 12 are free with a paying adult.

On-site camping is free; electrical hookups are available for $15 per night. Food is not sold on the campgrounds.

Voorheesville library to offer decorative painting workshop

Saturday, June 6, is going to be a dream day for those of you who have been clamoring for an art workshop when we offer decorative painting from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. with Dorey Joy.

The course was inspired by the impressive display in our showcase recently of a variety of items which had been painted with fruits, flowers, symbols and scenes. Almost any object can be adorned with decorative painting, and you are invited to learn how to do it — to get started or to improve your current abilities at this workshop.

Joy is a Guilderland artist who has been practicing and loving this technique since she took an adult education class in 1987. She is a past officer and/or member of Capitolors, the National Society of Decorative Painters and Berkshire Brushes.

For information, visit www.capitolors.com.

Dorey teaches a style that includes simple brush strokes and double-loading, techniques that can be adapted to any kind of painting you are interested in.

Her enthusiasm for the art is infectious and she is eager to

RCS library to be closed for holiday

RCS Community Library will be closed Saturday, May 23, and Monday, May 25, in observance of Memorial Day. We will reopen for business on Tuesday, May 26, at 10 a.m.

The library also will close from 1 to 5 p.m. on Wednesday, June 3, while the staff receives first aid training.

'Tell Me About It' to resume in June

Bring your stories of local history to Trinity United Methodist Church in Coeymans Hollow beginning in June on Wednesday mornings from 10 to 11:30 a.m. Join your neighbors over coffee to share stories of your misspent youth and compare memories of family, home, school work, play and church. We will collect and save your stories to tell future generations about life here in the 20th century.

Call Barbara at 756-2053 for more information and to sign up.

Future sessions will gather stories in South Bethlehem, Selkirk, and Feura Bush. If you would like to be part of any of these groups, call the library.

share her love of it with others. She is graciously supplying all of the materials needed from her well-stocked basement studio, so there will be no supplies to buy and, as always with VPL programs, no fee.

All you need to bring is your lunch. The library will provide beverages. Space is limited so call now to register,

Book discussion for kids

Second- and third-graders can sign up at the reference desk and pick up a copy of the book "Moxy Maxwell Does Not Love Stuart Little" by Peggy Elizabeth Gifford for book discussion on Friday, June 5. This fast-paced, humorous book about an exuberant 9-year-old will have you in stitches. School's out early, so the discussion is at 12:30 p.m. We'll supply drinks and dessert; you bring the sandwich for a picnic lunch and party.

'Pinocchio Revisited'

Adults are reminded of "Pinocchio Revisited" with expert Richard Wunderlich on May 26 at 7 p.m.

Holiday closing

The library is closed May 23 to 25 for the Memorial Day holiday. Enjoy the festivities.

IN BRIEF

Kidney Foundation to hold annual gala

The National Kidney Foundation of Northeast New York will hold its annual Gift of Life Celebration Gala at Wolferts' Roost Country Club on Thursday, May 28.

The event honors outstanding members of the community who work toward preventing kidney disease and improving the lives of those affected.

The classic celebrity themed event, called "Motown Memories" is business casual. The evening begins at 6:30 with cocktails, carving stations and networking, and it will finish with a live auction and awards ceremony by 9:30. Awards will be presented to the following that evening:

- SEFCU, which will receive the Edwin Sperber Legacy Award, acceptance by Michael Castellana, president.

- Albany College of Pharmacy and Health Sciences, which will receive the Gift of Life Award for Contributions to Healthcare, Acceptance by Dr. James Gozzo, president.

- Peter Chynoweth, CMA Consulting, who will receive the Kim M. Healy Gift of Life Leadership Award.

- Gift of Life Award for Volunteerism.

Proceeds from the Gift of Life Celebration help the 1.2 million patients in Northeast New York suffering from kidney and urinary diseases and help to raise public awareness about its causes and treatments. For ticket information or to sponsor the event, call Alicia Jacobs at 533-7881.

Taser

Hanna remained unresponsive, according to police, and it became "obvious that the impairment was significant," and when he was advised he was under arrest, Hanna refused to comply with instructions to put his hands behind his back.

He "actively resisted a physical attempt to be handcuffed," the report states, and police used a Taser on him, "which made contact with the defendant, but was ineffective in gaining compliance."

Police said Hanna then attempted to leave the store but that a struggle took place and he "was taken down to the floor of the store" and that an investigator and an officer place him under custody.

Hanna damaged a credit card reader on the counter of the store during his struggle with police, according to the arrest reports.

Hanna's "physical and emotional status deteriorated quickly [and] he did not respond to questions and appeared unresponsive," the report states.

During an EMS evaluation, He went "back and forth from unresponsive to body twitching to combative," according to police. An emergency worker was struck while attempting to treat Hanna.

He was transported to Albany Medical Center for further evaluation, which revealed that he endured cuts and abrasions as well as a slight fracture in his back as a result of the car crashes, the report states.

Police said Hanna was in possession of a credit card that was not in his name, and was not offered bail during his arraignment because of his previous criminal history.

According to police, Hanna has been arrested 55 times and only had a driver's permit, which was suspended three different times from failing to appear at the Town of Salisbury Court in Herkimer County.

According to police records, Hanna's most recent prior arrest was in the City of Albany in February.

Other arrests

•Guilderland Police arrested Alexis Le Davis-Gooden, 23, of 39 Elizabeth St. in Albany, on several charges, including robbery in the third degree, a felony, on Saturday, May 9, according to police reports.

Davis-Gooden was also charged with assault with intent to cause physical injury, petit larceny, possession of burglar's tools and unlawful possession of marijuana. She was "arrested for safety," according to the police report.

She was arrested after allegedly concealing $317.91 in stolen merchandise from JC Penney in Crossgates Mall and fighting a loss prevention officer to who tried to apprehend her, the report states.

According to police, Davis-Gooden bit the loss prevention officer. The loss prevention officer was treated at the scene and later at a hospital, the report states.

Davis-Gooden was transported to St. Peter's Hospital, the report states, and received a pregnancy evaluation and treatment. She is being evaluated for mental health related issues. She was arraigned on Thursday, May 14, the report states.

•Guilderland Police arrested Ebonik N. Corbett, 20, of 6 Cottage Place, White Planes, on charges of grand larceny in the fourth degree, a felony, and conspiracy in the fifth degree, a misdemeanor, on Saturday, April 25, according to police reports.

The report states Corbett allegedly stole $1,348.92 in merchandise from Macy's in Crossgates Mall. After an investigation and traffic stop, she was said to be in possession of an additional $5,232.86 in stolen merchandise from Banana Republic and the Gap, the report states. She was arraigned on Thursday, May 7.

•Guilderland Police arrested Karen V. Lewis, 37, of 1220 Kemble St. in Utica, on felony charges of criminal possession of stolen property on Thursday, April 30, according to police reports.

Lewis was arrested for charges dating back to Saturday, April 25, and was arraigned later on the Thursday, April 30. He was arrested on Crossgates Mall Road in Guilderland.

•Guilderland Police arrested Michael J. Lentoski, 42, of 4 Freemans Bridge Rd. in Schenectady, on charges of grand larceny in the fourth degree, a felony and violation counts of trespassing and unlawful possession of marijuana on Friday, May 8, according to police reports.

Lentoski allegedly entered Starbucks Café in Crossgates Mall and attempted to jiggle the safe handle open after placing a dishtowel around the knob.

After police were alerted, the report said Lentoski gave them permission to search his vehicle, where they found a "small quantity" of marijuana.

Lentoski was arraigned on Thursday, May 14.

Hotline to host art fundraiser

Samaritans Crisis Hotline is hosting an art auction fundraiser, "Light and Dark: Expressions on Emotion," Thursday, May 21, from 5 to 8 p.m.

The event will feature works from local and national artists who have lost their lives to suicide. All proceeds will benefit Samaritans Crisis Hotline, whose aim is to reduce the risk for suicide in the Capital District by providing emotional support to individuals in crisis through education on suicide prevention and support to those who have lost a loved one to suicide.

Ann Jennings of Maine will be the featured speaker, telling the story of her daughter, Anna Jennings. The evening also includes a moment of silence for the three teenage girls from Schenectady who recently lost their lives to suicide.

The art opening, reception and silent auction will take place at The Social Art Gallery at 650 Warren St. in Albany. For information, contact Samaritans Crisis Prevention at 462-6531 or visit www.orgsites.com/ny/samaritans-albany.

News & Notes

Eagles rally to defeat Schenectady

The Bethlehem baseball team scored four runs in the bottom of the third inning to come back and defeat Schenectady 5-3 in a non-league game Sunday.

The Eagles (11-6) fell behind 3-0 in the top of the first inning, but strong pitching from Mike Wollner helped them rally. Wollner held the Patriots (10-7) scoreless over the final six innings and struck out seven to pick up the complete-game win.

Ryan Zielinski singled twice and doubled to lead Bethlehem's offense.

The Eagles entered Sunday's game off a 7-5 Suburban Council victory over Columbia last Wednesday. Bethlehem scored three runs in the second and third innings to take a 7-0 lead and fended off a Columbia rally to pull one win closer to clinching a Section II, Class AA playoff berth.

Kyle Niehaus hit a home run and a single for the Eagles, who improved their league record to 7-6.

Dutchmen earn shutout victory

The Guilderland boys lacrosse team posted a rare shutout Saturday.

Rory Nunamacher scored four goals, and goaltender Christian DePersis stopped 11 shots to lead the Dutchmen (15-2) to an 11-0 victory over Section I power Mahopac.

Matt Siracusa contributed a pair of goals, and Bryan Dyer added a goal and three assists for Guilderland, which built a 6-0 halftime lead.

In other weekend boys lacrosse action, Bethlehem (5-11) scored 11 goals during the second and third quarters to pull away for a 15-3 non-league win against Queensbury.

Eric Halek scored seven goals, and Mike Rondinaro added a hat trick for the Eagles.

Vintage baseball comes to Bethlehem

Bethlehem Mickey Mantle will host a 19th-century vintage baseball game Saturday, July 4, at Line Drive Fields in Delmar, prior to the start of the Eastern New York Mickey Mantle All-Star Game.

The game will pit the New York Mutals against a Bethlehem team made up of town officials and residents.

Eagles edge Dutch in Sectional tennis finals

By ANDY CAHILL
sports@spotlightnews.com

The writer is an intern in the Spotlight Newspapers sports department.

Imagine being on the foul line knowing that if you hit this free throw, your team will win. Or being up in the bottom of the ninth inning with the bases loaded, and a championship at stake.

That was the scenario for Bethlehem junior Peter Collins in Friday's Section II, Class AA tennis final against Guilderland.

With the match score tied 4-4, only Collins was still playing. Fans and players surrounded the court to watch "Pistol Pete" and Sam Dordick go at it. Twice, Dordick forced Collins to lose his match point opportunity. Yet, Collins shook it off with apparent ease.

As Collins threw the ball into the air on his third match point, everyone in the crowd held their breath. The serve was a good one, but Dordick managed to return it. The ball flew through the air as Collins inched backwards. His eyes, along with everyone else's, followed the ball until it finally landed out of bounds to give Collins a 6-3, 6-7, 6-4 victory at No. 2 singles.

As soon as the ball landed, Collins turned around and pointed at his cheering fans and teammates. Bethlehem coach Steve Smith jumped up and punched the air in exuberance before running up to celebrate.

"He's [Collins] just really come of age on the court," said Smith. "He was solid."

"I had to come out and really get focused, and I did it," said Collins.

Even in his moment of glory, however, Collins didn't want to take credit for the win.

"It's my coach and our team. I'm not the reason [we won]," said Collins.

It was Bethlehem's third Sectional team title in the last four years – a fact that didn't escape Guilderland coach Curtis Snyder's mind.

"I know that you loaned this [the title] to Nisky for a year, but now it's going home," Snyder told the Eagles.

Bethlehem won this title partly because of the seniors on the team. Mike Amico, Jesse Hoffman, and Kyle Gross are a trio that have gone a combined 56-4 over the length of their careers. Amico, Hoffman and Gross all won their singles matches Friday.

Edwards leads Eagles

Sophomore tosses three-hitter in win against Saratoga

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

As Toni Edwards goes, so goes the Bethlehem softball team.

The sophomore pitcher tossed a three-hitter with 11 strikeouts to lead the Lady Eagles to a 1-0 Suburban Council victory over Saratoga Springs last Friday.

Edwards has been one of the league's most dominant pitchers recently. She threw a no-hitter last Monday against Ballston Spa and limited South Division-leading Columbia to two hits in last Wednesday's 1-0 victory.

"She's on fire," said Bethlehem coach Karen Gentile. "We did her stats today (before the Saratoga game), and she's on pace for over 200 strikeouts."

It's a far cry from the beginning of the season when Edwards' wildness led to losses against Colonie, Niskayuna and Columbia.

"I was having struggles with

Class AA baseball field is a cluttered mess

With all the parity in Section II baseball this season, I wish the committee good luck in attempting to seed all these teams at next Wednesday's playoff meeting.

For instance, where do you put Queensbury in Class AA? The Spartans are 11-1 in the Foothills Council and 13-3 overall, but they play primarily Class A and B teams. So even if they finish with the best record among Class AA teams, does that give them a No. 1 seed over Albany, which plays primarily Class AA competition in the more competitive Big 10? I would say no, but I'm not on the committee.

Class A and Class B will be even more fun to seed, since the committee will have to consider teams from five leagues. At least, the top two seeds in Class A should be cut and dry with Lansingburgh (16-2) and Schalmont (15-6) both compiling impressive records and résumés. But where do you put a team like Mohonasen, which has a losing record but plays in the tough Suburban Council? The same question exists for Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake.

Class B is also jumbled up at the moment, but there's at least the possibility that things will shake themselves out. Saratoga Central Catholic and Fonda-Fultonville are currently tied with Class C power Fort Plain for first place in the Western Athletic Conference's North Division, but Saratoga Catholic had to play Fort Plain Tuesday. If the Saints (17-2) beat the Hilltoppers and then knock off Canajoharie Thursday to finish no worse than in a tie for first, they could be seeded as high as No. 2 behind Chatham (16-1), which should get the No. 1 seed after ruling the Patroon Conference.

Still, the Sectional committee

has to factor in teams from the WAC, the Patroon Conference, the Foothills Council and the Colonial Council for Class B (I would have added the Big 10, but Bishop Gibbons is 1-11). Not an easy job, even if they have guidelines in place for seeding the teams.

That said, by the time I get to Latham next Wednesday, the committee will have the brackets all set. I know that crew will figure it out.

Some other quick thoughts:

- The Albany Firebirds are 3-0 since getting quarterback Stephen Wasil back from the injured list. I sincerely doubt that the 'Birds will win every game the rest of the season, but I would definitely put Wasil on the list for Arena Football 2 Player of the Year honors just for breathing life into this franchise.
- Did you know Siena's Fran McCaffery is the 22nd-highest rated coach in college basketball, according to a poll on Yahoo! Sports? Did you know there were rankings for college basketball coaches? Now you know.
- Another Siena basketball fact: the Saints ranked 72nd in the nation for average attendance this year after drawing 7,497 per game at the Times Union Center. That officially makes Siena the most successful sports team in the Capital District. It also refutes the concept that Capital District residents won't support sports. They just won't support professional sports.
- Bethlehem Central High School graduates Katie Rowan, Halley Quillinan and Tee-Ladouceur saw their lacrosse season end when Syracuse lost to Maryland 12-10 in last weekend's NCAA Tournament quarterfinals, but another BC grad will be in

Collins

But mostly, it was about Collins, who earned the point that gave Bethlehem another Sectional title.

The Eagles finished with a 14-0 record, while Guilderland – playing in its sixth consecutive Sectional final – finished with an 11-3 mark.

Spotlight Newspapers

Not just local

Really local

the Final Four. Goaltender Emily Szelest and her Penn Quakers beat Duke 10-9 to earn a berth in this weekend's semifinal against top-seeded Northwestern. A nice job by Szelest and her Penn teammates.

- Stat of the week from Major League Baseball: the New York Yankees are 7-2 with Alex Rodriguez back in the line-up, as opposed to the sub-.500 record they posted with him sidelined. And A-Rod hasn't completely gotten his timing at the plate down pat.
- Now that he's won two-thirds of the Triple Crown on two different horses, I'd like to see Calvin Borel ride Musket Man in the Belmont. If he can guide Musket Man to victory like he did with Mine That Bird (Kentucky Derby) and Rachel Alexandra (Preakness), that would prove Borel is the best jockey in the world. As for what that would do for horse racing in general, probably not much.
- Finally, to all the Boston Celtics fans out there bemoaning their team's Game 7 loss to Orlando Sunday, I'd like to say this: at least you don't have to worry about watching your team get steamrolled by the Cleveland Cavaliers in the Eastern Conference Finals. You can thank me later.

my control, but I went for some lessons and that helped," said Edwards.

Edwards needed to stay in control against Saratoga (8-6 league, 13-7 overall). She was locked in a pitcher's duel with Blue Streaks' ace Krista Robarge, who had a no-hitter going through the first five innings.

Bethlehem (10-4, 13-4) got its offense in gear in the top of the sixth inning, though. Megan Crucetti lined a one-out single and moved to third when Megan Burns' grounder went through the second baseman's legs for an error. Amy Halvorsen's single drove in Crucetti for what proved to be the lone run of the game.

Edwards displayed a little wildness in the bottom of the seventh inning by walking Saratoga's eighth and ninth hitters in the line-up, but she bore down and got the final two outs to pick up the victory.

"I knew this was my game. I couldn't give it up," said Edwards. "I had to get those next two batters."

Robarge allowed only those two singles and struck out seven for Saratoga, which was coming off a Bethlehem returned to action Monday when it visited Averill Park in its second-to-last league game of the season. The Lady Eagles host Guilderland Wednesday before wrapping up their regular season with non-league games against South Glens Falls Friday and Mechanicville Saturday.

Gentile said she hopes that her Bethlehem team will build on the momentum from its wins against Columbia and Saratoga as it heads towards the Section II, Class AA playoffs, especially since the field should be wide open.

"Going into Sectionals, I feel confident in playing anyone," said Gentile.

Three Eagles place second

Three Bethlehem boys track athletes placed second in their respective events at Saturday's Eddy Meet at Union College.

Paul Buehler finished second in the triple jump with a distance of 45 feet, 11 inches, while Jake Platel cleared 14 feet to place second in the pole vault. Sam Smith tied Northport's Drake Jackson in the high jump by clearing the bar at 6 feet, 2 inches, but Jackson finished first by clearing the bar in fewer attempts.

Bethlehem's Gene O'Hanlon (200-meter dash) had a sixth-place finish, as did Guilderland's Mike Heiserman (100 dash) and Dashawn Gates (400 dash).

On the girls' side, Guilderland's Ernestine Skipper was second in the 100 dash with a time of 13 seconds. Teammate Briana Del Bene placed third in the discus, and Karly Giles was fifth in the high jump.

Enough is enough.

Firing one-third of the Times-Union's reporting staff and outsourcing the work means one-third less paper.

Can someone from Albany, Georgia really cover the local news in Albany, NY? Can an ad salesperson from Troy, Texas really know the community like one from Troy, NY? Will an editor from Saratoga, California really know how to spell Schaghticoke?

We doubt it. Protect the newspaper's integrity by protecting the newspaper's jobs.

We can't afford to have Hearst Corp. greed dictate how we get our news. It's time to tell TU Publisher George Hearst that enough is enough. Stop your attempts to break the paper's union, the Albany Newspaper Guild. Stop putting profits above people. Stop acting like AIG and the other Wall St. fat cats who are only concerned with their bonuses and their own bottom lines.

And send George Hearst and the Times-Union a message—
I'm canceling my T-U subscription until you treat your workers fairly.

We're not asking for the world . . . just a living wage, benefits and job security.
