Teachers from France visit BCMS

Two teachers visiting BCMS from France last week discussed their country and culture with teacher Bill Reilly and his students, and got a taste of American culture in return as students taught them the rules of baseball in a game outside the school. Monseurs Benoit Le Bouhart and Guillaume Papion are connected to BCMS through the Global Coalition, an international community of schools dedicated to the cultural exchange of knowledge, ideas and projects. Reilly and his students have been communicating and collaborating with Le Bouhart's students in France for five years through the Global Coalition. He and Papion teach at College Arenc Bachas, a school in Marseilles comprised primarily of the children of African immigrants. The school is in the process of changing its name to the Rosa Parks School, with a dedicated theme of civil rights. Their visit to BCMS also included speaking French with Jeff Klamka's 8th grade French class.

Henry Hudson Park to get fishing pier

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem Town Board voted unanimously on Wednesday, Oct. 27, to contract The Dock Doctors to build a fishing pier at Henry Hudson Park in Selkirk.

The pier is set to be built in the spring, and 75 percent of the project cost would be supplied by a Department of Environmental Conservation grant secured in 2004.

The town's share of the project cost would amount to $27,900. That money would be taken from the recreation department's parkland set aside fund. Developers must either donate land to the town for park use or pay into this account when they build housing in town. The fund stands at about $160,000.

The pier will be a floating structure that can be removed at the end of each season, said Parks and Recreation

Employee pay hikes among concerns raised at public hearing

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

Half a dozen Bethlehem residents all aired different concerns at a recent public hearing on the tentative 2011 town budget, but they all shared the same message: Take a conservative view of the future.

Wednesday, Oct. 27, was the first formal opportunity for members of the public to voice their opinion on the roughly $40 million spending plan, but with board members still negotiating their differences of opinion it's likely there will be changes, perhaps even significant ones, before a budget is adopted. The deadline to do so is Nov. 20.

Town expands YES job

Hennessey says new duties undefined, process closed

By CHARLES WIFF

Town leaders are hoping a new employee will be able to help in ways her position didn't previously cover.

The Bethlehem Town Board on Wednesday, Oct. 27, voted 4-1 to hire Kristen Hanifin to fill the position of youth employment services coordinator. But rather than work the roughly eight hours per week her predecessor did, Hanifin will be working an additional 12 hours with town staff to help publicize the town's recreational opportunities and search for grants.

The YES coordinator is dedicated to helping the town's youth aged 14 to 21 get matched up with area residents or businesses in need of part-time help. But Supervisor Sam Messina said Hanifin's experience as director of marketing for the New York State Canal Corporation could provide the town with a valuable skillset.

"I just think by the approach we've taken...it's going to work out great," Messina said. "Governments

Police: Couple altered prescription

The Bethlehem Police Department on Friday, Oct. 29, arrested Duane Mims, 42, and Wendy P. Collins, 41, both of 421 Livingston Avenue, Albany, and charged Mims with forgery in the second degree and Collins with criminal possession of a forged instrument in the second degree. Both crimes are felonies.

Police said Collins attempted to fill an altered prescription at the CVS pharmacy on Delaware Avenue in Delmar. The prescription was written for Collins for eight percocet tablets and was allegedly altered to read 18 tablets. The pharmacist contacted police when Collins attempted to fill the prescription, police said.

Police arrived to find Collins, Mims and their two children waiting in the pharmacy, and all four stood and began to leave when police were speaking with the pharmacist, according to arrest reports. They were stopped, and Mims allegedly admitted he had changed the prescription in the parking lot. Police said the doctor was contacted to confirm the number of pills prescribed. Collins said she was sick and the original amount of pills would not last her through the weekend, according to police.

Percocet is a type of oxycodone tablet, an opioid pain killer.

Fatal Carmen Road accident

A Guilderland man was killed Saturday morning, Oct. 30, at the intersection of Carmen and Lone Pine roads, when the motorcycle he was driving was pinned between two cars. Garrick A. Spawn, of 2799 Curry Road, Guilderland, was stopped on his motorcycle behind a pick-up truck driven by John J. Camelo, 66, of Schenectady, as Camelo waited for the vehicle ahead of him to make a left turn onto Lone Pine Road at 10:35 a.m., police said. Spawn was struck by a southbound car driven by Daniel M. Turino, 28, of Western Avenue, Guilderland, and was pinned between Turino's car and the pickup truck, police said. Turino's car also struck a northbound pickup driven by Carolyn Gebhardt, 60, of Rotterdam. Spawn was taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital where he was pronounced dead. Turino was taken to Albany Medical Center Hospital with minor injuries. A passenger in the Camelo pickup truck was taken to a hospital for evaluation. Police said alcohol does not appear to be a factor. The accident is still under investigation.

Town's IDA reserves hit minimum

Attorney for group agrees to a pay cut

While the Town of Bethlehem is locked in a struggle to draw up a responsible spending plan for next year, the independent Industrial Development Agency has adopted a 2011 budget that cuts the compensation for its sole employee.

The Bethlehem IDA on Wednesday, Oct. 27, adopted a $60,021 budget for the coming year. While the agency does not have many expenses, attorney to the group Tom Connolly agreed to accept a reduced compensation of $21,480, a roughly $10,000 cut. The IDA simply doesn't have enough left in savings to do otherwise, said CFO Suzanne Traylor.

"We can't have a fund balance less than $180,000," Traylor said. "It's a compromise, since he's the only employee and he's our only expense, that's what we can pay him to keep us at that level."

— Frank Venezia, IDA Council Chairman

That fund balance requirement is self-imposed, with the assumption the agency could sustain itself for three years before project fees are realized.

Revenue for the IDA has been falling for the last few years, a reflection that it has struck no significant deals in that time. The agency's sole source of funding is fees and payment agreements from developers building in town.

"The IDA has not closed any projects during 2010, so our revenue stream is limited to the small fees we get from other small things we've negotiated in the past," said IDA Council Chairman Frank Venezia.

The IDA aims to attract and retain business in the Town of Bethlehem, and often uses tools like the negotiation of tax exemptions in pursuit of that goal. There are many such groups reaching out to businesses on the local, county and state level.

The economic downturn has made it a particularly difficult time for such entities to make headway on their goals. Since it takes two or three months for the IDA to broker an agreement, even if a company approached the town tomorrow 2010 would still go down as a flat year.

The good news for the IDA is the town has plenty of room primed for development, including the Vista Technology Campus. But until then, the group is unlikely to realize much revenue.

"The only way that the IDA's going to continue is to have some activity in this town, and it's really going to be the direct result of things happening with Vista," Traylor said.

A solar-powered shine

Glenmont Car Wash uses the sun to heat water at its Route 9 location

By CHARLES WIFF
wiff@spotlightnews.com

If you wonder how hot the water is at Glenmont Car Wash, one need only look up.

First, to the banks of opaque tubes on the roof. Then further, to the sun overhead.

Owner Dennis O'Shaughnessy recently completed the installation of a solar water heating system at his Route 9W business, and he says he's already reaping the benefits in decreased energy consumption and customer interest.

Solar water heaters work on a similar principal as a hot water heater for the home does. In O'Shaughnessy's system water is kept in a series of tubes on the roof of Glenmont Car Wash. There, it basks in the sun, heating the water.

The hot water is drained into a 400-gallon tank in the upper level of the building, and regular municipal water (usually around 55 degrees in temperature), is piped through tubes sitting in the tank. Solar heated water in the tank can get up to 185 degrees.

The tank hasn't gotten that hot in the month the car wash has been using the system, but getting the water to a temperature of around 135 degrees means wash water will be well over 100. Even during a period of rainy weather, the solar system kept the temperature high.

For a business where hot water is a necessity, taking natural gas heating out of the equation means some serious cost savings. O'Shaughnessy

Dennis O'Shaughnessy, owner of Glenmont Car Wash, motions to a bank of 12 solar water heating panels recently installed at his Route 9W business. He hopes the technology will decrease his natural gas bill and carbon footprint while providing his customers with an abundance of hot water all winter.

Charles Wiff/Spotlight said his utility bills run from $50,000 to $60,000 a year, but with the solar heating system he's likely to cut that figure considerably.

"It's really a no brainer," he said, especially considering the start-up cost.

The system costs about $20,000 to install, just a portion of a yearly utility bill, and with federal and state energy efficiency credits O'Shaughnessy managed to recoup just over half of the investment.

"I went to a big [trade] show I go to all the time, and one guy did electric for $260,000," he said. "With the economy the way it is, who has $260,000? The water right now, it's priced right."

Apex, a Queensbury company, did the installation of 12 panels, just in time for the winter busy season. Other businesses in town are also embracing a green model—Appolo Heating and Cooling on Delaware Avenue installed solar electricity panels earlier this year.

The solar tubes are just the most visible component of Glenmont Car Wash's efforts at economy, though. O'Shaughnessy makes sure to use the most efficient nozzles and systems he can—the touchless car wash recycles about 70 percent of the water used per wash, for example.

For the owner, this obviously equates into cost savings. But O'Shaughnessy said money is just one of his motivations. Reducing his carbon footprint is a nice effect, too.

"You do things sometimes more than for one reason," he said. "There's a benefit to me, a benefit to my daughter maybe, a benefit to my grandchildren."

Beware of sock goblins and pantyhose poltergeists

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR
news@spotlightnews.com

Halloween may be over, but a set of goblins remains in my house. They are all living in my sock drawer.

Some people, such as my husband, may not believe that a sock drawer can be "possessed" by unseen evil forces. However, the evidence is overwhelming: 1) I am unable to close the dresser drawer where the socks are stored; 2) Socks with matches refuse to stay together; and 3) An unusually large number of "single" socks (aka "socks without partners") now occupy the drawer. And, in case you are wondering, I've already ruled out a mass abduction of socks by the cunning washer and dryer appliances.

"Why can't I close my sock drawer?" I asked my spouse.

"Because you ball them up and that takes up too much space," he said.

"I do NOT ball up my socks," I countered, "I only fold over the ends."

He said, "That's the same as balling up."

We've had this dispute before. He just pairs up his socks and stacks them in neat piles. On the other hand, like my mother before me, I was in the habit of pairing the socks and then rolling them into ball-like shapes. Over time, I settled on a compromise between the two methods and now only roll the top edges together. If I don't do that, then my socks do not bond and they drift toward other ill-suited partners. They do not stay in neat piles

Commentary:

"You can't close the drawer because you have too many socks in it, including favorite long-kept socks that you won't part with," said Jeff. He advised me to empty the drawer onto the bed. Then I'm supposed to put back in the drawer only the socks that I use. The other socks are to be thrown away or donated. (He only tosses in the word "donated" because of my known aversion to throwing away anything for which someone somewhere in the world may have a use.)

Before heading out to do yard work he proclaimed that this problem of keeping stuff we don't need is the reason we have trouble closing most of the drawers in the house. He's entitled to his opinion.

Jeff may not be a believer in sock goblins, but my evidence suggests that not only do the goblins exist, but that they work with an extended family of accomplices. For example, first cousin to the sock goblin is the pantyhose poltergeist. What else could explain the numerous pantyhose emergencies I have suffered over the years?

If a dress-up occasion calls for pantyhose, I'm never prepared. I only have black when I need nude. Or I'm down to my last pair and I get a run in them while I'm rushing to dress. Or I've only got the style with reinforced-toe and they don't work with sandals.

Most often I solve the problem by going barelegged, but sometimes it's just too darn cold.

A few weeks ago I opened a never-used pair of sheer-style hose. "Sheer-style" is fancy talk for "these are probably going to rip before you even get them past your knees." As I was putting them on, my thoughts went from "please don't rip" to "oh no, are these things even going to stretch up to my waist?" I still had to get past my thighs and over my backside and things were seeming kind of iffy. The pantyhose poltergeist must have shrunk my hose.

I was undeterred. I put my fingertips back at my ankles and ever so gently worked a bit more stretch into the stockings until they were appropriately situated. I hoped they would remain in place and remembered the one time they didn't.

Yes, one winter morning last year I headed out to synagogue in a pair of hose that were rather iffy in the elasticity department. During the prayer service there was a combination of sitting and standing. Each time I rose I felt the stockings slip. I waddled out of the sanctuary, willing my thigh muscles to prevent the pantyhose from reaching below my hemline before I reached the ladies' room.

Sure, I could try harder to keep an appropriate stock of stockings, but it's risky to buy hosiery in bulk. They don't have an unlimited shelf life. At some point, even unworn stockings lose their elasticity. They no longer cling to your hips in a way that says, "I've got the job covered."

Even when I attempt to stock up, I can't find my size in the color I need, or there's none with a control-top panel, or the package with reinforced toe looks like it's been tampered with.

Ah, what's a girl to do? Oh, right: wear pants! Pants don't rip easily, they provide greater warmth and many come with pockets. Also, hosiery with snags or runs can be worn under a pair of pants, providing an extra layer of warmth.

Luckily pants phantoms strike less often and in milder fashion than sock goblins and pantyhose poltergeists. When your favorite pair of slacks suddenly feels a bit snug or when a button goes missing from a back pocket, these are signs that the phantom has been in your closet.

Ugh, my closet. There are some crazy spirits loose in my closet. They ate two of my black cardigan sweaters. They refuse to relinquish dresses that no longer fit me. They've jumbled the hangers so that clothes are facing every which way, warm-weather and cool-weather outfits mingle freely, and a ratty pink chenille bathrobe refuses to vacate the premises. A single sweatshirt sleeve dangles from a shelf, taunting the surrounding items to fling themselves into the overflowing laundry basket on the floor below.

Interestingly, Jeff's sock drawer and closet are immune to spooky forces. His clothes remain orderly: All the shirts face the same direction and are grouped in like-colors, pants hang near other pants, neckties hang with other neckties, there's a manageable distance between hangers, and there are no garments from the 70's or 80's.

Sometimes I envy the way his stuff is so streamlined and organized. I never hear him in a panic yelling, "Help, I can't find my tan slacks."

But there's not much I can do about it. The closet spirits want me to keep my college "dorm wars" T-shirts, and the pumps I wore at my wedding, and a host of other items that serve only to cushion the small number of favorite outfits that regularly see the light of day.

And yet, it may be time to exorcise the sock drawer. It will be tricky, but if I'm successful I'll treat myself to a piece of Halloween candy.

Donated Mustang to benefit Rosie's Love

Foundation to raffle off car to raise money to help kids with cancer

beama@spotlightnews.com

You don't have to be a car nut to know that 1964 Mustang is a sweet ride, and that is why Colonie resident Pat Hedgeman is currently raffling off the classic vehicle to raise money for Rosie's Love Foundation.

The foundation is selling tickets for $20 each to raise money in honor of Rosie Francis Johnson, Hedgeman's granddaughter, who died at the age of 2 in 2000 after battling neuroblastoma for 21 months.

Ed Jasewicz donated the refurbished vehicle, which he worked on with his two sons, Ed and Jeffrey.

"This car was donated with love to Rosie's Love," Hedgeman said.

Jasewicz said he had heard about the charity Hedgeman was running and figured it would be a great idea to donate the car.

"I know what it's like to go somewhere and not have everything," he said. "I figured I would give something back."

Jasewicz said the Mustang was originally a shell of a car and that he and his sons put in all new panel pieces, shocks, brake line and fuel lines. He said a new motor alone cost $2,000, but they never totaled how much the work on the entire car was.

"By no means am I a rich person," he said, adding that even as the country faces hard times, it's always good to give back. "It's just something we had to do."

He said he and his sons put in almost 12 hours a day working on the vehicle, constantly re-sanding and re-painting until it met their standards. Jasewicz said that working on cars is a hobby of his so it was really a labor of love because he had a lot of fun working with his sons on it.

"We've always helped people. That's what our family does. We wanted them to make as much money as they could on that car."

- Ed Jasewicz

"We've always helped people. That's what our family does," he said. "We wanted them to make as much money as they could on that car."

Hedgeman said the foundation has sold 700 tickets so far, and they will be drawing for the winner on Halloween night.

Howard Dorn, a friend of the family and coworker of Hedgeman's at the Watervliet Arsenal, is storing the Mustang until it is raffled, said the Hudson Mohawk Chapter of the American Truck Historical Society was instrumental in getting the word out about the raffle.

"I had the idea of taking the car to the Truck and Tractor show in Ballston Spa, I contacted these people, and they gave us center stage and announced our name constantly over the PA system," Dorn said. "We raised just shy of $3,000 there in two days."

The money raised from the raffle will go to fund some of the many programs supported by the foundation, such as the Round-Up Family Retreat Weekends in the fall at the Double H Ranch Hole in the Woods Camp on Lake Luzerne. Anyone who has a child with cancer at Albany Medical Center is invited to the retreat. This provides the opportunity for the children to meet one another, as well as the parents.

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

Heed the warnings

We at The Spotlight are surprised that only a handful of people showed up at the Oct. 27 budget hearing to tell the town's leaders to proceed with caution as they plot out Bethlehem's $40 million future.

Surprised because so little has — as of this writing, to be fair a workshop took place Monday night, after we went to press — been firmed up on some fairly significant issues.

The board is still weighing in on cost-of-living increases for employees. The tentative budget calls for a 1 percent COLA, but some board members, and a few residents, think the employees should go without. Count us among those who disagree with a COLA — a quick survey among Spotlight staff yields that just about zero of us have received a cost of living increase in recent memory — not even 1 percent.

Also at issue was the filling of the position of youth employment services coordinator, and we feel residents were justified in opposing it. The position, the purpose of which is to first, help town teens find part-time work, but also increase the exposure of Parks and Rec's facilities — as far as we can gather from what information is available — will carry a salary of just under $20 per hour. That'll cost the town about $1,900 this year and roughly $12,500 in 2011. Part of the additional salary for the extra hours will be supplied from the supervisor's "contractual services" budget.

To paraphrase Councilman Mark Hennessey, "[It] is a very undefined job, where the funding is coming from several different places."

And don't get us wrong, we have nothing against Kristen Hanifin, the Delmar resident who was appointed to this position. In fact, we don't envy her position. If her job, presumably, is to increase the facilities' exposure in order to generate revenue, then between the $12,500 spent on her position and the possible cutting of services and near-inevitable raising of fees in the department, she has her work cut out for her.

Laws have made roadways safer, but more must be done

By BOB VAN BUREN

The writer is a resident of Schenectady.

We, the drivers of New York state, should praise our political leaders for enacting traffic safety legislation designed to protect us on our way to work, vacation destinations, or the market for shopping. We might well cheer them at fundraising dinners, political gatherings, or even on the street when we meet them in person for their dedication to passing laws to keep us safe.

Let's see:

- They helped see to it that drivers turn on their headlights when the elements require windshield wipers to be activated.
- They required dimming of lights for approaching vehicles and the same for following vehicles.
- They mandated wearing of seat belts when a vehicle is in motion.
- They barred the use of hand-held cell phones and required that no driver use a device to text message as they navigate the highways of the Empire State.

Many of the other 49 states have enacted equally responsible and appropriate legislation to help drivers arrive safely at their destinations.

Authorities attach numbers to the blood alcohol content in the body (alive or dead) that indicate a driver's success or failure to imbibe on a limited scale.

We even know our highways are safer because laws that govern legal and illegal drugs and medications ingested by drivers prior to and during driving are in place.

We can thank our legislators for protecting young children from being transported by their own parents and other persons driving under the influence of many substances including alcohol.

Wow! How fortunate are we that our legislators have a keen sense of what must surely be thought of as life-saving laws. Now men and women we elect have moved even closer to making the acquisition of a driver's license more than just a mere ritual of minimal preparation for the major task of operating a potentially deadly machine. Luckily our New York State leaders have not joined South Carolina, Florida, South Dakota, and several other states in permitting children to become legal drivers at age 15 and even 14. Researchers in the field of human growth and development have learned that the brain of an average 16-year-old is not yet fully developed and capable of certain judgmental tasks while behind the wheel. Eye-hand coordination as practiced in text messaging finds that teens excel. Foot-brain coordination lags behind the experienced older operator.

"Driver Distractions" have become the buzzwords of the latest wave of folks who truly show an interest in making our roads safe. Venture out into your neighborhood for an hour or two and bring with you a spotter/recorder to write down the violations you observe. If you are fortunate enough to return home, you will be amazed when you review the number of scofflaws and the variety of their driving transgressions. What is going on here? We have conscientious lawmakers who appear to care more about our safety than we care ourselves. We are watching a society of scofflaws zipping around every corner, blithely chatting or texting on hand held instruments of self-destruction. Drivers failing to yield for emergency vehicles are plentiful. We see left-turn violations by risk-takers who beat the "right of way" folks many times before they crash. Seat belt violators, aggressive lane weavers, and last-second brake slammers ready to gesture their contempt for the "silly" rules enacted for their benefit have infected our highways.

Law enforcement officials have a seemingly impossible task in bringing scofflaws to justice. They need our help. Parents who allow their children to get behind the wheel of any vehicle are usually honest enough to say that it scares the daylights of them every time the car leaves the driveway. But the usual parenthetical thought that follows is, "I know my kid is a good driver; it's those other kooks out there that worry me." Way too frequently those "other kooks out there" are those of us who continue to thumb our noses at existing driving laws.

But what can be done?

Parents can cease permitting the use of a family vehicle if any of the common teen driver distractions are known to be happening. Despite denials, most parents do know when their child driver is habitually distracted by the following: texting while driving, hand-held cell phone use, operating with diminished capacity from alcohol/drugs, speeding, high volume radio use, seat belt non-use, illegal passengers on board (restricted numbers). Too many parents are just waiting for that phone call informing them of a vehicle crash involving their child and their car.

The old joke asking, "Why do they rob banks? (Because that's where the money is)" could be twisted slightly to, "Why should we put distracted driving warnings on school entry electronic info-boards? (Because that's where the kids are)." You can hear the groans now when the board flashes: "Texting while driving is the same as driving drunk."

GloFo finds 'buddies' for relocating workers

Program helps families transition after moving to area

By ALYSSA JUNG
jung@spotlightnews.com

When Kathy and Dave Gross moved with their daughter Allie to Wilton in June, they found themselves in a region a bit different than what they were used to in Austin, Texas, which they'd called home for many years.

"It wasn't too much of an option," said Kathy Gross, who's husband is director of manufacturing at GlobalFoundries. "It's always good to move to a new place and there are lots of nice places in the world to live, although we loved Austin."

The family found themselves plucked from the south and dropped in the northeast because of the relocation effort by GlobalFoundries to move some key employees to tend to the chip plant being built in Malta.

Gross said moving in general was a big adjustment, especially because she left behind two sons and a grandson in Austin, but the Chamber of Southern Saratoga County tried to make the hectic transition a little simpler by pairing them up with a local family, via the newly created Buddy Program. The Chamber matches interested GlobalFoundries families with member families that sign up to help.

Already, more than 70 people have signed up to be a buddy, and Tracey and Ed Lenz were two of them.

"It was curiosity, really. GlobalFoundries will be such a big influence in what's going on in Saratoga County, we thought it would be kind of fun to meet the people that are coming and help them be a part of the process," said Tracey Lenz, who was assigned the Gross family as buddies.

Gross said knowing at least one family right off the bat made the move easier, and already the families have become friends.

"It was curiosity, really. GlobalFoundries will be such a big influence in what's going on in Saratoga County, we thought it would be kind of fun to meet the people that are coming, and help them be a part of the process."

- Tracey Lenz

"Tracey invited me to join her book club, so I've done that with her, and they had us over for dinner once. She and I have kept in touch, we kind of started a friendship, and email back and forth," said Gross. "She likes to do a lot of the same things I do, as far as crafts and interests, so she told me about some craft fairs in the area."

Another similarity between the two families that made lives thousands of miles apart, is their daughters. Allie Gross is a senior at Saratoga Springs High School who is in the middle of a college search that just got a little more confusing. The Lenz's have a daughter in her freshman year of college, so they're offering a guiding hand when it comes to regional options.

"We talked a lot about their experiences with colleges up around here because we don't know too much about the universities in this area," said Gross.

Lenz said having daughters so close in age makes her want to offer any assistance she can.

"I like to see if there's anything we can do to pave the way for her [Allie]. Also, just any day to day tips like doctors, haircutters, any of that lifestyle type things," said Lenz. "We all can read about the history and historical sites but it's kind of nice to have someone you can call to know the things that aren't published."

Gross said she would recommend the Buddy Program to other GlobalFoundries families who are new to the area.

"We were a little hesitant at first because we thought, 'we don't even know these people, what if we don't get along,' but we really hit it off and I would definitely recommend it just because they had a lot of good things to tell us about the area," said Gross. "Even if you don't become friends with them, which is a bonus, you just learn about some things you won't learn from a tourist book."

Another offering the Chamber has launched to help relocating families is a website, www.SaratogaWelcomesYou.com, which includes information like how to drive in the snow, local jobs for spouses, community information, places to go, destinations, etc. Families interested in becoming a Buddy can email info@saratoga.org to register.

Soup To Nuts: Contribute to a community cookbook

To raise funds for library events, projects and materials, Friends of Bethlehem Public Library are compiling a community cookbook. Recipes for everything from soup to nuts are welcome. Forms are available at the information desk, online at <http://friends.bethlehempublib.org> and at upcoming concerts in the library's series "A Little Sunday Music."

All cooks submitting recipes will be entered in a drawing for a free copy of the cookbook. Drop off completed recipe forms at the library information desk.

For more information, contact Mary Kim Purcell, 478-7822, marykim@nycap.rr.com.

Still room on the bus

December in New York City means festive lights, Macy's displays, ice skating at Rockefeller Center, holiday shows at Radio City, the towering tree in the Metropolitan Museum. Take in the sights—join the Friends' bus trip to The Big Apple on Saturday December 11. The bus will leave CDTA's Delaware Avenue park-and-ride lot next to Mercato's Restaurant at 7:30am, and depart the City promptly at 6:30pm. Bryant Park is the arrival and departure point in New York.

Reservation forms can be found in the November/December edition of our newsletter, /footnotes/, and online at www.bethlehempublib.org. Reservation deadline is November 20. Your check is your reservation; there are no refunds unless your seat is sold. Send your check and completed reservation form to Friends Trip to New York City, c/o Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Avenue, Delmar NY 12054.

Cost is $40 for Friends members and $45 for nonmembers. For more information, call Polly Hartman at 439-3291.

Be a friend

The mission of our library Friends is to increase community awareness of library services, offer cultural and educational programs to community residents, and assist the library with special projects.

Their generosity has made possible our museum pass program, the annual Riverway Storytelling Festival finale "Stories Alive," and our popular winter concert series "A Little Sunday Music."

They also underwrite our guest author program

"Writers and Friends," which has sponsored such notables as Russell Banks, Jeffery Deaver, Donald Westlake, Steve Hamilton, Susan Cheever, and most recently, Ann Hood.

Friends' support of young people ranges from an annual scholarship for high school students in the Bethlehem Central School District to the 25th anniversary of the library's Teddy Bear Picnic.

Consider joining this worthy group. Find out more at <http://friends.bethlehempublib.org>.

Lunchapalooza raises more than $1,000 for food pantry

Special thanks! The event, "Lunchapalooza", sponsored this summer by Four Corners Luncheonette with the support of Roberta Sandler from Grassroots Givers, donated $1,000 to the Bethlehem Food Pantry!

Currently, over 1,500 individuals from our community utilize the food pantry. This donation will help provide food for the upcoming holidays and winter months to our needy neighbors.

Enjoy an early Thanksgiving Dinner with turkey and all of the fixin's on Saturday, November 6 at the Bethlehem Grange. The cost is $10.00 at the door. Senior transportation will leave Town Hall at 3:15 pm. Suggested van donation is $3.00.

You can also join us for a special night out at the Schenectady Community College. The Culinary Arts Department will present a dinner at 5:30 pm on Tuesday evening, Nov. 9, featuring fresh spinach salad with sun dried cranberries; caramelized pears; and toasted hazelnuts followed by an entree choice of sirloin of beef roasted with shallots and topped with merlot demi-glaze, served with potatoes au gratin and asparagus; crab stuffed sole wrapped around a classic crabmeat stuffing and topped with champagne sauce and accompanied by glazed carrots and duchesse potatoes; or vegetarian option of crepes enrobé in French style sauce and finished with a tomato coulis and accompanied by vegetable and potato du jour. Dessert will be old fashioned apple cake baked with walnuts and fresh apples and served with fresh whipped cream.

The cost is $25, checks payable to the Town of Bethlehem. Suggested van donation: $5.

Call 439-4955, ext.1176, to make reservations for either or both of the above programs. Home pick up is available.

Let Voorheesville's resident movie critic help you make your holiday wish list

Our resident movie critic Julie Stump has made her Christmas list and is sharing suggestions that might please those on your own list:

If you're like me and love a good mystery you can't go wrong with three new foreign films: "The Secret in Their Eyes" (Argentinean), where a retired lawyer re-opens a closed case with surprising results, "Girl with the Dragon Tattoo" (Swedish) and "Girl Who Played with Fire" (Swedish), both from the popular books by Stieg Larsson.

For something fun try the great HBO comedy series "Bored to Death" or Robert Downey Jr. as a very energetic "Sherlock Holmes." For the younger set watch for "Scott Pilgrim vs. the World," which is due out in DVD in November. "City Island" is another film that is sure to please.

For great documentaries the variety is amazing! Everything from the delightful "Babies" to Michael Jackson's "This is it" to Bill Maher's "Religulous" or Michael Moore's "Capitalism: a Love Story," to the incredible "Oceans."

Don't forget to hook us up when you do your holiday shopping by making your Amazon purchases through the library website at www.voorheesvillelibrary.org.

We had an outstanding crew of teen volunteers this summer and it is time for them to reap their rewards at a dessert thank you party. There will be lots of goody, delicious desserts, and DDR to dance away the calories! We hope you can make it on Thursday, November 11 from 2:00 pm - 4:00 p.m.

Progress Club to raise dollars for scholars

The Delmar Progress Club is hosting its annual Scholarship Fund Card and Game party on Saturday, Nov. 13, from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Normanside Country Club, 150 Salisbury Road, Delmar. Raffle items include a quilt by Marjory O'Brien and a framed floral photo by Audrey Watson; Jewelry by Andrea Angerame Everyone is welcome - the event is not just for club members, but for the whole community. Admission price of $15 will help the Progress Club achieve its $1500 goal to benefit a Bethlehem Central high school senior who will be going off to college. Last year, Yufan Lin was awarded a scholarship and is now attending Dartmouth College. Attendees don't need a partner - they don't even need to be card players - but they will surely enjoy delicious desserts, the opportunity to win a table prize and the chance to win the gift certificates and prizes donated for the silent auction. Tickets can be purchased by calling Kim Watson at 439-1609. Those who wish to make reservations for pre-party lunch can call the Normanside Country Club at 439-2117.

RCS Library returns to Village Hall next week

RCS Community Library

The Library will close to move back into the Village Hall on Nov. 9 through 11. That is Tuesday through Thursday of next week! On Friday and Saturday, services will be limited. The public computers and the copier will be ready for use. The circulation desk, computers, and copier will be where they have always been. The rest of the floor plan will be different, roomier, and lighter. Come in and enjoy the Library's new look.

Digital photo management

The holidays are around the corner, and there are bound to be lots of "Kodak moments." Wouldn't it be great to be prepared to organize all of those digital photos and videos? Come to the library's beginning computer classes on Wednesday mornings, Nov. 17 and 24, to learn how to organize and edit photographs. \*Please note that dates have changed!***

On Nov. 17, participants will learn to download, save and edit their digital photos. They will also create a short slide show of their favorite photographs. In addition, acquiring photos from the internet and inserting photos into Word documents will be explored. Bring your digital camera and its downloading cable!

Most new digital cameras easily record videos as well as photographs.

Now you're wondering just what to do with all those wonderful snippets! On Nov. 24, class members will learn to import, download and save personal videos. Using Windows Movie Maker, participants will learn how to create their own short video, too. Participants should bring their own camera, if they own one. All computer classes run from 10:30-12:30 on Wednesdays. Space is limited and registration is required. Call the Library at 756-2053.

Film documents America's 'forgotten war'

Marking the 60th Anniversary of "America's Forgotten War," on Saturday, Nov. 6, at 1:30 p.m., the Guilderland Public Library will show "CHOSIN" a prize-winning documentary about the Korean War.

This powerful, compelling movie focuses on the winter of 1950 - the height of the conflict - when 15,000 U.S. Marines and soldiers surrounded by an overwhelming force of communist Chinese troops in the frozen mountains of North Korea.

Now, after 60 years of silence, the men who survived the Chosin Reservoir Campaign finally tell their story. The movie conveys the tale of bravery exhibited and hardship endured by our Korean War veterans. Several of these veterans are residents of the Capital District, and were interviewed and appear

Schenectady County green lights 'green oil'

Cow fat to be used to milk savings for fleet vehicles

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Going "green" is even easier when the possibility of real savings is included. ♪

Schenectady County officials announced on Thursday, Oct. 21, the results of a test for a possible motor oil for county vehicles. The county partnered with Green Planet Products to test a fully biodegradable motor oil, named "G-Oil," to see if savings could be found over traditional motor oil. The experiment tested six county vehicles, including a mixture of high and low usage, and found savings could be realized from making the biodegradable switch.

The distributor of the product, Green Planet, provided the county with a 55-gallon drum of the motor oil for testing purposes at no charge. Testing of the product began in December 2009. The Green Earth Technologies, Inc. oil is currently the world's only bio-based motor oil to be SM Certified by the American Petroleum Institute.

Testing revealed more intensely used vehicles, which normally receive an oil change at 3,000 miles, didn't need oil changes until 10,000 miles, said Joe McQueen, spokesman for the county. Also, vehicles normally receiving an oil change at 4,000 miles could be changed at 15,000 miles with the bio-based oil.

"We are pleased with the results we have seen during testing," said Susan Savage, D-Niskayuna, chairwoman of the Schenectady County Legislature. "Our future use of this green oil will continue our efforts to provide better, more efficient government to taxpayers, while also protecting the environment."

County vehicles averaging six oil changes a year would now only have the oil changed an average of two times a year. Also, the vehicles averaging nine oil changes a year would be reduced to three oil changes. Switching to the bio-oil could save the county up to $1,000 per year for vehicles with a high amount of oil changes per year. The bio-oil costs around $1.50 more per quart compared to traditional motor oil.

McQueen said the wear and tear on the vehicles doesn't seem to be an issue.

"All the tests show that the cars ran very well with it and that it extended the interval for oil," said McQueen. "We could run [vehicles] for the extra period of time without seeing any problems to the car itself."

The 5W-30 weight engine oil is made from beef tallow, which is a part of the cow containing fat, which is then processed by nanotechnology to make the product, said

S. Lee Bowden, president of Green Planet Products. The motor oil also breaks down much faster and after 28 days, said Bowden, the oil is "virtually gone" after accidental spilling or leaking.

"If you have a county interested in going into the green movement ... it is a viable alternative and it is cost-effective," said Bowden. "It is a fairly new product, so what we wanted to do was get some people testing it and bring back the results. We all run our cars on it, but it is nice to have a third party endorsement."

Bowden said the process to make the bio-oil is also less intensive than traditional oils, because to separate petroleum products into separate grades it must be heated up to around 650 degrees, while the bio-oil is blended from 80 to 120 degrees.

Bowden said the company is working on making the oil more readily available to consumers, but it is available for purchase at some auto stores and online retailers.

"While no official agreement or purchase has been made yet, McQueen said the county is planning to move forward and purchase the product for county vehicles. How widespread the usage will be isn't known currently."

"We were pretty sure that they were going to be happy with it, because we have been running it in our cars for years with the same kind of results," said Bowden.

Retailer eyes area Kmart site

Development expected to bring 200 jobs to area

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

The desolate former Kmart Plaza in Glenville is expected to see some activity in the future.

During the Schenectady County Metroplex Development Authority's meeting on Wednesday, Oct. 20, the board passed a resolution to begin the State Environmental Quality Review Act process for the site. Metroplex will coordinate reviews of the project with state, county and town agencies. The former buildings on the site will likely be torn down during redevelopment.

The owner of the property, an affiliate RD Management LLC, has signed a letter of agreement with a "major national retailer" to build a new store at the location near the corner of Route 50 and Glenridge Road. RD Management is estimating 200 jobs would be created through the major retailer.

"It's an eyesore now, and it will replace a vacant eyesore with a project that will create new jobs, new sales tax revenue and new property tax revenue," said Ray Gillen, chairman of Metroplex. "Glenville is a very strong town ... this is really the blighted site in the town that needed to be cleaned up."

The plan involves a $17 million investment for a major retailer totaling 134,000 square feet. There will also be a smaller building of 30,000 square feet attached to the building and a "pad site" for future retail development as part of the investment. The smaller building is planned to hold other shops and retail outlets.

"They are very confident they can fill that space, otherwise they wouldn't be investing in it," said Joe McQueen, spokesman for the county of the developer's plans.

The plaza has been vacant since August 2006 and the total size of the site is 13.2 acres. The owner of the property plans to close on the sale of the property with the retailer in the summer of 2011. RD Management would retain ownership of the smaller 30,000 square foot building. Once approvals are granted, the hope is to begin construction in the fall of 2011, with new retailer opening its doors in 2012.

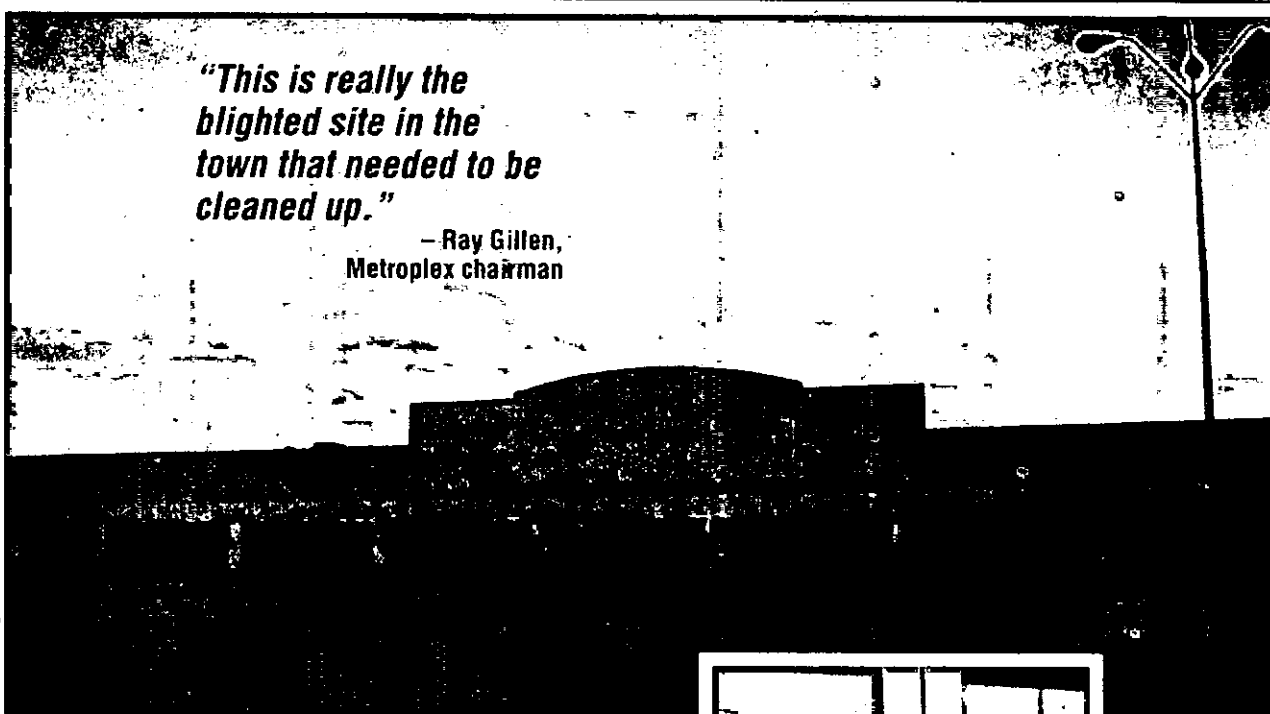

"They need to move along the approval process for this to actually happen, the retailer is ready to go, but there is nothing particularly signed yet," said McQueen.

Gillen said the Route 50 area in Glenville is getting some good attention and activity lately. Also, the corner by the plaza is an important element to the town, he said.

"It is an important venue in Glenville, and so while we're working to rebuild the economy in the county we don't want that particular part of Glenville to be blighted," said Susan Savage, D-Niskayuna, chairwoman of the Schenectady County Legislature. "Kmart has sat vacant for too long, and I think we will have a great project in its place."

Savage said she is confident the project will help stimulate economy in the town, and Christopher Koetzle, supervisor for the Town of Glenville, agrees.

"I think that national retailer is going to attract more investment," said Koetzle. "I think it is an important piece of the

"This is really the blighted site in the town that needed to be cleaned up."

— Ray Gillen, Metroplex chairman redevelopment that is currently going on in Glenville."

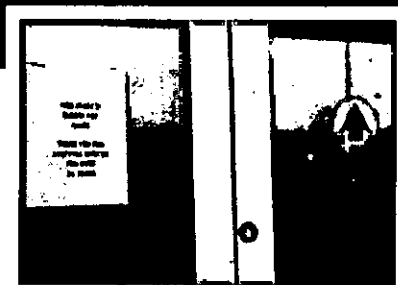

He said there are still some empty lots near the Price Chopper Center and an old transmission oil center building just a few lots over. Also, there are some places on Freemans Bridge Road to look for investment, he said.

"Our focus is to help the small businesses succeed, and that is where we will try to leverage," said Koetzle. "I believe you could have a chain come in and help small businesses, because it brings more traffic into the town and brings more people into the town."

He said the town has a Ready Fund, which is a revitalization and economic development initiative that aims to help businesses grow, invest and improve.

Savage said there was a group a couple years ago interested in the site, but that proposal ultimately fell through due to the economic situation.

"I think this is another example of private industry reacting to a market," said Koetzle. "I think credit goes all around to everybody, but really when it all comes down to it, we just had the good fortune now that the time is right."

The Kmart building in Glenville has been vacant since the summer of 2006.

Animal emergencies are frightening for owners and their pets. The most common situations requiring emergent attention are seizures and unresponsive or paralyzed animals. Knowing how to safely and efficiently transport your injured or ill pet can increase the chances for a favorable outcome. Remember that a frightened and injured pet is more likely to bite or scratch you, so take great care when moving them to a safe location. Make every effort to handle your pet as little as possible. If your pet is having a seizure, never reach in to their mouth. They will not swallow their tongue. Monitor their activity and notify your veterinarian if the seizure lasts longer than 5 minutes or if two seizures occur in a 24 hour period.

If your pet is unconscious or paralyzed, place them on a firm, transportable board such as an ironing board or table leaf. Gently secure them with tie down material to help minimize movement and prevent further injury. Place them in to the car and drive to your veterinarian's office or the Capital District Animal Emergency Clinic. If you are transporting small animals and pocket pets, place them in their carrier and cover it with a blanket.

Make sure you call the veterinary hospital to inform them of your arrival. Once you arrive at the hospital, your pet will be taken into the triage room and assessed. Once they have been stabilized, the veterinarian will come talk to you about your pet's condition and circumstances leading up to the emergency. Although pet emergencies are frightening, staying calm will make the process much smoother.

Poetry in print

Niskayuna man features local writers in new magazine

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

There is now an easy way to see what some local poets are writing, even if you haven't made it to the coffeehouse recently.

The first edition of Orin Griffin's new periodical, The Capital Region Poets Magazine, was released Oct. 10. It aims to provide local poets with greater visibility and to introduce people to what their neighbors are writing. The magazine is scheduled to come out quarterly and will be available for purchase at local stores and online.

"I thought it would be interesting if I just focused on the Capital Region," said Griffin of Niskayuna.

"I thought it would be interesting to do a magazine so those people not going to coffeehouses and open mics can submit their poetry with the public and share it in a different way."

While it might be difficult to get poetry selected for a larger publication, said Griffin, the refined focus of the publication allows local poets a better chance to see their words in print. He said he also wants to support open mic nights featuring local poets.

"People will come out of their shells; poetry is something that really genuinely opens people up," said Griffin. "To send it in and have it written and have it published is a little more private and it is a little more showy."

Griffin said there is a lot going on in the Capital District and he got the idea to start the magazine back in July. After seeing what other poetry publications had done, he decided he wanted make a publication around what he liked to see in a poetry magazine.

"I've written all of my life, and I always wanted to do something along this line," said Griffin. "I was happy the first magazine came out the way I felt a magazine on poetry would come out."

Since he was a kid he said he has written poetry, and he looks at it as just something natural that he does. He said he has always enjoyed sharing his poetry and he has been published in magazines and journals. He also has a self-published book.

Publishing others' work was a new venture for him though, and he is mostly running a one-man operation.

Griffin solicited poetry for the first edition by putting up fliers in Troy, Schenectady and Albany, which resulted in him getting 15 to 20 different submissions from people. Each person submitted three poems for publication. He said he also isn't looking for any poetry that is "dark, racy or derogatory" and would like to keep a family-friendly standard.

"I believe that what they wrote was very true to heart," Griffin said about the submissions he received.

He said there hasn't been any negative response to the first publication and people have enjoyed the local focus.

"The people that have written love the look of the magazine," said Griffin. "Everyone has told me that they don't think it has been done before, and it is great for the Capital Region and the community."

The artwork in the first magazine features photographs he took with his son at Thacher State Park, which provide a local backdrop for the poets.

He said he plans to place photos from local scenery in future editions too.

The magazine can be purchased on Amazon.com and for information about local stores to purchase the magazine or for information on submissions visit odeanpublishing.com. Griffin said he also welcomes any feedback on the magazine.

Committee to present Delaware Ave. study

The Town's Delaware Avenue Hamlet Enhancement Study Advisory Committee will hold a public informational meeting on Monday, Nov. 15, at 7 p.m. in the Town Hall Auditorium to present the "Draft Delaware Avenue Hamlet Enhancement Study Design Standards and Guidelines and Transportation Improvement Plan" to the community.

There will be an opportunity for the public to comment on these resources, which are available at www.townofbethlehem.org/pages/AdvisoryCom/advDelawareAve.asp.

Search for deer at Fiver Rivers

A field study of the natural history of white-tailed deer will be conducted at the NYSDEC Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar on Saturday, Nov. 27, at 2 p.m.

Late November is an excellent time to study deer behavior. Deer are very active at this season, fattening up for the winter and seeking prospective mates. During this outdoor study, center naturalists will lead a search along center trails for rubs, scrapes, pellets and other wildlife signs.

This program is open to the public free of charge. In the event of inclement weather, this program may be cancelled. Call 475-0291 for more information.

One bin to rule them all

Wright Disposal collecting more recyclables than ever under single stream

By CHARLES WIFF
wiff@spotlightnews.com

It's a process that's been ingrained in the American public for decades now: separate your papers from your plastics.

But now that's one mantra most Bethlehemites can forget. Robert Wright Disposal Inc. recently made the switch to single stream recycling, and already it's making a difference in how residents recycle.

For Robert Wright Disposal Inc., the change to a single stream recycling system is the biggest shift in operations since it began introducing automated arms on its trucks in the late '90s. Customers of Wright, which would be the majority of residents in the Town of Bethlehem, already know the change has been made, signaled by the arrival of a new, 64-gallon bin for recyclables.

But what does the shift mean for Wright? In short, the company is collecting more recyclables than ever before. Even though the types of items that can be recycled has not changed, being able to throw them into a single bin has meant recyclable tonnage is up about 30 percent, while the amount of garbage collected has fallen.

Jerry Wright, owner and operator of the business, attributes the shift to an easier process for his customers.

"The homeowner no longer has to sort any of their recyclables," said Wright. "Our goal is to give our customers the best service possible. We feel this is the best way to pick up recyclables."

Making the change was not inexpensive for Wright. The company sunk more than $500,000 into new bins and purchased two new trucks with automated arms to handle pickup.

Rates have not increased for customers, however, because Wright hopes to make up his investment through the efficiencies a single stream system creates.

Crews can make their rounds more quickly using the automated arm instead of having to exit the vehicle to scoop up the smaller bins and sometimes go through improperly sorted materials by hand. Besides that labor efficiency, it costs more to send garbage to a landfill than the recyclables to a recycling facility. Every pound that's recycled rather than tossed away is better business for Wright.

And it's also better for the Town of Bethlehem. The town is a part of the Capital Region Solid Waste Planning Unit, which sets goals to divert material out of the waste stream. Hauling bigger percentage of recyclables goes a long way towards meeting that goal.

"We applaud their efforts, as well as County Waste, to offer the single stream recycling process for their customers, because it greatly increases the participation in recycling," said Town Recycling Coordinator Dan Rain. "I've gotten a lot of positive calls from residents about it, about how much they like the convenience of single stream."

Rain said he's been discussing single stream with other waste collectors in town, and also looking into the feasibility of bringing single stream capability to the town's Rupert Road Transfer Station.

Single stream recycling is not a brand-new development, but it's one that's been slow to roll out due to high startup cost. Advancements in the recycling industry have resulted in processes at recycling facilities that use magnets, conveyor belts and vibrating surfaces to mechanically sort recyclables.

Wright sends its recyclables to a Sierra Fibers facility in Albany, or to a facility in Syracuse as a back up. That nearby recycling plant only recently opened up, offering the option of single stream.

Most of the trash collected by Wright makes its way to the City of Albany landfill.

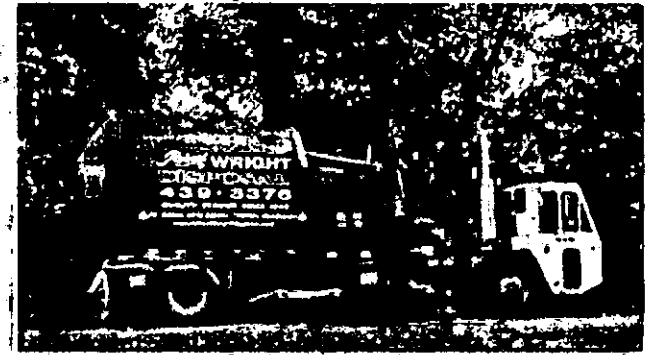

Really, the only downside to any hauler switching to single stream also lies in the benefit it offers—since everything is all together, collectors can't sift out the more valuable items (at this time, cardboard and some scrap metals) and try to sell them. But Wright said the change will more than likely be for the best.

"We wanted to make sure we were providing the most modern service out there," he said.

Robert Wright Disposal Inc., which serves the majority of homes in the Town of Bethlehem, recently made the switch to single stream recycling. It has not only simplified the recycling process for the company's customers, but led to a roughly 30 percent increase in the amount of recyclables collected.

Entertainment in the Spotlight

Cime travel back to the days of elaborate costumes and elegant multi-course banquets accompanied by jovial tunes, jugglers and jest at the 13th Christmas Madrigal Feast, hosted by Saratoga Springs United Methodist Church.

The two-hour dinner show isn't until Dec. 3 and 4, but there are limited seats available and tickets are on sale now. They can be ordered by calling 584-3720 ext. 17 or by e-mailing lmkellas@nycap.rr.com.

"The guests always love it, they feel transported to a different time and are taken away from the present day for a moment. It's sort of like going to a good movie or opera. For about two hours, they don't have to think about anything and can get away from things," said Rand Reeves, musical director for the show.

The Christmas Madrigal, held about every other year since 1986, is reminiscent of medieval and Renaissance-era feasts that were often held more frequently than just at holiday time. More than 100 volunteers and members of the congregation spend a great deal of time preparing for the show, said Reeves, from practicing music to finalizing costumes, to cooking and making sure everything is in order.

"It's a huge effort; that's why we take a year-break in between," said Reeves. "It's not just the cast, but there are also people working in the kitchen, cleaning up and greeting at the door."

The two-hour evening follows many of the traditions that were commonly practiced in the 1650s. For one, the meal is structured to span about five courses, and begins with the parading around of a boar's head to the singing of the boar's-head carol.

"Hunters would go out and kill a boar and then parade the head around," said Reeves.

Church members also follow the tradition of the holly, candle lighting, cutting of the bread, passing of the salt and ending the meal with a Christmas pudding that comes into the room flaming.

It's not unlike a banquet you would go to today, said Reeves, except it's set in a historical period, perhaps made

A feast for the senses

Saratoga Springs United Methodist's Christmas Madrigal captures the spirit of a Renaissance banquet most obvious by the unusual garb.

"There are fancier gowns, tights, hats, some capes and the servers where tunics," said Reeves. "Some of our singers have endeavored to make their own costumes, but we also rent some to make sure they're fairly accurate from the era."

Feasts were extensive events, characterized not only by the enormous spread of food, but also by the almost never-ending entertainment. This Christmas Madrigal features both Renaissance-era tunes and more modern songs.

"They will experience music from all centuries; we don't limit our music to that era. We'll do some contemporary things, but it's primarily older style of singing, unaccompanied singing except with some organ playing and a few instruments like flutes and drums," said Reeves, who said there will be a harpsichord played this year. "The Lord and Lady of the manor will be there overseeing everything and we'll have jugglers. Guests can enjoy a fine meal, complete with wassail, which is a non-alcoholic drink, sort of like a spiced fruit punch, as well as special breads and salads."

The event began 13 years ago, to serve as a fundraiser for the church, with most of the proceeds going to mission work or charities and a small amount being put toward things needed in the church, said Reeves.

There will be three performances: Friday, Dec. 3, at 7 p.m. and Saturday, Dec. 4, at 4 and 7:45 p.m. Tickets are $35 per person or $250 for a table of eight, a special rate offered only for the Saturday night dinner. The Saratoga Springs United Methodist Church is at 175 5th Ave. in Saratoga Springs.

On Dec. 3 and 4, the Saratoga Springs United Methodist Church will host the 13th Christmas Madrigal Feast, a Renaissance style event with traditional food, music, dress and entertainment. The night is organized and presented by some 100 volunteers and church members. Tickets for the two-hour evening are on sale now and can be purchased by calling 584-3720 ext. 17 or by emailing lmkellas@nycap.rr.com.

Volunteers needed

Volunteers are needed for the 14th annual Hannaford Capital Holiday Lights at Washington Park. From November 6 through November 21, volunteers will work on setting up displays. From November 13 to 17, volunteers will work on transforming the Lakehouse into Santa's workshop and other crafts. The 14th Annual Lights in the Park will be open nightly from Nov. 26 through Jan. 2.

During that period, volunteers will be needed with activities varying from photos with Santa to costumed characters. Anyone interested in volunteering should call 518-435-0392.

Area man hosts geocaching talk

On Saturday, Nov. 6, local geocacher Christopher Parker will teach about the high-tech treasure hunting game known as geocaching at the EMS store in Stuyvesant Plaza. The idea is to locate hidden containers, geocaches, with GPS devices and then tell about your experiences online. The workshop will involve catching geocaches at the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy.

You can register at the EMS store in Stuyvesant Plaza, located at 10 Executive Park Drive in Albany, or by calling the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy at 518-436-6346.

MHLC hosts class

Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy will be hosting a letterboxing workshop on Nov. 11, a school holiday. Letterboxing is a combination of treasure hunting, navigation and art. Participants will find the hidden letterboxes by deciphering and finding clues. The prize is a handcrafted rubber stamp to be used on their personal journal. There is a $10 materials fee and preregistration is required. To do so, call 518-436-6346.

Dionysians present play

"A Few Good Men" will be presented on stage by The Voorheesville Dionysians on Thursday, Nov. 11 and Saturday, Nov. 13 at 7:15PM at Voorheesville Performing Arts Center, 432 New Salem Road, Voorheesville (located at Clayton A. Bouton High School/Middle School).

Tickets are $8 for Adults and $5 for Students and Seniors. The play is set in the late 80's. Lt. Daniel Kaffee is a Navy lawyer who is known for getting plea bargains and being lazy. However, when he gets assigned a major murder case he can't help but wonder why. The case involves two marines who appear to have killed a fellow Marine in cold blood. As he and his team look into the case they slowly realize there is more to this case than meets the eye. The Marine Corps wants to cover up the case and this doesn't sit well with Kaffee.

After being continually prodded by the always annoying but sometimes right Joanne Galloway, he takes the case to court and fights for his clients and what he believes is right.

Awarding good samaritans

On Sunday, Oct. 24, at the Good Samaritan Lutheran Health Care Center, the award for professionals who have contributed to the welfare of our seniors in the area was presented by Keith Henchey, executive director, to the Bethlehem Family Practice. have to put their best foot forward, and it's a competitive environment."

Department of Parks and Recreation Administrator Nan Lanahan said the town is competing with a lot more recreational alternatives than were available 10 years ago. She said she'd welcome any effort to increase the program's exposure.

"We have our own niche, and we just need some help in getting people to find our niche," she said.

Hanifin said she's excited to be working for the town.

"I am absolutely thrilled to be working for the town," Hanifin said. "Given my experience in marketing and PR over the last few years, I think I have a lot to offer."

The Delmar resident declined to get into specifics of the job, as she had not yet started work.

Councilman Mark Hennessey cast the dissenting vote for the hiring, and said it had to do with the process, not the applicant. He said there was no public posting of the job position and he had not seen a job description for the position's new duties.

"I do have a problem with the position, I don't have a problem with the person we hired," he said. "I don't know what this person is supposed to do... it is a very undefined job, where the funding is coming from several different places."

At the meeting, few details about the position were discussed. Hanifin's name was not mentioned, nor was information about the hire disclosed to the public as part of the town's new law on agenda attachment release. It was withheld for the purpose of protecting personal information, according to town documents.

The appointment was also included under the agenda heading of "approval of seasonal personnel," a fairly common vote the board often takes for the hiring of the Parks and Recreation Department's many part-time workers. The youth employment service coordinator position is part time.

Messina said the expanded position has been discussed with board members in the past, including in a memo announcing his intention to make the change. He did allow that the meeting agenda could have been more specific.

"I could have added another line there that could have been a bit more descriptive, and next time I will do that," Messina said.

He added it is appropriate to keep resumes and applications from the public release of attachments in the interest of privacy.

The position will carry a salary of just under $20 per hour, meaning the extra hours per week will cost the town about $1,900 this year and roughly $12,500 in 2011. Part of the additional salary for the extra hours will be supplied from the supervisor's "contractual services" budget.

The tentative 2011 budget sees not only cuts to many town programs, but increases in fees, including in the Parks and Recreation Department. Talks are under way at the Town Board level that could result in more reductions.

Messina said the fact Hanifin's work could contribute to attracting new development to the area or finding grants, her salary would be a good investment.

"We're investing a very small amount of money, and I think it's going to have good return," he said.

Collin and Mims were placed under arrest. Mims was remanded to Albany County jail without bail and a return date of Wednesday, Nov. 3, was set. Collins was released with a return date of Wednesday, Nov. 3.

Other arrests

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Saturday, Oct. 23, arrested Sathi D. Wagner, 33, of 89 Beacon Road Apt. 4, Glenmont, and charged him with DWI and traffic violations after a traffic stop on Route 9W in Glenmont.

Police allegedly observed Wagner's 2002 Honda Accord traveling 52 in a 40 mph zone at about 2:41 a.m. and also failing to keep right. When interviewing him, police allegedly smelled the odor of alcohol on Wagner's breath. He told police he had one glass of wine at around 5 p.m., according to arrest reports.

Wagner performed sobriety tests and was placed under arrest. At the police station, he allegedly refused to take a chemical test. He was given a court date of Tuesday, Nov. 11, and took a taxi home.

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Saturday, Oct. 23, arrested Melanie C. Thyrring, 50, of 67 Deans Mill Road, Ravena, and charged her with aggravated DWI and traffic violations.

Police responded at about 12:45 a.m. to a report of a vehicle facing southbound in the northbound lane of Route 9W in Glenmont. They allegedly found Thyrring behind the wheel of her 2008 Honda Accord, which had extensive front driver's side damage. Thyrring said she had lost control of the vehicle, crossed the double yellow center lines, struck a guide rail and had come to a stop in the northbound lane, according to arrest reports.

Police said she had the odor of alcohol on her breath, and said she had two glasses of wine at a wedding in Troy earlier. She performed sobriety tests and was taken into custody, police said. A chemical test at the police station allegedly revealed her BAC to be .19 percent.

Thyrring was given a court date of Wednesday, Nov. 3, and released to her daughter.

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Monday, Oct. 25, arrested Monica L. Deragon, 45, of 1249 Delaware Turnpike, Delmar, and charged her with grand larceny in the second degree and falsifying business records in the first degree, both felonies.

Deragon surrendered herself at the Bethlehem Police station. Town Justice Ryan Donovan set bail at $10,000, which was posted. A court date of Tuesday, Nov. 16, was set.

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Wednesday, Oct. 27, arrested Kenya Cooley, 25, of 3 Lincoln Square Apt. 11F, Albany, and charged her with criminal possession of stolen property in the fourth degree, a felony.

Police said Cooley stole a female shopper's purse from her shopping cart at the Wal-Mart on Route 9W in Glenmont. Cooley allegedly dropped the purse when the victim pursued her yelling for help, and all the property was recovered.

Cooley was remanded to Albany County jail on $7,500 bail, with a preliminary hearing set for Monday, Nov. 1, and a return date of Tuesday, Nov. 16, set.

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Sunday, Oct. 31, arrested Laura L. Mormile, 24, of 17 County 75, Mechanicville, and charged her with DWI.

Police were responding to a complaint of a loud group of people at Glenwood Apartments when they allegedly observed Mormile's 2002 Honda Civic failing to stop at a stop sign when turning onto Route 9W. After a traffic stop police allegedly smelled alcohol on her breath, and Mormile was taken into custody after performing sobriety tests. A chemical test at the police station allegedly showed her BAC to be .10 percent.

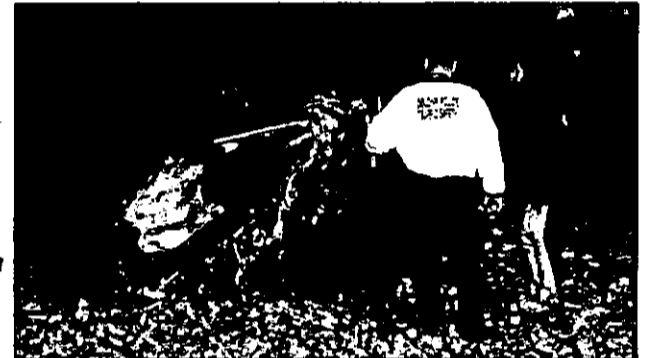

Mormile was given a court date of Tuesday, Nov. 16, and released to a friend.

Passenger dies in Colonie crash

The Colonie Police Department Traffic Safety Unit is investigating a crash involving one car on Lishakill Road at approximately 9 p.m. Friday, Oct. 29. A 2005 Mitsubishi driven by Timothy Reichel, 31, of Colonie was northbound on Lishakill Road when it crossed the center double yellow line, struck a sign post, a large tree, then a second large tree before coming to rest in the front yard of 130 Lishakill. Reichel and his passenger, Crystal Vanepps, 21, of Colonie, were both ejected from the car. Colonie EMS transported them to Albany Medical Center where Vanepps was later pronounced dead. Reichel was admitted with leg, hip and facial injuries. He was charged with DWI. Speed also appears to be a factor in the crash, and other charges are pending as police continue to investigate. Anyone who may have witnessed the crash is asked to contact the Colonie Police at 783-2744.

Police: Man used Facebook for illegal sex acts and drug sales

beama@spotlightnews.com

Colonie police have arrested David M. Bradt of Colonie on Oct. 14, for allegedly using Facebook to engage in sexual activity with underage females and sell them marijuana.

Police said Bradt, 24, of Colonie allegedly used Facebook to befriend females as a means to have sex with them and sell them marijuana. Through their investigation, police identified four underage females, ages 15 and 16, had met Bradt through Facebook and engaged in the aforementioned acts but said they have conducted several more interviews, leading them to believe there are more victims.

Bradt had over 700 friends on the social networking site that he acquired through making friends with one of the girls and then requesting the girl's friends to be his friend, according to police.

Bradt has been charged with five counts of third degree rape, two counts of a third degree criminal sex act, three counts of second degree criminal sale of marijuana, all of which are felonies, and endangering the welfare of a child, according to police.

David M. Bradt

Bradt is currently in the Albany Correctional Facility with no bail. Police said more charges could possibly be filed as the investigation is still ongoing.

Police have asked any parents who believe their daughter has had illegal contact with Bradt to contact the Colonie Police at 783-2744.

other in the waiting room in the hospital, but take them out of the hospital environment where they're fun," she said. "It's an opportunity for parents to get to know each other and to speak with someone who is going through the same thing and that understands."

There is also a trip, entitled Hakuna Matata, meaning "no worries" for all those Lion King fans out there, available to families to a cabin located at Dagget Lake in Warrensburg near Lake George and Bolton Landing. Hedgeman said the organization tries to provide the family with groceries, firewood and linens.

"All they have to do is show up with their clothes and their kids," she said. "It's just a time for families to spend time together as a family, away from the hospital and away from everything."

Hedgeman said the location is just an hour away from a hospital, just in case something were to happen, which she said has occurred before.

The foundation began in 2000 after Rosie's death. Hedgeman said the family spent almost every holiday in the hospital with Rosie. The first Easter after Rosie died, they cooked dinner and brought in Easter baskets for the kids and families who were at Albany Medical Center. Hedgeman said the organization rarely seeks out donations because people usually just give things to them. They foundation will also visit Albany Medical Center around Christmas and fill the conference room, as Hedgeman put it, "from the floor to the ceiling" with gifts. The kids will pick out gifts to give to their family because it is difficult for them to leave the hospital to go to the mall and purchase a present.

"This gives them the opportunity to have the fun and the joy of giving," she said. "They all seem to be more concerned with other people than they are themselves."

Hedgeman said Rosie was a "very sociable baby," and she adored many of the children she met. The main mission for Hedgeman is to spread the love that Rosie exuded every day.

"When she was gone, the love that she gave them, we wanted to pass it on," she said. "It just keeps going on. There's this tiny little girl, she was so sick, but when she walked into the clinic, her face just lit up, and she loved her doctors and she loved all the other children. Her love just keeps going on and on and on."

Department Administrator Nan Lanahan, who added there have been inquiries into putting a dock at the park in the past.

The dock will be a two-section floating dock, which would be able to be completely removed each winter to avoid issues with ice.

But the town has long known the shore at the park is in danger of eroding into the Hudson. There is work under way to conduct a shoreline stabilization study.

Lanahan said the design of the dock is such that it won't be rendered obsolete should work on the shoreline occur. It would be anchored by two concrete footings that could be replaced or relocated.

"We hope we're putting our ducks in the right row to do this properly," Lanahan said.

She added it's possible the study could be conducted over the winter, so any changes could be incorporated into the dock design.

Warns

The board has already met for two budget workshops since the tentative budget was released. The most recent was after the hearing on Monday, Nov. 1, after The Spotlight went to print. Check www.spotlightnews.com for the latest on the budget talks.

A major topic of discussion all along has been whether employees will see raises, and where the tax levy will be set, and those two questions took center stage at the public hearing.

The tentative budget prepared by Supervisor Sam Messina includes a 1 percent cost of living increase for employees (police would have a contractual 2.5 percent raise), and would raise the tax levy by 1.8 percent, or nearly $170,000.

Some board members want that formula changed. Councilman Kyle Kotary, in particular, is pushing for no COLAs and a flat tax rate.

Resident Norman Morand, speaking at the public hearing, said he attended the previous budget workshop and listened to this plan with interest.

"I very seldom agree with Kyle, but I listened to Kyle the other night and he made a lot of sense to me," Morand said.

A GE retiree, Morand argued his pension and the benefits of those subsidizing on social security have not increased anytime recently. Taxes are steadily eating up more and more of his fixed income, he said.

"That's all I see, is a tax increase from the town, a tax increase from the county," he said. "There has to be some end to this."

Such pleas to dial back the budget were echoed by several other speakers.

"My sister works for Manhattan College. She did not get a cost of living increase last year, and she's not getting a cost of living increase this year," said Jared King. "That is how the private sector is dealing with the economic situation."

The budget also levies a set of new fees that would raise an expected $220,000 for the town. Included are a false alarm fee for the police department and an increase in dog licensing fees. The Parks and Recreation Department would also increase fees and make other changes for an estimated $22,000 in revenue.

Included in those changes would be increased fees for field usage for $7,000 in

The tentative budget includes a spending plan for the next few years that lays out how the town should borrow and spend on upcoming projects. Messina had previously called it a capital plan, but on Wednesday admitted it doesn't quite reach that level.

"It was probably stating some of the cost out over the next five years and pay interest, a plan included in the tentative budget. Still, the 2011 plans calls for borrowing $1.4 million next year.

Albany County Comptroller Michael Conners spoke during the public hearing of research with the Village of Menands and City of Cohoes to go through the county for bonding infrastructure projects. If it's found to be possible and legal, such a plan might create more favorable borrowing scenarios.

Conners praised the town for keeping money in reserves. The 2011 county budget is calling for a 15 percent tax hike and massive spending cuts.

"I thought it was a balanced budget, I thought it was creative," Conners said of the town budget. "Maybe we'll ask you to borrow some money."

But the town's reserve funds remain an issue of contention. Messina has proposed using the part of the fund balance to cover an expected deficit this year that's largely due to less than expected sales tax receipts. Some on the Town Board have argued that money should be kept in the bank and the gap should be closed by cutting money from the 2011 budget.

"You can't bond everything. As you bond every year you're going to have an increase in those costs. That all adds up to a certain amount a year that you have to pay."

Bethlehem resident Bob Jazinski revenue. Scott Bonanno objected to these changes, calling it unfair to levy them on a class of users.

"It's specifically targets youth-based organizations," he said.

Director of Parks and Recreation Nan Lanahan said fees would be increased for youth nonprofit organizations and adult leagues. They haven't been raised since the town instituted fees in 2007, and the cost of maintaining the fields (materials and labor) has risen since then.

But it wasn't just the often-controversial topics of raises, taxes and fees that drew public comment.

a bit more than I should have that we have a capital plan in our budget, but we do have a capital component," he said.

Resident Bob Jazinski said while bonding for big projects is a good idea, he warned against going overboard on borrowing.

"You can't bond everything. As you bond every year you're going to have an increase in those costs," he said. "That all adds up to a certain amount a year that you have to pay."

The board has already reached a tacit agreement to pay all pension contribution costs this year rather than spread could beat them," said Arket.

The Eagles gained the upper hand on BH-BL in last Tuesday's rematch by winning the first games 25-22 and 25-18. The Spartans built a 23-21 lead in the third game before Bethlehem scored the final four points to win 25-23.

"We put pressure on Burnt Hills with our serves, and we passed the ball very well," said Arket.

Kyle Landrigan led Bethlehem with 14 kills, 25 assists and five blocks. Landrigan's last two kills were the go-ahead and match-clinching points.

"Kyle Landrigan and Ben Porter just took over the match at that point," said Arket.

The win over BH-BL gave the Bethlehem boys the top seed for the Section II Tournament (once known as the Suburban Council Tournament) and a quarterfinal home match against Guilderland Monday. And Arket said that he didn't think there would be an emotional letdown with his team.

"We have a number of seniors on this team, and I'm sure they won't allow us to have a letdown," he said.

The Bethlehem girls won't begin the Section II Class AA playoffs until Thursday when they host Columbia. The top-seeded Lady Eagles are in search of their third consecutive Sectional title.

"I think a lot of us are trying not to think about it," said Kniffen. "We've used the term 'three-peat' this season, but we're trying hard not to jinx ourselves."

Like the boys team, the Bethlehem girls have several seniors on the squad to keep the team on an even keel.

"All of them have one championship under their belts, and Jaci [Oskam] has two," said Kniffen.

and 1998. Still, it's a mark few Section II teams can match.

But if R-C-S wants to end its six-year championship drought, it must find a way to score touchdowns against Schalmont's defense. That won't be an easy task, and I expect that the Sabres will win their second straight Sectional title in a low-scoring game.

Of course, the beauty of Super Bowls is that you never know what to expect. So if one of your teams has gotten this far, I suggest you go see them play this weekend.

Switching gears to boys soccer, the Suburban Council's dominance is over in Class A.

For the first time since 2004, no Suburban Council team made the Class A semifinals. Scotia-Glenville eliminated two-time champion Mohonasen 2-0 Saturday, while Ichabod Crane edged BH-BL 1-0 and Albany Academy defeated Averill Park 2-1 in other quarterfinal games.

For Scotia-Glenville, Saturday's win over Mohonasen got a huge monkey off its backs. The Tartans had lost to the Mighty Warriors in the quarterfinals the past two years. Both times, the games were at Scotia-Glenville and were played under rainy, windy conditions not fit for outdoor activity.

The conditions were not ideal Saturday as the game was played under cloudy skies that threatened - but did not deliver - rain. That didn't bother Scotia-Glenville, as the Tartans consistently attacked the ball and got a strong effort from goaltender Dan Saccocio to keep Mohonasen off the scoreboard.

Saturday's quarterfinal results set up a pair of league rematches in Tuesday's semifinal games at Johnstown. Scotia-Glenville met Foothills Council rival South Glens Falls, while Colonial Council newcomer Ichabod Crane took on Albany Academy, a traditional power in that league. So no matter what, it will be a Foothills Council team taking on a Colonial Council team for the first time since all the large Suburban Council and Big 10 teams were bumped up to Class AA in 2004.

A special note of recognition goes to the Bethlehem boys volleyball team for beating BH-BL 3-0 in last week's regular season finale and ending the Spartans' eight-year unbeaten streak.

The Eagles had been BH-BL's closest rival the last two years, but they couldn't get over the hump against the Spartans until last Tuesday's trip to Burnt Hills. Even then, it wasn't easy for Bethlehem as it edged BH-BL 25-22 in the first game and rallied to win the third game 25-23.

The Eagles now look to end the Spartans' dominance of the Sectional tournament. BH-BL has won the last six titles

(when it was known as the Suburban Council Tournament).

Siena women's soccer update: The Saints recovered from their three-game MAAC losing streak to beat Fairfield and Iona and finish third in the league standings. Siena meets Marist at this weekend's MAAC Tournament in Baltimore.

Siena's men's soccer team has been playing better than the women's team of late. The men's team defeated Rider 4-1 Sunday to improve its MAAC record to 6-1 and clinch a playoff berth. Nice to see that Siena's soccer success isn't limited to the ladies.

The Albany Devils have been better on the road (3-1) than they have been at home (2-2) this season. Of course, three of those four road games have been against Adirondack (2-9), Hartford (3-8) and Providence (2-7). Wait until they have to play Wilkes-Barre/Scranton (8-0) and Hershey (6-4) on the road. They may find it difficult to win those road games.

Hard to believe, but Saturday's "Dutchmen Shoes" football game between Union and RPI was the first one to be played under the lights. They should play that game at night every year. After all, both schools paid good money to install lights at their respective home fields. They should make use of them.

I've stopped laughing at the Buffalo Bills. You can't laugh at a winless team that has fallen by three points in overtime in each of their last two games because those could have easily been wins. Trust me when I say the Bills won't be winless for much longer.

Finally, I'd like to wish Sandy Alderson good luck as he embarks on his journey to make the New York Mets competitive again. Given what he has to work with, he'll need to be the best salesperson in Major League Baseball in order to get good value for any trade, he's going to make. I mean, what can you hope to get in return for Carlos Beltran or Johan Santana? If it was three years ago, you could have gotten some good prospects. Now? Alderson would be lucky to get a high draft pick and a low-end minor leaguer.

This won't be an easy rebuilding project, and I hope Alderson is up to the task. If he isn't, the Mets may be left behind for good in the National League East.

Thursday's opening round game. "The key [for us] is to be patient, play technical and score on the opportunities we get."

Bethlehem was the top team in a topsy-turvy Suburban Council this season where nearly every team was at or above .500.

"It's been a really strange year," said Ridgway. "Shen is the seventh seed [out of the Suburban Council], and they've played better of late. Who knows? It might be better to be the No. 2 seed and play Shaker to get through [to the semifinals]."

The good news for the Eagles is that they are healthy entering the playoffs for the first time in several years.

"We've been very lucky with injuries," said Ridgway. "In previous years, we've had four or five guys injured going into the playoffs, so hopefully we can stay healthy this year."

Bowl

to the inside to reach the end zone.

"As soon as I saw them going into the hole, I just took it outside," said Watts.

The game did not start smoothly for the Indians. Drake broke free for a 45-yard touchdown run on Hudson Falls' first offensive series to give the visiting Tigers a 7-0 lead.

R-C-S's offense struggled to find a rhythm of its own until the second quarter. Sophomore quarterback Tyler Swart capped a long series with a 2-yard touchdown plunge to tie the game at 7. On the Indians' next drive, Swart threw a high-arcing pass to a wide-open Andrew Brozowski, who took it untouched into the end zone for a 20-yard touchdown that gave R-C-S the lead for good.

VanDerzee said it was the fourth time this season that Swart attempted that pass, "and it's the first time that he's thrown it to [Brozowski]."

to move the ball well in the third quarter, but penalties prevented them from driving deep into Hudson Falls' territory. In one sequence, R-C-S went from having a first down at midfield to having a first down at its own 40-yard line due to a pair of false-start penalties. The Indians couldn't make up the difference and had to punt.

"We kept trying to shoot ourselves in the foot," said VanDerzee.

That trend ended in the fourth quarter, and with it any hopes Hudson Falls had of staying in the game.

R-C-S now faces a Schalmont team that has one of the most stubborn defenses in Section II. The Sabres have allowed 45 points through nine games, and they're coming off a 21-7 semifinal victory over Albany Academy last Friday in which they limited senior tailback Zay Richardson to less than 100 yards rushing and a touchdowns - both season lows.

But after missing last year's playoffs, VanDerzee said he wasn't concerned

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk quarterback Tyler Swart (16) gets the ball over the goal line for a second-quarter touchdown in last Friday's Class B semifinal game against Hudson Falls. Swart later threw for a touchdown to help the Indians pull out a 27-14 victory over the Tigers.

Rob Jonas/Spotlight

about his team's Super Bowl opponent.

"Bring on whoever you want. We're going back to the Super Bowl," said VanDerzee.

BC boys beat Burnt Hills in last match

Soccer isn't the only sport Bethlehem is conquering these days.

The boys and girls volleyball teams are the top seeds for their respective Section II tournaments after strong Suburban Council campaigns. The boys tied Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake for the best overall record at 15-1, while the girls posted a 13-3 record to win the South Division title.

"It's been great because the boys and girls teams have been hanging out together and helping each other out at practice," said Bethlehem girls coach Lisa Kniffen.

The girls team was among the busload of Bethlehem students that traveled to BH-BL last Tuesday to watch the boys team end the Spartans' eight-year Suburban Council winning streak with a 3-0 sweep.

"I've been amazed at the growth of volleyball [support], especially at Bethlehem," said boys coach Rick Arket. "It's always been a pretty big sport at Bethlehem, but I've never seen us have a bus just for students to go to a midweek road match."

Bethlehem entered the match with some confidence that it could beat BH-BL. The Spartans needed five games to edge the Eagles 3-2 Oct. 1, and Arket said his team stayed with BH-BL through all five games.

"Once that first match was over, we knew we

Shenendehowa first on BC's checklist

As the No. 1 seed from the Suburban Council, the Bethlehem boys soccer team got a few days off before starting the Section II Class AA playoffs.

It was a good thing, too.

The Eagles (14-2-0) needed the extra time to prepare for Shenendehowa, which was riding a five-game undefeated streak entering Monday's quarterfinal game in Delmar.

"They've made some changes, and they've been playing better of late," Bethlehem coach Phil Ridgway said of Shen (6-5-6), which defeated Guilderland 3-0 in last

Indians tame Tigers to advance in Sectionals

A year ago, the Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk football team wrapped up a forgettable season by playing a crossover game.

This year, the Indians are one win away from the Section II Class B title.

R-C-S (8-1) punched its ticket to the Super Bowl by beating Hudson Falls 27-14 last Friday. The Reinfurt Division champion Indians meet West Division champion Schalmont (9-0) in Saturday's final at Schenectady High School.

"It feels good, especially after what happened last year," said senior tailback Cory Watts. "We went from finishing last in our division last year to first."

Watts played a large role in R-C-S's latest win. He rushed for 150 yards and two touchdowns, and he intercepted Hudson Falls quarterback Shane Colvin with less than one minute left in the fourth quarter to end the Tigers' last scoring threat.

Watts was also part of the turning point of Friday's game. Late in the second quarter, Dakota Drake — Hudson Falls' top offensive and defensive player — made an ankle pick tackle to stop Watts on a first down run. Drake then rolled over Watts' leg, temporarily injuring Watts. The referee called a personal foul on the play and ejected Drake from the game.

Without Drake, the Tigers (4-5) struggled to get anything going on offense. They did not get another first down until the latter stages of the fourth quarter — after R-C-S had taken a 27-7 lead.

"When you lose a quality player like that, it had to hurt them," said R-C-S coach Gary VanDerzée.

Hudson Falls' defense did its best to keep the Tigers in the game, but it was only a matter of time before Watts started finding some holes. On both of his fourth-quarter touchdown runs, Watts sprinted wide to the right and made a cut

Running backs dominate Class AA match-up

Say what you will about being a Cleveland Browns fan, but at least I didn't have any unrealistic expectations about my team going to the Super Bowl this year — unlike Dallas Cowboys fans, Minnesota Vikings fans and San Diego Chargers fans, for example. OK, moving on...

• Since we're already on the subject, Section II football will be holding its five Super Bowls this weekend.

As always, we'll leave the Class C and D ranks alone since none of our area teams are involved. That leaves AA, A and B to discuss.

In Class AA, we have Shenendehowa and Troy meeting Friday at Colonie Central High School. This was the match-up most experts had expected at the start of the season, but some doubt was thrown into the mix when Shen lost its last two Empire Division games to drop to third place.

The Plainsmen (7-2) bounced back from those losses to Guilderland and Saratoga Springs by stuffing Shaker 48-6 in the quarterfinals and rallying for a 24-14 semifinal win against Ballston Spa. That's the good news.

The bad news for Shen is that it now meets a Troy team that has dominated nearly all of its opponents this season. And after disposing of Niskayuna 63-7 in Saturday's semifinal, the Flying Horses (9-0) appear ready to stampede their way to a Sectional title.

At least, the Plainsmen have the horses to stay with Troy — on the ground, anyway. Bronson Greene has rushed for 1,253 yards this season, which is the same ballpark as Troy superstar Jordan Canzeri (1,300 yards). And if Tony Fusco is healthy, he can provide Shen with a second option on a par with Troy's Shatiek Lewis, who has had his own health issues this season.

Ultimately, the game will be won at the line of scrimmage. Both teams have strong offensive lines, but Troy has the added benefit of having experience on the line (the Flying Horses start seniors, while Shen starts mainly juniors). That could swing this game in Troy's favor.

Class A features a familiar Super Bowl match-up as Burnt Hills-Ballston Lake meets Lansingburgh Saturday at Shen. These two teams met in the 2006 and 2007 Super Bowls, with each side winning once.

BH-BL (9-0) is going after its third consecutive Class A title, and the way the Spartans have played this year, Lansingburgh (8-1) faces a real uphill battle Saturday night. BH-BL's running game has been potent with Evan Nusbaum, Brandon Beatty and quarterback Keaton Flint combining for more than 2,600 yards and 43 touchdowns. And the Spartans' first-unit defense has been stout, allowing less than 10 touchdowns this season.

Lansingburgh did push BH-BL before the Spartans pulled away for a 25-15 win when they met in the opening week. This time, don't expect BH-BL to allow Lansingburgh to hang around.

The Class B Super Bowl could be a defensive battle as West Division champion Schalmont (9-0) meets Reinfurt Division champion Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk (8-1) Saturday afternoon at Schenectady High School.

The Sabres have been stingy in terms of giving up points (45 allowed in nine games), but the Indians have also been good at keeping opponents in check lately (27 points allowed in the last three games). And when Schalmont's offense has played against a good defense, the Sabres haven't scored a lot of points (40 points combined in recent wins against Hudson Falls, Schuylerville and Albany Academy).

R-C-S has made a habit of reaching the Class B final. Since 1996, the Indians have been to the championship game nine times, but they've won the Super Bowl just once (2004) since winning three in a row between 1996
