Bethlehem sited for two studies

Roundabout lighting and land conservancy groups to work in town

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

The Town of Bethlehem is to be the site of two studies that may have wider implications for the surrounding area and entire state.

The Department of Transportation, along with NYSEDA and the Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute Lighting Research Center, plan to make the roundabout at the intersection of Route 140 and New Scotland Avenue the site for tests on lighting and landscaping.

Testing would occur in the springtime, and would involve two one-night tests of new lighting systems to replace or complement the yellowy sodium lamps and various landscaping for the middle of the roundabout. That would be followed by a one-week test later on incorporating what the tests show works best.

The need for a new approach to roundabout lighting came out of a recent study by the Lighting Research Center, said RPI's John Bullough at a recent Town Board meeting.

"Roundabouts emerged as one specific type of road that might benefit from different kinds of lighting and vegetation," he said.

The DOT has been inserting roundabouts into more and more locations statewide, and says they are more efficient and safer than signaled intersections. Bethlehem has been on the forefront of the adoption, and the DOT's Mark Kennedy said the New

Schools miffed at Regents date change

Educators say moving test up means more cost, less access for students

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

Area educators are bristling at a recent change with the state English Regents exam that moves the testing date up a full two weeks.

The state Education Department said the change was made in response to requests from school districts, but here in the Capital District most, if not all, educational leaders say the change will mean less time to prepare pupils, pulling kids out of class for testing and, in some cases, assuming more costs for substitutes.

"We heard about the date change a couple weeks ago, and that's the same time we heard about the rationale," said Shenendehowa Central Schools Superintendent L. Oliver Robinson. "I don't know what school districts they spoke to, but it certainly wasn't us."

Students usually take mid-year Regents exams during a few days in late January during which schools are otherwise closed. The Education Department says the new Jan. 11 testing date is necessary because a new format is being introduced, and time is needed to analyze the results to create conversion charts by Jan. 28. Those charts ensure a student in Rochester, or anywhere else, is being graded the same as every other student.

A memo sent to schools and provided to The Spotlight by the Education Department indicates districts have asked for the test to be moved up to ensure course grades can be completed and graduating seniors can get their results in time.

In the suburban areas of the Capital District, though, mid-year graduations are fairly uncommon.

"From our point of view, we didn't see any reason that it's advantageous to do it in this time frame," said Schalmont Central School District Superintendent Valerie Kelsey. "This scheduling change is cause for concern and has created multiple issues for our school district."

Some educators said it's likely downstate schools, with poorer graduation rates, pushed for the change.

Multiple attempts to reach an Education Department representative for further comment were unsuccessful. A reporter was, in one instance, told the memo indicating districts had asked for the change was self explanatory.

The memo also authorized schools to cancel classes to administer the exam, but few, if any, local schools will be taking

Local dance caller starts barn dance series in Delmar

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

It's an art form that involves more than just audience participation — it's audience-based. And it's experiencing a sort of resurgence in cities around the country, from New York to Chicago to San Francisco.

You can add Bethlehem to that list, too, with the introduction of Homespun Barn Dance at the Delmar Reformed Church. The inaugural dance was held Friday, Nov. 19, and nearly 50 people turned out for an evening of simple dance and socializing under the watch of caller and longtime Dance Flurry Organization member Paul Rosenberg. Rosenberg, who's been involved in the world of dance for 25 years, said he got the idea for the Homespun series after seeing his chosen form of contra dance become more and more inaccessible to beginners, with programs increasingly catering to expert dancers.

"Our society makes everything so competitive, including our social time and social dances," he said. "Contra square and folk dance movements have all gotten to be very challenging...people forget that dancing is for everybody."

Rosenberg earns his living as a dance caller, working 150 to 180 events a year by his estimation, generally at weddings, anniversary parties and the like. As such, he's often presented with the task of quickly getting a group of dancing newbies on their feet and having fun without feeling intimidated.

Other arrest

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Saturday, Nov. 20, arrested Omar Fuentes, 32, of Hudson, and charged him with DWI, aggravated unlicensed operation of a motor vehicle and speeding.

Police allegedly observed Fuentes' 2001 BMW traveling 82 in a 55 on State Route 9W in Selkirk at about 3:22 a.m. The smell of alcohol was on his breath when police pulled him over and he said he consumed a shot and a mixed drink at Jillian's in Albany, according to arrest reports.

Fuentes allegedly failed sobriety tests and was placed into custody. A chemical test at the police station allegedly showed his BAC to be .11 percent. Fuentes was given a court date of Tuesday, Dec. 7, and released to his cousin. Bethlehem OKs park shoreline study to address erosion issues

The Town of Bethlehem will be undertaking a study that will examine methods to stabilize the shoreline at Henry Hudson Park.

The Town Board on Tuesday, Nov. 23, authorized spending $31,000 for Ocean and Coastal Consultants Engineering to conduct the study, which is expected to be completed in mid- to late-spring. The bulk of the cost will be covered by a DEC grant, with the town chipping in $8,000 out of its parkland fund, which is not fueled by tax dollars.

The study is intended to find methods to stop erosion along the banks of the Hudson River.

At the Town Board meeting, resident Bill Kelleher raised numerous issues with the condition and design of the existing dykes, and also suggested the town should not assume what will likely be the considerable cost of rebuilding or replacing them.

"The dykes were built by the Corps of Engineers, not the State of New York, and the Corps of Engineers should replace them," he said.

Town Parks and Recreation Director Nan Lanahan said the study would be examining the dykes at length, and Town Engineer Paul Penman added that like the study, the town would be searching for outside funding when it comes to doing actual work.

"It probably won't be the full amount, but we think there is some money out there," he said.

Celebration to culminate with tree-lighting at the Four Corners

In what is often billed as the Northeast's shortest celebration of the season, community groups and businesses will take to Delaware Avenue Friday, Dec. 3, for the fourth annual Holiday Parade.

The procession will step off from Town Hall at 6 p.m. and march to the Four Corners — just .35 miles — where Santa Claus himself will light up the holiday tree.

Although registration is not yet complete, over 150 participants are expected this year, according to the town.

Like last year, the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce is getting involved in the event and has organized later hours and sales at businesses surrounding the Four Corners to provide some post-parade cheer for attendees.

Delmar Reformed Church will be handing out free hot chocolate and cookies and will provide crafts for kids. At Perfect Blend any hot drink purchase will come with a free scone, and Michael Roache will be providing live entertainment starting at 6 p.m. Andriano's Pizza will have a two slice and a soda special.

For those who didn't get their fill of shopping on Black Friday, Peaceful Inspirations and Wild Sage Designs will be staying open late and having some in store specials.

Businesses last year saw success after the parade, said Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce Interim President Gina Bulman.

"The businesses are really doing a lot for residents in town and really getting involved in community events," she said. "It works and they love to see families stay downtown and visit."

The annual Holiday Parade takes place this year at 6 p.m. Friday, Dec. 3. The procession will wind up at the Four Corners.

BC think tank sees managing facilities playing a big role in fiscal future

Community panel wraps up meetings, files report

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

After three meetings and a hefty amount of analysis, an informal "think tank" of residents, parents, teachers and administrators in the Bethlehem Central School District have come to the conclusion the district's fiscal future largely hinges on its management of its facilities.

That's what a straw vote of the group's members showed at its final meeting on Monday, Nov. 22, when options like selling the district offices, closing an elementary school and splitting at least two elementary schools into K-2 and 3-5 groups to better utilize faculty garnered the most support.

The group's final report will be presented to the Board of Education at a future meeting and is now available for viewing on the district's Web site.

School board liaison to the think tank Diane Giaccone-Stever said both the process and results of the group's meetings were encouraging.

"It gets the community out there and the community involved," she said.

The district has made cuts to the budget on the order of about $4 million in the past two years. It's assuming that the coming year will bring another round of reductions in state school aid, perhaps $2.5 to $3.2 million, and with no end to the recession in sight is searching for ways to trim things down in the long term.

Adding to the budget crisis is declining enrollment. The district has lost about 100 students in the last few years and projections show enrollment dropping by another 300 pupils by 2018. Such figures led the committee to investigate closing an elementary school, at a one-time savings of $500,000 to

"This is what I would expect from community residents. They gave us some excellent ideas to talk about."

— Superintendent Michael Tebbano

$700,000 and smaller year-to-year savings thereafter.

Selling a building could bring more revenue, and some of the elementary schools are in desirable locations, like Glenmont Elementary. But Superintendent Michael Tebbano warned selling a building could have unintended consequences.

"If you sell a building in your district, you open up a double edged sword of a charter school moving into your community," he said. "Then you have a leech on your tax base."

Similarly, the district could stand to realize some revenue by selling the education center on Adams Place, which houses the district's administrative offices, and moving them to space in one of the schools. The district looked into that possibility in 2009 and appraised the building at $670,000, but renovating office space in the middle school, for example, would cost up to $500,000.

It would also probably necessitate moving sixth grade back to the elementary schools, which could be controversial.

The think tank came up with more than 100 ideas at its first meeting, many of which were disqualified because they offered little or no savings or were illegal.

One popular topic is always transportation, but the district has found there is little saving to be found there in part due to state regulations that require the school to have a space on the bus for every student even if they don't ever use it.

For the first time, the district in a recent go-home-early drill required all students to take the bus, Tebbano said.

"When we made everybody sit on the bus, it got extremely tight," he said.

Combining the high school and middle school routes would actually cost far more than its worth, said Transportation Department Director Al Karam, requiring the purchase of new buses and the hiring of more drivers to handle the volume.

"The two-tiered system really works best for a district where the schools are all on one campus," he said. "When you're spread out like we are here, it really is a more costly system."

The committee showed an overall aversion to privatizing the transportation department, citing safety concerns, but wondered if privatizing food service could bring some savings.

Tebbano said it's possible, but entering into a contract with a private provider would have to be carefully examined based on what they've seen happen in other districts.

"The only drawbacks that we find is that we've lost control," he said. "Once you lock into a contract with them, you're really locked into what they do to the fees and charges every year. ... The cost starts to get out of control in five years."

Tackling the district's long- and short-term finances will ultimately be up to the administration and the school board, but Tebbano emphasized the think tank was a good exercise that established a good lead in to January's community budget forums.

"This is what I would expect from community residents," he said. "They gave us some excellent ideas to talk about."

For Hanukkah, my Romeo is taking me to Venice

By ROBIN SHRAGER SUITOR
news@spotlightnews.com

For our fifth wedding anniversary my darling husband bought us tickets to see a live outdoor performance of Shakespeare's "Romeo and Juliet." A normal wife would have seen this as a highly romantic gesture. But Jeff didn't get himself a normal wife; he married me.

"How could you buy tickets to an outdoor show?" I admonished, "You know it almost always rains on our anniversary." With a high chance of inclement weather, it was likely that the show would be cancelled. Either that or we'd be forced to sit in the drizzle. Our "special" anniversary would be ruined.

Alas, the tickets were nonrefundable. The lady on the other end of the line was unsympathetic to my story.

"But my husband just called and purchased the tickets within the hour. The play is more than a month from now."

Box office lady said, "All sales are final. We may sell out. You could come to the theatre and try to sell the tickets on the night of the show."

I said, "We live in a different city. If I wanted to come there the night of the show I would not be trying to get rid of the tickets."

Commentary:

From Robin's Nest

Ultimately the theatre company agreed to exchange the tickets (which I never had in hand) with a gift certificate that could be redeemed for two tickets to a show of our choice at the theatre. The certificate was good for three years. We were off the hook for Romeo and Juliet.

Our August anniversary arrived and the weather was beautiful. We marked the special day by going canoeing on the Battenkill River and having dinner in Vermont.

That's right, it would have been a great night for an outdoor production of "Romeo and Juliet."

No problem, we'd get to Shakespeare eventually. We had the gift certificate. Only the next summer we also had a newborn baby. And the summer after that the baby was a toddler and it wasn't so easy to find the time or energy or a babysitter to leave town to do dinner and a show.

As our eighth wedding anniversary approached I recalled the expiring gift certificate. And this is how my Romeo ended up taking me to see "The Merchant of Venice."

In the hour's drive to the theatre I briefed Jeff and myself on the plotline by reading from the library's copy of the Cliff's Notes version. This was back in the 20th century, some five hundred years after Shakespeare wrote the play, but just shy of the time when you could Google everything.

Fast-forward 10 years and my daughter starts studying Shakespeare in middle school ... and likes it! She insists that we all go to see the high school's production of "As You Like It." The show happened to run at Hanukkah time, which was fortuitous since "going to a play" is one of the ways we like to celebrate the holiday. Another way we celebrate is by going to Cousin Roberta and Walter's house and eating potato pancakes. We did that after the show, since their Hanukkah party was the same afternoon.

Hanukkah, which began this year on the evening of Dec. 1, commemorates the Jews' victorious fight for religious freedom. Over 2,100 years ago, Antiochus Epiphanes, the Greek King of Syria declared that all people must worship Greek gods. Jewish rituals were outlawed and the Jews' holy temple was seized and defiled. T the long battle against the Syrian army. While preparing to re-dedicate their reclaimed temple, the Jews found one flask of holy oil, enough to light the lamps for just one day. A miracle occurred and the oil burned for eight days, enough time to obtain a new supply of oil. Each year at Hanukkah, Jews celebrate for eight nights by lighting and displaying candles in a menorah (candelabra).

This year my Romeo will be taking me to the theater just a few days after the holiday ends. Our daughter, now a ninth-grader, is in the cast of the Bethlehem high school's production of, what else, "The Merchant of Venice."

"The Merchant of Venice" (or MOV, as it appears on our calendar) is considered a Shakespearean "tragicomedy," a term that could also be used to describe the circumstances leading up to my first time seeing the show in the 1990s. There was love and betrayal, forgiveness and revenge: Jeff taking the loving initiative to surprise me with the Romeo and Juliet tickets, my betrayal of his effort by wrangling the rain check out of the theater, and his forgiveness and willingness to change plans back in '95. The revenge takes the form of Rachel unwittingly dredging up the memory all these years later.

Shakespeare's stuff is far more intense than my marital drama. Shylock, the villain in "The Merchant of Venice," has been subjected to significant societal persecution, which may explain, if not excuse, his nasty behavior.

The high school group traveled to New York City one Saturday last month to see the Broadway production of the show, starring Al Pacino as Shylock. My daughter's friend wondered why Al's name appeared on the Playbill in larger print than Shakespeare's name. Rachel was able to explain it was because "Apparently, Al is some really famous guy."

OK, so my teenager isn't familiar with Al Pacino, but she and her cast mates still deserve admiration for their interest in Shakespeare. At times, understanding the dialogue is like interpreting riddles or poetry. You have to open your mind to the challenges posed by the language Shakespeare uses. It also helps to have your kid explain what the play is about!

Theatre Without A Net's production of "The Merchant of Venice" runs Dec. 10-12 and 17-19 at the Bethlehem High School. There are Friday and Saturday evening shows at 7 p.m., Saturday matinees at 1 p.m., and Sunday matinees at 2 p.m. For more information or to reserve tickets visit www.theatrewithoutanet.org or call 439-2991.

Innovative is up and running

Deicer maker sets up shop at former Texaco site in Glenmont

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

After several years of planning and renovating, Innovative Surface Solutions is up and running at its Glenmont location.

Specializing in deicing products, the northeastern company started moving product out of the River Road facility in September. It's sited at the former Texaco petroleum storage site, which has sat unused for about 30 years. The company started renovations about two years ago, and with 48 million gallons of storage space, it offers great proximity to transportation infrastructure by road, rail and the Hudson River.

"If you're in this business, you need to be able to hold large inventories," said Daren Crawford, sales director at the Glenmont Innovative location. "Having this asset gives us basically the largest inventory of snow and ice removal and dust control products in the Northeast."

Innovative has long offered environmentally friendly solutions to ice and dust mitigation. Perhaps the most popular and notable is Magic Salt, which won a Design for the Environment designation from the EPA for the Magic Salt line in 2008.

In addition to solid deicers like Magic Salt, the company also carries liquid deicers that can be applied directly to the roadway or added to treat salt or other solid deicers. Those products cannot only beat salt in effectiveness, they're also much less corrosive, a fact car owners and the environment can appreciate.

Despite being out of use for so long, much of the equipment from the Texaco days was still serviceable, Crawford said.

"Texaco, when they built this place, they built it right. ... It's pretty impressive," he said.

The location is not yet up to full capacity. Once up and running at full tilt, the location will employ eight, plus another five Innovative Surface Solutions is now shipping product out of its Glenmont storage space. salesmen on the road. A ribbon-cutting ceremony is scheduled to be held in the spring when all the work's done to the 53-acre site.

Crawford said Innovative accounts for about 25 percent of the U.S. market when it comes to deicers. For the 24-year-old company, selling municipalities on new technology can be the toughest part of the business.

"We're trying to lead a very conservative market into a new age," said

Crawford. "It's strictly about usage. ... If we can help the municipality to lower their usage of sand and usage of salt, environmentally that's going to have a long-term positive impact."

Innovative supplies a number of area municipalities, including the City of Albany, a 10-year customer, the state Department of Transportation and the Thruway Authority. Crawford said the company is in talks with the Town of Bethlehem about adopting their products.

Bethlehem Chamber to host shopping expo

The Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce always wants to keep money in the local economy, but this holiday season it's trying to make it a bit easier on shoppers.

The chamber will hold its first shopping expo on Thursday, Dec. 9, from 5 to 8 p.m. at the Nathaniel Adams Blanchard Post on Poplar Drive in Delmar. There, many of the big local names in retail and business will have merchandise and gift certificates for sale, as well as information for patrons.

The chamber in the past has held business expos, but they were generally for networking between businesses, not to do business. The chamber's focus on promoting a buy local campaign brought about the idea of holding a shopping expo, though.

"We've gotten a lot of participation and a lot of interest," said Interim Chamber President Gina Bulman. "We have a real variety and diversity in our business community and our retail community."

Just a few of the many local businesses slated to be at the expo include Mosaics by Christine, Peaceful Inspirations, Perfect Blend, Del Lanes, Wild Sage Designs, Phillips Hardware, Delmar Florist and many more.

There will also be massages, door prizes every half hour, several raffles and i Fill Inkjets will be on hand to fill any printer cartridge for just $5.

Canine Pancreatitis

The pancreas is a secretory organ that sits next to the small intestine. It functions to secrete digestive enzymes and also to secrete insulin and glucagon, hormones that regulate sugar metabolism. Pancreatitis is inflammation of the pancreas, affecting the digestive function of the organ. It is thought that high fat foods can cause irritation to the pancreas, but the jury is still out whether meals contribute first hand to pancreatitis. Animals with hypothyroidism, diabetes mellitus and those on certain medications are at a heightened risk for pancreatitis. Additionally, some breeds such as the miniature schnauzer are predisposed to pancreatitis.

The typical signs of pancreatitis in dogs include lack of appetite, vomiting, diarrhea, abdominal pain and elevated body temperature. Your veterinarian will make a diagnosis of pancreatitis based on bloodwork, abdominal radiographs and possibly abdominal ultrasound. Although most cases of pancreatitis are successfully treated with hospitalization and supportive care, approximately 25% of cases are fatal.

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

Regents move more disregard for Upstate

The state Education Department has decided to move the English Regents exam up a couple of weeks, much to the chagrin of area educators.

The reason for the date change: so mid-year graduates can get their results in time.

Mid-year high school graduates? It happens, but it happens exponentially more often in New York City and the surrounding areas than it does in any of our school districts.

"We heard about the date change a couple weeks ago, and that's the same time we heard about the rationale," Shenendehowa Central Schools Superintendent L. Oliver Robinson told Spotlight reporter Charles Wiff, who writes about the change on page one. "I don't know what school districts they spoke to, but it certainly wasn't us."

Of course they didn't. Shen's 9,800 students don't matter to the state Education Department — they're from that barren wasteland called Upstate. The city, baby, that's where the money is. (It also has home-field advantage — the mailing addresses listed for seven of the 13 members of the Board of Regents are in the city or just outside of it [www.regents.nysed.gov/members].)

Our local school districts — and, thusly, the taxpayers — don't really have the money to deal with such a change. In order to accommodate the new test date without an interruption in regular school programs, districts would have to pay for substitutes and additional janitorial hours just for starters. Bethlehem Superintendent Michael Tebbano says the changed date for about 100 students will cost the district nearly $5,000 without any perceptible benefit to the school or the student.

Oh, the students. State Ed. almost forgot about them. See, the state department of Education cares so much for the education of your Regents-test-taking children that they are allowing schools to cancel classes in order to accommodate the new test date.

Let that sink in for a moment: The New York State Department of Education sent out a memo allowing schools to cancel classes so that students could take a test they will now have two less weeks to study for.

To our districts' credit, as of now few, if any, local schools will be taking that measure.

You know, we always hear local governments and school districts lamenting the seeming disparity between the treatment of Up- and Downstate, and we hear sitting officials either tepidly acknowledging or utterly decrying it. The state Education Department's disregard in this instance for the needs of all of New York's students does little to reconcile that disparity.

Holiday shoppers should not give a puppy as a gift

By RACHEL R. BAUM

The writer is a dog behavioral therapist and master trainer at Bark Busters Home Dog Training in Delmar.

Please don't give a puppy as a holiday gift!

As a professional dog-behavioral therapist and trainer, I see cases year after year of puppies that were given as a "wow-for-now" surprise, but when the newness wore off and their owners became tired of all the daily puppy care responsibilities, they were neglected, given up or even abused. A living puppy should not be thought of in the same category as a holiday toy. When a puppy is adopted, he should be carefully chosen as a permanent addition to the family who will contribute much, but will also have needs of his own, which require a serious commitment from all family members to meet.

Many dogs surrendered to shelters are young—just six months to three years old—and a good portion of these are puppies less than six months old. In addition, people need to know that the number one cause of death for dogs isn't trauma or disease — it's euthanasia due to behavior problems. In fact, three to four million dogs and cats will be euthanized this year in the U.S. That number could include that cute puppy bought as a Christmas gift!

Adding a puppy to your life is, on average, a 15-year responsibility. Raising a happy, well-balanced puppy requires an enormous time commitment, so a young pup is not a suitable choice for every dog-lover. Remember, it may take several years for a rambunctious puppy to settle down into a calmer adult dog.

Giving a child a puppy does

make for delightful photos on Christmas morning. But a puppy is not a toy. Most children under the age of eight do not understand a puppy's needs, that puppies cannot be carried around, poked or teased. Having a puppy or dog does not teach a child responsibility. Parents teach responsibility. In fact, it will be the parents who ultimately must do the majority of the walking, feeding and cleaning associated with pet ownership.

If the intended recipient seems ready for a puppy, be sure they can answer "yes" to these questions:

- Are you ready to participate in managing all aspects of the responsibilities of puppy (and dog) ownership, each and every day?

- Most dogs, even small breeds, need lots of exercise to stay healthy and happy. Are you willing to provide opportunities for your dog to run, walk and play every single day?

- Do you understand that a dog is not a person, and will need consistent training to help him become a good canine citizen?

- Can you afford to provide good nutrition; regular veterinary care and grooming so that your dog will be in good health inside and out?

- Are you willing to walk or take your dog out to toilet at least six times a day, in all sorts of weather?

- Are you and your house ready for the inevitable dirt, hair, slobber, potty accidents and spilled food and water that a dog brings?

- Do you have a reliable pet sitter or dog walker who can care for your pet when you're at work or out of town?

If someone on your gift list really wants a puppy, consider giving a homemade gift certificate for one instead. Wrap a can of dog food, fancy collar or good book on raising a puppy, and include a note saying a puppy (or dog) of the recipient's choice comes with the gift.

And remember, too, that dogs of all ages make perfect companions. Most adult dogs tend to be calmer, have more predictable behaviors and are already housebroken. Local animal rescue groups and shelters have a wonderful selection of adult dogs, including purebreds. According to the Humane Society of the United States, up to 30 percent of shelter dogs are purebreds.

If your gift recipient is really ready for dog ownership, set a date after the holidays to start looking for the perfect dog. Research different breeds, identify responsible breeders, or visit your local animal shelter or rescue group so the gift recipient can choose a dog that they really want and one that will match their lifestyle.

As a professional dog trainer, I am committed to helping people better understand how dogs think, act and communicate, and therefore be responsible dog owners. The holidays are the giving season—so give a puppy his best chance to become a long-term companion and have a happy life by not putting him under the tree.

Your Opinion in The Spotlight

It was a good day at the 17th

Editor, The Spotlight:

The following is a first-person recollection of Election Day at a Bethlehem polling place.

November 2, 2010, Election Day, and the polling place for the 17th District of Bethlehem is open for business at 6:03 a.m.

Yes, three minutes late, but the four election inspectors have been tuning the system at the Delmar Fire House since 5 o'clock and we're off and running. A long and interesting day has begun.

A steady stream of voters arrive, some a bit intimidated by the dreaded "new machines," but all anxious to make their choices and do their duty as citizens. Meanwhile, men and women members of the Delmar Fire Dept. are in and out, taking care of business, equipment and, on two occasions, firing up and taking off in emergency vehicles.

Numerous voters are accompanied by their kids who have caught a sense of the importance of what their parents and grandparents are doing and want to participate.

Five- or six-year-old Emma notes a lull in the action and does a spot-on rendition of a Taylor Swift song, a welcome respite.

Using lists, maps, manuals and cell-phone calls to the Board of Elections, we sort through and solve common election day snags and see to it that a number of citizens complete the process successfully.

Nine p.m. and voting is over. The people and the machines have got it right. 478 voters seemed to have been pleased and proud of their accomplishment. That's 73 percent of the registered voters, an excellent turnout . . . but it's always that way in the 17th.

It was a good day at the 17 and a good day for democracy.

Thank you for supporting Youth Ministry

Editor, The Spotlight:

In preparation for the holidays, many teens in our Youth Ministry program have been donating time and resources to those of our neighbors in need. They have been able to do this partly because of the strong support they have received from our local businesses including Our Family's Harvest, and the Delmar Hannaford Store and Slingerlands Price Chopper. Kindly support these local businesses all year as a way of thanking them for their generosity and community outreach.

Black Fair-Trade Friday

Instead of (or perhaps in addition to) standing in the early-morning rain on Black Friday, many shoppers hit up a Fair Trade Market in Delmar. The market, which also ran Saturday, was the second such event organized by local fair trade advocates, and featured many vendors from all around the area who peddle fair trade items. The sixteen organizers at Friday's event collectively said the market was one of the best fair trade-oriented events in the Capital District, according to the Fair Trade Bethlehem Campaign. Fair trade items are certified to have paid a living wage to the producer. The Bethlehem market at the Delmar Reformed Church featured jewelry, clothing, handbags, baskets, decorative carvings, coffee and chocolate. Java Jazz was serving refreshments on Friday. Organizers said they hope to build on this year's success in future markets.

BCHS to participate in Met education outreach program

Slingerlands couple generously supports program

Students from Bethlehem Central School District in Delmar have been selected to participate in the Metropolitan Opera's nationwide education program HD Live in Schools this upcoming year, thanks to the generosity of a local Slingerlands couple. The goal of HD Live in Schools is to foster an appreciation of the arts, and make opera more accessible to students, particularly in underserved populations.

Fifty Bethlehem High School students will take part in HD Live in Schools, studying the underlying historical events and dramatic/musical structure of four operas as part of their choral music and English curriculum before attending the Met's Live in HD series transmissions at the Regal Crossgates Stadium 18.

The Live in HD series, which is now seen in 46 countries, transmits live performances from the Met stage directly into movie theaters. To train for the program, Jason Dashew, High School choral director, attended the Met's national conference for educators involved in the program in October.

Bethlehem High School's participation in the program is being supported by Slingerlands residents Meryl and Al Norek. The Noreks, almost by accident, became opera fans when they attended a Live in HD transmission of "Eugene Onegin" starring Renee Fleming and Dmitri Horostovsky.

"We had no idea what to expect," said Meryl. "We came away awed by the drama and emotion, and, of course, the beauty of the music and artistry of the performers." Al added, "Meryl omitted that she came away with a crush on Dmitri."

When Mr. Norek reached out to the Met to urge them to share the HD experience with high school students, he learned that a program existed for interested schools.

"It took some time to get the pieces in place," said Al, "but the effort is worth it. Meryl and I are honored to bring together two of our favorite institutions, Bethlehem High and the Met."

Al is particularly pleased that Bethlehem English teacher James Yeara will be working with the participants.

"I'm pretty sure Jim will have an easier time with the students in the Met program than he encountered in the early '90s serving as faculty advisor to ZedNosh, the high school humor magazine founded and edited by my son Josh."

The Noreks feel strongly about reaching out and telling people about their support of the program so that more people, like them, will help support such programs in the schools: "We wanted to support Bethlehem Central, and to help inspire others to support the Met in bringing opera into our local schools."

Bethlehem Central School District will see the following four operas in the "HD Live in Schools" series: Donizetti's "Don Pasquale" (Nov. 13), Puccini's "La Fanciulla del West" (Jan. 8), Rossini's "Le Comte Ory" (Apr. 9), and Verdi's "Il Trovatore" (Apr. 30).

Hobby Lobby to open in Latham

New specialty crafts store expected to be ready by spring

ANDREW BEAM
beama@spotlightnews.com

In spring, residents of Colonie will have a one-stop shop where they'll be able to find crafts supplies, holiday supplies, fashion fabrics and jewelry making materials all in one store when the Hobby Lobby lands in Latham.

The privately owned retail chain will be building a 55,000 square-foot facility off of Route 9 Loudon Road in the New Loudon Center. This store will be the seventh in the state, according to a press release.

"We feel that the market is underserved and that we can bring a very unique shopping experience to the area," said Vince Parker, spokesperson for the chain in an email response. "There are many factors that go into opening our stores and location is definitely one of the many aspects that are considered before putting a store into a new market."

In a press release, Assistant Vice President of Advertising John Schumacher said with Latham's central location in the Capital Region, Latham was an ideal location.

"Latham is centrally located and surrounded by major cities and communities such as Albany to the south, Schenectady to the west, Saratoga to the north and Troy to the east," he said. "By expanding our reach further in New York State, we are able to better serve and share in the growth of both the community and the state."

The store itself offers over 65,000 products, according to Parker, with items such as supplies for picture framing, baskets and wearable art.

"We are very unique and no one in the craft and home décor market is like us," Parker said. "We offer the widest variety of crafting supplies you will find in one location with new merchandise arriving all the time. Whether you need the perfect way to preserve your memories or decorate for the coming season, visit your nearest Hobby Lobby location for great crafts, home décor and gift ideas."

Parker said the store hopes to create 30 to 50 new jobs available to Colonie residents in positions such as cashiers, stockers, custom framers, office manager, floral designers and department heads for the 13 different departments in the store. He added that full time employees will be paid a starting salary of $11 an hour while part time staff will receive a starting salary of $8 an hour.

The company is based out of Oklahoma City, where its first store open in 1972. Since then, the company has grown, with 458 stores in 39 states, according to the release.

"There are many reasons for our growth," said Parker. "We just give the credit to God."

Hear all about 'The Kitten Who Thought He Was a Fish' at GPL

"The Kitten Who Thought He Was a Fish" is just one of the stories contained in a marvelous new book - "This Vet Has Tales" - written by local veterinarian Dr. John "Jack" Brennan, DVM, who will speak at a free Local Notable Author Event at the Guilderland Public Library on Friday, Dec. 17 at 7 pm.

In the words of one reviewer, Dr. Brennan's book is "lively, endearing, informative and a pleasure to read from beginning to end. He discusses his education as a vet, and his practice in the animal hospital he founded near Albany. He introduces the reader to a variety of animal and the people with whom they live. Many of the stories are amusing, but - as with any medical practice - there is sadness as well." Dr. Brennan will speak his experiences as a vet ... and as a recently published author.

With a practice that began during the Eisenhower Administration, Dr. Brennan has witnessed the changes and growth of Albany County. As farmland transitioned to family homes, his practice underwent a subtle but unmistakable shift, one that's reflected in the story he relates. Remarking on this aspect of the book, another reviewer commented, "If you enjoy history as described by those who lived it, you will treasure this book."

Many who read this article know Dr. Brennan as a fixture in an around Guilderland, and will be delighted to find that he has written this account. Others will simply be pleased to find that a local vet has penned an animal-centric portrait of the area that provides a wealth of amusing insight into the foibles of animals ... and the people who care for them. Either way, all will enjoy the warm and humorous flavor of Dr. Brennan's presentation on December 17.

Copies of This Vet Has Tales will be available for sale after the Q&A portion of the program, and Dr. Brennan will be more than happy to sign them. Please note that this book makes a great gift for animal lovers everywhere.

Library offers potpourri of music

Bethlehem Public Library's winter concert series "A Little Sunday Music" continues its 2010-11 season Sunday December 12 at 2pm with a duo performance by cellist David Bebe and violinist Jamecyn Morey.

The couple has performed together as the Copernicus Duo for the past seven years. They were a featured ensemble as part of Festival Miami and the National Foundation for the Advancement of Arts, premiering new and commissioned works. In the spring of this year they performed in New York City's Lincoln Center.

David Bebe is director of the string program at The College of Saint Rose. He has also served on the faculties of the Indiana University String Academy, the String Academy of Wisconsin, and elsewhere.

Jamecyn Morey is an active orchestral and chamber musician. She now performs with the Sarasota Orchestra and the Albany and Glens Falls symphonies, and has recently joined the Hyperion String Quartet as second violinist.

A Little Sunday Music is generously supported by Friends of Bethlehem Public Library.

More music

The Bethlehem Senior Chorus sings songs for the frosty season this Friday, December 3 at 1pm in Bethlehem Town Hall. Since 2005, the singers in this mixed choir have shared their enjoyment of music-making with others. Under the direction of Claudia Summers, they perform for enthusiastic audiences several times a year in area community and care organizations. Ms. Summers has taught vocal music in the Capital District for over thirty years. This concert is cosponsored by the library and Bethlehem Senior Projects, Inc.

On Sunday December 19, 2pm at the library, the Squeeze Play Accordion Band returns with music for the holidays.

Lending a Big Green hand

Clarksville elementary students of Heather Busch collect compost during the morning announcements. The compost materials and supplies were purchased through a Nickelodeon Big Green Grant. Not only does composting help students learn about the life cycle, it helps to reduce the school's trash stream and provides compost for the school's flower beds.

RCS Library gets by with a little help

John Lennon wrote "I get by with a little help from my friends".

RCS LIBRARY

Moving a library is no small task. The library staff is grateful to a number of "friends" who made the move back to the Village location easier and infinitely more pleasant! Volunteers Grace Buckley Crist, Jim Feuerbach, Chuck Friday, Marc Hafensteiner, Jeannie MacDowell, Mel Melewski, Eric Olmeda, Evette Olmeda, Kat Race, Pat Race and Trustee Mary Ellen Lee were there to bin books, reshelve books and generally provide extra help wherever it was needed.

The Library also thanks uber-custodian Gus Doyle for handling many of the details of moving from one site to the other.

The Trustees and Library Director also thank the Library Staff, Pattie-Jean Brown, Vanessa Danison-Danaj, Kathy Domery, Darlene Eddy, Barbara Goetschius, John Love, Carol Melewski, Kathy Meyer, and Fran Melick. The Library is proud to be part of a community that proves the saying, "many hands make light work". Thank you!

Pageant of Winter Carols returns to Altamont

Old Songs' annual presentation of "Nowell Sing We Clear: A Pageant of Mid-Winter Carols" will take place Saturday, Dec. 11, at 3 p.m. at St. John's Lutheran Church, 142 Maple Ave., Altamont. Tickets for the concert are $20 for adults and $5 for children ages 12 and under and may be purchased at the door or by calling Old Songs at 765-2815.

This will be the 36th touring season of "Nowell Sing We Clear" with its unusual songs, carols, stories and customs. Drawn mostly from English language folk traditions from both sides of the Atlantic, the songs tell both a version of the events and characters involved in the Christmas story and detail the customs that make up the 12 magical days following the return of the light at the Winter Solstice.

Many of these ancient customs are the basis of today's holiday traditions. A special and unusual treat is the enactment of a Mummer's play from Kentucky, a madcap tale of death and rebirth done in street theater style and featuring characters such as Pickled Herring, Father Christmas and a hobby horse-riding doctor of questionable expertise.

While much of the singing is done in unaccompanied style, the pageant is also stamped with the energetic dance band sound of fiddle, button accordion, electric piano, drums and concertina.

The audience, supplied with song sheets, is encouraged to sing along on many of the carols and, indeed, this annual performance for Old Songs is especially noted for the robust participation of its audience. Performers are John Roberts and Tony Barrand, widely known for their lively presentations of English folk songs, and Fred Breunig and Andy Davis, well known in New England as dance callers and musicians.

For more information, contact Old Songs at 765-2815 or visit www.oldsongs.org

This program is made possible, in part, by funds from the New York State Council on the Arts, a State agency.

Old Songs' annual presentation of "Nowell Sing We Clear: A Pageant of Mid-Winter Carols" will take place Saturday, Dec. 11, at 3 p.m. at St. John's Lutheran Church in Altamont.

Marines give to Uncle Shawn's Hugs

Gift giving warms many hearts during the holiday season, but few experience it like Dawn Martin.

Every year, Martin boards the Marine Corps' Toys for Tots train to distribute warm blankets to needy children around New York, and by doing so Martin honors the memory of her son.

Martin's son, Shawn, was killed in action while serving in the Marine Corps in 2007. After seeing how many needy children the Marine Corps serve every December, Martin decided she'd give them something in her son's name.

The result was Uncle Shawn's Hugs, which this year will be distributing blankets from the train for the third time. Though Martin, her friends and family do work all year round, the organization also holds blanket cutting events when community members are invited to help come make blankets.

The last one at the Elsmere Fire Department drew nearly 100 people.

"It's becoming a community event," said Martin, adding that more than half the cutters were children themselves. "It's really heartwarming to me to see children helping children."

When the Marine Corps League saw what Martin was doing with Uncle Shawn's Hugs, they felt compelled to step in with a donation, said Commandant Thomas DeMeo, of the Captain William Dale O'Brien Detachment of the league, who recently handed Martin a check from the organization's fund.

The $600 donation will help the foundation get started on purchasing materials for the next round of blanket making.

In the future, Martin said she'd love to get the program involved with area school districts, so blankets could reach a wider range of needy children.

"Not all the children can come to the train," she said.

But this year Uncle Shawn's Hugs will distribute 500 blankets on several stops from the Marine Corps Toys for Tots train, making a warmer and happier holiday season for children from Albany to Plattsburgh. That's the amount they handed out in the past two years combined.

As far as the 2011 train, Martin hopes the program will have continued success. As long as she can get one more blanket made than they did this year, she'll be happy.

"That's all I ask for, is to make one more child warm," she said.

-Charles Wiff

Commandant Thomas DeMeo, of the Captain William Dale O'Brien Detachment of the Marine Corps League, presents Dawn Martin with a check for $600 to donate to Uncle Shawn's Hugs. Martin's son, Shawn, was killed in action in 2007, and for the past two years Martin along with Nicolle Vandelloo and her daughter Kira, 8, have been making blankets for the Corps' Toys for Tots train along with dozens of other volunteers. They plan to donate 500 this year.

The 14th Annual Hannaford Capital Holiday Lights is open to vehicles through Jan. 2, with this year's theme, "The Magic of the Season." The spectacle has more than 125 displays and scenes and Santa awaits visitors at the Lake House.

Holiday tradition lights the night

Albany PAL offers new walk-through nights to aid non-profits

During the 14th Annual Hannaford Capital Holiday Lights, the Albany Police Athletic League introduces three special nights that benefit the community during which walkers can stroll a special route of festive lights along Washington Park's lake.

"Through the years, we've been asked to allow walkers through the show. For safety reasons, this isn't possible during the regular, drive-through nights," explained Albany PAL Executive Director Sgt. (Ret) Lenny Ricchiuti.

"This year, we'll have three special nights - before and after the show is open to vehicular traffic. And, each has a special purpose," he said.

On Nov. 23, patrons participated in the "Stuff the Albany Trolley" event to benefit Albany PAL's Annual Toy Drive. The following night, light-lookers were asked to make a cash donation to help the animals at the Mohawk-Hudson Humane Society and the Animal Protective Foundation, as part of the "Pets Walk Your Parents Night" at the lights.

The giving doesn't stop with the holidays, however. On Jan. 3, from 5:30 to 8 p.m., it's time for "PAL Packs the Pantry." A monetary donation will benefit local food pantries on the very final, walk-only night at the show.

"We hope that the community will come out to enjoy the walk around the Washington Park Lake and to help us help those in need," Ricchiuti said.

The 14th Annual Hannaford Capital Holiday Lights is open to vehicles through Jan. 2, with this year's theme, "The Magic of the Season." The spectacle has more than 125 displays and scenes and Santa awaits visitors at the Lake House.

For additional cost, patrons can take in the lights from a carriage or trolley. Thursday through Sunday evenings, horse-drawn carriage rides are available by calling Saratoga Horse and Carriage. Reservations are suggested and can be made by calling Tony at 584-8820. The Albany Trolleys will also be available to charter for outings. To charter the trolleys, call 462-3825.

Live reindeer will be visiting in front of the Lake House on Dec. 5, 12, 19 and 23.

Gates open at 6 p.m. daily and remain open until 9 p.m. Sunday through Thursday and until 10 p.m. on Friday and Saturday.

Admission prices are $15 per car; $25 per limousine or 15-passenger van; and $75 per bus, with all proceeds benefiting the youth programs of Albany PAL. Discounted tickets are available for $10 at Hannaford Supermarkets for admission on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings. A $5 discount is offered on Monday, Tuesdays and Wednesdays as well for those showing their Times Union SourceCard. Only one discount per admission will be honored.

To volunteer at Hannaford Capital Holiday Lights, call Albany PAL at 435-0392.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Milestones

Francesco (Frank) A. Futia

Francesco (Frank) A. Futia, 86, of Delmar passed away peacefully Tuesday, November 23, 2010 at the Stratton VA Medical Center. Frank was born in Albany to Antonio and Caterina (Cari-Cari) Futia. A Navy Veteran of World War II, Frank proudly served in the South Pacific Islands as an aviation mechanic. He was a member of the American Legion Blanchard Post 1040, Delmar V.F.W. Post, and Bethlehem Elks.

Following his Navy service, Frank and his two brothers founded their general contracting business, J.N. Futia Company, from which he retired in 1986. He was dedicated to his work and was a lifetime member of the UA Local 7, Plumbers and Steamfitters Union. Additionally, Frank was co-owner of the Coliseum Theater, where he often enjoyed interacting with countless celebrities and performers.

More recently, Frank enjoyed playing shuffleboard with friends at the Legion, reading, gardening, and watching The History Channel. He had a fondness for lunching at the Riverfront Café (the barge) as well as the Homefront Café in Altamont where he would browse over all of the memorabilia.

Winners Announced in 3rd Annual Empire Awards

The Board of Directors of the Public Relations Society of America (PRSA) Capital Region Chapter announced the winners of the 2010 Empire Awards on Wednesday, Nov. 3. The winners of the special honors awards are Ben Marvin of Delmar, director of media relations at The College of Saint Rose, as the 2010 Public Relations Practitioner of the Year, and Ed Lewi of Saratoga Springs, formerly president of Ed Lewi Associates, as the 2010 Communicator of the Year.

The Empire Awards were established in 2008 to honor the exceptional work being done in the field of communications in the Capital Region. This year the entries were judged by public relations professionals in San Bernardino, Calif. "In our third year we saw an increase in interest for the only annual, results-based communications awards program in the region," said Eric Wohlleber, co-chair of the Empire Awards. "This was a special year for the Empire Awards, because our event served not only to honor the best-of-the-best in the region, but as a kickoff event to the Northeast District Conference, which the Capital Region chapter hosted for the first time."

The Public Relations Practitioner of the Year Award is the highest honor given by the PRSA Capital Region Board of Directors and goes to Ben Marvin, director of media relations for The College of Saint Rose. Marvin has more than 25 years of experience in the communications field in the Capital Region, having previously worked for New York State Department of

In being nominated Marvin was credited with being "well respected by reporters, editors, newsmakers, professionals and colleagues for his dedication and work ethic." Ben is a tireless advocate for The College of Saint Rose and constantly striving to stay on the cutting-edge of the communications industry.

The 3rd Annual Empire Awards was held on Wednesday, Nov. 3, at Pat's Barn in the RPI Tech-Park in Troy. On Thursday, Nov. 4, public relations professionals from Boston to Buffalo descended on the Capital Region as the local chapter hosted the Northeast District Conference for the first time.

that measure.

"Instructional time is important, and it's not easy to just throw a day away," Kelsey said.

Schalmont will have to hire substitutes and will lose the use of facilities where the testing will be held. Kelsey said an exact cost for the change hasn't been established.

Bethlehem Central School District Superintendent Michael Tebbano said his district would probably spend around $5,000 in various expenses for about 100 students to take the exam. That unbudgeted figure would be higher if most students in advanced classes were taking the test — another 200 pupils. Instead, the school is advising only those students who need the exam in January for graduation take the test, and all others stay in class.

"It saves us a lot of money, because we're not buying and setting up tables in an exam room," Tebbano said, adding, "It's still an imposition."

Most schools are doing the same, but in Shenendehowa the high school is forced to have advanced students wait until the end of the year. Administrators had hoped to have 700 students take the exam, but the district will only receive 150 tests.

"We're only getting a certain number of exams from the state, so the state's going to compel us to restrict the number of students taking the exam anyway," Robinson said.

The rest of Regents testing will continue as scheduled, Jan. 25 to 28.

Bethlehem's first trot

A sizable crowd turned out for the inaugural running of the Bethlehem Turkey Trot on Thanksgiving Day. The 5K route started and ended at Town Hall. Over 1,400 participants were signed up for the event going into race day, and day-of registration was available, making the turnout truly remarkable. The top 500 finishers and their times can be found at the Hudson Mohawk Road Runners Web site, at <http://www.hmrrc.com>. A portion of the race proceeds went to the Bethlehem Food Pantry.

Studies

Scotland Avenue four-way intersection is optimal for providing data that could be used elsewhere.

"The Department of Transportation feels any information it might get from a study at this location would have a greater benefit," he said.

Among the lighting methods that will likely be researched is installing lighting at the street level to illuminate pedestrian walkways. Landscaping in the center of the roundabout could also be lighted, which would help reduce glare from car lights across the way and help motorists navigate the circle. Any changes would be temporary.

Lighting would likely be by LED, a more brilliant and energy efficient method, which is where the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority would be involved in the analysis.

The study will involve the DOT, RPI LRC and other groups, but Bullough said the team would be interested in hearing from the community as well, which is one reason why they approached the town. The intersection is owned by the state, so they technically don't need Bethlehem's permission to do the work.

"We think it's important to have the support of the town and community it's happening in," said Bullough.

The Town Board took a 4-0 vote at the Tuesday, Nov. 23, meeting in support of the project, with Councilman Mark Jordan absent.

"Any time Bethlehem can have an opportunity to engage in outreach with this work, even experimental work, it's a good idea," said Supervisor Sam Messina.

Groups will seek grant for Bethlehem study

The Town Board also gave its blessing to Saratoga PLAN (Preserving Land and Nature) and the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy to conduct a study in town to examine transfer of development rights in Saratoga and Albany counties.

"We think this would be an ideal community to do an analysis of this," said Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy's Jill Knapp. "We're hoping to make a strong case of how this could work in other communities in Albany County."

TDRs, wherein a landowner agrees not to develop land for certain period of time in return for incentives like tax breaks, play a big role in most efforts to preserve open space, and were part of a report compiled by the town's Citizens Advisory Committee on Conservation on ways to preserve open space.

The study wouldn't require any monetary contribution on the part of the town. The roughly $40,000 study cost would be covered by a state Environmental Protection Fund grant and matching funds provided by the two land conservancy groups.

The board voted 4-0 to support the groups' efforts to secure those grant monies.

"It's a good thing, I think, what we're doing this on a more regional basis," said Councilman Mark Hennessey.

The solution is to provide simple dances that most anyone can work their way through. Great aerobic feats and dazzling spins are never necessary.

"People just absolutely love these simple dances I was leading, and I just thought maybe this could be the basis of a regular monthly thing," he said.

At the inaugural Homespun Barn Dance, participants took part in square dances, waltzes, Dutch traditional dances, English dances, French-Canadian dances and Virginia Reel, a classic folk dance.

For Rosenberg, who has a repertoire of dances from 50 countries, he can find a step to fit any situation.

Music was provided by Tamarack, a core group of musicians that play Dance Flurry events. Anyone is welcome to sit in with the group, though, and Homespun saw five additional musicians show up.

"We invite anybody who can sit on the stage or even around the stage to come and sit in," Rosenberg said. "Not only is it a community dance and community music, we're all in it together. People will go back and forth between dancing and playing instruments."

Homespun Barn Dance founder Paul Rosenberg said he's always happy to see a cross section of different folks at his events, like these two youngsters getting down at the inaugural dance on Friday, Nov. 19. "Everybody will be successful at these dances," says Rosenberg.

The Homespun Barn Dance series will take a break in December, but return to the Delmar Reformed Church for Friday dates in January, February, March and April. If it's a continued success, summer dates will be explored.

Admission to the event is on a sliding scale, with Dance Flurry members and children receiving discounts and adult nonmembers paying $6 to $8. That will provide several hours of professional-grade dance calling, music and socializing with neighbors.

Rosenberg said he's always happy to see a cross section of different folks at his events.

"I really want to counter that thing where people think they can't dance, because everybody can dance," he said. "Everybody will be successful at these dances."

Section

So, Section II must wait for another year to see if one of its own can win a state football title. Hopefully, it will happen in 2011.

As the fall sports season ends, the winter sports season begins. And in boys basketball, it will begin with a bang Friday night when Troy and CBA meet in a Big 10 showdown.

It will be interesting to see how the Brothers — the state's defending Class AA champion — will play in their opener. Among other things, Troy features a huge front court with Kareem Brown (6 feet, 7 inches), Javion Ogunyemmi (6-7) and Greg Williams (6-5) that CBA will have a difficult time matching up with physically. Plus, this will be CBA's first game without guard Kameron Ritter, who graduated in June.

Luckily for CBA, it still has Galal Cancer and Max Weaver in the back court. And as we saw last year, Cancer and Weaver are capable of scoring a lot of points and playing tough defense. The only question is who will step up and be CBA's third scoring threat.

Whoever wins this game should have a leg up on the rest of the Big 10 this year. CBA certainly has the talent to run the table, but Troy is likely going to be the Brothers' top challenger. Besides their large front court, the Flying Horses get guard Raheem Felder back and add Devonte and Shadell Millinghaus, who transferred from Schenectady. Once all the pieces are in place, Troy should have a monster team.

Catch this game Friday night in Troy.

There's been a seismic shift in summer collegiate baseball leagues in New York.

Several teams from the eastern half of the New York Collegiate Baseball League — including the Albany Dutchmen, the Glens Falls Golden Eagles and the Amsterdam Mohawks — have broken off and formed the new Perfect Game Collegiate Baseball League. The NYCBL quickly brought in four teams from the Eastern Collegiate Baseball League and added a fifth franchise in Syracuse to compensate for the loss of the other franchises.

If the name of the new league seems unwieldy, it's only because the naming rights have been granted to Perfect Game USA — an Iowa-based organization that holds regional and national events meant to showcase the top high school baseball players to college scouts. The eight teams currently in the PGCBL (two more might be added before the start of the 2011 season) will use Perfect Game to identify and recruit top college and junior college players to participate in the league.

Obviously, the underlying message being sent is that the teams that broke away from the NYCBL felt that they weren't getting the quality collegiate baseball talent they were seeking. Otherwise, they wouldn't turn to an organization that specializes in finding top-level baseball talent to help them.

What isn't clear is whether Perfect Game USA will be able to steer college players from major NCAA Division I programs to places like Albany, Glens Falls, Amsterdam, Cooperstown, Elmira, Little Falls, Newark and Watertown when they could play in Cape Cod, Florida or some other more desirable location for the summer. Also, will having better talent necessarily bring out more fans to the PGCBL games? After all, Bleecker Stadium will still be located in a rough section of Albany, and I don't believe there is any big push in Glens Falls to improve East Field.

I think it would be a good idea to wait and see how the new league on the block does in its inaugural year, though — if for no other reason than to see what type of players this league attracts to our region.

stave off elimination in the fourth game, but Falconer went on a 20-9 run to win the set 25-16 and claim the Class C title.

"They came out hitting a lot stronger than they did [in Saturday's pool play]," said Vorse. "Our serve receive wasn't what we wanted."

Rebecca Bablin had seven kills and seven service points to lead Voorheesville, while Ellie Wagner contributed 23 digs and five service points.

It was Voorheesville's first appearance in the state final. The Blackbirds didn't get out of pool play when they made their first trip to the state tournament in 2007. Voorheesville went 5-1 in pool play at this year's tournament.

"I remember not too long ago when our goal was to get to .500," said Vorse. "Now, we've made it to the state finals. The girls have a lot to be proud about."

Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk couldn't get out of pool play at the state tournament for the third straight year. The Indians finished with an 0-6 mark in a loaded Class B pool that included Buffalo-area power Eden, Section I's Hendrick Hudson and Long Island champion John Glenn of East Northport.

On the boys' side, Bethlehem's trip to the state Division I tournament at Cicero-North Syracuse ended with a 1-5 record in pool play. McQuaid (Section V) and Half Hollow Hills (Long Island) swept the Eagles, while Cicero-North Syracuse split its two games with Bethlehem.

The Bethlehem Pop Warner pee wee division cheerleaders won the Eastern Region championships last month and will compete at the national tournament Dec. 7 in Orlando.

Cheerleading team wins Eastern Region championship

The Bethlehem Pop Warner pee wee division cheerleading team has qualified for next week's national championships in Orlando.

Now, the team needs the money to afford the trip.

Bethlehem Pop Warner is holding a fund-raiser Friday from 7 to 11 p.m. at the Nathaniel Blanchard Legion Hall, 16 West Poplar Drive in Delmar. The event includes live music by Playin' with Fire, a cash bar and a silent auction.

The suggested donation is $10 per person, and all money raised will help with the cost of sending the cheerleading team to Florida, estimated at $1,000 per cheerleader.

Bethlehem advanced to the national tournament by winning the Eastern Region championship last month in New Jersey. The Junior Eagles defeated teams from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Delaware and Washington, D.C. to qualify for the national tournament at Walt Disney World. It's the first Bethlehem Pop Warner team that has qualified for a national championship.

Members of the pee wee division cheer team include Schylar Arrington, Erin Baumgras, Sarah Bestler, Hazel Cooke, Ellie Dutcher, Katie Gustafson, Catherine Harvey, Shayla Lyons, Catherine Marsh, Gillian Newborn, Sarah Palmer, Brynn Rask, Simone Roberts-Payne, Samantha Stever, Alyssa Viggiano, Rylee VonWedel and Sarah Zonca.

The pee wee division cheerleaders' accomplishment highlighted a successful 2010 Bethlehem Pop Warner season. BPW's junior pee wee and junior midget football teams competed in the Capital District Pop Warner super bowls for their respective divisions, and the midget division cheerleading team placed third at the Eastern Region finals.

Blackbirds fall short of state title

Voorheesville reaches first Class C final

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Voorheesville's finest girls volleyball season ended one win shy of a state title.

Falconer (Section VI) fended off several Blackbird rallies to defeat Voorheesville 3-1 the Class C final at the New York State Public High School Athletic Association Girls Volleyball Championships Nov. 22 at the Glens Falls Civic Center.

Mistakes haunted the Blackbirds throughout the match, but coach Sandy Vorse said the miscues were the result of Falconer's aggressiveness.

"It wasn't nerves so much as it was them forcing us into [making] them," said Vorse.

The Blackbirds battled tooth and nail with Falconer in the first game and eventually took a 16-14 lead. But the Falcons scored 11 of the final 17 points to escape with a 25-22 victory.

Voorheesville regained its stride in the second game by forcing Falconer into making several mistakes of its own, as the Blackbirds built a 21-12 lead. The Falcons scored five consecutive points to make it close, but Voorheesville hung on for a 25-20 victory to tie the match at 1.

Falconer took it to Voorheesville early in the third game and had a 14-6 lead at one point before the Blackbirds rallied to tie the match at 15. The Falcons recovered, though, and pulled away to a 25-20 victory to take a 2-1 lead in the match.

"I thought we should have taken the third game," said Vorse. "We made some mistakes that we don't normally make."

Voorheesville made a desperate attempt to

Section V teams get the best of Section II

A Cleveland Browns fan upon hearing the news that quarterback Colt McCoy might be out the rest of the season: "Surely, you can't be seriously thinking about starting Jake Delhomme the rest of the way."

Cleveland coach Eric Mangini: "I am serious, and don't call me Shirley."

OK, moving on...

It was another frustrating weekend for Section II at the state football finals.

Troy couldn't hold on to a 28-20 lead and lost to Section V's Rush-Henrietta 40-28 in Sunday's Class AA final. That was followed by Hornell's 50-20 victory over Schalmont in the Class B championship game.

From the

Sports Desk

Rob Jonas

On paper, Schalmont had the better match-up of the two. The Sabres were facing a Hornell team that liked to run the ball as much as they did. If they could contain Hornell's running backs, they had a legitimate chance to win the game.

Unfortunately for Schalmont, two key plays in the second quarter to turned a 14-0 Hornell lead into a 28-0 halftime advantage. First, Sam Stonerock blocked a Schalmont punt into teammate Dylan Dunn's hands, and Dunn took it all the way for a 40-yard touchdown. Then, Schalmont's defense hit quarterback Dom Scavo late to get whistled for a penalty with no time left. On the extra play, Scavo threw an 18-yard touchdown pass to give Hornell its 28-point lead.

Schalmont did the best it could to get back in the game in the second half, but the deficit was too much for the Sabres to overcome — especially with the way Scavo played. Besides throwing for two touchdowns, Scavo rushed for 173 yards and a touchdown to earn most valuable player honors.

Troy's match-up with Rush-Henrietta seemed more daunting. After all, the Royal Comets had been averaging more than 50 points per game behind their do-everything quarterback, Ashton Broyld. And their no-huddle, spread-formation offense was similar to the ones that Niskayuna and Monroe-Woodbury used to challenge Troy's defense.

Still, the Flying Horses built a second-half lead before Broyld and Rush-Henrietta's offense took over with three consecutive scoring drives to pull out the 12-point win. Credit Jordan Canzeri — who rushed for more than 230 yards against the Royal Comets — for putting Troy in front.

Ultimately, Troy's defense couldn't hold back Broyld for an entire game. You can't fault the Flying Horses, though. They were gassed trying to keep up with Rush-Henrietta the entire game. They had to break down at some point, and unfortunately for them it came in the fourth quarter.
