BC students raise more than $2,500 in weeklong read-a-thon

Students in the Kourts' classrooms like to read.

They keep reading calendars in the classroom and track their time immersed in the pages of their favorite tomes at home. But last month, the students of Beth and Andrew Kourt satisfied more than their love of books by staging a read-a-thon for a local charity.

Beth Kourt's Clarksville Elementary

fourth-graders and Andrew Kourt's fifth-grade Glenmont Elementary class collectively read for more than 11,000 minutes in their free time over a weeklong period last month. By collecting sponsorships of a few cents per minute from families and friends, the 46 kids raised more than $2,500 for the Ronald McDonald House Charities of the Capital Region.

"We thought we would get a couple hundred dollars," Andrew Kourt said. "A lot of them really got into it. It turned out much bigger than we ever thought it would."

Andrew Kourt heaped the credit for the read-a-thon idea on his wife. They had been

Board OKs Verstandig's project

Construction on The Gables at Delmar to start in near future

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

A developer with approved plans for a condominium project in Delmar now has the go-ahead to build townhomes off Delaware Avenue instead.

The Gables at Delmar will be sited at the Verstandig's Florist property at 454 Delaware. That business has since moved its operation to Selkirk, and the retail store still in Delmar will likely move to close up after the holidays.

A 40-unit condominium development had previously been approved in March of 2009 for the location, but like other projects in town, developer Keystone Builders chose to switch over to another housing type in the face of diminished demand for condos. The Gables will instead consist of 27 townhome units, arranged in approximately the same fashion as the condos would have been.

The Planning Board made quick work of the amendments to the plans, helped along by the fact a lot of infrastructure details remained unchanged.

"As good of a project we thought we approved last year, I think we have a better one," Planning Board Chairman George Leveille said.

There was some discussion about landscaping before the project was unanimously approved on Tuesday, Dec. 7, and also about a fence on the project's edge that would run the length of Delaware Avenue. It was eventually decided to abandon the fence in favor of landscaping with mature plantings.

"Given the character of the neighborhood, it's going to look unusual to have a

Advocates frustrated with study results

Public tells Health Department they want more details, speed in next phase

If there's one word that could sum up how many community members feel about a recently released study on the Lafarge cement plant, that word would be "frustrated."

That's the theme that arose again and again at a public comment meeting on the Departments of Health's draft study of the plant's health impacts. A few dozen people convened at the Ravena-

Coeymans-Selkirk High School for the Thursday, Dec. 9, session, and while it's sure they represented the most impassioned members of the community, they made no qualms about telling DOH representatives they expected more after months of work.

"I fear that the longer this kind of abstract modeling process goes on, the higher the frustration level will be," said Susan Falzon, director of the Friends of Hudson advocacy group.

The released study is the first part of a two-stage public health assessment. The results were far from conclusive — though the department said chemicals in emissions from the Ravena plant

Police Blotter

Selkirk man arrested for 'promoting a sexual performance by a child'

State police on Wednesday, Dec. 8, arrested Brendan T. Fortier, 25, of Selkirk, and charged him with promoting a sexual performance by a child and possessing a sexual performance by a child, both felonies.

State police said their computer crime unit caught Fortier exchanging child pornography on the Internet, and based on that information obtained a search warrant and arrested him.

Other arrests

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Monday, Dec. 6, arrested Holly Ann

Gervais, 41, of 543 Blodgett Hill Road, Ravena, and charged her with DWAI-Drugs and reckless driving.

Police at about 4:20 p.m. responded to Meads Lane in Delmar, where they had received a report of a vehicle driving erratically. They found Gervais' 2004 Subaru Forester at a stop sign at Route 32, and a witness at the scene said she had been crossing both lanes of traffic and nearly struck another vehicle head on, according to police.

Gervais was allegedly unable to provide police with a license, registration or proof of insurance, but did verbally identify herself. Her speech was slurred and she said she didn't know where she was, according to police. When asked to exit the vehicle, she forgot to unbuckle her seat belt and then had to use the car door to steady herself, police said.

Police asked Gervais if she "had anything on her," and she allegedly reached into her right pants pocket and pulled out five round, white pills that fell to the ground, police said. She didn't respond when asked what the pills were, but did say she had taken some that day, according to arrest reports.

While being transported to the police station, Gervais allegedly said the pills were Soma Watson, a muscle relaxer, and that she had taken two.

At the station, Gervais allegedly failed sobriety tests and a breath test came up negative for alcohol. She was transported to Albany Medical Center for blood to be drawn, and was later released with a court date of Tuesday, Dec. 21.

• The Bethlehem Police Department on Tuesday, Dec. 7, arrested James P. Languth, 52, of 122B Fairlawn Drive, Selkirk, and charged him with DWI, driving on the shoulder, driving while talking on a cell phone and refusing to take a breath test.

Police said an off-duty BPD officer spotted Languth's 2007 Chevrolet Suburban driving erratically on Elsmere Avenue at about 4 p.m., almost striking a utility pole and driving on the shoulder. The officer followed the vehicle and observed Languth talking on his phone, and then approached the vehicle when it pulled into the driveway at 122 Fairlawn, according to arrest reports.

The off-duty officer said Languth admitted to drinking alcohol, and when police arrived they noticed the odor of alcohol on Languth and said he had glassy eyes, impaired speed and impaired motor function, according to arrest reports.

Languth allegedly failed sobriety tests and refused to take a breath test, at which time he was arrested. At the station, he also allegedly refused to take a breath test. He was released to his ex-wife, according to police, and is scheduled to appear in court on Tuesday, Dec. 21.

Bethlehem Chamber hosts event that showcases area merchants

Three dozen local businesses set up shop at the Bethlehem Chamber of Commerce's Holiday Shopping Expo at the American Legion Post on Poplar Drive on Thursday, Dec. 9. The event was intended to showcase all that local shops can provide, said interim Chamber President Gina Bulman.

"We're lucky to live in a community where we have everything we need right here," she said. "It's important to keep that going."

The expo also provided the opportunity for some home-based businesses to get out and meet the community, she continued.

About 200 people turned out for the event, which is something the Chamber hopes to build on come next year.

A salute to Pearl Harbor survivors

Six local survivors of the Pearl Harbor attack were recognized at the ceremony, including Delmar resident AJ Krenn, who was blown over the side of the USS West Virginia when it was hit by a torpedo. He was able to swim to safety.

Remembering an infamous day

Ceremony honors local survivors on anniversary of attack on Pearl Harbor

Veterans, families and local dignitaries gathered at the Zaloga American Legion Post in Albany Tuesday, Dec. 7, to recognize the 69th anniversary of the sneak attack on Pearl Harbor.

In attendance were six local men who survived that attack: Bill Langston, of Cohoes; Charles Ebel, of Westmere; Nick Elacqua, of Albany; John Sloboda, of Cohoes; Robert Grimm, of Schenectady; and AJ Krenn, of Delmar, all received special recognition for their service.

All six have remarkable stories of that day in 1941. Krenn, for one, was blown over the side of the USS West Virginia when a torpedo hit it. He managed to swim to safety on Ford Island, and later served on the cruiser USS Salt Lake City.

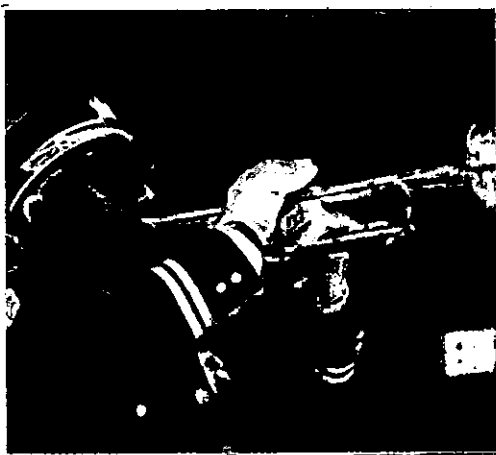

"In the final analysis, it was your indomitable spirit to go forward from that terrible day and make sure we were victorious, and we were."

— Albany County Executive Michael Breslin

Langston was also serving on the West Virginia as a fireman. That ship was one of four battleships sunk, but quick work by damage control crews like Langston's meant the ship settled in the harbor on an even keel. It was later repaired and saw action in the Pacific Theater, including in the battles of Iwo Jima and Okinawa.

Sadly, more than 2,400 Americans did not survive the attack on Pearl Harbor. They were saluted Tuesday by all present, as were those veterans in attendance.

"In the final analysis, it was your indomitable spirit to go forward from that terrible day and make sure we were victorious, and we were," said Albany County Executive Michael Breslin. "I salute you all. Thank you, we celebrate your presence among us."

Also at the ceremony were Rensselaer County Executive Kathleen Jimino, Colonie Supervisor Paula Mahan, Assemblyman Bob Reilly, a representative from Assemblyman James Tedisco's office and Albany Mayor Gerald Jennings.

"Without the courage of our service men and women, the outcome of the war could have been very different," Jennings said during the ceremony. "We are all humbled to be here with you."

Bethlehem Y branch hires new director

Derek Martin, of Guilderland, plans to bring new programs, ties to the organization

By CHARLES WIFF
wiffc@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem YMCA is under new direction.

Derek Martin, a longtime Capital District resident, took over as the new executive director of the branch at the end of November, and the Guilderland resident said he already has plans to make the branch even better.

"We are excited to add Derek to our management team at the Y," said Dave Brown, president and CEO of the Capital District YMCA, in a statement. "Derek's vast experience outside the nonprofit arena, combined with his dedication to the Y and commitment to youth development, healthy living and social responsibility make him an excellent addition to the association."

Martin left the financial field to take the position, having spent the past 12 years as a retirement planning specialist for AXA Advisors. Before that, he taught special education students through Capital Region BOCES.

Six years ago, he got involved at the Guilderland YMCA. It was his time there being involved with programs and eventually serving on the board of advisers that made him realize his calling.

"I started to realize that this is what I'm passionate about," he said. "I simply wanted to plug myself into the community because this is where I am."

Martin hopes to bring some of the things he learned at the Guilderland Y over to Bethlehem, including the Circle of Champs program. For the past 15 years, the Guilderland YMCA has worked to bring special programs to children with conditions like leukemia. That can involve taking them to Siena basketball games or out to play laser tag, Martin said, and he's already making moves to branch the program into Bethlehem.

He also spoke of broadening the organization's ties with area school districts. The Bethlehem Central hockey team already uses the Y's ice rink for practice and games.

"We really want to build or relationships with the schools," Martin said. "It really just kind of allows the school and the Y and the whole community to work hand in hand."

Beyond those items, Martin said he'll continue to work to expand the branch's summer camp program. The YMCA is before the town to build a pavilion for use in that program.

Martin replaces Karen Hennessey, executive director of the Guilderland branch, who had been serving as interim executive director.

Holiday memories are built on traditions

By CAROLINE BARRETT
news@spotlightnews.com

The author is the food writer for the Spotlight Newspapers and the mother of three children: Lucy, age 10, Zoe, age 9, and Elliot, age 6.

'Tis the season. The season for warm fires, fluffy white snow and crisp, buttery cookies. It's the season for long walks on cold afternoons followed by steaming cups of cocoa. And for a little body, curled against yours under a soft blanket with a book on your lap. The same book you've read, over and over, every holiday season for ten years. It's also the season for big, chilled shrimp, rich cuts of beef and festive cocktails in pretty glasses.

And, it's the time of year that we tell Christmas stories. The ones I've told time and time again. It doesn't matter, they want to hear them more still. An all-time favorite is the story about the cookies we made to decorate our Christmas tree. Lucy, Zoe and I mixed, rolled and cut out an army of animals and shapes. They turned out perfect and golden, with an incredible cinnamon-y smell. Carefully, we tied a red ribbon through each cookie. Paul held the girls up, to hang the cookie ornaments just so on the tree. It looked and smelled beautiful. The next morning as we dressed, I could hear funny sounds coming from the living room. Crunch, crunch. Silence. Crunch, crunch, crunch. Silence.

Coming down the stairs, we saw dozens of the little red ribbons,

From a Caterer's Kitchen

scattered over the floor. A few cookie crumbs were here and there. And Toby, our old golden retriever, sat by the fireplace, licking her chops and looking very guilty. Her tail thumped quietly on the floor. She ate every cookie from the tree. We don't know how, but she even got the ones at the top, without knocking over the tree. My kids love that story.

There's also the one about Zoe, at three years old. The only thing she wanted from Santa was an orange soda. No toys, no dolls. Just an orange soda. She'd seen her uncle drink one, and been asking ever since. Santa did bring her an orange soda, stuffed way down in the bottom of her stocking. It was a tall, cool glass bottle filled with bright orange, just what she wanted. Only when she tasted it, a great look of sadness and disappointment washed over her face. Turns out orange soda isn't all it's cracked up to be.

It's the season for traditions, too. Every Christmas Eve, just before we go to bed, we are sure to take care of Santa's reindeer. On our back deck, we'll leave a bowl of oats, nine carrots and a big bowl of water. Santa, he gets an ice cold beer. We figure he'd probably like to take a break from all those glasses of milk.

My kids have lots of grandparents, aunts, uncles and cousins who like to shower them with presents. Naturally, they write out a list. This year, Elliot's list looked like this: hess truk, lego batti droyd, rut beer, landry basket. Really, I've been meaning to get him his own laundry basket for oh, about 6 years now. It just keeps slipping my mind. Hopefully Santa will get her act together and put a laundry basket under the tree.

Zoe's list was long. Very long. It covered both sides of the note paper she was writing on. It's good to dream big. Still, I said, one side of the note paper is still dreaming big. She crossed off half the items on her list.

Then, there's Lucy. Her wish list had just one word: chicken. And she doesn't mean to eat for dinner. It's the kind with feathers and a beak that she wants. A real, live, clucking, pecking chicken. Lucy's done this before. She begged for a frog pond, a rabbit and a cat. She ran a successful campaign for a puppy. Her methods are pretty effective. If you walk out back, past the rabbit hutch, you'll see the frog pond. The cat and the dog (the one who used to be a puppy,) are usually hanging around out there, too.

"Oh, no." I pushed the note right back across the counter. "No more pets." She kept at it, pretty consistently, for months. I hated to break her spirit. After all, I've secretly wanted a chicken for awhile too. How cool would it be to collect organic eggs in my own

Chocolate Bread Pudding with Bourbon Cream Sauce

1 c. heavy cream
1 c. semi-sweet chocolate chips
2 t. vanilla
1/2 c. brown sugar
5 eggs
4 T. butter
4 c. stale bread, cut into 1/2-inch cubes

Bourbon Cream Sauce:
1 c. heavy cream,
1 c. brown sugar
1 stick butter
2 t. vanilla
1 t. sea salt
4 oz. bourbon

Preheat oven to 350°. Heat cream and chocolate chips in a medium sauce pan over low heat until chocolate melts. Add vanilla and brown sugar, stir until sugar is melted. Whisk in egg yolks one at a time. Turn off the heat and stir in butter. Beat the egg whites in a large bowl until soft peaks form. Fold into the chocolate mixture. Add the bread cubes and stir until completely coated. Grease an 8x8 inch baking dish, and turn the mixture in. Place the baking dish in another, larger dish (9x13 works well.) Fill the 9x13 dish with 1/2" boiling water, and bake for 40 minutes, or until set. Slice small squares, and serve with the Bourbon Cream Sauce. For the sauce: heat the cream and simmer gently for 5 minutes. Add the vanilla, sugar and butter. Whisk until butter is completely melted. Stir in the bourbon, cook for another 2-3 minutes on low heat, and serve.

A few days later Lucy handed me a new Christmas wish list. Again, one item. A Home Depot gift card.

"Nice try," I said. Then, one of the lines I use all time on my kids, "Do you think I was born yesterday?" She wanted to stock up on supplies for a chicken coop. I'd seen her desk upstairs, with sketches of homemade coops and lists of supplies. She's persistent, this one. Finally, we sat down and had "the talk." The one where I tell her that she's not getting a pet chicken for Christmas. I felt horrible. She said she understood, but still it felt sad.

Telling Lucy and Zoe to cut back made me stop and think during this holiday season. I want our holiday to be more about the traditions, the family and food than the gifts received. I talk to my kids about this stuff, and they do get it. They'll spend time making cards for other people, choosing a special gift for someone who otherwise wouldn't get one, and being grateful for everything they have. At the same time, it is the season for indulgence. Special treats.

If you've been good all year, and want to indulge, chocolate bread pudding is a good choice. It's moist, incredibly rich and smothered in a butter, cream and bourbon sauce. Every year, when Thanksgiving passes, I start to think about this bread pudding. By Christmas day, I'm ready. One piece is all I need, a reward for all of my good behavior this year. Sweet satisfaction after all those vegetables and salads. It would make an excellent New Year's Eve dessert, too.

Rest assured, there will be something special under the tree for Lucy this year. It won't have feathers, or a beak. But I know she'll be happy and grateful all the same.

Damien Center celebrates World AIDS Day
By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

A large red ribbon placed on a cloth banner was hoisted onto the wall as residents continued the fight against AIDS and building community support for those affected by the disease.

For 22 years people have celebrated World AIDS Day now and The Schenectady Damien Center hosted inside The Muddy Cup Coffee House inside Proctors Arcade in Schenectady on Wednesday, Dec. 1. The center is a program of the Schenectady Inner City Ministry and is located on 615 Nott Street in Schenectady.

Remembrance of those affected by AIDS and raising community awareness about the disease was the focus of the event. The center supports the local area by being a drop-in community center for individuals infected and affected by HIV/AIDS and provides meals, educational and empowerment programs, emotional support and recreational opportunities to ease stress related to living with the disease.

"Let us take a moment just to remember those who love and have lost, the things we lost as we struggle to live and the hope for tomorrow," said Reverend Jenna Zirbel. "As life goes on and we continue to bring the light of hope into our hearts and in our community as we look to each other for support and encouragement and enlightenment, we remember that significant progress has been made in advancing access to HIV prevention, treatment, support and care over the past 22 years, but putting human rights at the center of the response is crucial to further progress."

The red ribbon associated with the cause is symbolizes global solidarity, said Zirbel. In 1991 the New York State Visual Aids Art Caucus created the ribbon, she said, and the color red was chosen because of the connection to blood and the idea of passion and love.

"What the ribbon represents is being together, being one with, holding hands with, being in community with those who not only suffer from HIV/AIDS, but those whom care for those who suffer and those whom love those that suffer," said Reverend Andy Little. "So we got a ribbon over there and what we would like you to do is to take one of the markers on the table over there and write a message."

At the end of the ceremony people did write a message to those whom they know are affected by the disease, or just a message of support for individuals or care providers that assist in the cause and fight.

Becki Fordman shared some information about HIV/AIDS she gathered from statistics. As of 2008 there were 378 people known to be living with HIV/AIDS in Schenectady County. On the average according to previous data there are 13 new cases of the disease in a year in the county. According to the most recent available data there is a cumulative amount of AIDS cases in the state at 180,674, out of which 35,787 of those cases are in upstate New York.

"In 2009 the case of new infections has declined by almost 20 percent compared to 1999, but still it outpaces treatment to success by 2 to 1," said Zirbel. "That's we as a community understand the significance of the medical care providers that are with us tonight that are with us every day in the caring."

Mary Kinley, HIV project coordinator at Ellis Health Center, talked about the federal government's first formal national strategy on HIV/AIDS, which was released this past summer.

"This is the first time the federal government has really put out a paper like this and it really has a lot of historical significance," said Kinley.

The report said the "public urgency" to combat the epidemic seems to be declining, she said. While rates of new cases have been dropping there are 56,000 new cases each year. Some primary goals of the federal strategy are to reduce the number of people infected who become infected with HIV, to increase access to care and optimize health outcomes for people living with the disease.

"When this day started a number of years ago it was a silent vigil, it was just a remembrance, but it can't be that any longer at all," said Dr. Chris Murphy. "We've really come a very long way and that is part of my message to just be as positive as possible."

Murphy said he was a nurse practitioner at Rikers Island, New York City's main jail, in 1980, before he had gone to medical school, which were a few years before the article published about homosexual men in San Francisco acquiring a tumor that was newly seen. This actually was about the first discovery of the disease, but doctors had no name nor knew anything about it.

Stranded soldiers can enjoy free hotel room

Albany International Airport program expands

ANDREW BEAM
beama@spotlightnews.com

After the death of his son, John J. McKenna created a program at the Albany International Airport for soldiers in transition where a room was dedicated for them to stay in before their flight, but now the program has expanded.

When McKenna met with Director of Sales for BBL Leslie Miller, who lost her son PFC David Taylor Miller, who was killed in a suicide bombing in Afghanistan, they decided to begin putting soldiers up not only in the John J. McKenna IV Military Courtesy Room, but in hotels as well.

The available options to them are the Hilton Garden Inn in Troy or the Hilton Garden Inn in Albany.

McKenna said he and Miller were able to bond over the loss of their sons. And now to honor David Miller, a plaque has been put in the Courtesy Room, located on the third floor of the airport, honoring David and explaining the help that has come from the BBL Family of Companies.

When McKenna started the program, he was skeptical of its success.

"We didn't think we'd get enough volunteers, staff or financing," he said. "Now, it's an amazing experience. We saw the need when we went down to the airport on a number of occasions and saw soldiers sleeping on the floor, we said, 'We can't have this.'"

There was no hesitation from the Albany Airport Authority after he put up the proposal for the room, McKenna said. They then started receiving volunteers from places such as several American Legion Posts; the courtesy room had nabbed over 100 volunteers.

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

Responsible revelry

Very few of us earnestly entertain the notion that we might take another person's life.

If someone were to ask us as we headed out to a holiday party if we planned on killing anyone that evening, we would think they were insane — but many of us will go out to celebrate, maybe have a few drinks and think nothing of getting back in the car to drive home.

We understand that readers of The Spotlight are upstanding, responsible citizens who care greatly for their well being and that of their fellow man, but we also understand that data from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration shows that the daily death toll from drunk driving crashes during the Christmas and New Year's holiday periods is significantly more than for the rest of the year.

Remember, in all 50 states, the legal limit for drunk driving is a blood alcohol concentration (BAC) level of .08, and a 120-pound woman can reach that level after only two drinks; a 180-pound man can be at .08 after only four drinks.

If you plan on imbibing this holiday season, remember there are options out there for you to do so safely and responsibly. The designated driver and cab service are old standbys, but many law firms around the Capital District also offer complimentary rides home after holiday festivities.

Not as convenient as driving yourself home, but minor inconveniences when compared to the stigma, legal ramifications and possible property and personal damage you could inflict by driving while intoxicated.

We're fond of saying that we'd love to see everyone in our community newspapers, but we sure don't want it to be in the police blotter.

We'd like to leave you with the words of Bill Dikant, a Castleman man who lost his family because of a drunk driver and is now an advocate for victims of DWI incidents. Bill sent us a letter earlier this month as part of an initiative to curb holiday drunk driving.

"The gift of life is priceless," he says. "Don't let yourself become a statistic or be the cause of ruining someone's holiday by being the drunk that kills someone else's loved one."

Blunt words from a man who has experienced great loss.

Please take them to heart this holiday season.

Drunk driving statistics

- Every year, in the U.S., about 600,000 and 10 percent of all motor vehicle crashes recorded by police department are due to consumption of alcohol.
 - Nearly 40 percent of Americans are involved in an alcohol-related motor vehicle crash in their lifetime
 - The ratio of lethal accidents in Illinois that are alcohol-related is roughly four times greater at night than during the day.
 - In the U.S. each year, about 748,000 people suffer injuries in alcohol-related traffic crashes, an average of one person injured every minute. About 40,000 of these are severely affected.
 - More than half of the 414 child passengers ages 14 and younger who died in alcohol-related crashes during 2005 were riding with the drinking driver (NHTSA 2006).
 - In 2005, nearly 1.4 million drivers were arrested for driving under the influence of alcohol or narcotics (Department of Justice 2005). That's less than one percent of the 159 million self-reported episodes of alcohol-impaired driving among U.S. adults each year (Quinlan et al. 2005).
 - Each year, crashes related to alcohol ingestion in the United States cost about $73 billion
 - In 2005, in the U.S., 48 children age 14 years and younger who were killed as pedestrians or pedal cyclists were hit by drivers under influence
- Statistics compiled by the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration

It's the look that says it all

By BRIAN SPIVEY

The writer is an eighth-grade English teacher in the Schenectady School District.

Do you remember the first time you realized the pain of getting older?

For me, it happened this summer when I went back home for a conference. I purchased a metro card. Full of pride, I thought, "Only Native New Yorkers know about the express bus." I rode this bus so many times as a child.

As I descended down into the subway, I thought to myself, "Hey maybe I'll see a token booth clerk that I know." Wouldn't that be something after 20 years? What! No more token booth clerks? Where did they go? Oh well, I'll just purchase an unlimited card from this machine.

As I walk to the bus stop, the feeling of being back home overwhelms me. I am the last person to get on the bus and I put the metro card in and it doesn't work. The bus driver sighs and says, "That card don't work on this bus. You got $5.50? All eyes are on me. I pull out five singles and then I get the look — the "you don't belong here look." With a hint of pity in his voice, he whispers, "you haven't been on this bus before so I'm going to let you ride this time." Embarrassed, I sit. I have a long ride — plenty of time to recover.

As I bump along the Bruckner Expressway, I think back to what it used to be like: The Skating Palace is now Cablevision; Jack n' the Box and Alexander's is gone. Stars Roller Skating Rink is now Home Depot and Kentucky Fried Chicken is now Abundant Praise Tabernacle.

I get off the bus on Randall Avenue. I'll take the path I've taken 540 times before. Throgs Neck, I'm home. These are my projects. I am smiling and reminiscing when suddenly, notice four African American boys sitting on the bench. Wow! Maybe I know one of them. They could be the sons of a schoolmate. But, as I look for recognition, I notice the look. Oh no, I know that look. "These are our projects, what are YOU doing here?"

Point of View

I walk on as I mutter to myself, "I just focus on pleasant thoughts," with my sights set on 2777 Dewey Avenue just up the way. Nee'ah lives in the building. Nee'ah, the one who told her own children that I was part of their family; the one who wouldn't give anyone else a peanut butter and jelly sandwich when they asked but always said yes to me; Nee'ah, who kept her door unlocked and was proud of it. There is the field where I played my last baseball game with my father, as Nee'ah watched from the bench.

Now I am only a couple of steps away from the building. I get to the building, pull the door and climb the steps. I chuckle, "She will be surprised. I won't even be able to resist the offer of a peanut butter and jelly sandwich."

Will all the memories come back when I walk in that kitchen? I go to the second floor and I am a little winded. It's been thirty-two years but I know that door is still open. I fight the urge to turn that knob and exclaim, "Hey Nee'ah I'm home!"

I knock. I hear the slippers slide across the floor. The steps are slow but steady. Someone peeks through the peephole.

The lock turns and a large woman opens the door.

"Nee'ah?"

"Yeah."

"It's Brian!"

She raises her right arm, turns her hand upward, lifts her nose while she shrugs her shoulders, and gives me the look.

Local patrons get a look at the new face of Friendly's

Restaurant uses Capital District as testing ground for new products

beam@spotlightnews.com

It's not every day you enter a Friendly's restaurant and are handed $1,000 just for being there, but one customer at the restaurant's Central Avenue got a bit of a surprise Monday, Dec. 6, when the CEO of the company was in town.

Friendly's Chairman and CEO Harsha V. Agadi was joined by Mayor Jerry Jennings and Albany-Colonie Regional Chamber of Commerce Mark Eagan to kick off the new face of Friendly's, which includes a new menu and an investment of $2 million in the 17 Capital Region stores.

"We have a new breakfast menu, we have a new lunch and dinner menu as well as an ice cream menu," Agadi announced. "It still has some of our classic old favorites, carrying on for 75 years, but it also has some new items including some healthy items."

Some of the new items that will be available include an Asian salad and a Mediterranean salad, healthy items that will complement the calorie-heavy ice cream, skillet, Belgian waffles, and soups and sandwiches.

Agadi said his company chose the Capital District

Customer Peter Porcello with his daughter Laura, was the recipient of the $1,000 cash prize in connection with Friendly's "Random Acts of Friendliness." Andrew Beam/Spotlight Friendly's Chairman and CEO Harsha V. Agadi, above, told customers at the Central Avenue store the company will be testing new menu items. He also presented the $1,000 to Porcello.

as the test market because it is one of the few areas that has weathered the recession better than others.

"The Capital Region in our opinion represents the best combination of America," he said. "In our stores that we run, from Maine to Florida, we thought we should start with the Capital Region as the leading edge."

Agadi said the establishment serves at least a million customers a year, and Friendly's revenues are around $750,000.

Jennings talked about the importance of the Central Avenue corridor in Albany and how much investment has been brought to the area. Agadi and Jennings both hinted at possible new Friendly's sites in the area that might be built.

"My feeling is, they [Friendly's] deliver a great product. It's fun to be here, families love to come here, and it's something we all should continue to support," Jennings said.

Eagan told stories of how he had been going to Friendly's for years, and that it is one of his family's favorite destinations for birthday celebrations.

"[It's] one of the little sort of traditions we have in our family — whether it's my birthday, or my wife's birthday or either of our children's birthdays," he said. "And when you talk about the brand of Friendly's, Friendly's stands for fun."

Following the announcement and in a campaign titled "Random Acts of Friendliness," Agadi went to three locations in the Capital Region, beginning in Albany and continuing on to Clifton Park and Saratoga Springs, and surprised a customer with a $1,000 reward.

While at the store on Central Avenue, Agadi chose Peter Porcello as the recipient of $1,000.

Agadi slowly counted 10 crisp $100 bills on the table until he reached the targeted amount as Porcello's 3-year-old daughter, Laura, shied away from the attention by hiding under the table.

"I wasn't thinking at all he would come over here," he said, adding he was "very shocked" once Agadi approached him.

When asked what he would do with the money, he didn't have to put much thought into it.

"It's going towards buying Laura a Christmas gift."

Do dogs get hypothyroidism?

Dogs can be affected by hypothyroidism. The thyroid gland secretes thyroid hormones that are responsible for metabolic equilibrium and numerous other bodily functions. Hypothyroidism is an under-active thyroid gland. This usually happens due to immune destruction or atrophy of the gland. It typically affects middle aged and older female dogs of any breed. Most dogs with the disease will present with hair loss, brittle hair, recurrent infections, weight gain, difficulty losing weight and lethargy.

Your veterinarian will perform specific blood tests to determine if your pet is hypothyroid. The test measures circulating levels of various thyroid hormones. It may also test antibodies against the thyroid gland to assess if there is immune destruction of the thyroid.

If your animal is diagnosed as hypothyroid, they will be started on a twice daily medication that supplements them with thyroid hormone. Their thyroid levels will be checked periodically and adjusted as deemed necessary by your veterinarian.

School's out, library's in

We have a week's worth of activities coming up for vacationing students of all ages. There'll be something new to do each day Monday-Thursday, Dec. 27-29.

The Creation Station in Children's Place will be open all day, each day, with a variety of seasonal crafts.

Monday, Dec. 27, is movie day, with a double feature for kids and families and a special teen edition in the evening. Bring blankets and pillows and settle in for:

- 10 a.m.—"Toy Story 3" (2010)—G, 86 minutes

- 2:30 p.m.—"The Karate Kid" (2010)—PG, 140 minutes

- 6:30 p.m.—teen viewers' choice (grade 6 and up)

On Tuesday, Dec. 28, from 3 to 4:30 p.m., folks in grade K-12 can bring their cards and action figures and meet other fans in the latest installation of "Pokemon, Bakugan and More." At 6:30pm, "Chocolate Factory" gives teens in grade 6 and up a shot at creating their own candy bars from start to finish: designing the wrapper, sampling the chocolate, and adding secret ingredients.

On Wednesday Dec. 29 at 10:30 am, come to "Not Quite New Year's Craft-O-Rama"—a variety of craft stations for grades K-5.

On Thursday Dec. 30 at 2:30pm, kids in grade 3-5 can follow in Dan and Amy Cahill's footsteps in a 39 Clues round-the-world scavenger hunt.

A Giant celebration

Kathy Stevens, second from left, founder of the Catskill Animal Sanctuary and author of "Where the Blind Horse Sings" and "Animal Camp," visited grades 4, 6, 7 and 8 at St. Thomas the Apostle School on Nov. 18. Stevens and Betsy Messenger, education director of the sanctuary, talked to the children about the facility and kindness to farm animals. The Catskill Animal Sanctuary is located in Saugerties and has been in operation since 2003. It has been the home for over 2,000 rescued and abused farm animals. Pictured, from left to right, are Messenger, Stevens, Abby Serfilippi, and Theresa Heilsberg. Stevens came to visit the children as part of Abby Serfilippi's eighth grade service project on animal rights.

Vet to share tales at library

Lifelong Capital District veterinarian Dr. John "Jack" Brennan, DVM, will speak at a Local Notable Author Event at the Guilderland Public Library on Friday, Dec. 17, at 7 p.m.; he will speak about his experience as an author, and share many of the amusing tales contained in his recently published book, "This Vet Has Tales."

Dr. Brennan's book introduces the reader to a variety of animal and the people with whom they live. Many of the stories are amusing, but "as with any medical practice" there is sadness as well, according to one review. The changes in our area — farmland overrun by family housing — are reflected in the changes in this vet's practice. As such, it's history in the raw.

Copies of "This Vet Has Tales" will be available for sale after the Q&A portion of the program, and Dr. Brennan will be more than happy to sign them.

Holiday concert

The Suburban Sounds singing group will hold its Annual Holiday Concert at the Gingerbread Public Library on Sunday, Dec. 19, at 2 p.m.

A welcome, melodic break from the weekend-before-Christmas holiday hustle and bustle, this concert features traditional carols — you might be asked to sing along — and newer selections that are gaining increasing popularity. This is a fun, relaxed family time. Come and enjoy.

The perfect gift

Is there a person on your gift list who loves gingerbread? Do we have a gift for them! Cozy Cookies, the soft, cuddly, plush Cookie you can warm up! Stick one of these Gingerbread Boys — or Gingerbread Girls — in the microwave, take it out, and fill the room with the scent of gingerbread and holiday joy! There are Gingerbread Chef hot pads as well; plant a hot plate or pan on the chef's face and the gentle holiday scent comes through.

These really hot items are available at the library:

Gingerbread Boys & Girls are $12 apiece, and the Gingerbread Chef is $3. Proceeds from these sales go to the Library's Staff Development Fund.

Holiday closings

The library will be closed Friday and Saturday, Dec. 24 and 25.

The library will close at 2 p.m. on Dec. 31. It will remain closed on New Year's Day, and open at its normal time of 1 p.m. on Sunday, Jan. 2.

The Guilderland Public Library is at 2228 Western Ave., Guilderland. Call 456-2400, ext. 12, for more information, or visit the library's website at www.guilpl.org. Become a Facebook fan of the library, follow the library on Twitter (@GuilderlandLib), and listen to the library's online radio station, Radio GPL.

Teens can get tips on reading to kids

An unusual class is being offered for teens that will teach the best way to read to small children: ever wonder how librarians read a story book with an arm extended to the side? You will find that out as well as how to choose good read-alouds, and to engage your listeners. It is great training for babysitters or library volunteers, or even if you just want to entertain your younger brother or sister. Registration is requested for "Teen Reading Workshop" on Tuesday, Dec. 28, from 10 to 11:30 a.m.

Have you suffered a thigh bone/femur injury?

Attention FOSAMAX® VICTIMS

Recent studies have indicated that use of the osteoporosis medicine Fosamax® can lead to fractures in the femur — the hip bone. These fractures can occur in low-impact situations, such as when stepping down stairs or even just falling from a standing height or less. This significant risk has been recently added to the Warnings and Precautions section of the label.

If you or your loved one has suffered a HIP fracture after taking Fosamax® it is your best interests to investigate your legal rights for possible compensation!

Weitz & Luxenberg can help you understand your legal options. We are one of America's largest trial law and products liability law firms representing injured persons with total verdicts and settlements in excess of $3 Billion, and are committed to represent your interests aggressively and professionally. Our leadership experience in such national litigations as asbestos injuries, defective medical products and medicines, environmental toxic torts and others has given thousands of clients the confidence to entrust us with their most serious legal issues.

For a free consultation please call us today at 1-888-411-LAWS (5297).

HEAP offers help with heating bill expenses

Cold months approach. Heating costs increase. People with monthly incomes under: $2129 for one person, or $2784 for two people, etc., are eligible for the Heating Assistance Program called HEAP. This grant can be received each heating season and goes directly to the heating company. The amount of the payment to each person is determined by income, living expenses and type of fuel used. Applications to the program are now available in the Senior Office. Please act quickly as funds are limited.

Church to serve Christmas dinner

Enjoy a Christmas dinner on Saturday, Dec. 25, at the First United Methodist Church, 428 Kenwood Ave., Delmar. The turkey and ham dinner is open to all residents of the town and will begin at 1:30 pm. There is no fee but goodwill offerings will be accepted. Transportation for town seniors will be provided. Call 439-4955, ext. 1176 for meal and transportation reservations.

Remember the Bethlehem Food Pantry during this holiday season. Donations are always accepted at the pantry at the Bethlehem Town Hall. It needs soup, stuffing, tea, coffee, canned meats, paper products and gift cards to area food stores. If you need the services of the food pantry, call 439-4955, ext. 1173.

Program highlights
Special transportation note: Bethlehem Senior note: Bethlehem Senior Transportation will not be available Dec. 24 through Jan. 2. However, the Bethlehem Senior Services office will be open from 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. during that time and van volunteers will be

Tuesday, Dec. 21
• Veteran's Services Assistance: A Veteran's Service Officer from Albany County will be available by appointment between 1 and 3 p.m. to meet with veterans and their families to present information about disability and education benefits; burial allowances, headstones, and flags; pension and compensation benefits; aid and assistance; and discharges papers and medical records. Call 439-4955, ext 1176 to make an appointment.

• Seniors in Motion: A low-level, fun aerobic exercise class to music. Bethlehem Town Hall auditorium, 445 Delaware Ave., Delmar, 9 to 10 a.m. No registration is necessary. $3 fee per class.

Wednesday, Dec. 22
• Senior grocery shopping for residents of Elsmere, Delmar, Slingerlands, North Bethlehem and Marie Rose Manor at Price Chopper in Slingerlands. For reservations, call 439-5770.

Thursday, Dec. 23
• Senior grocery shopping for residents of Glenmont, Selkirk, and South Bethlehem at Hannaford at Price Chopper in Glenmont. For reservations, call 439-5770.

• Bethlehem Senior Citizens Club meets for an enjoyable afternoon of games and socializing at the Bethlehem Town Hall auditorium, 445 Delaware Ave., Delmar from 11:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. All seniors are welcome. We play bridge, mah jongg, pinochle, and bingo.

Friday, Dec. 24

He promises to work hard.
—Promise to do your part.

Through all the homework, projects, and hours of practice, your child gives you his best. All this hard work will pay off when it's time for college. Do your part to help pay for his education by opening a New York's 529 College Savings Program Direct Plan. With as little as $25, you, family and friends can open and contribute to an account for your child. Contributions can qualify for a generous deduction from New York State taxable income.* Earnings grow tax deferred, and you pay no state or federal taxes on qualified withdrawals, making a 529 plan one of the most tax-efficient ways to save. Plus, a service from Upromise® can add to your account. It's so easy—just visit ny529directplan.com, and in about ten minutes, you've kept your promise.

Visit ny529directplan.com or call 1-800-608-8617

*Up to $10,000 is deductible from New York State taxable income for married couples filing jointly; single residents can deduct up to $5,000 annually. May be subject to recapture in certain circumstances—rollovers to another state's plan or non-qualified withdrawals.

Earnings on non-qualified withdrawals may be subject to federal income tax and a 10% federal penalty tax, as well as state and local income taxes. Tax and other benefits are contingent on meeting other requirements and certain withdrawals are subject to federal, state and local taxes.

Before you invest, consider whether your or the designated beneficiary's home state offers any state tax or other benefits that are only available for investments in such state's qualified tuition program.

The Comptroller of the State of New York and the New York State Higher Education Services Corporation are the Program Administrators and are responsible for implementing and administering the Direct Plan. Upromise Investments, Inc. and Upromise Investment Advisors, LLC serve as Program Manager and Recordkeeping and Servicing Agent, respectively, and are responsible for day-to-day operations, including effecting transactions. The Vanguard Group, Inc. serves as the Investment Manager. Vanguard Marketing Corporation markets, distributes and underwrites the Direct Plan.

No guarantee: None of the State of New York, its agencies, the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC), The Vanguard Group, Inc., Upromise Investments, Inc., nor any of their applicable affiliates insures accounts or guarantees the principal deposited therein or any investment returns on any account or investment portfolio.

New York's 529 College Savings Program currently includes two separate 529 plans. The Direct Plan is sold directly by the Program. You may also participate in the Advisor Plan, which is sold exclusively through financial advisors and has different investment options and higher fees and expenses as well as financial advisor compensation.

Upromise is a registered service mark of Upromise, Inc.

For more information about New York's 529 College Savings Program Direct Plan, obtain a Program Brochure and Tuition Savings Agreement at ny529directplan.com or by calling 1-800-608-8617. This includes investment objectives, risks, charges, expenses, and other information. You should read and consider them carefully before investing.

Entertainment in the Spotlight

The colorful and exciting production of "Fiddler on the Roof" has enchanted audiences since 1964. Proctors hosts the play Jan. 4 through 9.

Fiddler kicks up its heels

National tour to play at Proctors Jan. 4 through 9

Without our traditions, our lives would be as shaky as...as a fiddler on the roof," announces Tevye, a humble milkman from the Russian village of Anatevka. And so begins a tale of love and laughter, devotion and defiance...and changing traditions.

"Fiddler on the Roof," the Tony Award-winning musical that has captured the hearts of people all over the world with its universal appeal, continues on its North American Tour and will play at Proctors from Jan. 4 to 9. Audiences will have a once-in-a-lifetime opportunity to see Jerome Robbins' original Broadway direction and choreography, starring veteran actor John Preece.

No other musical has so magically woven music, dance, poignancy and laughter into such an electrifying and unforgettable experience. Relive a glorious tradition of the musical theatre with "Fiddler on the Roof," shared with family and cherished friends, especially during the holiday season. Appropriate for all ages, "Fiddler on the Roof" is part of the Key Private Bank Broadway Series at Proctors. The production lasts for 2 hours and 50 minutes, with one intermission.

Tevye's wrestling with the new customs of a younger generation is punctuated by an unforgettable score that weaves the haunting strains of "Sunrise, Sunset" and the rousing "If I Were A Rich Man" with the exuberant "Matchmaker, Matchmaker" and triumphant "Tradition." When his daughters choose suitors who defy his idea of a proper match, Tevye comes to realize, through a series of incidents that are at once comic and bittersweet, that his children will begin traditions of their own.

At the story's close, the villagers of Anatevka are forced to leave their homes and even the sturdy mores that have guided everyday life begin to crumble. Paradoxically, it is the enforced loss of the rigid traditions and home life that Tevye has tried so tenaciously to preserve that leads the family to reconcile and draw closer still.

A perennial hit since it first opened in 1964, "Fiddler on the Roof" has enjoyed critical acclaim for bringing to the stage a poignant story about the enduring bonds of the family. Now, the National Touring production of this timeless musical brings the wit and wisdom of Tevye and his family to audiences throughout the United States.

The humble milkman Tevye and the titular fiddler on the roof behind him.

Mr. Preece has performed in "Fiddler on the Roof" over 3,100 times, 1,500 of which were in the role of Tevye the milkman, and this production marks Mr. Preece's ninth national tour of "Fiddler on the Roof."

Tickets for "Fiddler on the Roof" are available at Proctors Box Office, 346-6204 or online at proctors.org.

Significant discounts on tickets are available for groups of 20 or more. A listing of shows and pricing may be found on proctors.org/group_sales or by contacting Proctors Group Sales at 518-382-3884 ext. 139.

The 2 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 9 performance of "Fiddler on the Roof" will be a signed performance for the hearing impaired.

Ticket buyers to "Fiddler on the Roof" are invited free of charge to a pre-show Henry Schaffer TheatreTalk presentation on Thursday, Jan. 6, at 12:30 p.m. These informal discussions are delivered by company artists to engage patrons in a unique forum for learning about a specific performance. Audience members are encouraged to ask questions about the artists, repertoire and performance, creating a dynamic interaction geared toward increasing awareness about the theatre arts.

Here's How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Local soldiers promoted

Several local members of the New York Army National Guard have been promoted in recognition of their capabilities for additional responsibility and leadership.

Timothy White of Clifton Park, serving with the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 42nd Combat Aviation Brigade, has been promoted to the rank of Private.

Peter Lord of Clifton Park, serving with the Joint Force Headquarters, has been promoted to the rank of Private 1st Class.

Michael Repicky of Rexford, serving with the 107th Military Police Company, has been promoted to the rank of Specialist.

Michelle Morse of Stillwater, serving with the Headquarters, 42nd Infantry Division, has been promoted to the rank of Private.

Jason Lansley of Glenville, serving with the 42nd Infantry Division Tactical Command Post #1, has been promoted to the rank of Staff Sergeant.

Matthew Perkins of Fort Edward, serving with the Detachment 2 Company D, 3-126 Aviation, has been promoted to the rank of Specialist.

Christopher Pensack of Altamont, serving with the Headquarters and Headquarters Company, 42d Special Troops Battalion, has been promoted to the rank of Sergeant.

Marine takes part in exercise

Marine Corps 1st Lt. Caleb D. Eames participated in an amphibious landing exercise called Phiblex '11 on the island of Luzon, the Philippines.

Sailors from an aircraft carrier, a dock landing ship and an amphibious transport dock ship, along with members of the 31st Marine Expeditionary

Unit based in Okinawa, Japan, and members of the Philippine military shared tactics, weapons, and field rations during the exercise. The exercise allowed American servicemembers to train in a foreign environment and get a better understanding of how American and Filipino military operations function together.

Eames is the son of David K. and Emily R. Eames of Delmar. He graduated in 1995 from Fredericksburg Christian School, Va., and earned a bachelor's degree in 2005 from Park University, Mo.

Delmar soldier earns promotion

Kenneth Allen of Delmar, serving with the Company A, 42d Special Troops Battalion, has been promoted to the rank of Specialist.

Army National Guard promotions are based on overall performance, attitude, leadership ability, and development potential.

Milestones

Louis Choppy

Louis Choppy of West Grove, PA; formerly of Delmar, NY; passed away gently on December 4, 2010, a day after his milestone 80th birthday. Surrounded by his heartbroken wife and daughters, Lou slipped into a peaceful release from his courageous battle with ALS. Lou was a lovable and loving gentleman to all, never judging people, but accepting them as they were. He read his Bible daily and was a friend of Jesus. He was very slow to anger, quick to hug and forgive. He leaves behind his devoted wife of 46 years, Marian, his daughter Claire (Bill) Conway and his daughter Ruth (Brian) Iaia, his cherished grandsons: Ethan, Drew, and Brendan Iaia and Liam and Quinn Conway. Lou and Marian moved to PA in 2003 to be near their daughters and grandsons. He was a wonderful husband, father, and grandfather who will always be missed. Also survived by his brother John Choppy and sister Angela Ogren both of the Albany, NY area, and many cousins. His late father and mother John and Mary Choppy, and his late sister Victoria Scialdone preceded him.

Lou received his degrees from Siena College and Notre Dame University in History and from SUNY Albany in Public Administration. He retired from the NYS Department of Classification as Chief Classifier in 1993 after 37 years of work.

Lou was noted for his wide accepting smile, great sensitivity to others, and his intelligence. He was a voracious reader and loved his enormous non-fiction collection. He was a huge Notre Dame football fan since attending the University. He was in the Army for two years and the Guard for four, serving in peacetime.

Lou was a lover of gardens, and while living in Delmar, NY enjoyed hours of pruning his roses. His Daughter Ruth gave him and her mom memberships at Longwood Gardens and Winterthur which led to a devotion to visiting there.

Never complaining and always grateful for his VA Coatesville help, Home Instead aides, and finally, Brandywine River Valley Hospice. He is also grateful to Dr. Leo McCluskey, Director of the ALS clinic in Philadelphia, for finally putting a name on his disease and for his sensitive visits there every two months.

Friends and family visited the Choppy family Thursday, December 9, 2010 at the Assumption of the Blessed Virgin Mary Church, 300 State Road, West Grove, PA 19390. Mass of Christian Burial and the burial were in Longwood Cemetery, Kennett Square, PA.

A Memorial Mass will be celebrated at 12:00 Noon on Saturday, January 8, 2011 at the St. Thomas the Apostle Church, 35 Adams Place, Delmar, NY for all the relatives and friends who live nearby.

Those who wish, may make a contribution in Lou's name to the ALS Association of the Greater Philadelphia Chapter; 321 Morristown Rd. Suite 260; Ambler, PA 19002-2755.

Lou has entered a new and perfect life.

Arrangements by the Kuzo & Grieco Funeral Home, Kennett Square, PA.

Given S. Hynds

DELMAR - Given S. Hynds, 93, an 88-year resident of Delmar, died on Monday, December 6, 2010.

Born in Cooperstown on November 21, 1917, he was the son of the late Claude and Elizabeth (Sperbeck) Hynds. Given honorably served his country in the U.S. Navy and was Commander of the American Legion Blanchard Post #1040 from 1960 to 1961. An early aviator, Given was a Galaxy Member of the Empire State Aerosciences Museum in Scotia. He was instrumental in the construction of the "Strat", an experimental plane currently on display at the museum. Given will be remembered for his competitive nature and he enjoyed life to its fullest, remaining active into his 90's. He was also a member of the Ticonderoga Country Club.

Given was predeceased by his wife, Frances A. Hynds and is survived by a cousin, Art Warner of Clifton Park. Given loved his many caregivers and companions who aided him greatly during the last year of his life. A special thanks to the staff of the Community Hospice of Albany and of the St. Peter's Hospice Inn for their comfort and care during Given's final days.

A memorial service will be held at a later date. Given and his wife, Frances, will be laid to rest in the Gerald B.H. Solomon Saratoga National Cemetery, Schuylerville.

In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to the Community Hospice of Albany, 445 New Karner Rd., Albany, NY 12205.

trying to come up with an idea their classrooms could collaborate on.

"It just kind of came to me that they do a weekly reading calendar so doing something for school that would help educate them while also helping someone else made sense," Beth Kourt said.

They had originally hoped to raise enough money to put together welcome care bags for families served by the Ronald McDonald House, which provides housing and other services to the families of children who are being treated in Albany Medical Center. Having far surpassed that goal, they'll make a donation of more than $2,100 to the organization.

"We were really looking for somewhere local the kids could really make a connection to," Beth Kourt said. "They really wanted to help the kids. They were really genuine in wanting to help the kids and their families."

The bags, which the classes assembled Thursday, Dec. 9, include items like shampoo and toothpaste families might have forgotten to pack, as well as candy and other pick-me-ups. Each of the bags kids stuffed and decorated included a dragonfly ornament, a symbol of strength and hope.

Fifth-grader Paxton Guy, 10, was drawing a flower on her care bag in Andrew Kourt's classroom. She raised about $200 by reading for 570 minutes, mostly realistic fiction and fantasy books.

"I really tried," she said.

"I think it's a great thing to do."

Madeleine Cafarelli, also 10, said her favorite author is J. K. Rowling, writer of the "Harry Potter" series. She read for 215 minutes.

"It's always nice to do stuff for charity," she said as she filled in a rainbow on her care bag. "It makes you feel good."

This is the first collaborative effort between the two classrooms, but both teachers said it's not likely to be the last. They want to make the read-a-thon an annual event, and also want to get the classes together for the June Freihofer's Run in Albany, to raise even more for the Ronald McDonald House.

"We're trying to sort of make it a yearlong process, rather than a one-time event," said Beth Kourt.

Political enrollment shift sees more Dems in Colonie

GOP chair says his enrollment numbers not shrinking

beam@spotlightnews.com

The Colonie Democratic Party was pleased to find that the number of enrolled Democratic voters outweighs the number of Republican voters for the first time in over a century, according to numbers from the Albany County Board of Elections.

"I think that the statistics show that people who have not been enrolled in any party have been enrolling in the Democratic Party," said town Democratic Chairman Richard Jacobson. "Whereas in the past people have been reluctant to enroll, the party has been running the town for a few years."

He noted that a lot of the Democrats have moved in from outside of town and that people are not nearly as hesitant to enroll in a political party. He noted that in 2007, the Colonie Town Board came under Democratic control, electing Paula Mahan as supervisor and three other Democratic Town Board members. Now, there is only one remaining Republican on the board, Dan Dustin.

Jacobson said that the town was experiencing "serious financial difficulties", one of them being a $20 million deficit, along with some scandals, all of which he believes helped "catapult" Democrats in the elections.

"Moody's downgraded the town's bond rating and we were worried we were going to have to have state comptroller take over," said Jacobson, adding that in New York State, if a municipality's financial situation is too dire, then the comptroller will step in.

With upcoming elections, Jacobson thinks a lot of the races will be very close and that the voters will decide if they want the town to have a bipartisan balance.

Town Republican Chairman John Graziano Jr. said that the Republican enrollment in the town is not shrinking by any means, but the shift in enrollment is due to Democrats moving from the cities, such as Albany,

"It's not about Democrats or Republicans, it's about serving the residents of Colonie."

Colonie Supervisor Paula Mahan

to the suburbs, which he referred to as "scary."

"The town was built on the principles of the Republican party," he said. "Historically, people in the suburbs are very educated, and the people fleeing the cities are trained to vote across the line."

He added he believes those who are moving into the town don't have any ties with Colonie and that they mainly vote in the state and presidential elections. Voting down the line, he said, can be a very dangerous practice. He also suggested that people are told to register to be Democrats so they would be able to get a job in the state.

Town Supervisor Paula Mahan said that she felt the shift was one that had been coming for awhile, more specifically over the last ten years while she was still teaching. She added she is happy to see that people now feel comfortable with enrolling in whichever party they choose as in the past there was a lot of pressure for people to be Republicans in the town.

"It was very clear, if you wanted to live in Colonie, you had to be a Republican," she said. "I feel good about the fact people are comfortable to register in whatever party they choose."

Mahan was once enrolled as a Republican up until 2003-2004, when she said she and her husband Joseph were uncomfortable with the direction the party was taking the town in. She added that her husband felt the sense that if he wanted to work in the town then he had to be a registered Republican.

Her husband was then a member of the Town Board in the '90s, when she said they began to see a shift in the way the town was being run.

"When my husband was a member of board, he didn't think things were heading in right direction, which was rather concerning," she said. "At that point, we decided we weren't comfortable with way things were being done."

Even though Mahan had changed political parties, she said she is still a very conservative person, which makes her feel more independent.

"It's not about Democrats or Republicans, it's about serving the residents of Colonie," she said. "We're all one community. It doesn't matter, people have different philosophies."

Where Jacobson and Graziano agree is that the main reason people are moving into Colonie is because of the quality of the town, but would certainly disagree on exactly who is responsible for it.

"It's always had a good environment," said

Jacobson. "Philosophically, I don't think there's been a difference by the way Republicans and Democrats want the town to be safe."

It doesn't hurt that while in power the town Democrats have done a good job of governing, he said.

"We just feel that currently we're doing a very good job with our team," Jacobson said.

Graziano would disagree, as he criticized the board members for voting along with everything that is proposed by Mahan.

"The board votes lockstep, besides one Republican," he said. "How many initiatives are brought up by board members?"

Mahan disagrees with this statement, as she said that she looks at her board members as individuals and does not judge them based on what political party they are affiliated with as there is always a difference of opinions and discussion that leads to good results.

"I don't see it the way Mr. Graziano does," she said. "I'm very pleased with how board operates."

Caregivers invited to support group meetings

Evergreen Adult Day Services, 357 Milton Avenue, Ballston Spa, hosts a Caregiver Support Group, the last Tuesday of each month from 3 to 4 p.m.

This group is designed for caregivers, families and friends of people with dementia. The group offers participants a chance to meet others in similar situations, share stories of successes and challenges, exchange tips and ideas and learn more about daily care-giving issues. The group also provides an opportunity for additional education on various aspects of Alzheimer's disease and related dementias.

For more information or to register, contact Trudi Cholewinski, at 691-1516. The caregiver support group is provided in conjunction with the Alzheimer's Association of NENY.

Study

could enter the community by way of air particles and settled dust, a study of health data in surrounding areas didn't reveal health trends to be outside the norm.

The second phase of the study will focus more closely on areas that could be receiving larger amounts of contamination, rather than examining data compiled by ZIP codes as in this first phase. Officials said that report is expected to be done in the summer of 2011.

But many at Thursday's hearing said they expected more than number crunching. They want field testing on humans and the environment.

"We specifically made a request that we didn't want to see modeling ... we wanted to see real data being collected," said Elyse Griffin, of the Community Advocates for Safe Emissions group. "It's been two years almost, and this has still not happened."

CASE and other advocates approached the state government in early 2009 about conducting a study.

DOH officials at the hearing said completing the public health assessment, which mostly consists of analyzing already existing data, is the common procedure. If the assessment finds there is a potential danger to the community then further studies, including field testing, would be warranted, said Jan Storm, of the DOH's Bureau of Toxic Substance Assessment.

"First, we have to figure out what we know about what's released from the plant," Storm said. "Then, we know specifically what questions to ask."

A few community members demanded to know why the report didn't include the work of Ward Stone, a recently retired DEC wildlife pathologist who had been using funds raised by CASE to conduct studies on heavy metal contamination in the area.

Diane Mathis, a DOH spokesperson, said the agency did receive Stone's research from the DEC and considered it for the report, but added it was lacking in certain data.

"What we received is data from samples, we need additional information, such as where the samples were collected and how the samples were obtained," Mathis said. "We requested that information from Ward Stone about six months ago. To date, we have not received it."

DOH representatives stressed the agency is looking for comment from the public to make the second phase of the study more useful. Mathis said the public's frustration is understandable.

"It's not unusual to see the frustration expressed, because people want some sort of confirmation of their assumptions ... or they want to know immediately that they don't need to worry," she said. "We understand that frustration, and we're working as quickly as we can in regard to the Lafarge plant."

But for those who have been petitioning the agency and waiting for months, the answers seem clear.

"You don't need a whole lot of data and sampling and analysis to see the cement dust on cars," Falzon said. "People in the community know it's there, and they want to know what's in it and what it's doing to them."

The public comment period, on the study is open until Feb 15. The entire 137-page report and summary pages can be downloaded at www.health.ny.gov/environmental/investigations/lafarge/, where there are also instructions on delivering written comments by mail, fax or e-mail.

long run of iron fence along the front of the site," Planning Board member John Smolinsky said.

The developer also made a change to the architecture of some of the buildings whose rears would be facing Delaware, making the backs of the homes look more like traditional fronts.

"I think what you have before you now really reads more as the front of a building," town Director of Economic Development and Planning Michael Morelli said.

Keystone has said construction on infrastructure and a model home will begin in the inclement months. The units will likely be priced in the high $300,000 to low $400,000 range.

Pines at Normanside moves ahead

The Planning Board

"I'm very satisfied that this is a good plan."

Planning Board Chairman

on Tuesday also gave preliminary approval to a subdivision that has been going through the planning process for years.

The Pines at Normanside would be a development of 10 single-family homes off of Leonard Place in Delmar. The developer would extend that road off of Delaware Avenue, and also build a commercial building closer to that thoroughfare.

That scale is smaller than original plans, which called for more homes and a six-unit apartment building above the commercial space.

There has been much discussion about how the project would impact erosion and water runoff in the area, including at a public hearing in November when many neighbors of the subdivision came to criticize the plans.

Leveille said he was aware of the erosion issues on the slopes at the site from his time in the Department of Public Works, but he said studies by many engineers and the approval of the Department of Environmental Conservation on the stormwater management plan eased his mind.

"[The studies] indicate that at the end of the day you're going to have a site that's more stable than it is today," he said. "I'm very satisfied that this is a good plan ... most of the concerns raised by neighbors are being addressed."

"We certainly understand there are drainage issues out there...we are meeting the DEC regulations so we will not be increasing runoff into those swales," said project engineer Mike Tucker of Infinigy Engineering.

The developer will have to come back to the town for final approval on the project.

JCC to honor Shpeen

Late Executive Director to be honored with Pillars and Presidents Gallery

Albany, NY, December 6, 2010: On Sunday, December 12, 2010, at 11:00 am, the Sidney Albert Albany Jewish Community Center will hold a special dedication ceremony to name the Susan Shpeen Pillars and Presidents Gallery in the lobby at 340 Whitehall Road.

Susan Shpeen was the Center's Executive Director from March 2002 until her passing in November, 2009; prior to that, she served as Controller for 10 years. "Susan was not only the Center's Executive Director and Controller for fifteen years; she was our leader and dear friend. Her sudden illness and passing was a great loss to our Center and to the community as a whole,"

A story of service

St. Thomas School children visited Delmar Place Assisted Living Residence as part of their "story" to be submitted to the editors of the WMHT PBS local film series "Our Town". Students visited, read stories and shared holiday greetings in an effort to emphasize the School's mission of service. The school's video will be submitted to WMHT with the hopes that editors will include it in the upcoming series featuring various submissions from local residents about why the town is important to them. Editors at the PBS station will be gathering film submissions over the coming weeks and editing one program in the series featuring Bethlehem. St. Thomas School sees the role of giving back to the community as a key element in their story and importance to the town.

Submitted photos

said Bill Golderman, past President of the Board. "Her dedication to and impact upon the Center and our community will never be forgotten."

The dedication event is free and open to all friends, family, colleagues and Center members who would like to honor Susan's memory. A brief service will be followed by light refreshments.

Prerequired nonrefundable reservations are required by January 21st or before the trip fills. Contact the Albany JCC's senior adult office to register, 138-6651 x112, ClaireS@saajcc.org

Aids

"In my seven years as a medical student and a family practice resident in the South Bronx, I literally did see families whipped out one after another," said Murphy. "I remember being in the hospital having to give blood on little babies who would die on the next day or the next week. We had nothing to stop it at the time."

He said the day should be a celebration of how far medical testing for the disease has become. A new oral test from the state also seemed to prove effective in raising awareness.

"We ran out of our tests in three days in our first shipment of the state," said Murphy. "If there are going to be 13 people identified I want to identify them tomorrow and not when they get sick and wind up in the hospital and I see them in a year form now very sick. I don't know that I can get rid of the HIV virus, but I really do think I can get rid of AIDS and that is a big plus."

Daniel Butterworth, program director for The Damien Center, said the event helps guests get the chance to express their feeling of living with HIV/AIDS publicly in a safe space.

"Since HIV and AIDS has kind of fallen off the radar as far as the media goes, because it is not quite as much of a crisis as it used to be with medications and care being what they are today, but public awareness is still a necessity," said Butterworth. "Medical care may have changed, but the perceptions about the disease really hasn't."

The center serves around 250 meals a month, he said, which serve people who are both "infected and affected." He said the center provides a safe space for individuals and families.

"Where you are able to talk with peers about issues and share common experiences it really helps lessen the isolation of living with the disease," said Butterworth.

"Disclosure can be a huge weight off someone's shoulders, it can actually have a positive medical impact if you are not dealing with this giant secret and keeping it in."

The center also dealt with a fire recently, which was caused by an electrical reason. The fire continued to spread through the walls, but was extinguish by Schenectady Fire Fighters rather quickly, which prevented extensive damage. There were no injuries in the incident, but the center will be closed for the next week for two.

Operations for The Damien Center were temporarily relocated to Emmanuel Friedens Church located at 218 Nott Terrace, in Schenectady, on Tuesday, Dec. 7. Lunch is planned to be served on Tuesdays and dinner will be served on Mondays, Wednesdays and Thursday during the relocation. Anyone wishing to help with the center's restoration should send support to SICM, 930 Albany Street, Schenectady, NY 12307.

Soldiers

After only 275 days in operation, they have helped 2,800 servicemen, a term McKenna makes sure to use.

"My son didn't like being called a soldier," he said.

Now with the hotel options, soldiers can either stay in the courtesy room if they have an early flight they do not want to miss, or they can choose to stay in one of the hotels.

"Occasionally, you will find someone who feels more comfortable sleeping in the room," he said. "They might be afraid they'll miss they're-next flight."

McKenna said they receive funding from "a whole spectrum of organizations" in the Capital District, which he said provides them with enough money to keep things running. He added, though, that there's always room for expansion.

"We'll probably do a fundraiser and build it out," he said, adding they would need to seek approval to do so, which will be on the docket for the next board of directors meeting.

"I think it will go through," McKenna said.

The soldiers who have participated in the program have appreciated what has been made available to them, said McKenna. But it's not something you notice until they leave for their flight.

"Some of these guys are going back to Iraq or Afghanistan and you can see them with slumped shoulders," he said. "By the time they leave, you see them smiling. They really appreciate what we're doing for them."

Soldiers have been finding out about the courtesy room through word of mouth, as McKenna tells soldiers leaving for their flight to tell all the others. They have also set up a relationship with Camp Drum, where soldiers are informed of the room.

"We have [ambassadors] down there who will see people in uniform or a military backpack and there is at least two or three people who will tap them on the shoulder," he said. "Very rarely do we have someone who slips through our fingers."

said Cacckello. "We're definitely going through some growing pains right now."

Erin Mossop, the lone senior on Guilderland's roster, scored six points to lead a balanced attack. Four more Lady Dutch players scored five points apiece, but nobody could get into an offensive rhythm against Colonie's defense.

"We knew what we were in for tonight, but we didn't handle it well," said Cacckello.

Colonie returned to action Tuesday against undefeated Bethlehem, while Guilderland met Columbia.

In other Suburban Council girls basketball action last Friday, Bethlehem improved its record to 4-0 with a 38-33 victory over Mohonasen in Rotterdam.

The Lady Eagles (2-0 league) led 16-8 after the first quarter, but the Mighty Warriors' defense limited Bethlehem to eight points over the next two periods. That allowed Mohonasen (1-1, 1-1) to cut Bethlehem's lead to 24-23 before the Lady Eagles regained their stride in the fourth quarter.

Bridget Murphy netted 20 points to lead Bethlehem, while Lea McLain scored nine points to pace a balanced Mohonasen attack.

Bethlehem traveled to Colonie Tuesday.

Engineers struggled to win games. But now the wins are coming more frequently and against quality teams. Heck, RPI just defeated Boston University—a Hockey East power—for the second year in a row 4-1 last Saturday.

I thought the Engineers might struggle this year following the departure of two key players for the pro ranks, Jerry D'Amigo and Brandon Pirri. But their offensive balance is still intact, thanks to the efforts of seniors Chase Polacek (eight goals, 15 assists), Tyler Helfrich (nine goals, eight assists) and Bryan Brutlag (five goals, four assists). And with junior goaltender Allen York (.930 save percentage) providing a strong defensive anchor, they are playing some of their best hockey in years.

I don't think RPI is strong enough to be a contender for the NCAA Division I title this year, but Appert has the program pointed in the right direction. Then again, I thought the Engineers would take a step back after D'Amigo and Pirri, left, so maybe they will win it all to prove me wrong. It wouldn't be the first time.

• Sunday morning's roof collapse at the Metrodome in Minneapolis was cool to watch on TV (I always wondered what it would be like if 17 inches of snow fell in one big clump), but it also underscores the danger of inflatable-roofed stadiums.

When places like the Metrodome, the RCA Dome in Indianapolis and the Carrier Dome in Syracuse first opened in the 1980s, inflatable roofs seemed like an engineering marvel. Lots of air supporting a fabric roof—who wouldn't want to be inside something like that?

But as the years went by, the inflatable roof lost its luster. Baseball players dreaded playing in the Metrodome because they had a hard time picking up fly balls against the gray roof. It cost stadium operators a lot of money to keep high-pressured air vents on 24/7 to keep the ceiling from falling in. And once retractable-roofed stadiums became all the rage, it was hard to justify playing inside a building where the sun could never shine in.

The RCA Dome is now gone. The Metrodome might soon follow suit if the Minnesota Vikings have their way and get a new stadium. And as for the Carrier Dome—well, there's nothing planned to replace it and it likely won't be replaced for a long time, which will make the Carrier Dome the last of its kind.

By the way, does it make me a bad person if I say I secretly hoped that Brett Favre was standing underneath the Metrodome roof when it gave way to all that snow? Just kidding.

• Problems of a different sort affected the Albany Devils' plans to host the Wilkes-Barre/Scranton Penguins Sunday in Atlantic City.

The game was postponed due to unfavorable ice conditions at the Boardwalk Hall (the same place where the Miss America Pageant is annually held) after a figure skating exhibition took place one night earlier. The arena had painted over the hockey lines before applying a new layer of ice for the figure skating exhibition, and when they scraped off the paint they also scraped off too much ice.

Poetic justice would have dictated that the postponed game be rescheduled for Albany's true home arena, the Times Union Center. Alas, it was rescheduled for Boardwalk Hall on Feb. 7. Oh well. Maybe there will be another figure skating exhibition the night before that game, and they'll scrape off too much ice again.

Bethlehem's floor leader. The senior forward scored 13 points in the blowout win over Averill Park and netted a team-high 19 points against Mohonasen, including a 5-for-6 performance at the foul line.

"I thought Scott Clas played a nice game offensively and defensively against Mohonasen," said

Irons. "Jordan Sperber [14 points] did a good job of running the point for us, and we got a nice contribution from Nate Kane [10 points]."

Tuesday's game against Colonie was the second of three consecutive home contests for Bethlehem. The Eagles host Shaker Friday before they go on the road to play Saratoga Springs Dec. 17.

Colonie prevails

Lady Raiders' defense stymies young Guilderland team

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Once the Colonie girls basketball team started running, the Lady Raiders didn't stop.

Colonie (2-0) went on a 15-2 run from the midpoint of the first quarter to the early stages of the second quarter on its way to a 54-30 Suburban Council victory over Guilderland Friday.

Not that the Lady Dutch (0-2) didn't make it difficult on the Lady Raiders. Guilderland matched Colonie's defensive toughness throughout the game. It just couldn't match Colonie's offensive efficiency.

"We did a nice job of defending them in the half court when we got them there," said Guilderland coach Frank Cacckello. "But they got a lot of points in transition off our turnovers."

"Frank's a great coach. He prepares his teams well," said Colonie coach Heather Fiore. "They're young, and they're learning."

The heart of Colonie's offense Friday was the duo of senior Tehresa Coles and sophomore Sydnie Rosales. Both players scored 15 points, with Coles getting most of her points driving to the basket and Rosales getting most of hers on jump shots.

"Having Tehresa and Sydnie on the court at the same time, obviously you have to defend them," said Fiore. "That leaves the rest of [the players] open."

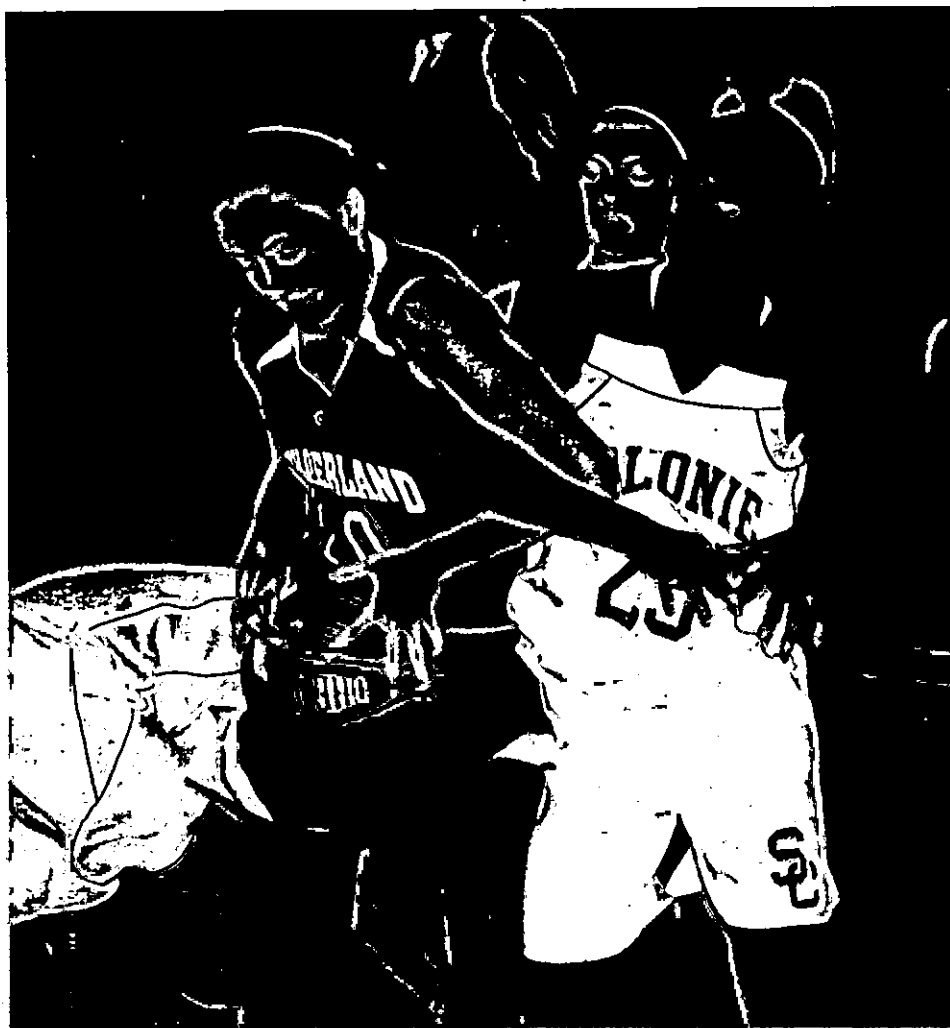

Rosales' presence has meant a lot to Colonie's success since the middle of the 2009-10 season. She missed the first part of last season to a back injury, but once she got on the court, she created a defensive dilemma for opponents that had originally focused on stopping Coles.

"I can't even tell you how excited we are about having Sydnie healthy [to start the season]," said Fiore. "She handles the ball well, she passes the ball well, she can shoot the ball well and she can defend well."

Meanwhile, Guilderland is still searching for an identity. The Lady Dutch roster is filled mainly with sophomores and juniors who are seeing their first significant varsity playing time.

"When you've got as young of a group as us, it's going to take some time,"

Bethlehem makes 85 percent of its free throws

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Do not put the Bethlehem boys basketball team on the free throw line.

That's where the Eagles are finding their greatest success shooting the ball.

Bethlehem (2-0) entered Tuesday's home game against Colonie having made nearly 85 percent of its shots from the foul line, including an 18-for-20 performance in last Friday's 56-46 Suburban Council victory over Mohonasen.

"We've concentrated on [free throws] since the beginning of last year," said Bethlehem coach A.G. Irons. "I even suggested to the kids that they work on them during the off-season by shooting 100 free throws a day. It's become so ingrained in them that they [make them] automatically now."

The Eagles are still the kind of team that tries to get the ball near the basket before shooting it, which leads to a lot of foul shots. Bethlehem took 13 free throws in a season-opening 62-27 victory over Averill Park last Tuesday.

"Things are going all right so far," said Irons. "The guys are working hard and doing some extra stuff in practice."

End of NYC OTB is not the end of NY horse racing

I wouldn't say the New York Yankees are desperate to land Cliff Lee, but their latest offer includes a guaranteed plaque in Monument Park. OK, moving on...

• It's time to dispel a myth.

Thoroughbred racing in New York is not going to die just because New York City OTB closed last week.

True, the $750 million that New York City OTB took in bets yearly will be nearly impossible to fully replace in the short term, which means financial hardship for the organizations that benefited the most from that money — primarily the New York Racing Association, and by trickle-down effect the thoroughbred owners and breeders. But NYRA is still going, and no horsemen have gone out of business. So, I don't think the 2011 Saratoga Race Course season is going to be scrapped.

What the closure means is that there is now a void for New York City betters that needs to be filled. If they start migrating to the tracks to do their betting, that will be good news for NYRA. And there could always be a new off track betting service that establishes itself in New York City. After all, people aren't going to stop betting money just because a once-corrupt organization shuts down. They're just going to find a new place to go and place their bets.

Then, there is the ongoing drama surrounding video lottery terminals at Aqueduct. If and when those ever get up and running, NYRA will have a new source of income that will supposedly make it financially stable once and for all. If that proves true, then NYRA will be able to continue offering competitive race purses, which should keep its three tracks humming along.

(Side note: Notice how many times I wrote "if" in that last paragraph. That's because I'm not certain that the VLTs will get installed at Aqueduct by the end of 2011 as currently planned. After all, we've seen the plug get pulled on VLTs at NYRA's winter track before.)

The underlying message is this: People are still willing to bet on games of chance — whether it involves horses, electronic slot machines or lottery tickets — because they like the thought of leaving somewhere with more money than what they had when they arrived there. And as long as that is the case, a sport like thoroughbred racing will have a future.

• I'm slowly beginning to believe in RPI hockey coach Seth Appert.

The first couple of years Appert was in Troy, the
