Post office decision on hold

Postal Service to re-evaluate closure; sheriff weighs in

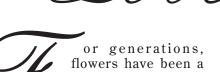

> By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

The proposed closure of the Clarksville Post Office is being reevaluated after a recent decision by the Postal Regulatory Commission found the Postal Service did not adequately consider the concerns of local residents.

The Postal Service informed residents of the proposal to close the post office last May, and the official decision to close the Clarksville office was made in August. Soon after, local lawyer Peter Henner filed an appeal on behalf of himself and others within the community. The closure was called "arbitrary, capricious and an abuse of discretion," in the petition.

Henner argued the Postal Service failed to meet its obligations to consider the closing of the post office on the Clarksville community, and its only basis for the closure was the location's failure to be self sustaining. The USPS cannot close a facility on that reason alone.

While the closure was still being discussed, USPS spokeswoman Maureen Marion told The Spotlight the Clarksville office sees very little business.

King Charles II in the 17th century first introduced Sweden to the "Language of Flowers," a study deriving from Persia that designates a special meaning to each variety of flower and even blossoms of particular colors. In later years, Victorian-era beaus communicated with their loved ones using the special language through single flowers or bouquets.

PTA eyes new playground

Parents say existing structure needs work, is outdated

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

Members of the Elsmere Elementary School PTA have put together a proposal to purchase and construct a new playground for the school.

Playground Committee Co-Vice Presidents Amy Cohen and Robyn Holstein have been working on the proposal since September, when they volunteered to take on the project. The pair presented the plan at a PTA meeting on Tuesday, Jan. 31, and asked for feedback and comments from parents.

"I think the most important goals for the new playground would be making sure we are maintaining the safety of the playground for our children," said Holstein.

The PTA plans to look into making repairs to the existing playground structures, but Cohen and Holstien said most playgrounds are guaranteed for

"The retail window in Clarksville averaged 31 transactions a day, which averaged to be about 31 minutes of work," Marion said. "When you have an office that is staffed for eight hours a day, 31 minutes is a really difficult thing to balance as appropriate."

The Postal Service said its reasons for closing the branch included the postmaster's retirement in March, a variety of other retail and delivery options in the area, "very little projected growth in the area" and minimal impact on the Town of New Scotland.

Henner counters there are numerous commercial and residential properties in the town that would be affected.

Hoffman's Car Wash and Jiffy Lubes returns to business on Friday, Feb. 3, after an erosion scare.

Hoffman's Car Wash reopens

Business closes amid fears of land erosion

By MARCY VELLE veltem@spotlightnews.com

After a week of being closed by town officials amid fears of land erosion on the property, Hoffman's Car Wash and Jiffy Lube reopened on Friday, Feb. 3.

Town Supervisor John Clarkson said members of the New York State Geological Survey initially identified the problem while doing work around town nearly two weeks ago. Bethlehem officials were then notified and an engineering firm then confirmed the slope behind the Hoffman building could potentially cause problems in the future.

"We closed it to be sure it was safe for the public," said Clarkson. "We wanted to make sure it was nothing serious." The business was closed later in the day on Friday, Jan. 27.

In May of 2000, a produce stand next to Hoffman's slipped off the back of the site during a mudslide. Clarkson said the town wanted to be sure a similar or larger incident would not happen.

Bethlehem officials contacted the state Department of Transportation, National Grid and the City of Albany to perform their own inspections of the property, and they all determined there was no danger. The state DOT maintains the portion of Delaware Avenue, while the City has water lines on the property and National Grid has power and gas lines nearby, according to Clarkson.

Hoffman's President Ron Slone hired his own engineers to study the erosion next, and they felt there was no immediate risk to the building.

Marcy Velte/Spotlight

After a meeting with the town on Monday morning, the business was reopened.

Slone said engineers hired by Hoffman are now working with the town to plan a repair schedule. The slope will most likely need to be cut back and regraded. Engineers have put in place equipment to monitor erosion over the next month, and then a plan will be finalized.

"Right now we're very happy to be open and employees are happy to be back at work," he said.

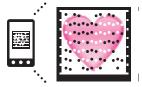

According to Slone, repairs should start by early spring and be finished by July.

Snip-Its started as purveyor of haircuts for special needs children

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

Denise Deitz struggled for years to find a hair salon that could provide her special needs son Brandon with the attention and tenderness he deserved, until she found the hair care salon Snip-Its in Clifton Park.

"It was so traumatic trying to get his hair cut before," she said of her 8-year-old. "I think lots of little kids get scared when it's time to cut their hair, but kids with special needs are even more sensitive."

At the Snip-Its chain, each stylist goes through special training and is certified to cut hair for children with Autism and other special needs to help "prepare them for the salon experience."

Deitz said Brandon was apprehensive to go to another salon with a different stylist at first, but he soon found the child's salon to be a fun and magical place. The experience led the Guilderland mom and former hair stylist to want to open her own Snip-Its closer to home and on Saturday, Feb. 4, she opened her own location in Guilderland's Hamilton Square.

"I've found this is something I'm really passionate about," said Deitz. "And kids are also my passion."

Her story is similar to that of Snip-Its founder Joanna Meiseles, who opened the first location in Framingham, Mass. in 1995.

of research and planning, she developed her own brand and kids hair care program. "We're turning what can sometimes be a challenging experience into a fun-filled, entertaining, family adventure," states Meiseles on the Snip-Its website. "The result is a hair salon no kid can resist and a business model enticing to prospective franchisees."

The chain has since expanded nationally to approximately 60 salons in 26 states. The Guilderland location will now be one of five in New York State.

Police respond to mall brawl

A large fight occurred outside of the Foot Locker store at Crossgates Mall on the morning of Saturday, Feb. 4, when a Foot Locker employee informed a crowd waiting in line there would not be enough tickets for all of the people there to enter the store and purchase a new line of Nike sneakers, according to Guilderland police.

The store was scheduled to open at 8 a.m., and the fight between 150 to 200 people began around 6 a.m., police said. When the crowd realized they would not all be able to purchase the sneakers, some members became aggressive and rushed the store gates in an attempt the gain access to the store, police said.

Members of the Crossgates Mall security and Guilderland police attempted to regain control of the situation, but requested additional police response from the Albany Police Department, the Albany County Sheriff's Office, SUNY police, and New York State Police.

Order was soon restored with the help involved and the crowd began to cooperate with the police and Foot Locker staff, police said. No arrests were made and only one minor injury was reported.

Arrests

• Bethlehem police arrested Patricia Cabrera, 24, of Mansion Blvd., Delmar, and charged her with DWI after she allegedly failed to change lanes for an emergency vehicle.

Police said Cabrera was stopped at the intersection of Cherry Avenue and McCormick Road in Delmar on Sunday, Jan. 29, after failing to change lanes for an emergency vehicle.

She was charged with DWI and failed due care of an emergency vehicle. Her vehicle was towed and she was released to a third party. She was scheduled return to Bethlehem Town Court at a later date.

• Anne O'Connell, 41, was arrested by Guilderland police on Sunday, Feb. 4, and charged with DWI. She was also charged with a traffic violation. She was scheduled to return to court at a later date.

• Jeffery Herald, 50, was arrested by Guilderland police on Thursday, Feb. 2, on a felony charge of criminal possession of marijuana over 16 ounces in the second degree.

• Nico Cunningham, 16, was arrested by Guilderland police on Thursday, Feb. 2, on a felony charge of criminal sale of a controlled substance in the fifth degree.

A passion for gardening can last a lifetime

By SUE PEZZOLLA

Phyllis Rosenblum does not remember exactly how she first heard about the services of Cooperative Extension but she remembers calling for advice and receiving lots of information in the mail. Perhaps that was how she first heard about a new and innovative program that was starting in Albany County in 1977- the "Master Gardener" program. Then a young mother and an avid gardener, the idea of taking classes in the practical application of gardening and the science of horticulture was just the ticket! What she didn't know then was what a rich adventure she was beginning!

The first class of Master Gardeners for Albany County was comprised of five students. Trained by Cornell professors these eager gardeners had their eyes opened to the science and the art of horticulture; the residents of Albany County were soon to provide the rest of their education. The concept behind the Master Gardener Program is to train volunteers to help Extension horticulture staff to answer the myriad of gardening questions each year. After training that first year, the new volunteers signed-up to work one full day a week for much of that year. Today the program asks 60 hours of volunteer service each year and that includes time answering calls on the Hotline, soil testing, staffing tables at Farmer's Markets, fairs, or flower shows and of course, gardening. Since 1977 Phyllis has remained a part of the Master Gardener program and both have seen a lot of change. In the spring of 1981 Phyllis enrolled in the Cobleskill Landscape Design program thus broadening her horticultural education base. Phyllis began writing articles for Extension publications as well as local newspapers while maintaining her volunteer activities as a Master Gardener. "Always an adventure" is how she describes her thirty-four years as a volunteer.

Phyllis has been a consistent presence in the Master Gardener program and in Albany County Cooperative Extension over these past three plus decades. A past member of the Agriculture Program Committee and the Board of Cornell Cooperative Extension, Phyllis has been involved in Extension work from the ground up. She has often taught the section on herbaceous perennials to the new class of Master Gardener trainees incorporating the science and the art of horticulture along with a large dose of practical experience. Presently a volunteer with the Community Caregivers, and an active Master Gardener, Phyllis also juggles a part time job at the Voorheesville Library with maintaining several perennial gardens, a Hosta garden, a raised bed vegetable garden and a lot of mowing! As a Master Gardener Emeritus (designating 20 years or more of service), Phyllis does not have Hotline phone responsibilities but she continues to answer calls because it keeps her in tune with the problems and the public and she simply enjoys the phone work. She also does a lot of public speaking as a Master Gardener bringing a wealth of information and gardening humor to her audiences.

The years have a way of slipping by and this transplanted Midwesterner would agree that her life has been made richer by the experiences and friendships within the Master Gardener Program; quite simply, they have become family. Through the loss of siblings and her husband, Phyllis has felt the support of her Master Gardener friends. It was one such friend to came immediately upon hearing of the death of Phyllis' husband and it was Phyllis who helped to care for that same friend when she was dying of cancer. The roots of these gardening friendships go very deep. And as the Master Gardener program looks forward to 2012 to celebrate its 35th year helping the residents of Albany County to enjoy gardening, you can bet that Phyllis will be right there, shovel in hand!

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

Every day's a giving day

The way some people see it, you can really only be of two minds when it comes to Valentine's Day. One group is comprised of hopeless romantics who revel in unrestrained displays of affection (or, alternatively, morosely lament their singleness) and the other consists of those folks who find the holiday to be an unsettling mishmash of commercialism and chalky heart candies (blech!).

We'd like to think there's a third option out there for those who treat Valentine's Day as a simple reminder.

This week is our special Valentine's Day edition, and you'll read several stories in this paper about some of the business involved in Cupid's big party, whether that's flowers, candies or something completely different. You'll also read the stories of two local couples who tied the knot on or around Valentine's Day despite some pretty trying circumstances.

And opposite this editorial, you'll also read our own Dee Basemore's thoughts on the month of February, which is, among other things, Black History Month. Her words could well be applied to a lot of other places, including the upcoming holiday.

Valentine's Day is a great holiday because it serves as a reminder of exactly what many of us have: a loving companion in life. It also presents the opportunity to do something special for that person as a show of appreciation.

But much as you don't have to wait until February to honor the memory of, say, Martin Luther King Jr., you don't have to wait until Feb. 14 to do something nice for someone special.

Don't get us wrong, it's great to pull out the stops on romance, and Valentine's Day presents the perfect opportunity and atmosphere to do just that. But what it really does best is hit the reset button on relationships, and hopefully put the thought in the minds of couples everywhere that you don't need Hallmark's permission to commit good acts.

This is a particularly appropriate lesson in the month of February, when most people have been cooped up with their loved one for several months and might prefer to see less of that special someone, rather than more.

So this year, let your Valentine's Day freak flag fly and indulge in all the sappy and goopy romanticisms you like. And on Feb. 15, remember that you don't need to spend a lot of money or make a sweeping gesture to make a difference with the person you care about.

Happy Valentine's Day.

Remembrance doesn't come once a year

By DEE BASEMORE

The writer is head of classifieds and the business directory at Spotlight Newspapers.

Imagine, if you will, only contacting your mother on Mother's Day. Giving a gift to your loved ones only on Christmas. Calling a friend, only on their birthday. Do you know that you can buy a dozen roses any day of the year? (And probably spend less than what you are charged on Valentine's Day.)

We have exploited holidays and turned the true meanings into a materialist frenzy. Don't get me wrong, I too indulge in the holidays and at times get caught up myself. Yet, I do take to heart the true meaning of them all. Thanksgiving should be every day, because we all have a reason to give thanks every day.

I believe that as a kid. we just followed the crowd. Halloween, for instance. It was just cool and "normal" to dress up and go from house to house receiving candy and other treats. It was "normal" on New Year's Eve, to have black-eyed peas, collard greens, fish and stay up late.

Now that I am older, I see Halloween in a different light. and a pizza is more satisfying to me than the favorite food of old on New Year's Eve!

My dad used to play tricks on my brothers and me the entire month of April. I thought I was being "smart" one day, after being the victim of a prank, by reminding him April Fools Day was April 1 and since it had passed, his pranks should too. My father quickly corrected me by stating that it is April Fools'. That meant that the month of April was ripe for pranks!

I mention all of this because this is February, now nationally known as Black History Month. For me, it's not just about acknowledging the accomplishments, struggles and stories of my ancestors during this time. It's about celebrating!

It's not about remembering the past in a bad way, but knowing where we were and seeing how far we have come. It is not a time to harbor hatred or ill feelings. It is a time to say "thank you." I would not be here or have been able to vote, go to college or have all that I do without the things my ancestors went through.

I celebrate black history every month, every day and every minute. When I look in the mirror, I see the strength and beauty of Rosa Parks, Harriett Tubman and Bessie Blount. When I am down or discouraged, I hear the echoing words from Langston Hughes, Rev. Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. or Carter Godwin Woodson that encourage me to go on.

I have read books, articles and seen movies and photographs. I have cried, been angry and depressed. I have also laughed, cheered and smiled until my face hurt. I chose, a long time ago, not to ignore the stereotypes, a derogatory statement, funny looks or "side jokes," but to rise up from them and be a better person. I don't see it as "running away", but more moving in a different direction, changing course to something far better and more rewarding.

I was told a long time ago not to wait to learn something. I want to learn on my own, gathering my own experiences and forming my own opinions.

Make your point

The Spotlight welcomes longer opinion pieces for the Point of View section.

Do you have a hobby or cause you feel passionate about? We'd love to share it with our readers.

Do you have information you think others would benefit from hearing about? Let us know.

Point of View submissions should be around 700 words and can be submitted via email to news@spotlightnews.com with "POV" in the subject line. They can also be mailed to The Spotlight at P.O. Box 100, Delmar, NY 12054.

I have learned to not only say "Thank you" for the many inventions, art and literature of mv ancestors, but I give more praise for the sweat, blood and tears. I give a cheer for the hardship they went through, but a louder shout for facing it day after day.

I walked to school with friends without the fear of an angry mob waiting for me. I have sat in every seat on the bus without being told to move. I have been in a VIP section in a fancy restaurant without being ushered out the back door. I have drunk from fountains where the only label was "push here."

I have chosen to celebrate life, my family and friends, every day. I have chosen to learn, teach and share. I have chosen to live, love and laugh. I have chosen not to ever forget, but to move on in a positive direction in hopes of fulfilling a dream. I hope you all do the same!

Fundraiser dinner a success

Editor, The Spotlight:

On Tuesday evening, Jan. 24, Boy Scout Troop 58 held its 4th Annual All-You-Can-Eat Pancake Dinner Fund Raiser at the Nathaniel Blanchard American Legion Post on Poplar Drive in Delmar.

Each year, Troop 58 scouts and families look forward to this event because each year the community shows up in strength to support the boy scouts and to enjoy a delicious pancake, sausage, fruit cocktail dinner complete with coffee, juice, hot cocoa and even Jell-O with whipped cream for dessert. Funds raised from this event help the troop participate in outdoor activities, teach scouting skills, and to complete many community projects.

The troop wants to thank the community for coming out to support this event and extend to special thanks to our troop sponsor, the Nathaniel Blanchard American Legion Post. The Post has been Troop 58's sponsor for nearly 100 years. Troop 58 is grateful and honored for the Post's support over the years and for its help with this event every year.

This year Troop 58 also wants to express its gratitude to ShopRite for its very generous donation of food for this event. This contribution helped to make this 4th annual event the troops most successful Pancake Dinner to date. Thank you to everyone that participated. The troop is looking forward to the 5th annual Pancake Dinner next January; we hope the community is too.

Another round of tough budgeting will kick off in coming weeks

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem Central School District is projecting a deficit of nearly $4.4 million for the 2012-13 school year budget, even after factoring in the use of $1.75 million in reserve funds and a tax hike.

Under the state's tax cap law, the district would be able to raise the tax levy by 2.72 percent next year. To make a larger increase to the levy, 60 percent of voters would need to agree upon the rate instead of a simple majority.

The school district is projecting a tax levy increase of 2.72 percent into the budget gap figure.

School officials blamed unreliable state aid funding, contract and pension obligations and the newly implemented tax cap for the wide betterment of the whole community, not just for what we (the district) thinks it is. We need to all look at solutions together as a whole." - Superintendent Thomas Douglas

"The solution has to be for the budget gap. According to the Chief Business and Financial Officer Judith Kehoe, the district will need to make up the funds from non-mandate areas like staffing and program reductions.

our budget is from salary and fringe benefits,' she said, adding that additional cuts to staff will be exceptionally hard with the loss of nearly 60 positions over the last two school years.

The district would have to spend $91.5 million to maintain this year's programming in 2012-13, with approximately $22.29 million being provided in state aid as a conservative estimate.

Superintendent Thomas Douglas said the district lowered its expected state aid contribution for the 2012-2013 school, based on past years when district did not receive all of the promised aid. For the 2011-12 school year, $22.8 million in state aid was projected and only $22.2 million was received. For next school year, the Governor's Aid run is projecting around $22.7 million to go to BC, but a $22.3 million receipt is being planned for.

"It puts us in a better position if we project a more realistic estimate," Kehoe said.

Douglas said the projected state aid is nearly the same as that distributed five years ago, yet costs have risen and districts are facing additional unfunded mandates each year.

"We have to face that the federal and state cavalry is not coming," said Kehoe.

To keep the same level of services without reductions, the district would have to make a nearly 11 percent increase in the tax levy, which officials said would be an untenable request to residents in these hard economic times.

Douglas called the term "tax cap" a misnomer that can be misleading to residents since the levy can extend past a 2 percent increase.

"There is no such thing as a cap on taxes," he said, adding the district is now referring to the law as a "levy limit."

The Spotlight

"That's really the law. It decides what amount of voter support do you need for each levy that's put before the public," he said.

Numbers may change slightly as the formula evolves over time, but the district must have its numbers into the state by March 1.

Kehoe said some additional money could be found with the sale of the Educational Services Center. The district is also considering renting Clarksville Elementary School to the county Sheriff's Office.

"The solution has to be for the betterment of the whole community, not just for what we (the district) thinks it is," Douglas said. "We need to all look at solutions together as a whole."

A presentation of the budget will be given at the next Board of Education meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 15, and a budget forum will be held on Feb. 28. The board will adopt a budget in April and the public will vote on it in Mav.

Man to discuss Iceland trip

Long-time Bethlehem resident Richard Hartnett and his son Jeremy both had benchmark birthdays last May. They celebrated with a trip to Iceland, driven by an abiding curiosity about the country's geology.

That geology almost foiled their plans; Grimsvatn Volcano had erupted just three days before their flight. But the winds were favorable, and they were on their way to what Richard says is the most fantastic trip he has taken in many years.

Richard will share photos and anecdotes about that trip this Sunday, Feb. 12, at 2 p.m. A Q&A session will follow the program.

The elder Hartnett credits his parents with his interest in travel. By age 15, he had visited 48 U.S. states, Canada, Mexico, and pre-Castro Cuba.

Balling against bullying

Police officers, teachers to meet in charity game

By ALYSSA JUNG junga@spotlightnews.com

Southgate Elementary School teachers and Colonie police officers will face off on the basketball court on Friday, Feb. 10, to support community building and anti-bullying efforts.

"We organized this basketball game with the police department to extend our school community out into the public community," said MaryBeth Aldous, an art teacher.

Aldous has been instrumental in implementing and promoting the school's new Peaceable School Program, an initiative to bolster the school community and create an environment that discourages bullying.

"The premise behind the whole thing is to create a positive climate within our school community and foster the idea of being a school community," said Aldous. "We're really trying to make students aware of working positively with others and hoping that by creating those positive relationships with each other, we'll see a reduction with bullying that goes on in the school building.'

With the Dignity for

All Students Act set to go into effect in July (the New York State Legislature passed it in 2010 to protect students from harassment and bullying), Aldous said this school year was the perfect time for the elementary school to introduce its own parallel program.

"We want every student to feel really comfortable and positive when coming to school," said Aldous, adding there are about 450 students in the building.

Though still new, the Peaceable School Program already has a few components. Buddy classes are a mentor-like program where older students and younger students pair up to do activities like reading and math. Other projects are community servicefocused, like making Thanksgiving cards for Equinox or making Valentine's Day cards for a children's hospital.

"What we're hoping to see from that is a reduction in older students picking on younger students," said Aldous.

There are monthly activities, too, like wearing purple shirts once a month to create unity.

There's also a bus program where small groups of students organized by which bus they're on meet to talk about social issues and scenarios that can arise on the bus.

"How can we work through these problems? If you put 70 students on a bus and one bus driver, it's a little difficult to manage some behaviors on the bus," said Aldous. "Get students to take ownership of their behaviors and realize they always need to be positive and working together."

Aldous said with the school year just about half over, the program seems to be working.

"It seems to be ... effective. Our students have taken a liking to it," said Aldous. "Most recently ... each class was given a different project to do to help out the school, whether it was cleaning keyboards in the computer lab or cutting ribbons for our peace pole."

The program's early success is what prompted the charity basketball game, which will raise money to expand the program for next year.

"What we're finding this year is that we've really just scratched the surface on what we can do to help create a positive and peaceful environment," said Aldous. "Some of the things we'd like to do cost money and with times being what they are, we decided we'll try to fundraise to support our program."

Some things Aldous would like to add are getting students off school grounds and into the community more often and purchasing books to support a book group.

Aldous said partnering with the police department seemed to fit right in with the Peaceable School Program mission.

"A lot of the officers are in the building because they're DARE officers, so students know them and it'll be great to see teachers in a different light as well," said Aldous. "We'll have teachers acting as cheerleaders, an emcee for the night, running the concession stand."

The school will also unveil its mascot, Southgate gator.

The game will take place in the Shaker High School F gym at 7 p.m. Tickets are $3 per person or $8 per family.

Students and teachers take part in the Peaceable School Program activities.

Empire State Youth Orchestra to perform in Asia

Multinational trip announced at BC High School

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem Senior Eamonn O'Neill said he was excited to share the "global language of music" as he and other students in the Empire State Youth Orchestra prepare to travel to Asia this summer to perform.

The ESYO was invited to perform at the 2012 International Exposition in South Korea, the group announced on Tuesday, Jan. 31, at the Bethlehem Central High School. The trip will last two weeks and include seven performances in total two of which are in China.

"The orchestra will reach a worldwide audience and (the students will) be able to share their accomplishments and be ambassadors for the American culture," said ESYO Executive Director Susan Brome.

At the end of June, the full 96-piece ensemble consisting of music students from throughout the Capital District will head to Beijing to share patriotic favorites during an American Independence Day event. Next they will travel to Shanghai where a mix of European and American symphonies will be played.

The students will spend the most time in South Korea.

Along with performing at the International Exposition in the City of Yeosu, they will also perform at the U.S. Army's 8th Battalion Base in Seoul, at a local hospital and on South Korea's Sorok Island.

Helen Ch-Pyo, ESYO's music director and conductor, said the island was once used to isolate citizens afflicted with Hansen's disease, better known as leprosy, in the early 20th century. Some elderly patients still reside there and ESYO students were specifically asked to come perform.

"I want to go there and just for that moment let them forget what they've been through," said Bethlehem sophomore Aria Shi. "I want to give them a moment to live in the present."

Ch-Pyo said the first time the people of the island heard western music was in 2010 when members of the London Philharmonic performed for them is what was described as a "transformative experience." Only half of the orchestra will be able to perform since the island's hall isn't large enough for the full ensemble.

Proceeds from the ESYO concert in Seoul will benefit a history museum to be built on Sorok Island.

"Through our performance we will together hold hands to share their story with the rest of the world," said Ch-Pyo.

ESYO is now raising

"We will still be able to talk, just not with our voice, but with our music."

- Bethlehem Senior Eamonn O'Neill

money for the trip, which isn't cheap.

Without donations and sponsors, each student will need to pay $4,000 to make the trip. In addition to the 96 students, nearly two dozen chaperones are expected to attend. Brome said fundraising has already begun and several corporate sponsors have been found, but they are still nowhere close to their goal.

The majority of the needed funds will be put toward transportation, accommodations and tour guides to interpret for the group in both countries. The ESYO also has to rent instruments while in each country and pay for venue space at most locations.

Besides its annual gala and concert on March 10, the group has started an online fundraiser on the site kickstarter.com.

Brome said the site allows charitable groups to set a date by which to earn a certain amount of donations. If the group does not receive enough pledges to meet its goal by the deadline, those who pledge money are not charged.

The youth orchestra set a goal of $6,000 by Feb. 13 and half of that amount has been raised already.

All of the students are thrilled about the trip. Many have never left the country, let alone traveled to Asia.

Shi said she still has family in China, who may be able to attend the group's performances there.

"I'm excited to travel there, so they can see what I've been learning here," said the violinist.

O'Neill said he's a little scared because none of them know the language, but he's relying on music to help break the communication barrier.

"We will still be able to talk, just not with our voice, but with our music," he said.

marigold is a sign of grief and the Valentine's Day staple, a red rose, signifies true love.

Today, few people remember the flower language, but the tradition of giving them on days devoted to love is still popular. For most florists, this makes Valentine's Day the busiest day of the year.

"Obviously jewelry and candy are popular, great gift options, but flowers are more significant when you look at what they truly mean," said Frank Gallo Jr., owner of Frank Gallo and Son Florist based in Schenectady.

Although the symbolism of most flowers is lost on the typical customer, some hold special meanings for other reasons.

Tim Healy, a designer at the Posie Peddler in Saratoga Springs, said husbands often ask for the same flowers their wives carried on their wedding day, or an exotic flower that might hold special meaning for the couple.

"I would suggest ordering early if there's a certain flower you know they like," he said. "We usually have a huge variety, but just to make sure we can get it in."

But roses are still the most popular order, by far.

According to Gallo, about 17,000 roses are sold during the week of Valentine's Day in his three shops in the Capital District, compared to just 1,500 sold on a typical day.

Florists spend weeks to prepare for Valentine's Day by processing flowers, taking on extra staff and calling in special orders.

Katie Pietrykowski, the designer at Delmar Florist in Bethlehem, said the majority of customers on Valentine's Day continue to be men.

"It's one of the easier things for guys to pick out," she said, explaining almost 90 percent of customers on the day are men. "(Flowers) are a no brainer. They don't have to put a ton of thought into them and it's a nice gift."

Pietrykowski said when men are in doubt, they should leave choices up to the designer.

"We know what we're doing," she said.

Gallo and Healy agreed, but said purchases by women are on the rise.

"Women are becoming more proactive with buying flowers for men,"said

A foundation for success.

Florists spend weeks to prepare for Valentine's Day.

Gallo, adding many women also buy them for their mothers, sisters and other women in their life. But it's the men who are guilty of ordering at the last minute. The Schenectady-based florist said ordering in a timely fashion equals a better product. "My advice would be if you do order same day is to be flexible with your order," he suggested. "You might have heart set on a certain color but we might not have it any more. Let the designer take care of you. It will have the same quality still, not just exactly what you want."

Healy said the gift of flowers has stood the test of time, at least on the East Coast, because of February's seasonable weather.

"It's normally so cold and snowy. To have something that makes you think of spring is great," he said. "It's something living and beautiful right in front of you."

According to Healy, accessorizing floral arrangements is now in fashion. Feathers and Marcy Velte/Spotlight flowering branches are being added to orders, as are animal prints and "bling" like fake diamonds. Healy said special designs usually need to be asked for specifically, and customers should remember to mention any other gifts they may want to pair with the flowers, like balloons, candy, "It's normally so cold and snowy. To have something that makes you think of spring is great."

candles or stuffed animals.

"We like to be able to offer something different and more personal than what can be found in your typical supermarket," he said.

All three florists advised those looking to purchase flowers for Valentine's Day to work with a local, reputable floral business, rather than relying on a website or calling a 1-800 number.

"Those places can be problematic," said Gallo. "We can usually assure a better product."

A tale of two weddings

Valentine's nuptials mean trials, happiness for two area couples

By JOHN PURCELL purcellj@spotlightnews.com

No wedding ever goes off perfectly, and two area women will testify that basing nuptials around the most romantic day on the calendar doesn't help. But it doesn't preclude a lifetime of happiness.

Anne Simon, a Rotterdam resident, and her husband, Robert Vines, planned to get married in Virginia, but ended up at Rotterdam Town Hall in the wake of an ice storm.

Anne, now 65, and Robert, nearly 70 years old, had both worked at the New York State Library in Albany, but being in two different departments only allowed them to become

In 1982, the Chaisson family celebrated Patrick being awarded the rank of Eagle Scout, which his two younger brothers later achieved. acquaintances. Ending up in "The therapist said to us, 'You two got the brass ring," Anne said.

The couple decided to marry along with Anne's sister. The two weddings were set to take place in Virginia, with Anne's sister being married on Saturday, February 12, 1994, and Anne and Robert marrying on Valentine's Day two days later.

"We wanted to get married on Valentine's Day because Bob said he never wanted to forget our anniversary," Anne said.

The day Anne and Robert were set to board a plane for Virginia, a big ice storm was freezing their destination, along with Pennsylvania. A flight attendant told the couple they could fly them to Pittsburgh, Penn., but they'd be stranded once landing due to the storm. A Virginia wedding wouldn't be happening on V-Day.

"We figured we better not go," Anne said. "We had to do some last minute rearrangements."

In searching for a quick solution, she said she called Eunice Esposito, then Rotterdam town clerk, to try and arrange a special appointment for the couple to g e t t h e i r m a r r i a g e license. Esposito granted the expedited request, and the license was given on the Friday before the Monday wedding.

But they almost missed the appointment too, because Robert's daughter, Christy, got her car stuck in their snowy driveway. Christy was able to get the car out with little time to spare.

"Thanks to her, we were married on Valentine's Day at Town Hall with close local family members in attendance," Anne said. "All of us then went to Glen Sanders Mansion for a lovely dinner accompanied by romantic music played by a harpist."

She said having a Valentine's Day anniversary has the perk of restaurants already outfitted for a romantic dinner.

"For us it is doubly romantic 'cause it is our Robert Vines and Anne Simons celebrate Anne's retirement in December 2006. This year is the couple's 18th anniversary on Valentine's Day. Submitted photo wedding anniversary and Valentine's Day," she said. "Every year when you go out for your weeding anniversary on Valentine's Day they have the rose and musicians, it is already set up to be romantic." Valentine's Day also holds a special memory for Carole Chaisson of Scotia, even though she didn't marry her husband, Thomas, on the holiday.

The Scotia couple went to Village Hall on Valentine's Day and received an unexpected gift upon purchasing their marriage license.

"When we received our Valentine's Day marriage license, we also got a basket of goodies such as canned vegetables, packaged soup mix and one item we laughed about later — aspirin," Carole said.

Local buys can be combined for unique gift

Make a splash with your sweetheart with a basket of homegrown goodies

By JULIE CUSHINE-RIGG riggj@spotlightnews.com

What better way to show your sweetheart you care on Valentine's Day than through food, aromatic body products or jewelry?

While some might gift one or another to their significant other, putting them all together in a gift basket can make a gift greater than the sum of the parts. This is also the perfect way to price gifts within a budget, cater to any age and feel good about a purchase by staying local.

Local businesses to get foods (the feel good part) include the Honest Weight Food Cooperative (HWFC) on Central Avenue in Albany and online farmers market Farmiemarket.com. Jennifer Grainer of the HWFC said that this year they've got some great chocolate dipping demonstrations coming up – organic strawberries will likely be the recipients of the chocolate.

Specialty foods including artisan cheeses (blue, goat and sheep milk to name a few) along with crackers and produce such as pears or apples make for a nice combination. HWFC offers a tasting of cheeses, and prices range from only a few dollars for wedges of cheese. Grainer said many candy bars will be on sale during the month of February, which happens to be Healthy Heart Month, too.

Sarah Gordon-Avery operates three CSA groups, or Community Supported Agriculture, and she said they're great resources for finding local food items and other products. Heldeberg Market serves Albany and Saratoga Counties, Turning Point Market serves Saratoga and southern Washington Counties, and Uncle Sam's Farmer Stand serves Rensselaer County.

One can think of a CSA as an online marketplace residing at farmiemarket.com. The different categories of products can be browsed as one would aisles in a grocery store.

"We also have really nice cooking ingredients (olive oils, spices, garlic samplers, etc), gift certificates, alpaca wears and all kinds of great local foods to make a great gift," Gordon-Avery said.

Deliveries for the CSAs are weekly and can be brought to your door or a convenient area

Holiday candy demand goes beyond heart-shaped boxes

By ALYSSA JUNG junga@spotlightnews.com

Valentine's Day drums up visions of red heartshaped boxes, tied with a gold ribbon and filled to the brim with decadent chocolate candies. But for some candy shops across the Capital District, there's another Valentine's Day treat in higher demand.

"Chocolate dipped strawberries are our biggest seller," said Mike Martoccio, store manager at Krause's Candy on Central Avenue in Albany.

The berries come doused in milk, dark or white chocolate and can be mixed and matched in half-, 1- or 2-pound boxes. Martoccio said they can be ordered ahead of time but closer to the holiday it's first come, first serve in the store.

Chocolate covered strawberries are also a hit at Candy Kraft Candies in Guilderland.

"Milk chocolate is the most popular and in recent years dark has been catching up," said Brad Pikcilingis, manager and son of the owner. "We take orders ahead of time if they want to guarantee availability but we have them in stock. ... We've never run out."

The way Candy Kraft candymakers dip the strawberries is what sets them apart from other candy shops, said Pikcilingis.

"We take the hulls off and the stem out and dip the fat end of the berry so you can eat the whole thing," said Pikcilingis. "You get more chocolate and it's a nicer presentation."

The Candy Company hand-dipped chocolate them in from California," and not too expensive, only $14.99, so you can impress without breaking the bank," said Oesch. Twelve strawberries come in a box.

There are plenty of other chocolaty treats popular on the holiday of love. All three candy shops said they're known for their chocolates and truffles, which can be bought prepackaged or customized to order.

"The most popular is almond butter crunch, homemade toffee in milk or dark chocolate with roasted almonds on top," said Martoccio, adding Krause's assortment of truffles, creams, caramels and more interesting creations like potato chip clusters are also big sellers.

Krause's offers smaller heart-shaped boxes, a quarter pound, all the way up to 8-pound hearts for the serious sweet tooth.

At Candy Kraft Candies, it's all about the cream filled chocolates.

The store also has five different types of caramels, jellies, fudge, nuggets and lollipops in the shape of hearts, cherubs, teddy bears vou name it. Candies can be purchased in 2-ounce to 5-pound heart shaped boxes.

The Candy Company of Saratoga Springs is known for its fudge, said Oesch, and boasts 18 flavors.

"The most popular is chocolate peanut butter," said Oesch.

Chocolate covered pretzels are also a fun and unique twist on Valentine's Day candy.

"It's a giant pretzel with dark chocolate," said Oesch. "We sell tons of them.'

Each shop starts preparing for the holiday right after the Christmas season, whether it's ordering chocolate or preparing the molds.

"We use the highest quality chocolate, never skimp, it's always fresh cream and butter and a lot of taste testing to make sure the quality is always top notch," said Martoccio.

ichael Eck was playing punk rock when he first met Tom Layton. They later played in a rock band together.

These days, they've taken a step back from that scene.

Way back.

Eck and Layton are now the Lost Radio Rounders, playing music that stretches from the 1850s to the1950s. They perform a number of themed shows, including "Lincoln and Liberty," which showcases songs that were popular when Abraham Lincoln was alive. They'll put it on Sunday, Feb. 12, at the Guilderland Public Library at 2 p.m.

To be sure, the scene is different than the nightclubs and bars they played at when they were performing rock and roll. But Eck said the music has a "similar primal energy."

Punk rock, he said, is "very, very direct." It's often a few people gathered around a microphone, singing with great energy and emotion.

The kind of tunes the Lost Radio Rounders play tap into that same kind of expression. There are spirituals that slaves wrote. There are songs about the gold rush and westward expansion. There are numbers by American sailors written during the heyday of whaling.

Layton said the songs are fascinating just for their musical qualities, but he and Eck have always been drawn to the lyrics, too.

"We both have an interest in American history and music," Layton said. "We love the minutiae behind the songs. We just have this curiosity."

When they launched Lost Radio Rounders, they realized their success would hinge on finding people who shared that fascination. So they didn't go back to the bar circuit they knew in their previous incarnations. Instead, they approached women's clubs and senior groups. They played a lot of church events for singles. They went to libraries, museums and historical > associations. "We had the confidence that if we got in front of an audience, we could entertain them," Layton said.

"We'll have men come up after the show and say, 'My wife dragged me here, but you guys were great," Layton said.

Because the Lost Radio Rounders cover such a large time period, Layton and Eck both stressed that no two shows – even their themed shows – are ever the same. They choose 15 songs from their repertoire of 300 or so for each performance, which helps keep things fresh and interesting for them.

For the Lincoln show, there are several songs about the Civil War. But since the program centers on songs from Lincoln's lifetime, not specifically songs about Lincoln, it touches on some topics that, as Layton said, "Lincoln had absolutely nothing to do with," such as the Erie Canal.

One song that isn't about Lincoln but has a connection to him is "Blue Tail Fly," which was reportedly one of the president's favorite tunes. Eck said Lincoln used to walk around his family farm with a harmonica in his pocket, and he'd pull it out and play "Blue Tail Fly."

Weaving those kinds of stories into performances helps make Lincoln "a real person," Eck said.

He noted that he and Layton are not re-enactors, but their shows draw some people who are. Civil War scholars also turn out, but by and large, audiences are mostly made up of people who "just love to sing along," Eck said. "They get a kick out of that."

People might worry that they won't know any of the songs, but they'd be surprised, Layton said. The Lost Radio Rounders always include a song by Stephen Foster, who wrote "Camptown Races," "Oh, Susanna!" and "My Old Kentucky Home." One of the popular songs they do is called "Aura Lea," which was sung by soldiers in the Civil War. People who listen closely might recognize the melody, which was later used in "Love Me Tender" by Elvis Presley.

Layton said the shows incorporate humor and levity, and Eck said they're good for the whole family. Anyone who can't make the Guilderland show can check out the Lost Radio Rounders at the Voorheesville Public Library on March 18. That show will also stick to the "Lincoln and Liberty" theme, but the playlist and possibly even the instruments will differ. Eck said the duo uses all kinds of acoustic instruments: guitar, ukulele and mandolin among them.

"We bring a whole arsenal with us," he said.

If there's one thing people can expect, it's a good time. "We don't preach at you," Eck said. "We don't give you the entire history of the Civil War."

"There are beautiful songs. There are funny songs," Layton said. "It's good entertainment."

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

The current Elsmere Elementary playground has several safety issues.

time to get this done?" said Holstein.

The two women said according to their research, the lower playground is outdated and the tire swing is broken. The school district has roped off the swing so children won't use it.

Some equipment also does not meet current safety guidelines and recommendations, but was grandfathered in, according to PTA members. Some climbing equipment is placed close to retaining walls, for example, and some wooden retaining walls are rotten.

Also, only one play element is available for children with disabilities.

"It would be nice to see a more comprehensive play unit so those with disabilities can play side by side with other children," said Cohen.

The women have met with three playground manufacturers to obtain estimates and have plans to meet with Leathers Associates, the company that built the Playground's large wooden structure 20 years ago.

Design ideas for the proposed playground call

"Sometimes when we take (equipment) out of commission it stays out of commission because the district doesn't have the money to replace it." District Operations and Maintenance Director for one large play structure with multiple levels, two or three slides, a rock wall, another climbing element and some independent play options. The plan also calls for landscaping improvements and repairs to current equipment where needed.

For an entirely new playground the cost could run between $102,000 and $125,000, but if needed, new equipment could be integrated with the older equipment. If such a large amount of money could not be raised, the plan could be scaled back.

If the project is approved, the group would apply for grants as well as look for community support and hold independent fundraisers. The PTA would also ask for volunteers to aid in installing the playground to save money and would also be seeking donated services and materials, like cement and construction equipment.

"We have a vested interest in the project because our children will be in the system for the next 10 years," said Cohen, who has a first grader, a pre-kindergartener and a 2-year-old. Holstein has a second-grader, a kindergartener and two other children.

Gregg Nolte

Parents at the meeting were concerned about the immediate safety issues and what could be done to make improvements for the time being, since installation of the new equipment wouldn't happen until 2013, at the earliest.

District Operations and Maintenance Director Gregg Nolte said once equipment is donated it is up to the district to maintain it since it is on school property and liability for the playground also falls on the district's shoulders.

Each year, the district's maintenance team performs a full inspection of all playgrounds and makes minor repairs when needed. Nolte said if a piece of equipment it broken it is either removed from the playground or roped off so children are not injured.

Marcy Velte/Spotlight

"But sometimes when we take (equipment) out of commission it stays out of commission because the district doesn't have the money to replace it," he said.

Nolte said his department will work with parents who would like to make repairs themselves or donate new equipment.

"I wish I could provide this stuff out of my own budget, but it's hard," he said.

Parents at the meeting also wanted to make sure the trees are preserved during installation and the unique character of the playground is not compromised.

"We obviously want to maintain that warm, fuzzy feeling children get when going to the playground," said Cohen.

The proposal is scheduled to be voted on at the PTA's Feb. 7 meeting, but could be put off until March to allow for more input from the community.

"I think we are in a unique position to provide something for all of the children of Elsmere and all of the children of the community," said Holstein.

The entire presentation on the playground can be viewed on the Elsmere Elementary website.

wrote numerous letters in favor of keeping the post office, including Albany County Sheriff Craig Apple, who is in the midst of negotiations with the Bethlehem Central School District to lease the closed Clarksville Elementary School.

In the letter, Apple maintained that once the Sheriff's Office and Albany County Emergency Operations Center moved to the former Clarksville Elementary building, a post office would be needed in the vicinity. Apple said certified letters, packages, and "bulky mail" is sent from the office on a daily basis.

"The closing of the Clarksville Post Office would have an adverse impact on the Sheriff's Office, and might affect the Sheriff's Office's plans to locate its substation in Clarksville, to the detriment of the town," he wrote.

The Postal Regulatory Commission released a decision on Jan. 29, which said it did believe the Postal Service took some needed aspects into account, such as financial situation the and postmaster vacancy, but it did not adequately take into account the concerns of residents. The determination to close the location is now being reevaluated.

Marion said items will now be reviewed at the local level and at USPS headquarters, and the postal service is now waiting on additional guidance from the Postal Regulatory Committee. Under a congressional request, no locations slated for closure can be shut down until May 15 at the earliest.

Henner now believes it is likely the Postal Service will abandon their plans to close the Clarksville location.

"They would either have to supplement the record with what they believe to still be inefficient and start the process all over again, or they could just give up," he said.

Apple said he was happy to be a help to the community, but Henner explained he does not think the sheriff's letter is what tipped the decision in their favor.

"I think the Postal Regulatory Commission realized what the post office was doing was flat out wrong," he said.

Prayer

A Prayer: To the Blessed Virgin (Never known to fail)

Oh most beautiful flower of Mt. Carmel, fruitful vine, Splendor of Heaven, Blessed mother of the Son of God, Immaculate Virgin, assist me in my necessity. Oh Star of the Sea, help me and shelter me, herein you are my Mother. Oh, Holy Mary, Mother of God, Queen of heaven and earth! I humbly beseech you from the bottom of my hear to succor me in my necessity. (make request). There are none that can withstand you power. O Mary, conceived without sin, pray for us who have recourse to thee. (3 times). Holy Mary, I place this cause in your-hands. (3 times). Say this prayer for 3 consecutive days, then you must publish it and it will be granted to you. MAK

Be counted at bird count

A Great Backyard Bird Count will be conducted on Saturday, Feb. 18 from 9 to 10 a.m. at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation's Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar.

At this how-to program, participants, led by Center naturalists, will survey birds at bird feeders from the comfort of the indoor bird viewing lounge at Five Rivers and afterwards take a short walk along gentle terrain to survey birds outdoors. Participants will learn how fun and easy it is to conduct a Great Backyard Bird Count in their own backyard, neighborhood or park. The program, geared for the birding novice, is free of charge.

Snow big deal at Five Rivers

A field study of the ecological impacts of snow will be conducted on Saturday, Feb. 18, at 2 p.m. at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation's Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar.

A rich blanket of snow can either be a blessing or a curse for plants and animals. While snow may impede mobility and hide food sources, it can also provide protection for many species of plants and animals. On this outdoor foray, Center naturalists will search for signs of wildlife activity and discuss the impact of snow cover on various wildlife species of field and fen.

The program is open to the public free of charge. Participants are urged to dress for outdoor activity. In the event of severe weather, this program may be cancelled. Call the Center at 475-0291 for more information.

Peace group sets screening

The film "The War We Don't See" will be shown Thursday, Feb. 16, at 7 p.m., at Bethlehem Town Hall, 445 Delaware Ave, Delmar.

The War You Don't See (2010, 96 minutes) is a documentary film, directed by John Pilger. It is a powerful and timely investigation into the media's role in war. The War You Don't See traces the history of "embedded' and independent reporting from World War I to the destruction of Hiroshima, and from the invasion of Vietnam to the current war in Afghanistan.

As weapons and propaganda are ever more sophisticated, the very nature of war has developed into an 'electronic battlefield'.

"A masterful job of laying out the often willing collusion of the journalists with the governments ever-expanding spin empires," said Dr. John Jenks, Communication Arts and Sciences Dominican University. A discussion will follow the film, which is sponsored by Bethlehem Neighbors for Peace. For more information, call 466-1192.

stories, and the "Magic Box," a prize dispenser which gives each child a surprise in exchange for a swath of their hair at the end of the visit.

In the waiting area, children can enjoy the Snipits show featuring the cast of cartoon characters, and each cutting station includes an entertainment station featuring custom computer games and activities. A special chair for parents is also at each station so parents can be close by.

For special occasions, the Guilderland Snip-Its provides four different themed birthday packages, child spa services and also has its own line of all natural hair care products for kids to take home. experience "one of a kind." "There's just something special about when a child walks into the salon for the first time," she said. At a party, children get their hair done, have light makeup put on and can get dressed up in special costumes provided by the salon. At the "Hollywood Party," a child's picture is taken on the red carpet and at the "Rock Star Party," kids get to sing Karaoke. There is also a "Spa Party" and a "Glamour Party."

New Snip-Its stylist Marie Napoli said she is excited to be a part of the salon and what the brand stands for.

"I had a child last year and being new to being a mom, it's nice to have a place to bring a child because they don't always do great in the environment of a crazy salon," she said, adding how thankful she was for the additional training to work with special needs children.

As a stylist for nearly nine years, Napoli knew how difficult it could be for parent, stylist and a child with disabilities when they are wary of getting a haircut.

As part of the grand opening celebration, Guilderland Snip-Its will donate 15 percent of its proceeds to the Down Syndrome Aim High Resource Center. The funds raised will help provide services, resources and activities for members, including fundraising events, collateral materials, education and staffing.

"We're excited to introduce such a unique concept to this community and to be able to give back to an organization that has given our family so much," said Deitz.

YMCAs seek nominees for student and educator awards

The Guilderland and Bethlehem YMCAs are accepting applications for their 15th annual outstanding student and outstanding educator awards.

All students in grades 10 and 11 residing in the communities or attending school in Berne-Knox-Westerlo, Bethlehem, Guilderland, Ravena-Coeymans-Selkirk or Voorheesville are eligible to apply.

Students will be honored based on demonstrated leadership and dedication of service to their communities or schools, making responsible and positive choices even when negative peer pressure makes those choices difficult and exhibiting a character trait that embraces the values of all YMCAs nationally: caring, honest, respect and responsibility.

Applications are due at the Guilderland or Bethlehem YMCA on Friday, March 23. Stop by wither school guidance department or YMCA or contact Kyle Anderson, program director, at 456-3634 ext. 1151 for an application.

PUBLIC NOTICE Slingerlands Fire District 1520 New Scotland Road Slingerlands, New York

12159 The Slingerlands Fire District is requesting proposals from qualified consultants to prepare preconstruction hazardous materials survey for the existing Fire District facility located at 1520 New Scotland Road in Slingerlands New York. The Baseline Survey is a building-wide or facilitywide inspection that provides a general sense of the overall location, type, quantity, and condition of hazardous materials present including asbestos, lead and PCB's. It is thorough in that most accessible functional spaces are inspected and bulk samples taken of suspect materials observed. The baseline survey provides information for long-term management of asbestos-containing materials and prioritization of response actions. The pres-ence of hazards in suspect materials may be assumed or presumed in some cases without bulk samples being taken or analyzed. How ever, the baseline survey is unobtrusive in that samples are not taken where doing so would result in objectionable damage to surfaces or where institutional barriers preclude access. In a baseline survey, destructive testing is avoided. Posting of signs and labels required for compliance with OSHA regulations would use the information generated during a Baseline Survey.

Shen dominates Class I wrestling tournament

BC, Guilderland send grapplers into finals

By ROB JONAS jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Shenendehowa continued its dominance on the wrestling mat at Saturday's Section II Class I Championships at Colonie Central High School.

their weight classes to help Shen breeze past the competition. The Plainsmen finished with 314 points, nearly 87 points ahead of runner-up Columbia.

"Everybody wrestled well," said Shen coach Rob Weeks. "We placed 14 out of 15 (wrestlers)."

Almost all of the 15 weight classes were won by either Shen or Columbia wrestlers. Colonie's Josh Fuchs was the lone exception, as he posted a 10-5 victory over Shen's Ali Hashimee in the 160-pound final.

"He wrestled well," said of Fuchs. "He turned it on in the third period."

Fuchs said he was inspired by watching his teammates, Phil Bazacki (145) and Eli Cooks (152), lose in close finals against Columbia stars Evan Wallace and Angelo Kress. Wallace pulled out a 5-1 victory over Bazacki, while Kress needed double overtime to edge Cooks 4-2.

"They faced two very Nine Plainsmen won hard kids, but I know they both tried very hard," said Fuchs.

"Phil (Bazacki) wrestled much better than he did in the dual meet (against Columbia), when he was pinned in the first period (by Wallace)," said Stein. "And Cooks ... it was anybody's match. He just came out on the short end."

Shen began the championship round with three straight victories. Kevin Parker edged Guilderland's Josh LoGuidice 5-3 for the 99-pound division title, while Corey Ali shut out Saratoga's Dominc Inzana 7-0 in the 106-pound final. Colonie coach Matt Stein Jesse Porter completed the run by pulling out a 6-4 finals today." victory over Bethlehem's Matt Morris for the 113-pound division title.

Columbia's Greene brothers – Kyle and Matt - turned in victories in the next two weight classes. Kyle Greene (120 pounds) rallied from an early 2-0 deficit to defeat Shen's Zach Joseph 7-2, and Matt Greene (126) needed 1:34 to pin Saratoga's Hunter Rumpf.

Shen stars Nick Kelley and David Almaviva had little trouble in their championship bouts. Kelley eased past Columbia's Brendan Morgan 10-3 for the 132-pound title, while Almaviva scored a third period technical fall against Bethlehem's Sean Romanski.

"Both Sean (Romanski) and Matt (Morris) had great years and beat quality people," said Bethlehem coach Chris Braga. "They Levi Ashley, Tony Fusco and Will Mars also won their respective finals for Shen. Ashley (182 pounds) dominated Saratoga's Nick Gibbons 13-4, while Fusco (195) scored all of his points in the second and third periods on his way to an 8-2 victory over Guilderland's Jimmy McLaughlin.

"He (McLaughlin) was a good kid and a good wrestler. He just didn't do too much out there," said Fusco. "But, I have to learn how to deal with that and overcome it.'

Mars used a two-point reversal early in the second period to take a 2-0 lead on his way to a 4-1 victory over Guilderland's Michael McGill in the 220-pound final.

"He wasn't even in the (varsity) lineup a week ago, so for him to come from almost not being in deserved to be here in the the lineup to winning the tournament was great," Weeks said of Mars.

Shen heavyweight Cole Lampman received a forfeit to win the 285-pound title and cap the Plainsmen's dominating performance.

Those who placed at Saturday's Class I tournament advance to next weekend's Section II Championships at the Glens Falls Civic Center, where they will have a shot at qualifying for the state Division I (large school) tournament at Albany's Times Union Center.

Final team standings: Shen 314, Columbia 227.5, Colonie 174.5, Guilderland 130.5, Saratoga 120, Ballston Spa 101.5, Bethlehem 76.5, Shaker 61.5, Albany 44, Niskayuna 42, Schenectady 25 his helmet to make the catch. Manning dropped the ball into Manningham's hands with nary a wobble.

And how about Hakeem Nicks? Niskayuna sports agent JR Rickert's most famous client led all receivers in the Super Bowl with 10 catches for 109 yards. He may not have caught a touchdown pass, but Nicks came up big time and again when Manning looked his way.

Meanwhile, New England quarterback Tom Brady had some issues with his receivers down the stretch. Wes Welker couldn't reach what could have been a title-clinching catch with four minutes left in the fourth guarter (it certainly would have been a first down inside Giants territory). Deion Branch and Aaron Hernandez also had critical drops as the Patriots tried to score the go-ahead touchdown in the final 57 seconds.

Brady didn't do himself any favors in the fourth quarter. His deep throw to Rob Gronkowski came up a few inches short, which was enough for Chase Blackburn to step in front of "Gronk" and make an interception inside the Giants' 15-yard line. Maybe a healthy Gronkowski (he was hobbled by a high ankle sprain) would have done something to either catch the ball or at least prevent the interception, but the point is that Brady made an uncharacteristic error.

In reality, though, this game was about Manning creating his own legacy in the NFL. Despite having already won one Super Bowl (against the Patriots) no less), Eli was considered in most circles to be a lesser signal caller than his older brother, Peyton. He was coming off a 2010 season in which he threw nearly as many interceptions (25) as touchdowns (31). He failed to make the playoffs for three consecutive years entering this season. He was dangerously close to being considered "the other quarterback" in New York after Mark Sanchez helped the Jets reach two straight AFC Championship games.

But Manning backed up his words with a career year. He threw for 4,933 yards and 29 touchdowns in the regular season, and then he led the Giants through road playoff wins against Green Bay and San Francisco to get them to the Super Bowl, where he threw for 296 yards and a touchdown.

And the best part is, area sports fans will get to see Manning and the rest of the 2012 New York Giants up close this summer at UAlbany. That should make our summer a little more interesting than last summer.

Don't forget to follow me on Twitter @jonas_spotlight. I'll be revealing the subject of this week's spotlightnews.com poll Wednesday at 4 p.m. for our Albany County readers and against Thursday at 4 p.m. for our Schenectady and Saratoga County readers.

"Offensively, we didn't use our screeners like we needed to," said a frustrated Guilderland coach Frank Cacckello. We were waiting too long to shoot or get the ball inside, and then we were forced to take a long shot. Give full credit to their defense. Our inability to scored had to do with what Bethlehem did, so give full credit to their defense. We didn't meet the challenge."

Caccckello's disappointment may have been a result of his team coming into the game with a three game winning streak, which were all road games.

"Their (Bethlehem's) defense denied us to initiate our offense, especially on the wings" said Guilderland pointguard Briana Beaver-Timmons. "We didn't move the ball well and spent too much time trying to pass it around. Then defensively, we didn't have enough energy to stop their offense."

Freshman Gabby Giacone scored 14 points and added eight rebounds.

"This was a big game and we wanted to win badly," said the 5-foot-11 forward. "This was one of the best defensive games we played all year. We started in a zone, and then went to man. We closed out on their shooters, and that was the difference.'

Guilderland was led by seniors Amanda Kernozek and Cristal Bentron, who contributed nine points apiece.

Bethlehem will be looking to avenge a twopoint loss to Colonie when the two teams meet Tuesday night.

Evan Van Epps gave CBA (9-7-0, 9-10-1) a 1-0 lead early in the first period, but Jon Clark responded with a goal to tie the game at 1. Andrew Carroll then struck for two of his game-high three goals later in the opening stanza to put Bethlehem in front to stay.

Kyle Stockman stopped 24 shots for the Brothers.

Meanwhile, N/S is off until Friday when it travels to Hudson Valley Community College to face LaSalle.

"We've certainly played a lot better over the last month," Templeton said of his Mohawks, who had won four of their previous five games before losing to Bethlehem. "It would be nice if I could get the whole team on the ice again. We had a kid miss tonight's game because he was sick.'

One goal is all Eagles need

BC wins battle with hot goalie to get on track

By ROB JONAS jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Sometimes, one goal is all you need. And sometimes, one goal is all you get.

Such was the case last Friday at the Bethlehem Area YMCA, where Bethlehem made a firstperiod goal stand in a 1-0 Capital District High School Hockey League victory over Niskayuna/ Schenectady.

N/S goaltender Peter Mrazik stopped 27 of the 28 shots he faced, but he received little offensive support from the Mohawks (6-5-0 league, 8-10-0 overall), who managed only nine shots on goal.

"That goalie played well," said Bethlehem coach Andre Rodrigue. "It was a tight one."

Jon Clark's goal with 4:09 left in the opening period was all that Mrazik allowed, and even that was questionable as the puck barely cleared the goal line before Mrazik swiped it out.

"I wasn't even sure the first one went in," said $\rm N/S$ coach Todd Templeton. "He (Mrazik) kept us in the game the whole time."

"I said, 'She's a beaut, Clark," Rodrigue said of Clark's first goal of the season.

Mrazik remained in his groove and kept Bethlehem (9-3-0, 14-5-0) off the scoreboard the rest of the game, despite facing near-constant pressure at times.

"We knew we had to keep the pressure on," said Rodrigue. "It was a one-goal game, and one goal at any time could have tied it."

Bethlehem goaltender Kevin Cooley didn't see as much action as Mrazik did, but the junior made the saves when he needed to in posting his fifth win of the season and his first shutout.

"Statistically speaking, it says he only made nine saves, but he made a couple of key saves to keep us ahead," said Rodrigue.

"We played much better in the second and third periods, but we didn't get anything by (Cooley)," said Templeton.

Bethlehem followed up its one-goal victory over N/S by beating Christian

Lady Eagles pull away

Big changes are coming to the sports section here beginning next week. No, they don't involve me. It's all about appearance. You'll see what I mean when you read next week's column.

As for now, area New York Giants fans are likely making room in their scrapbooks and memorabilia shelves for all of the autographed Super Bowl XLVI items they may be getting this summer.

Although nothing is official, the newly-crowned NFL

Lady Eagles pull away from Guilderland on Senior Night

By MAUREEN KELLY news@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem and Guilderland girls basketball teams entered Friday night's Suburban Council matchup with identical league records of 6-6 and in a deadlock for third place in the South Division.

But for the second time this season, the Eagles posted a convincing victory over the visiting Lady Dutch. Friday's 52-35 drubbing moves Bethlehem into third place behind Calonia and Avorill Bark champions are scheduled to return to the region this summer for training camp at the University at Albany.

As you may remember, the Giants didn't train at UAlbany last summer because the NFL lockout ended too late for the team to make all the necessary arrangements to come up here for camp. But part-owner John Mara said at the time that the team was planning on honoring the final year of its three-year agreement with the SUNY school in 2012.

So as long as the Giants honor that pact (and nothing suggests that they won't do so), we will see the defending champions up close and personal this summer. Granted, they probably won't do anything nearly as exciting as they did Sunday against the New England Patriots, but we'll have daily access to the players that other Giants fans could only dream of.

As for the champs, I have to hand it to Eli Manning. He said before the season began that he considered himself an elite quarterback in the NFL, and he proved it by guiding the Giants on the game-winning drive late in the fourth quarter. His sideline pass to Mario Manningham will go down in Super Bowl history as one of the greatest plays. And unlike David Tyree four years earlier, Manningham didn't need to pin the football to behind Colonie and Averill Park.

"I am very pleased with our effort tonight," said Bethlehem coach Matthew Bixby, whose team defeated Guilderland by 10 points in early December. "It's always tough to beat a team twice. We played extremely well and intelligent. This may have been our best defensive performance all year."

Guilderland managed just 13 points the first half, as Bethlehem pulled away to an eight-point halftime lead on Senior Night.

"They (Guilderland) earned every point they scored," Bixby said. "They didn't have many open looks, but when the shots were there they knocked them down."

Guilderland got out to an 8-3 lead with 3:12 remaining in the opening quarter before Bethlehem woke up. The Eagles scored the final eight points of the period, and then held the Lady Dutch to just one field goal and three free-throws in the second quarter to grab a 22-13 halftime lead.
