Residents bemoan lack of progress at community forum

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

Three years after Selkirk residents got a visit from then-Bethlehem Supervisor Sam Messina, many of the same issues were the subjects of a recent community forum held by Supervisor John Clarkson.

The first meeting in what is to be a series of community forums was held on Tuesday, Jan. 29, at Selkirk Fire Station No. 1 on Maple Avenue. The event was standing room only, with about 50 people in attendance.

Town officials and staff members took questions from the crowd before presenting the progress of various projects that have stalled in the area. Topics ranged from the installation and repair of sidewalks, creation of the Clapper Road/ Thruway Interchange Concept Plan or "the Selkirk Bypass project"

Local florists say (color and variety add a fun twist to Valentine's Day

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

Although red roses continue to be a top seller on Valentine's Day, some florists have noticed more women are looking for something a little less traditional on the annual day of love.

"We've seen the trend moving away from roses because I think women are looking for something a little different," said Debora Converse, designer at Dehn's Flowers and Greenhouses in Ballston Spa. "We're doing a lot more mixed floral arrangements."

Converse said she doesn't know why the change has taken place.

Town seeks new justice

Untimely death of Mark Jordan leaves empty seat on bench

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem Town Board is seeking candidates for an open position on the bench following the untimely death of Town Justice Mark Jordan.

The town is now looking for qualified individuals to serve as town justice for the remainder of the year. The board is asking those who wish to apply to submit applications so they can go through an interview process.

"We're trying to maintain a balance of being respectful towards the family and prioritizing the needs of the town," said Supervisor John Clarkson.

Jordan, 50, died Friday, Jan. 25, at Albany Medical Center after suffering a sudden brain aneurysm several days earlier.

Clarkson said the process would be similar to that undertaken in the appointment of George Lenhardt to the Town Board last year, when Jordan left the board for the bench partway through his term. The board is again looking for someone who does not plan to run to keep the position in the 2013 election.

Anti-war movement marks 10 years

Bethlehem Neighbors for Peace continue work with renewed focus

> By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

Ten years after their first gathering, a local anti-war group is still meeting each week to spread their massage of

On Monday, Jan. 28, members of the Bethlehem Neighbors for Peace organization marked their 10th anniversary by meeting at Delmar's Four Corners and holding a short vigil. Despite the landmark, it was a typical Monday for the group's members since 2003, they have held approximately 500 vigils calling for an end to war throughout the world.

"I think we have made a big difference in our community," said member Trudy Quaif, who was first encouraged to join the group by her son. "We've gained a lot of support and the community is a lot more aware of the injustices other people face in the world."

Bethlehem Neighbors for Peace originally came into being shortly after a 2003 fasting rally organized by the local Women Against War chapter. A month later, the newly formed Neighbors for Peace group would be a small part of a coordinated worldwide rally protesting the war in Iraq.

One of BNP's first locally orchestrated events was a candlelight vigil during which 350 people walked from the Four Corners, past Bethlehem Town Hall and back again. The group has continued to hold a similar event each Monday since that time.

Over its decade in existence, the group has grown to more than 700 members.

"I think we were kind of naïve in the beginning, in that we wanted to end the war in the Middle East and we really thought we could if we had enough people behind us," said Quaif.

She said although peace throughout the world continues to be a goal, the group now focuses on educating the community about current affairs by holding forums, vigils and small discussion groups. Members also participate in demonstrations and hand out printed information to residents.

BNP member Joseph Lombardo, who is also part of the United National Anti-War Coalition, said although membership remains high, regular participation in events and vigils has diminished over time.

"There was a lot of sentiment to protest against that war at the time," he said. "At first we had large meetings with large groups of people attending. We are now a smaller group, but we've gained a lot of experience."

He said although participation has shrunk, he believes sentiment for the Neighbors' cause has grown. The group has also established partnerships with other anti-war associations.

"Worldwide peace is not something Bethlehem can do alone," Lombardo

Quaif and Lombardo said although the wars in Iraq and Afghanistan are ending, the work being done by their group will not.

"If anything, we're looking to expand our scope," said Quaif.

on stopping war, but many members are also taking up social justice issues, like veteran and immigration affairs. They are also becoming involved in the issue of horizontal hydraulic fracturing within

"It's becoming increasingly obviously that the priorities in our country need to change," Quaif said.

Lombardo said he feels the group's presence in the community has been a positive for residents, and there is still a need for the Bethlehem Neighbors for Peace to continue on with their cause.

"The United States still has troops in 120 countries around the world and war takes up 59 percent of our budget." he said. "There's still lot of work for the anti-war movement to do and we're going to keep on going.'

Crosswalk an issue for students

Town and school district seek safety improvements

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem officials recently met with parents and staff of Elsmere Elementary School to discuss how to make the walk to school safer for students.

On Thursday, Jan. 31, Bethlehem Supervisor John Clarkson attended a meeting to discuss possible safety modifications to the crosswalk across Delaware Avenue in front of Elsmere Elementary. He invited Police Chief Louis Corsi, highway staff, members of the town Bicycle and Pedestrian Committee and members of the town's planning department. Also in attendance to speak with parents were school crossing guards Mary Root and Isabel Glastetter, along with Elsmere Principal Kate Kloss.

"Although I'm no traffic expert, from my personal knowledge of this intersection the situation here seems like a real safety issue," said Clarkson.

Root and Glastetter said during the winter months, about 10 students make use of the crosswalk cutting across four lanes of traffic, while about 30 make the walk home. That number dramatically increases during the warmer months. The two crossing guards said the main problem is usually getting drivers to stop or slow down during the morning hours.

"Drivers are oblivious." said Root. "Yesterday, we had a car come up onto the sidewalk and we were almost hit."

Clarkson said some of the stories he's heard are "bloodcurdling."

Throughout the meeting, parents and town staff brainstormed the type of changes they would like to see made to improve safety. Ideas included further reducing the speed limit within the school zone (it stands at 30 mph, down from Delaware Avenue's 40 mph), placing lighted beacons on signs near the crosswalks to increase visibility for drivers and possibly changing where students walk up to the intersection so it is not in the middle of the road.

Delaware Avenue, along with all of the major roads in town, is state owned. Clarkson said for any changes to be made, the town will need to partner with the Department of Transportation to make improvements. He also said there would need to be some work on the part of the Bethlehem Central School District and parents to help advocate for the changes.

Clarkson and some parents said better enforcement of the laws could help slow down

Root and Glastetter said the presence of a police officer does help, but they are sometimes ignored. The police force is also unable to continually keep an officer stationed at each crosswalk.

Corsi said police records show over the past five years, about 17 accidents have occured in the proximity of the Delaware crosswalk, none of them with personal injuries. Most destruction is property damage caused by vehicles rearending each other.

The police chief volunteered to have officers visit the schools to hold a program for students about safely walking to school. Members of the Bicycle and Pedestrian Committee also volunteered to pass out information to remind drivers and pedestrians about the rules of crosswalks.

The meeting ended with a decision to petition the state DOT to do a feasibility study to see what changes it recommends, if any. Any improvements, such as new signs or lighting, would then need to be paid for by the town once it receives permission to make the changes.

"This is going to take time, so we ask for your patience," Clarkson said.

Town officials, along with parents and staff of Elsmere Elementary, met to discuss crosswalk safety improvements for students.

Young driver in hit-andrun enters guilty plea lan Eckardt-Rigberg of Delmar faces three to 10 years for hit-and-run last year

By MARCY VELTE veltem@spotlightnews.com

A Delmar motorist who killed a pedestrian during a hit-and-run accident last February has entered a guilty plea.

Ian Eckardt-Rigberg, 20, pleaded guilty Friday, Feb. 1, in an Albany County Court to manslaughter in the second degree and leaving the scene of an accident, both felonies. He faces three to 10 years in state prison, in addition to a concurrent term of two to six years. He was scheduled to be sentenced in March.

Eckardt-Rigberg, of

93 Fernbank Ave., was charged in connection with the accident that killed Rozell Whitehead on Saturday, Feb. 25, 2012. He was previously released on $75,000 bail after a hearing was requested by his lawyer last March.

A teenager at the time of the accident, Eckardt-Rigberg was not granted bail after his first arraignment and spent several days in jail before being released.

Whitehead, 53, was killed while crossing Henry Johnson

Boulevard near the intersection of Third Street in the City of Albany. He was struck by a 2007 Toyota Avalon being driven by Eckhardt-Rigberg at around 7 p.m.

> After being struck, Whitehead was thrown up onto the hood of the car and hit the windshield before hitting the pavement.

Не transported to Albany Medical Center, where he was pronounced dead of multiple internal injuries.

State Police had seen the car speeding at 75 mph in a 55 mph zone and were pursuing the car on Interstate 90 when it took the Ext 6 off-ramp. State Police decided the car was too far ahead and broke off the chase. The car struck Whitehead shortly thereafter.

The patrol car had its emergency lights activated during the pursuit, according to police.

Albany police said Eckardt-Rigberg did not stop after hitting Whitehead and continued south on Henry Johnson. Eckardt-

Rigberg appeared at the Bethlehem Police Station shortly afterwards to report an accident, and police determined he

Matters of Opinion in The Spotlight

We're moving!

Spotlight Newspapers will be relocating come March.

The paper is moving its operations a short distance to 341 Delaware Ave. in Delmar. The offices were most recently home to Apollo Heating and Cooling, and are currently being renovated to fit the paper's needs.

The location is a stone's throw from Delmar's Four Corners, and on a busy thoroughfare traveled by thousands every day. The paper's owners made it a point to find suitable offices within the Town of Bethlehem, which has been the paper's home for its 57 years in business.

The decision to move was predicated by a decision by the paper's landlord to put up for sale the paper's current offices at 125 Adams St. in Delmar.

While the impending sale was the immediate factor, the move will also give Spotlight Newspapers the opportunity to occupy a space better suited to its needs. Since Spotlight Newspapers first occupied its current offices decades ago, the paper, the print industry and the business environment in general have undergone dramatic changes.

"At one point, we had a print shop in the back and a consignment shop in the front," said Publisher John McIntyre. "The space is not really conducive to our needs anymore."

The Spotlight, like many other weeklies, now goes off site for printing of its five weekly papers covering the Capital District; two monthly publications focusing on parent and senior issues; and a variety of special supplements.

There will be no interruption in the paper's operations or publishing schedule due to the move.

"Though making a big change in a deadline-oriented business is always a challenge, we are excited to open this new chapter in The Spotlight's long history," McIntyre said. "We look forward to continuing to serve our readers and customers from our new home."

Spotlight Newspapers may still be reached by mail at P.O. Nursing home deal must be made

By DAN McCOY

The author is the Albany County executive.

As the County Legislature begins its deliberations on the lease agreement between the county and the Upstate Services Group (USG) for the operation of the Albany County Nursing Home, I wanted to provide some detail on what my office is doing to bring all the facts to light when it comes to the nursing home.

Over the past few years, I have spent a significant amount of time discussing the future of the nursing home with the public, legislators and the media. I have worked with legislative leaders Chairman Shawn Morse, Majority Leader Frank Commisso and Minority Leader Christine Benedict to ensure that we are protecting our seniors, our taxpayers and accepting financial responsibility as we consider this agreement with USG. I have made it clear that the lease agreement ensures that the nursing home will continue to serve the current patients and carry out existing admission policies, which means the facility will continue to serve as a safety net for our

In my view, moving forward with USG as the operator gives us an opportunity keep the facility open and to undertake some capital improvements that are needed.

It goes without saying that the patients at the nursing home are well cared for by the staff at the nursing home, and that will continue with USG as the operator. However, the facility's infrastructure badly needs repair. For the last two years, our budget planning has been hampered by trying to mitigate the impact of mandates, reductions in reimbursements from the state and federal government and costs that are beyond our control. Despite our best efforts, the nursing home continues to negatively impact county finances, with a deficit of $7 to $9 million annually. At a time of fiscal uncertainty, this has proven to be problematic for the county and for taxpayers. For the past two years, the county has been unable to craft a budget that would be under the 2 percent property tax cap. Simply said, costs are increasing too rapidly for us to keep up. We need a solution to this problem now.

That is why I support moving forward with the lease agreement with USG to take over operations of the nursing home. From the beginning of the process, I have been committed to working with the legislature to ensure we protect seniors and the taxpayers, and that we finally accept responsibility for the nursing home by recognizing that the economic realities of running this facility are untenable.

We have explored other options, and we have not been successful. It is time for us to move forward to ensure that the patients and taxpayers are protected.

Our agreement with USG does that and more.

In order to ensure that the process was conducted openly and with transparency, we held five open forums with county legislators. While not all of them chose to attend the sessions, I believe that it was my duty to bring the stakeholders together to discuss the nursing home. Before the first session was held, I provided a copy of the agreement to the leadership and the legislators, which is something that has not been done in the past. I did that to facilitate a thorough review of the agreement while providing an opportunity for the legislators to ask questions about the agreement.

The days of putting tough decisions off until tomorrow are over. We cannot defer moving forward on this plan. Too much depends on it. We have to do what is right, for the nursing home patients, their families and for the 300,000 residents of Albany County.

the sidewalk. Not having the crossing would mean liability issues for the town. The estimated cost for the crossing was $1 million in 2007. Today, the cost of the crossing and sidewalk installation is about $750,000, but that is still considered to be too costly for the town.

"For the town, without receiving any additional aid, that's a very hard number to hit," said Clarkson. King said state and federal grants for sidewalks are extremely limited.

Residents asked if CSX could help pay for the project, but a definitive answer was never given. Company officials said they would work with both the town and the Department of Transportation to plead the need for the crossing.

Some residents said they felt projects in Delmar are being placed before those in Selkirk. Clarkson in his recent State of the Town address announced his administration would push ahead plans to improve the Delaware Avenue streetscape in Delmar including the building of sidewalks — and build sidewalks along Feura Bush Road. Taken together, those initiatives are estimated to cost more than $2.3 million.

"We want and need a sidewalk," said resident Faith Fuller. "I've lived here 30 years and I keep harping on the same thing. I've talked to my neighbors and they keep harping on the same thing. Please do something. Put something in the right direction so we know you're just as concerned about this as we are.'

Resident Mike Rudolph agreed, adding he feels the town is taking the taxes of those in Selkirk, who get nothing in return. He called for deadlines to be set and for town officials to come back and report on the progress being made on the project.

"I'm asking you, Mr. Supervisor, do the job and get it done," he said.

Clarkson promised to not let the issue drop, but added that does not mean the project would be finished within the next year.

Bethlehem Director of Economic Development and Planning Michael Morelli also gave a short presentation on the Selkirk Bypass. He said the town is looking into the project once again because the government may pull back the $7 million grant the town received several years ago for its creation.

Previous proposals had failed because residents didn't like the route suggested because it would bring trucks off the main roads and closer to their homes. The plan would also disrupt traffic patterns.

Morelli said they are once again looking for feedback from residents to move the project forward.

Also at the meeting were representatives from

CSX Transportation, who addressed concerns from residents that have cropped up since the company's Selkirk site expanded several years ago.

Maurice O'Connell, vice president of Government Relations for CSX, said the Selkirk site is one of the most important rail hubs for the company, with 70 trains a day passing the area.

"Over the last 10 years, I think we can safely say the railroad has experienced a renaissance," he said. "There's a big interest in getting truck traffic off the highways and onto the railroad for a number of reasons. One being we are the most efficient way to move goods on land."

He said one train removes about 280 trucks off the highway and one ton of freight can be moved 450 miles on one gallon of fuel.

Residents raised concerns ranging from noise, the idling of trains close to homes, the volume of trains entering the yard and increased road traffic as the volume of trucks in the area picking up and dropping off supplies has increased.

O'Connell said a plan is still on the table to create a separate train bypass to allow trains that don't need to stop to move quickly through the area. Those discussions are ongoing.

As far as noise, O'Connell said it is a state safety regulation for all trains to blown their horns at rail crossings. The town can file with the federal government to have a study performed so the area can become a quiet zone. Officials said the company is working to reduce other noise coming from the yard such as the loading of trains and mechanical work and is also looking to reduce the idling of trains in the area because that also is costly.

Clarkson said he felt the meeting was a success. Additional forums will be scheduled in the near future, with the next targeted for North Bethlehem.

Thanks for supporting holiday program

Editor, The Spotlight:

On behalf of Bethlehem Central School District's Holiday Caring and Sharing Program, we would like to thank the many sponsors for their contributions in making this year's Program a tremendous success! Due to the generosity and commitment of each of the following individuals and organizations over 300 children received food and gifts this Holiday Season.

We would like to acknowledge the following community sponsors:

Bethlehem Central Middle School PTA Bethlehem Democratic Committee; Bethlehem Families II; Bethlehem Lutheran Church; Bethlehem Police Benevolent Association: Bethlehem Preschool Inc.; Dr. and Mrs. Peter Burkart; Choices Hair Studio; Clarksville Community Church; Cindy Daley & Family; Delmar Crafters; Delmar Reformed Church; Delmar Rotary; Fritts & Lachapelle: Glenmont Community Church;

Hamagrael PTA; The Hedderman Family; Hornick & Campbell; The Keezer Family & Friends; Keystone Architectural Services; Dr. & Mrs. Michael Lipnick; The Meckler Family; Mr. & Mrs. Harrie Patrick; Realty USA; Sabic; Security Supply Corporation; Slingerlands Elementary PTA; St. Thomas Church; Vintage Merlots' Red Hatters; The Walters Family; and, the Bethlehem YMCA.

We would also like to acknowledge the following Bethlehem Central School District sponsors for their substantial involvement in this year's Program:

The BCSD Administration; High School Guidance & Support Staff; Middle School Secretaries; Operation & Maintenance Staff; Transportation Staff; The Faculty, Students, and Staff of the High School, Middle School, Eagle, Elsmere, Glenmont, Hamagrael, and Slingerlands Elementary Schools; and, The Riegel All-stars at Eagle Elementary.

And, lastly it should be noted that the Holiday Caring and Sharing Program would not exist without the dedicated work of our District School Nurses: Stacie Decker, Kathy Betzhold, Molly Fusco, Monica Vail, Francie Gransbury, Annmarie Marsh, Beth Callahan, Laura Collier, and Mary Ann Bruno; our High School Guidance Counselors Scott Carlton, Kate Burkart, Rvan St. John, Lisa Carr, and Deb Zeh. Each of these individuals invested much time and effort in working with students and families in a confidential and uplifting manner; as well as working with the students and staff in their buildings to support the school-wide food drives.

A special note of appreciation goes to Nan $Lanahan; and, \bar{t}he\, staff\, at\, the$ Town of Bethlehem's Office of Parks and Recreation, for their continued support in accommodating our District's Holiday Program. Their graciousness and assistance to our staff and community members was very much appreciated. We would also like to extend a sincere thanks to the Bethlehem Community Fund, (formerly The Bethlehem Festival Fund), for continuing to generously provide turkevs for all of the families in the Holiday Caring and Sharing Program.

We would like to also acknowledge and thank Sandy Morley (retired BCMS Principal); Pat Burkart (retired BCMS nurse); and Kim Watson (BCMS Secretary). The food and gift distribution would not have happened without the tremendous assistance of Ron Shelmerdine and his staff, Tom Meyer, Rich Augar, and Joe Ryan, from BCSD's Operation and Maintenance Department: and Penny Palaygi (Elementary Guidance); and, Kim Panaro (BCMS Social Worker).

Rose

Janet Gough, owner of the Floral Garden in Delmar, said arrangements filled with tropical or spring-type flowers have become popular in recent years. These mixes often include roses, but are more colorful and use more greenery to accent the piece.

She said people like the spring look because, come Valentine's Day, most are sick of the cold and snow.

People want to be reminded of the warmer weather and ready for the season to change.

Lennon said she thinks roses have become a bit "ho hum."

"In my opinion I would go with some color, but there's that mindset and many have been programmed to go with red," she said. "But there's so many more flowers available then there were years ago that the combinations can be endless."

Lennon said stargazers with pink roses are gorgeous, gerbera daises are a favorite and calla lilies are popular. She also said that if someone is looking to buy roses but wants something unique, she recommends English garden roses.

"They are beautiful and keep their fragrance," she said. "They open and look like a peony. People get leery because of how far they open, but that's the beauty of them."

However, Lennon did caution that English garden roses cost about twice as much because they are in limited supply.

Gough said she thinks many will stick with the roses because they are scared their significant others will be let down if they don't receive them.

"All we can do is offer suggestions, but we'll do whatever the customer is looking for," Gough said.

Mark Felthousen, owner of Felthousen's Florist in Schenectady, had a different take.

'Some guys don't have specific ideas," he said. "They are just looking for something beautiful and for a certain value, and if they like what they see, they buy it."

Felthousen said the nice thing about going to a florist is the customer doesn't need to know a whole lot to get a nice gift. That is what the professionals are for.

"Wives just want to be remembered," he said. "We'll provide the ideas. Just don't forget and remember to order early."

If you have a small business and are looking for a place to showcase and sell your products, you should consider taking a table at the Guilderland Public Library's Spring Vendor Market on Saturday, March 2.

Large crowds have attended similar events at the library, among them "Baby Palooza, our "Garage Sales" and our periodic Better Books Sales. Many are so popular we have buyers lined up outside the door even before the event

Classical Choral Concert

Octavos Portativo, a smaller ensemble of the ever-popular Octavo Singers, will perform a choral concert at the Guilderland Public Library on Sunday, Feb. 10, at 2 p.m. This is a free performance open to all and is presented as part of the library's Second Sunday Concert Series.

Comprising 30 members, Octavos Portativo will sing I Believe, a composition of three different credos from the works of Gounod, Thompson, and Schubert, plus smaller pieces such as the Thompson Alleluia. Octavos Portativo performs concerts in smaller venues to provide a more intimate experience for its concert-goers. This performance will be led by the Director of the Octavo Singers, Curtis Funk.

This is the 80th season of a choral tradition that began during the Depression. The Octavo Singers began as a group that sang for their own enjoyment. After a time, they decided to give public concerts. As it was then, today all singers come from many different backgrounds. Some have professional vocal training, others do not. What they have always had in common is a genuine delight in the challenge of learning and performing great choral works.

County celebrates black history

Series of events planned for month of February

By ZAN STRUMFELD strumfeldz@spotlightnews.com

Fifty years ago, Martin Luther King, Jr. delivered his famous "I Have a Dream" speech on the steps of the Lincoln Memorial. One hundred and fifty years ago, President Abraham Lincoln signed the Emancipation Proclamation.

And while his address might not be remembered like those historic moments, Albany County Executive Dan McCoy made it a point to emphasize the importance of African American history when announcing the county would be holding a series of events during Black History Month.

"This is the biggest (celebration) we've done yet.

We're really trying to highlight the whole month," Albany County Executive Dan McCoy said. "I believe in diversity and believe we need to highlight it and get it out there."

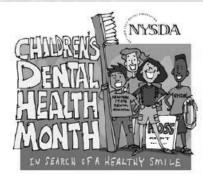

A newly appointed committee has come up with a number of events to be held throughout the month that center on this year's theme, "At the Crossroads of Freedom and Equality: The Emancipation Proclamation and the March on Washington."

The celebration kicked off on Saturday, Feb. 2, with a presentation on "Black Shakers and Their Influence on the Underground Railroad" by Executive Director of the Shaker Heritage Society Starlyn D'Angelo. Singer Ahzamiah Smyth and students from Albany Community Academy joined in on the presentation. "(The black Shakers) had much to teach us about tolerance, acceptance, doing the right thing. I think a lot of people don't realize there's black Shakers and how they effectively worked with the Underground Railroad," McCoy said.

The rest of February will be filled with events and

National Children's Dental Health Month

The following is the winning essay in the "Importance of a smile" contest sponsored by the office of Drs. Decker, Sbuttoni, Boghosian, DiCerbo and Lawless. Thirty schools were invited to participate in the contest in support of national Dental Health Month, and more than 200 students submitted an essay. A winner from each school received a $100 cash prize, and the grand winner, Leila Nayar, and eighth-grader from Iroquois Middle School in Niskayuna, won a Kindle Fire HD and a $500 donation to her school's health class.

The importance of a smile

By Leila Nayar

ow important is a smile? Smiles can have the power to do all sorts of things, good, bad, or having not much of an effect. It depends on the situation. Here's a true example of when a smile did multiple good things; changed someone's thought on a situation, made someone's day better, and cheered someone up.

A long time ago, when my brother was much younger, he had a brain tumor. It was too long ago for me to remember, but of course my parents do. My mom says that there was another boy in the operation room getting a similar procedure done. She remembers that that boys surgery had gone well and gotten ridden of the tumor just fine, making her more confident in what the results of my brother's surgery would be. The surgeon came in and did the operation as best as he could. After that they had to wait a while. Eventually, the doctor came into the room.

He took them into a different smaller closed off room to tell them the results. She guessed by the doctor's expression that it wasn't good. He said that the surgery didn't go perfect, and they couldn't remove the whole tumor. He said that he would need to go through chemotherapy. My mom says she didn't know how to answer, so she told the man she needed to be alone for a bit. She stepped out into the hall and stood against the wall, crying, overwhelmed. She kept thinking about how much it would affect Garrett's life. After a couple minutes, a girl walked by and noticed my mom was crying. The girl was probably 13, and had no hair. She was walking next to a pole on wheels; my mom didn't know exactly what it was for but it seemed to be obviously for medication purposes. The girl stopped and said "Don't cry, it's going to be OK." And drew up a smile on her face with her fingers. My mom surprised, smiled back and thanked her, and the girl continued walking down the hall.

She says that the random girl's smile got her thinking. Obviously something that small won't fix everything, but it did make her realize that that girl, only 13, having some sort of cancer and gone through probably a ton of treatment, was the one smiling and cheering up someone else. The girl probably had a lot of hope and courage with everything that was going on. Somehow, this gave my mom hope for Garrett getting through it, too. Which he did, and he came along perfectly fine; he graduated high school, was a great athlete, got a job, got his own car, and is now doing great in college. My mom says every time she thinks back to the days spent in the hospital, wondering when all of it would end, she says she always thinks of the girl with the smile and can't help but hope she's doing just as well.

Free samplings of ethnic foods from local vendors will be offered in the Cahill Room at the county offices for "A Taste of Freedom" on Friday, Feb. 8, from 11:30 a.m. to 1:30 p.m. From Feb. 16 to 22, artwork on Black History Month made by students in Albany County will be on display in the Cahill Room.

The month will be capped with a featured speaker on Black History Month on Monday, Feb. 25, at 11:30 a.m. in the Cahill Room. McCov said they aren't announcing the speaker just yet, but he or she will talk about Black History Month and the African American Culture Center on Madison Avenue.

"We're going to talk about a variety of things going on diversity we're doing here on the county level," McCoy said. "One of the things I've been trying to achieve is to have commissioners that reflect the constituents that I'm elected to. We've been doing things to really diversify my commissioners throughout Albany County."

Charles Burkes, who was on the committee to create this year's Black History Month's events, said it was an honor to be able to put some of the events together.

"Being an African American, I know how important it is to keep our heritage and to enlighten our young folks today on what struggles we as a people went through, and not forget it," Burkes said.

He said it is important to reminisce on the struggles of African Americans and is grateful the county has decided to highlight the entire month instead of holding a single event.

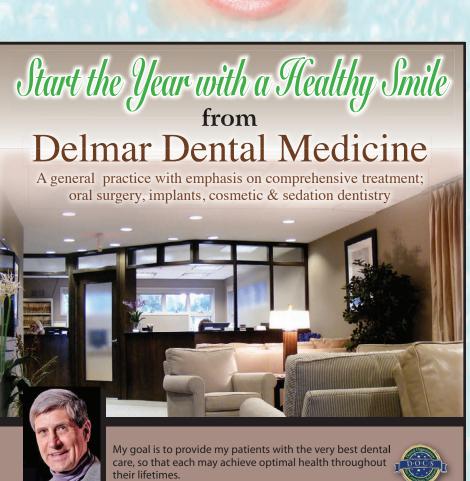

"We can't forget where we came from and how we got to today," McCoy said. "What Dr. Martin Luther King, Jr. and other people did to contribute to big changes. (We can't) repeat our mistakes and (we need to) learn from them. We're not just talking about it, we're doing it."

Albany County Executive Dan McCoy will be hosting several events throughout February for Black History Month, including a free sampling of ethnic foods and a keynote speaker.

Unique chocolate treats offer break from Valentine's Day tradition

By JOHN PURCELL purcellj@spotlightnews.com

While chocolate is often seen as a can'tfail Valentines gift, the traditional heart-shaped box of sweets might strike some as clichéd. But for those looking to stray from convention will be met with a sweet surprise at Capital District candy shops.

One salty chocolate treat doesn't come from a candy store, but a company known for its crunchy potato chips.

Saratoga Specialties Company, the maker of Saratoga Chips, offers a twist on their traditional treat. Chocolate Crum Crunchers offers their chips with a milk chocolate coating and its Chocolate Daily Double places the leftover potato chip crumbs into a milk chocolate concoction with some sea salt.

Dan Jameson, president of Saratoga Chips Company, said every time they make a batch of chips there are pieces too small to bag, so placing the crumbles into chocolate was a way to "celebrate it" in a delicious way. The chips are available in a number of area retailers.

"We were looking for a way to round out our line around the holidays," Jameson said. "I have always loved salt and sweet together, and it is an unusual paring and just seems to work.'

The most decadent offering takes the Chocolate Daily Double to the next level by adding applewood smoked bacon to create the Chocolate Trifecta.

"We noticed chocolate and bacon was getting a big play in the national food scene with upand-coming food flavor profiles," Jameson said.

He believes the traditional chocolate gifts are going by the wayside.

"I think the days of giving the red, heartshaped box chocolate is really growing old," Jameson said. "To really express your love properly you should think outside the box and outside the traditional candy venues that are available to you."

But Tom Krause, owner of Krause's Homemade Candy located on Central Avenue in Albany, contends Valentine's Day is all about the familiar.

"Valentine's Day can be a very traditional holiday," Krause said. "They usually know what that person likes, so they try to get something that they know they are going to enjoy."

Still, Krause offers some different takes on chocolate. His newest creation is a chocolate highheeled shoe, which is filled with truffles and candy and decorated.

"We tested this for mother's day last year and they were crazy popular," Krause said. "These shoes are just a little bit smaller than life size."

Krause is hoping to sell a lot of the shoes for Valentine's Day, but his biggest seller is a mainstay with the holiday: chocolate covered strawberries.

Between the day before Valentine's Day and the day of the holiday, Krause's store will make around 32,000 chocolate covered strawberries.

"It is probably the main thrust of what we do for three days," Krause said. "They are very delicate and very succulent. It just really sort of sums up Valentine's Day."

Joe Suhrada, owner of Uncle Sam's Homemade Chocolates on Albany Street in Schenectady, said chocolate covered strawberries are his biggest seller, too.

Suhrada said he uses strawberries from California and offers them dipped in milk, dark and white chocolate. Suhrada and Krause both said while milk chocolate remains the favorite, dark chocolate has been rising in popularity.

If your valentine doesn't want flowers but has a sweet tooth, Uncle Sam's offers chocolate roses, which will melt in your mouth instead of wilting on a shelf.

"I sell them year round, but for Valentine's Day I sell around 50 to 60 dozen," Suhrada said.

The roses are solid chocolate and molded onto the stem and packaged. Suhrada said oftentimes chocolate roses can be hollow. The roses can be made in the three classic chocolates, along with sugarfree.

If strawberries are too traditional, The Chocolate Gecko, on Colvin Avenue in Albany, offers up a variety of dipped fruit including kiwi, pears and pineapple.

"Over the years people keep asking for a new fruit," said Terra Stratton, owner of Chocolate Gecko. "We have what we think is a beautiful fruit platter, but we still do special requests." Gecko's traditional offering is a mixture of the four fruits, but Stratton said special requests have seen her dipping apples, bananas and other fruit.

Stratton thought of something new to offer this year playing off the holiday's iconic figure: Cupid Poop. The treat is a homemade marshmallow heart that can be "popped in" one at a time, with strawberry, chocolate and vanilla offerings.

"If you haven't had homemade marshmallows you don't know what missing," Stratton said.

If you still want a heart-shaped box, Candy Kraft Candies located on Route 20 in Guilderland, offers several unique boxes, from a man's work shirt with a tie to a pink with white polka dots and a white ribbon.

"Traditionally for years and years it was the red foil type box," Bob Pikcilingis, owner of Candy Kraft, said. "It seems like it used to be men buying for wives or girlfriends, but now they reciprocate ... so there are some male choices."

Pikcilingis said the store fills very few boxes so customers can pick out what candies their significant other will enjoy. Cherry cordials are a popular treat, along with raspberry creams.

#8-862 - Shirt

Since the raspberry creams are cast in starch, the store could offer them in a variety of shapes, with the traditional heart shape being a popular choice.

"The fact that we can make it heart shaped just makes it a winner on Valentine's Day," he said.

Johnson, who describes stepping as a cross between competitive cheerleading and African dance, said the event continues to grow each year. Very popular Brandi Davis, who is part of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority step team and coaches a grade-school step team at the Albany Community Charter School, said interest in step is growing, and more and more Capital District schools are jumping on board.

"It avoids the use of the Town Board's interim appointment powers to provide a future candidate with the advantage of incumbency in an upcoming election," Clarkson said in a statement. "I think this is the best approach to take, as it removes the Town Board's actions from the political arena and neither usurps nor undercuts the role of the voters, political parties or those desiring to run for the office of town judge."

Councilman Jeffrey Kuhn said although the process will be similar to finding a Town Board appointee, the situation is much different. The discussion over that appointment went on for weeks.

"Obviously this was a tragic and unexpected occurrence, but for the court to function like it should we need two judges," Kuhn said.

There are no rules stipulating that the applicant must be a lawyer, but Kuhn said board members would be looking for someone who has been in front of the Bethlehem Town Court and practiced there. "We need someone who can hit the ground running," he said.

The deadline to submit applications for the position is Wednesday, Feb. 6. Clarkson said the board is hoping to fill the vacancy by their next meeting on Wednesday, Feb. 13, but more time may be needed.

Jordan's funeral was held on Tuesday, Jan. 29, with services held at the Church of St. Thomas the Apostle.

His brother, Col. Louis Jordan, flew from Florida to be with his sibling during his final days. He said Jordan's funeral services were well attended, and that his brother would have felt overwhelmed by the community outpouring, and from all parts of the political spectrum.

"He was surrounded by family and friends from the time he went into the hospital until the end," Jordan said. "Everyone has been so nice and comforting.'

Iordan served half a term as a member on the Bethlehem Town Board before running for justice in 2011. He was a lawyer with a law practice in Delmar.

Friends said he would be remembered for his wit and friendly nature.

Louis Jordan said he thinks his brother would want someone to fill the now vacant position who is fair and levelheaded.

"He was conservative in the law but progressive with the people," said Jordan. "He was a kind man, who knew people made mistakes. He would probably want someone like him to take over the role."

Eagles rally for tie

Diego's defletion helps Bethlehem earn a point against CBA

By ROB JONAS jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Sometimes, a tie can be as good as a win or as bad as a loss.

Such was the case Friday, as Bethlehem rallied from a two-goal deficit to tie Christian Brothers Academy 3-3 in a Capital District High School Hockey League game at the Bethlehem Area

FINAL SCORE

- Bethlehem Eagles, 3

CBA Brothers. 3 YMCA. RJ Diego redirected Andrew Carroll's shot past goaltender Kyle Stockman with one minute left in the third period to tie the game for Bethlehem (6-3-3 league, 9-7-3 overall). Bethlehem netminder Kevin Cooley then made a pair of key saves in overtime to prevent the Brothers (8-3-3, 9-6-4) from leaving the rink with more than one standings point.

"There was not one point in the third period – even down 3-1 – when I was not confident in my team," said Bethlehem coach Andre Rodrigue.

Afterwards, CBA coach Blaine Drescher couldn't hide his disappointment.

"We got a little complacent after we got the two-goal lead," said Drescher. "We're better than that, and we know it.'

The Brothers took their 3-1 lead early in the third period when John Bassett ripped a shot from the blue line that Cooley couldn't see as the puck traveled through traffic in front of the net.

Bethlehem turned up the pressure on Stockman after that, and Stockman was up to the challenge. The junior made several key saves, including one in which he deflected a point-blank shot from Caswell.

"We played very well," said Rodrigue. "We controlled the puck and controlled the play. They just ran into a hot goaltender."

ACBA mistake gave Bethlehem new life later in the third period. Nicholas Brenier intercepted an errant pass and sent the puck behind the net to Carroll, who quickly came around and stuffed a shot inside the right post to make the score 3-2.

Mistakes continued to mount for CBA after Carroll's goal. Another errant clearing pass allowed Carroll to skate in alone on Stockman less than 40 seconds later. This time, Stockman made the save to keep the Brothers in

A CBA penalty for too many men on the ice with 2:18 left put Bethlehem on the power play - one which ended with Diego getting his stick on Carroll's shot from the point and deflecting the puck past Stockman for the tying

"When you throw the puck at the net, it doesn't need to be pretty," said Rodrigue. "They all count as one (point)."

"Kyle (Stockman) did a good job," said Drescher. "They had some very good chances in the third period. Playing on a smaller rink, their pressure got to us."

Diego's goal woke up CBA's offense, which had managed only 15 shots on goal in regulation. The Brothers generated a pair of quality scoring chances in overtime. On the first chance, Chase Crawford had a breakaway on Cooley, but the Bethlehem netminder blocked the shot with his chest. A short time later, Cooley snared Nick Makarowsky's attempt to keep the score tied.

"Kevin played well. He stands tall back there," said Rodrigue.

CBA survived one more defensive turnover to leave the rink with a tie. Carroll picked up a loose puck following a failed clearing attempt with less than 10 seconds left in overtime and skated in on Stockman. However, Carroll's shot sailed wide of the right post.

Stockman finished with 31 saves, 23 of which came in the second and third periods. Cooley stopped 15 shots for Bethlehem.

The tie gave CBA and Bethlehem one standings point each as they close in on the end of the regular season. CBA sits in fourth place with 14.5 points, 1.5 points behind third-place Shaker/Colonie, while Bethlehem is in fifth place with 13.5 points following Saturday's 4-2 victory over Niskayuna/Schenectady.

Rodrigue said he expects to see CBA again when the Section II Division I playoffs begin.

"I have a feeling we'll be seeing those guys again," said Rodrigue.

Bethlehem closes the regular season Friday when it travels to Clifton Park to face Shenendehowa (10-2-1, 12-6-1). The Plainsmen defeated the Eagles 7-2 Jan. 19 at the Bethlehem Area YMCA.
