Albany County Deputy Executive Christine Quinn deceived a Colonie pharmacist in order to illegally obtain hundreds of Ritalin pills, according to police.

Christine Quinn

Quinn, 35, on Tuesday, Sept. 3, was arrested on charges of attempted criminal possession of a controlled substance in the fourth degree, a felony, and fraud, a misdemeanor. Quinn was arraigned in Colonie Town Court the same day and pleaded not guilty to the charges. She was released under the supervision of the county Probation Department and she waived any action by a grand jury.

Village to hold public hearing over addition of $90 annual fee

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Altamont residents could see their semi-annual sewer bill increase by $45, but they will get to have a say before the proposed fee hits their wallets.

The Village Board of Trustees on Wednesday, Sept. 4, approved holding a public hearing on a proposed change to the village code regarding sewer service changes. The new $90 user fee would be split between each semi-annual bill. The required hearing will be held Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 7 p.m. during a special meeting of the board at Village Hall. The board would be able to vote on the amendment following the hearing if members wish.

The sewer rate would remain unchanged. The April bill is calculated as 1.8 times the April water bill and the October sewer charge equals 1.5 times the October water bill. "For the past two-and-a-half years we have been reporting on this project at every meeting," Mayor James Gaughan said. "We have reported about the estimated fee structure that we had calculated as we went along. We forewarned everyone that it is coming."

Allyson Phillips, legal counsel for the village, said the amended law would change how the sewer service charge is calculated. Phillips said the only thing to change would be the additional $45 semi-annual charge.

The sewer service charge is being implemented to cover the $3.5 million wastewater treatment plant improvement project. The state Department of Environmental Conservation mandated improvements following a 2010 order of consent citing the village for overflow of untreated sewage during weather-related, high water events.

House calls for the house trained

Guilderland native starts mobile veterinary service

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Many pet owners know the feeling of dread that accompanies getting ready to take an uncooperative animal friend to the veterinarian.

Capital District Mobile Veterinary Services is looking to take some of that stress out of the experience, though, by bringing the vet's office to the pet. Owner Sarah Nolan and veterinary assistant Anne Giagni started making house calls about three months ago, and according to Nolan, things have taken off faster than she could have imagined.

Nolan, a Saratoga Springs native, had been working at an Albany practice for eight years and said people would "constantly" call and ask for a veterinarian to come to their home to see their pet. Now, that's exactly what she does offering a variety of services, such as annual wellness exams and vaccinations, behavior consultations and blood work.

"A lot of big cities have that service and I thought it would be a great way to own my own business without all that overhead and a lot more personal experience going into people's homes," Nolan said. "The biggest reason I did it is the stress for animals. By going into their homes they react so differently."

Giagni, a Guilderland native and Latham resident who has been in the veterinary field for 17 years, agreed easing stress was the biggest difference from operating out of a brick-and-mortar location.

"Everybody is a lot more calmer in the home and the pet isn't looking at us as the bad guy," Giagni said.

Being outside of an office during work also has its benefits.

"I love not being in one building all day," Giagni said. "You get a better client relationship going into the home and you don't have that rushed feeling about the appointments."

The only real limitations of her mobile-only business, Nolan said, are not offering X-rays or surgeries, but she will recommend a local veterinarian to perform such procedures if needed.

There is a $40 house call fee for appointments within most suburban Albany County communities, which goes up for more distant appointments, but Nolan said she in turn tries to make all of her prices lower than at traditional animal hospitals. All new clients receive $20 off their first visit, she said.

For some, the service is about convenience, but for others it's the only way they can have their pet see a veterinarian. Nolan said she sees "a lot of elderly clients" who can't drive or have trouble transporting their pets.

"It is really nice to go to these people's homes who might not otherwise get care because they can't get them out of the house," Giagni said. "There are quite a few animals we have seen where the owners were not able to get out of the home."

There are also two end-of-life services provided – hospice care for terminally ill pets and at-home euthanasia. Nolan said clients have found at-home euthanasia to be a more peaceful experience for their pet and themselves.

Both women said they knew very early in life that they wanted to be in the veterinary field.

"I wanted to be a veterinarian since I was very, very young – around 5 or 6 years old," Nolan said.

Her parents owned a dairy farm in Fort Edwards when she was growing up, which first led her towards want to be a large animal vet. Around halfway through her studies she switched over to small animals.

"I never wavered from it," she said. "I couldn't imagine doing anything else; it was that or nothing."

Guilderland launching building study

School district's study said not to be 'all about closing schools'

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland Central School District is turning to physical space in its quest to control costs.

The district held a community meeting Tuesday, Sept. 3, at the high school to have Paul Seversky, a consultant with the planning service at Madison-Oneida BOCES, discuss the goals and methodology of a district-wide building capacity study he will soon begin.

"This will be fantastic tool for us here in Guilderland as we work to make really good decisions on behalf of our kids," Superintendent Marie Wiles said.

Seversky will analyze how the district uses building space, scheduling patterns, current enrollment and future enrollment trends. After gathering this data and performing observations of facilities, he will present several options for the district to use existing space with certain programming models.

Over the next several months, Seversky will review if there are more cost-effective ways or patterns to organize programming from kindergarten to 12th grade over the next three years.

"I would suggested this an example of good, diligent planning by the board and your superintendent," Seversky said. "Given this new normal that we are all in ... there is a whole new normal to financials and more importantly, to demographics of our country."

He said people are not having kids at the same rate that prior generations have, which has resulted in school districts seeing declining enrollment.

"Previously, successful ways in decisions on how to serve young people may or may not be viable solutions in this new normal," he said.

According to Seversky, the Board of Education and superintendent do not have any preconceived notions on what the results of the study might yield. As an outsider, he said he does not want to know what the "politics" are of the situation and what any group of stakeholders may want.

"The job is to hold up a mirror to a lot of real data and real understandable data that exists," he said. "Looking at that data ... organizing it so that the board and the community can utilize that data as a tool to answer the study question."

The baseline data will include enrollment projections, pupil capacity of the schools, local class size goals, local culture of deploying staff, programming elements, visiting each school through a tour hosted by the principal and an interview session with the district's leadership team.

He also plans to have elements of the study, such as enrollment projections, posted online before the entire study is completed. He said all of the final options presented would be "doable" options for the district.

"The heart of the study is using existing resources to best serve young people," he said.

The various options identified for the district will each have its unique challenges and opportunities. Sometimes, he said opportunities would become challenges and vice-versa.

"There is not going to be one that is all roses," he said.

Once the study is completed and results are published online, a community focus group would likely be established, to include around 30 to 40 community members to represent a diverse range of stakeholders. The focus group would ensure the list of opportunities and challenges for each scenario is complete.

"This is a community taxpayer decision," Seversky said. "My job is to listen and record ideas and perceptions of the various scenarios that are in the study."

He said the district isn't in dire financial stress, which allows time for the community to weigh the best programming option.

"Your district is not in crisis," he said. "There are districts I work with that are in crisis and they are literally out of money."

He added the study "isn't all about closing schools," but that could be presented in options.

Board of Education member Colleen O'Connell said the study sounds more long-term than the "next three years," with a longer focus of the next five to 10 years.

Seversky said enrollment data for secondary students would be forecasted for the next 10 years, which could provide an indication of what the future might bring. He said the study would also name possible variables that could affect enrollment.

"We will use the best data we know at the given time," he said.

Wiles said the district is also discussing a capital improvement project. There are two separate recommendations totaling more than $18.2 million.

The building capacity study wouldn't be complete before voters are asked to Guilderland Superintendent of Schools Marie Wiles on Tuesday, Sept. 3, said a district-wide building capacity study would reveal possible options for using space more efficiently.

John Purcell/Spotlight consider a capital project, but Wiles said some improvements would need to be made regardless of the study's conclusions.

"We need to have a good understanding of the relationship between our needs and our building capacity for student programs," Wiles said. "We also have basic housekeeping kinds of needs with the seven buildings that comprise our school district. That work truly must be done no matter what."

Wiles said the outcome of the study would be considered before the district borrows any money for the improvements, so voters would be approving a "threshold" for the district to borrow.

Alleged bank robber appears in Bethlehem court

Victor Shear pleads not guilty after being apprehended in South Carolina

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

Alleged Trustco Bank robber Victor Shear pleaded not guilty to felony charges in Bethlehem Town Court on Tuesday, Sept. 3.

Shear was arrested by police in South Carolina late last month and appeared before Justice Ryan Donovan after being flown back to the Capital District. His case was then transferred to Albany County Court, where he was scheduled to appear on Wednesday. He was charged with robbery in the first degree and grand larceny in the fourth degree, and remanded to Albany County jail without bail.

The Canajoharie resident was captured by the North Myrtle Beach Police Department nearly a week after the robbery occurred at the Trustco Bank on New Scotland Road in Slingerlands. Shear, 45, is accused of entering the bank, displaying a handgun and demanding cash.

Shear fled the area. Later, he was allegedly tipped-off about the investigation by a family friend. Anthony Zumbolo, 40, of Amsterdam, was arrested in connection with the case on Monday, Aug. 26. He was charged with hindering prosecution in the second degree, a felony.

According to court documents, Zumbolo worked with Shear's wife for four years at the state Department of Labor. Police had tracked down Shear's vehicle and were speaking with his wife and her boss the following morning when Zumbolo attempted to contact him, according to police.

Zumbolo told police he not only texted Shear to tell him police were on the way to his house, but attempted to call him several times.

"I apologize sincerely and hope that no one gets hurt because of my stupidity," Zumbolo wrote in a statement to police.

Bethlehem Det. Sgt. Adam Hornick said Bethlehem police "had him" until Shear was tipped off, and that's the reason search went on. Shear's wife was said to be cooperating with the investigation.

Zumbolo told police he felt responsible for Shear's escape. He also told police, "I almost felt as though I should go to jail," according to court documents.

The Amsterdam resident appeared in Bethlehem Town Court and remanded to the Albany County jail without bail. Zumbolo was due back on court Thursday, Aug. 29, for a preliminary hearing.

Shear's car was eventually found near a high school in Orange County, but he remained on the loose.

Hornick said because the investigation is ongoing, the police department is not releasing how Shear was found to be in Myrtle Beach, but he said they "developed a lead." Hornick said Shear was preparing to make arrangements to turn himself in when police found him at a Subway sandwich shop.

Shear is alleged to have robbed the Trustco Bank around 9:15 a.m. on Wednesday, Aug. 21, while dressed in a construction outfit.

Hornick said police believe the robbery took one to two minutes. Shear wore gloves during the robbery, but Hornick said he dropped some cash outside, which led police to believe Shear fled westbound towards Font Grove Road and may have entered a vehicle that was parked roadside on Font Grove.

Police would not disclose how much money was taken, but said the money Shear received did not include an ink pack. Hornick said Shear cut through several back yards to make his way to the vehicle.

Some money was recovered from Shear in South Carolina, but police did not disclose how much.

Police don't believe the robbery has any connection to a 2011 robbery of TD Bank in Delmar, but they do believe it may be related to another heist. Hornick said the investigation has led police to believe Shear was involved in a robbery in Sharon Springs earlier this year.

The investigation is ongoing and further charges are pending.

following a three-month investigation and a sealed indictment presented by the Albany County Grand Jury.

Town of Coeymans Police arrested Dylan Vega, 20, of Ravena, on Aug. 15. Police said the investigation found Vega was allegedly selling "quantities" of heroin, marijuana, ecstasy, mushrooms, and prescription drugs in the Town of Coeymans and Village of Ravena. The sealed indictment was for criminal sale of a controlled substance and criminal possession of a controlled substance with the intent to sell.

At the time of his arrest, Vega was additionally charged with allegedly possessing 10 bags of heroin and was said to be in the process of attempting to deliver the drugs to an unknown person in the Village of Ravena. Vega was then arraigned before the Village of Ravena Court and remanded to the Albany County Correctional Facility without bail.

Vega was returned to the Albany County Court on Aug. 21 and arraigned on two counts of criminal sale of a controlled substance in the third degree and criminal sale of a controlled substance in the second degree. He was again remanded to the Albany County Correctional Facility without bail.

Voorheesville looking at EMS options

Tough contract negotiations spur a review, bring allegations to light

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Voorheesville officials are investigating what, if any, emergency medical service options it might have, as contract contentions are becoming the norm with its historic provider.

Mayor Robert Conway said the village has had preliminary discussions with the Voorheesville Volunteer Fire Department about the organization providing ambulance service for the village. The possibility was brought up at the Board of Trustees' Aug. 27 meeting. The matter will likely be discussed at each of the board's meetings for several months.

"We are not moving towards the firehouse, we are just exploring the possibility of having the firehouse take on the ambulance service," Conway said. "Given the nature of our last conversations with the volunteers, we thought it was prudent to investigate what else is available or what else is out there."

The village is currently covered by Voorheesville Area Ambulance Service. The village signed a contract for the current year's service recently, but not before a contentious negotiation process.

Conway said he believes there is "some interest" among fire department volunteers to provide EMS service, but he was not sure if the interest would be enough for the village to pursue that option.

"Nothing is set in stone and nothing has been agreed to," Conway said. "The current ambulance service is insistent on being treated like any other vendor and this is what happens."

He said the village has also had "some very preliminary" investigations into possibly bringing in another service, along with "very preliminary" conversations with the Albany County Sheriff's Department taking it over full time. The sheriff's department covers the village from 6 a.m. to 6 p.m. already.

"It may be this (VAAS) is the only game in town and figure out a way to work with it," Conway said. "The ideal solution is to do nothing and to have it continue with the

"Given the nature of our last conversations with the volunteers, we thought it was prudent to investigate what else is available or what else is out there."

— Mayor Robert Conway

volunteer squad who has done it all these years."

Allegations abound

VAAS Board of Directors Chairwoman Denise Garrah said problems with the village began in 2007, when the village and Town of New Scotland requested the service bill patients transported to the hospital to offset expenses.

The service did start billing for services provided, but Garrah said Conway criticized VAAS for not starting to bill quicker. Garrah added the bureaucracy around billing for services took some time to implement and some volunteers felt it was difficult to ask sick or injured patients what their insurance company was.

Garrah claimed for the past five years, the village proposed "arbitrary changes" to its contract with the service, often right before the contract money flows to them and what are they are using it for."

He said he understands the issue is "emotionally charged," because the volunteers are "very dedicated" and emotionally attached to the company. Board members haven't expressed and qualms over the quality of service being provided.

"I think we are both trying to do what we think its best for the village and village taxpayers," Conway said, "but we are just coming at it from different perspectives."

School’s in session, so drive safely

Over the past few days, parents all over the Capital District have stood on porches and on street corners to wave goodbye to their progeny as they’re whisked off by the school bus. For some, it was for the first time.

The start of school means the return of school buses to our roadways. As such, police and the American Automobile Association are reminding motorists drive with extra care, especially during the morning and afternoon rush. We’d like to add our voice to that call for safe driving.

The AAA figures 55 million kids are heading back to school nationwide, and about 13 percent of them walk or bike to school. Motor vehicle crashes are the leading cause of death for children from 5 to 14 years old, so be extra alert for kids out and about.

Then, of course, there are school buses. On the way to work or to drop off the kids, a stopped school bus might seem like an excruciating obstacle. But it’s best to simply give the commute a few extra minutes in the morning and remember why one must stop for a bus.

If safety isn’t a big enough motivator, there’s the law. Passing a school bus that has its red flashing lights on carries a minimum fine of $250 and a maximum fine of $400, along with five points on one’s license. A second conviction carries a fine of up to $750, and a third can cost up to a cool $1,000. You can even be sent to prison over a conviction. Are the extra few seconds one might save worth the cost?

The law says motorists must stop for a bus with its flashing red lights on, even on a divided or multilane highway or on school grounds. Flashing yellow lights mean a school bus is preparing to stop, and drivers should slow down and prepare to halt.

Motorists should also be aware of school zones with lower speed limits – a speeding conviction in one of these areas will carry increased penalties, to say nothing of the increased risk to children trying to cross the street.

A pedestrian hit by a car traveling at 25 mph is 65 percent less likely to be killed than one hit by a car traveling at 35 mph, so it does make a difference.

So the next time you’re running late and see those flashing red light up ahead, fight the frustration and try to keep things in perspective. A few extra minutes to make things safer for schoolchildren is not a huge price to pay.

Protect your garden from winter wildlife

By MELINDA MYERS

The author is a gardening author and columnist. Find her on the web at www.melindamyers.com.

There’s no doubt that managing critters in the landscape can be a challenge especially as food supplies start to dwindle. If you are battling with rabbits, deer, groundhogs or other wildlife, don’t let down your guard as the growing season begins to wind down.

Be proactive. Start before they get into the habit of dining on your landscape. It is easier to keep them away than break the dining habit.

Fence them out. Fencing is the best defense against most wildlife. A four-foot tall fence around a small garden will keep out rabbits. Secure the bottom tight to the ground or bury it several inches to prevent rabbits and voles from crawling underneath. Or fold the bottom of the fence outward, making sure it’s tight to the ground. Animals tend not to crawl under when the bottom skirt faces away from the garden.

Go deeper, at least 12 to 18 inches, if you are trying to discourage woodchucks. And make sure the gate is secure. Many hungry animals have found their way into the garden through openings around and under the gate.

A five foot fence around small garden areas can help safeguard your plantings against hungry deer. Some gardeners report success surrounding their garden with fishing line mounted on posts at one and three foot heights.

Break out the repellents. Homemade and commercial repellents can be used. Apply before the animals start feeding and reapply as directed. Consider using a natural product that is made of herbs, safe to use and smells good.

Scare ‘em away. Blow up owls, clanging pans, rubber snakes, slivers of deodorant soap, handfuls of human hair and noise makers are scare tactics that have been used by gardeners for years. Consider your environment when selecting a tactic. Urban animals are used to the sound and smell of people. Alternate scare tactics for more effective control. The animals won’t be afraid of a snake that hasn’t moved in weeks.

Combine tactics. Use a mix of fencing, scare tactics and repellents. Keep monitoring for damage. If there are enough animals and they are hungry, they will eat just about anything.

Don’t forget about nature. Welcome hawks and fox into your landscape. Using less pesticides and tolerating some critters, their food source, will encourage them to visit your yard. These natural pest controllers help keep the garden-munching critters under control.

And most importantly, don’t give up. A bit of persistence, variety and adaptability is the key to success. Investing some time now will not only deter existing critters from dining in your landscape, but will also reduce the risk of animals moving in next season.

Your Opinion in The Spotlight

Thanks are due for the thin blue line Despite law, signs remain an issue

Editor, The Spotlight: We've all had our encounters with the Bethlehem police. We've seen them at night responding to some far-off emergency, maybe yielding in our cars to their flashing lights and sirens. We've seen them out in the snow and rain, maybe directing traffic around an auto accident. We've seen them on Saturday evenings manning routine DWI checkpoints. Maybe our encounter was more personal where a cop helped us sort out a problem with a break in or worked alongside the EMTs in a health emergency.

For all my years in Town and despite my acquaintance with many of the individuals who serve as its police officers I was not prepared for the experience I had last Tuesday when I "rode along" during the 3 - 11 p.m. shift. What I saw and what I heard has given me a new appreciation for the selfless work our police officers perform.

In many respects it was a typical Tuesday. While a number of police officers were providing security for Town Court, which began its business at 4 p.m., others were on patrol covering 175 miles of roadway that wind through our town. Officers assigned to the court manned detectors, guarded doorways, and were present in the courtroom to ensure the security of the court staff and the citizens who were in attendance.

While this is going on we also have a full contingent of officers "on the beat." I joined one of them, later that night, riding along with Police Officer Adam Cobb where in the short span of four hours I got a sense of how dangerous the job can be. I was no sooner outfitted with my Kevlar vest when the call came in to respond to a fight at Walmart. I was always at a safe distance from the action but have to say I was scared for Officer Cobb as he became the first responder to this crisis. He wasted no time stepping from the patrol car to take control of the fight, separating the antagonists, and restoring order. It was chilling to be in the middle of this, riveting to see the skill with which Officer Cobb and his fellow officers affected control over the fracas, and ultimately comforting to know of the skill the brave men and women of the Bethlehem police force exercise.

I sat down to write this public thank you to the Bethlehem police for their success and the ongoing work they do protecting us, 24 hours a day, 365 days per year. Although individually their tasks are routinely "routine" and often mundane, in sum they create a border between "mayhem" and the civilized life we enjoy in our town. I chronicled this experience to shed light on this "thin blue line" and to explain why I believe so strongly that the officers of our police force deserve the unwavering support of our community. Just as they are a team their continued success requires that Bethlehem resident join together to advocate for public safety and the work of the Bethlehem Police Department.

Dan Cunningham Candidate for Bethlehem Town Board

Editor, The Spotlight: This is in regard to the article by Marcy Velte in your issue of Aug. 21 entitled "Inspector: Sign law is working."

I beg to differ with the claims of Building Inspector Gil Bouchard!

Yesterday I drove down Wemple Road down to Route 144 and saw many signs that were closer than 5 feet from the road. Also, one of those vying for the highway position had at least six signs on commercial property just below the railroad tracks and two of those were too close to the road! Also, the same person's signs were too close to the road on

144. Mr. Bouchard can't be checking very well if he things all candidates are following the law!

Another issue is, why is it necessary to "go out on voting days or the night before" to pick up signs before voting begins? In the past, candidates were expected to pick up their owns signs within a few days after the election. Just more work for Building Department employees methinks!

Selma Louise Robinson passed away on Wednesday, August 28th at the Kaplan Family Hospice House in Danvers, Mass.

She was the daughter of the late Joseph P. Carberry and Silvia (Lawrence) Carberry and wife of the late Albany County Legislator Earl J. Robinson. Selma was employed by the New York Telephone Company in Ellenville, NY and after moving to Delmar, NY was Secretary of the Delmar Methodist Church for 10 years where she was a member. After retirement she divided her time between Schroon Lake, NY and Zephyrhills, Fla where her parents resided.

Selma is survived by her sons James H.(Patricia) of Byfield, Ma; Thomas C. (Wendy) of Altamont, NY and John Scott (Eric) of Arlington, Va; five grandchildren Erin Robinson and Zachary Bemis of Altamont, NY; Ian Robinson of West Hartford, Ct; Megan Parsons of Winchester, Ma; Jill Brien of Groveland, Ma and eight great grandchildren. She was predeceased by her daughter Sue Ellen Creeden of Odessa, Fla, and her sisters Silvia Carberry of Zephyrhills, Fla and Eleanor Vos of Santa Barbara, Ca.

Selma's family will be celebrating her life at the Central Congregational Church in Newburyport, MA.

Donations to the Schroon Lake Community Church, PO Box 276, Schroon Lake, NY 12870 would be greatly appreciated.

RCS Library adds family storytime

Storytimes are back in session

School is back in session and the library's storytimes have resumed as well! Find the storytime that is right for your schedule and your child!

Family Storytime is new to the lineup. Stories and crafts for families with children ages 2 to 8. Kathy Domery leads the group on Wednesday evenings beginning at 6:30 p.m. in the library.

Positively Preschool returns to its regular 10:30 a.m. time on Thursday mornings at the library with Miss Kathy Domery. Bring your preschoolers for a story and related craft, lots of smiles and a chance to meet new friends.

Romp & Read offers stories, songs and games for the toddler set. Meet Miss Kathy Meyer in Selkirk on Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m. at the Selkirk Firehouse on Route 396, east of Route 9W. Romp and Read also meets at the library on Friday mornings at 10:30 a.m.

Library Babies is just for babies age 6 months to 2 years and their caregivers. Join Miss Kathy Meyer on Friday mornings at 9:30 a.m. at the library. Songs and finger plays, as well as lots of giggles, are a great way to start the morning with your baby.

All storytimes are free and open to the public. No registration is required.

Learn about Medicare

Thursday, Oct. 24, 10:30 a.m. to noon in the Town Hall Boardroom. Please call the senior office to register ahead of time.

Will you soon be 65? Are you already enrolled in Medicare but still have questions about your coverage options? There are Medicare counselors trained to help you understand your choices and options. Attend a presentation designed to provide you with an understanding of Medicare and the choices available to you.

Thinking about changing your current Medicare coverage? This is a great time to get a better understanding of the whole picture. The enrollment change period will begin in October and end early in December.

Having trouble paying your Medicare premium or related medical expenses? Find out if you may qualify for Federal assistance with your medical expenses.

You're almost 65? Come learn about how Medicare works. You'll probably be surprised by the number of choices available to you and all the factors that you should consider when making your choices.

Note: Individual appointments will be available Oct. 21 through Nov. 25. Please call the senior office for more details.

Possible new program

A volunteer is willing to hold a current events group for seniors who would like to discuss newsworthy topics on a weekly basis. Please call us if you are interested!

Why preplan with us?

If you appreciate peace of mind, you'll understand why it makes sense to preplan with us. We know of no other policies that work as this:

- Spares your family from making detailed decisions at an emotional time
- Ensures that wishes are expressed
- Prevents overspending and can lock in costs

We're experts at preplanning, and know all of the issues that may arise. Call us, you'll be glad you did.

Race battles the 'silent killer'

5K run/walk aims to raise ovarian cancer awareness and support research

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

The “silent killer” of women might not be making much noise, but a local nonprofit is making sure it’s heard of.

The 12th Annual Teal Ribbon Run/Walk, coordinated by Caring Together, will be held on Sunday, Sept. 15, and kicks off at 9 a.m. at Washington Park in Albany. The event aims to raise awareness of ovarian cancer and raise funds to support research to developing an early detection test, along with more effective treatments for women with recurrent ovarian cancer.

Caring Together President Mary Davis said education awareness is the “best line of defense” against ovarian cancer. Davis is also a survivor of ovarian cancer after being diagnosed 15 years ago.

“If you don’t know much about the disease it is an opportunity to learn and there is an awareness table there staffed by survivors. It is chance to talk to somebody that is well versed in it,” Davis said. “It is a chance to talk a walk in a beautiful park, or if you are a runner it is a sanctioned 5K.”

Race Director Pam Robbins said there is no effective screening tool for ovarian cancer, which leads it to be among the most deadly cancers.

“We are really focused on the fact there is no screening tool ... so they need more research dollars,” Robbins said. “What we do with our money from the Walk/Run is we donate that almost exclusively to a couple of large research grant organizations.”

Caring Together also partnered with St. Peter’s Hospital Foundation, Albany Medical Center Foundation and CR Wood Cancer Center at Glens Falls Hospital to provide financial assistance to Capital District women that are either uninsured or underinsured and have a high risk for ovarian cancer, or have symptoms of it.

The group is also in talks to expand the program to other area hospitals. Women must qualify for the program by meeting income and resource requirements.

Over the years, participation has grown from a small group of people to around 1,100, according to Robbins. The group is hoping to surpass a total of $1 million raised from the event over the years, a goal that is in reach this year.

Ovarian cancer is particularly devastating because it often goes undiagnosed until the late stages. Many walk the Team Ribbon in memory of loved ones.

“There are many, many people who come back year after year and are committed to this cause,” Robbins said. The number of survivors and families that are involved in this has turned it from where there was a couple hundred to over a thousand.”

Robbins said many of the possible symptoms of ovarian cancer tend to get overlooked, which is exactly what happened to Davis.

“I blew it off for a while,” Davis said. “I had felt so lousy for a couple of years and couldn’t figure out why so my initial response (to being diagnosed) was, ‘Wow, where do I go from here?’”

The most common symptoms include bloating, pelvic or abdominal pain, difficulty eating or feeling full quickly and urinary symptoms of urgency or frequency. The key, though, is if any of these symptoms last for more than two weeks.

The American Cancer Society estimates this year there will be around 22,240 newly diagnosed cases of ovarian cancer and more than 14,000 women nationally will die of ovarian cancer. Ovarian cancer is the tenth most common cancer among women, but it is the fifth leading cause of cancer related death for women, according to the Ovarian Cancer National Alliance.

The Alliance claims mortality rates for ovarian cancer have not improved over the past 40 years. It accounts for 3 percent of cancer diagnoses in women.

The five-year survival rate is 44 percent, but early detection increases that to 91.5 percent. Only around 15 percent of women are diagnosed early. The majority of women aren’t diagnosed until the cancer has spread to distant organs or lymph nodes, which brings the five-year survival rate to around 25 percent.

From 2005 to 2009, the median age of ovarian cancer diagnoses was 63, according to OCNA. The four most prominent age categories of all diagnoses include 45 to 54 (19 percent), 55 to 64 (23 percent), 65 to 74 (20 percent) and 75 and 84 (18 percent).

Davis said putting a face on the disease through the race is important.

Caring Together was first formed in 1996 solely as a support group for ovarian cancer by nurse practitioner Debbie Cullinan, who helped organize it after being diagnosed. Cullinan died from her cancer, but the group has continued and expanded its cause and mission.

“My favorite part is just seeing all the survivors there and they remind me why I am doing it,” Robbins said. “It makes me think of Debbie and reminds why I got involved.”

The 12th Annual Teal Ribbon Run/Walk will take place on Sunday, Sept. 15, in Bethlehem’s Elm Avenue Park.

A great deal to get in shape

For many people in our community fall not only means back to school, it means back to YMCA. As daylight fades and the temperatures drop, Y membership picks up. And to encourage people to join the Bethlehem Y, during the month of September, the $100 joiner fee will be waived for new members.

And, as they say in the infomercials, “but wait, there’s more.” New members will also receive a free personal training package that includes an orientation and two personal training sessions to get you on your way to better physical condition and a healthier lifestyle.

Membership appreciation picnic

The Bethlehem YMCA will hold its annual membership appreciation picnic on Tuesday, Sept. 24, from 3:30 to 6:30 p.m. at the pavilion behind the Y. The event is free to Y members and their families. There will be hamburgers, hot dogs, salads, drinks, cotton candy, a bouncy house and more. Please take the night off from cooking. The food and the fun are on us!

Ice, ice baby

The new sport court tiles have been taken up and fresh ice has been put down at the Bethlehem Y’s hockey rink. Public skating and hockey leagues will begin very soon. We appreciate all of our summer campers and everyone who came to try out the sport court surface and enjoyed playing hockey, basketball, soccer and more. The sport court will be back next spring.

Zumbathon for Operation Christmas Child

A Zumbathon will take place on Sept. 21, from 4 to 6 p.m. at Bethlehem Community Church, 201 Elm Ave., Delmar. Proceeds will be donated to the shipping costs of the shoe boxes.

Raffle prizes and vendors, bake sale and fun for the kids. Two hours of salsalicious zumba fun with some local instructors.

Contact Lynda McBride at mcbridelynda65@gmail.com or Tina Bonney at bonneytina@gmail or 337-6856 to volunteer, donate or more info.

All are welcome to attend. Adults $10 and students/kids $5.

Through Operation Christmas Child, individuals can impact a child's life with a simple shoe box gift. Fill a shoe box with school supplies, toys, necessity items and a note of encouragement for needy children around the world.

Sharing Shed open

The Sharing Shed at the New Baltimore Reformed Church, located on the corner of Route 144 and Church Street will remain open. The Shed will be open from 9 a.m. until noon through Oct. 19, and is currently being held in the parking lot of the church and Pastor Susan's garage.

The Sharing Shed is part of the church's ongoing ministry to the community. The Shed will have quality clothing and accessories, household goods, furniture and miscellaneous sundries. What it will not have is price tags!

Donations, however, will be welcomed. All of the items are available to fill the needs of the individuals who take them home. To ensure that our giving practices are fair and honest with everyone, all we ask is that donations are fair and, most of all, within a person's ability to give. This is a chance to get quality items even if you are on a limited budget.

This is also a wonderful opportunity to serve and to socialize in a Christian atmosphere. So even if you are not shopping, stop in for coffee and fellowship.

If you wish to donate items to The Sharing Shed, please do so only when The Shed is open and only through Sept. 14. All items we don't use will be blessed to another charity. Please ask for a tax deductible giving declaration if you would like one. All monetary donations will be used to support the ministries of the church. In addition, 10 percent of these donations will go to support relief work and social ventures in the world.

Come and shop and have fun with us before or after the Farmers' Market, on your way to the post office or visiting friends or just while taking a drive to beautiful New Baltimore.

Garage sale fundraiser

Happy Cat Rescue, Inc. is have a huge fundraising garage sale on Friday, Sept. 20 and Saturday, Sept. 21, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at 836 Meadowdale Road, Altamont (Guilderland Center). life will be conducted at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation's Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar at 2 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 14.

A pond is more than a body of water. It is a bustling community of plants and animals awaiting discovery. Join us as we compare and contrast different ponds on the property and examine the critters that live in them. We will also focus on seasonal changes as the pond community prepares for the coming freeze.

This program is open to the public free of charge. In the event of inclement weather, the program may be cancelled. Please call Five Rivers at 475-0291 for more information.

Five Rivers Environmental Education Center is a designated New York State Watchable Wildlife site, where wildlife viewing opportunities abound. Learn more by visiting "Watchable Wildlife" at www.dec.ny.gov.

Migratory bird watch

A field study of migratory birds will be conducted at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation's Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar at 10 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 14.

Since 1975, 224 species of birds have been observed at Five Rivers. More than 30 of these species breed north of Five Rivers and are seen only when they pass through in spring and fall. We'll watch for both fall migrants and resident birds as we check places where birds are likely to refuel before continuing their southward journey.

This program is open to the public free of charge. In the event of inclement weather, the program may be cancelled. Please call Five Rivers at 475-0291 for more information.

New home for Treasure Cove

Church seeks a permanent spot for its long-running thrift shop

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

The First United Methodist Church of Delmar is looking to move its Treasure Cove Thrift Shop into a bigger location.

Representatives of the church appeared before the Bethlehem Planning Board on Wednesday, Sept. 4, to seek approval to move the store to its property at 135 Adams Street, across the street from the Kenwood Avenue church. The new location would be larger and allow for the store to be a permanent fixture in the community.

The Planning Board unanimously approved the site plan.

“Our proposal is to take over the entire building,” said Treasure Cove Manager Linda Graf in a later interview. “We’re doing (the move)

“The space we use now is used for other purposes during the week, like the choir and other church activities. So it’s been a long road of taking down and setting up. It takes a lot of manpower.”

— Treasure Cove Manager Linda Graf

because every week our volunteers have to set up the store and take it down. It’s a giant pain in the neck.”

The church previously rented out the building’s downstairs to several commercial businesses and rented apartments upstairs. Graf said they now believe the property will be better utilized by moving the thrift shop from the church’s basement.

“The space we use now is used for other purposes during the week, like the choir and other church activities,” Graf said. “So it’s been a long road of taking down and setting up. It takes a lot of manpower.”

At the end of this month, the thrift shop will be celebrating its 21st year in business.

Those wishing to visit the new store will still be asked to park in the church’s parking lot. A sidewalk is being installed from the parking lot to the new shop, to make the building more accessible for the elderly and disabled. Some doors will also be widened within the building to make room for wheelchairs.

Graf said the goal is for the new shop to be open by Halloween, but it depends on how fast the sidewalk and renovations can be completed. If more time is needed, the backup goal is for the shop to be open by Thanksgiving.

Graf said the plan is for the downstairs of the shop to contain adult clothing. The upstairs most likely will be used for children’s clothing and a reading corner. A separate section for household items and collectibles may also be added, depending on the space.

With the move, Graf said volunteers hope to be able to open the shop for additional hours.

“A lot of people want to come on the weekends, but we don’t have the hours,” said Graf.

Treasure Cove will remain open the longest on Tuesdays, but plans are to open on for four hours on Thursday, Saturday and Sunday.

Graf said with the new store, the church is also looking for additional volunteers. New cashier positions will be available, along with positions sorting donated items.

“We’re very excited,” Graf said.

“They have looked at the whole system, taken into account the number of units that are hooked up and evenly spread out the cost of this increased indebtedness, so that everyone is paying a proportional share,” Phillips said.

Gaughan said the idea behind charging every unit a $90 annual fee was to spread the cost equally, because all users would be benefiting from the infrastructure upgrade. He said the committee “spent a great deal of time” analyzing the financial aspects.

The interest rate on the loan secured by the village for the project falls at 2.07 percent.

“We had no choice but to fix it,” Gaughan said. “The question becomes, how do you pay for it?”

He said there will always be some people who don’t like seeing their bill increase by even a penny, but the increase shouldn’t be coming as a surprise.

The project is substantially finished, according to Gaughan, but there are still a few details that must be completed. The last 10 percent of the payment to the contractor is being held off until those aspects are completed.

He expected the small items to be completed by the end of the September. Construction on the project started in June 2010.

Drug

Narcotic Enforcement led an investigation that allegedly revealed Quinn illegally obtained methylphenidate, commonly known as Ritalin, in an amount that exceeded her prescribed dosage.

On March 5, Quinn allegedly went to a local nurse practitioner’s office seeking a new prescription and claimed the pharmacy where she filled her previous prescription was only able to partially fill it with a month’s supply, according to a complaint filed in Colonie Town Court by a state narcotic enforcement investigator.

But the pharmacy dispensed an 84-day supply only 28 days prior, according to the complaint, which included 270 tablets of 20 mg Ritalin. The felony charge stems from Quinn allegedly possessing more than 1 gram of a stimulant.

All documents filed in the town court, other than the complaints, pertaining to the case are sealed, because certain documents might contain confidential or privileged information, according to the court’s seal order. These documents may include health information subject to privacy and security provisions, the order said.

Albany County Executive Dan McCoy’s July 2012 appointment of Quinn was historic, because she became the first woman to hold the position. In 2002, Quinn interned as a law clerk at the Department of Law while attending law school. After graduating and passing the state Bar Exam, she rejoined the county as an assistant county attorney for four years and then became the first woman director of employee relations. She served as acting commissioner of the Department of Human Resources before her appointment to deputy executive.

McCoy said he was “deeply saddened and surprised” to hear of the charges against Quinn, according to Mary Rozak, a spokeswoman for the county executive.

“At this point and time, (McCoy’s) thoughts and prayers ... are with her and her family as they go through obviously a very tough time,” Rozak said. “McCoy has asked that her family’s privacy be respected during this tough time.”

Quinn, who earns almost $107,000 annually, has taken a leave of absence effective Thursday, Sept. 5, according to Rozak.

“Quinn is innocent until proven guilty,” Rozak said. “Right now she has done nothing wrong at work.”

McCoy has sworn in Bradley Fischer, who was director of operations for the county executive, to Quinn’s position. Rozak said there is “no such thing” as an acting deputy county executive.

“When and if Quinn is able to return ... we will be able to discuss what her role with Albany County will be,” Rozak said.

Rozak said McCoy hadn’t noticed any signs of Quinn using drugs.

“If someone had seen any signs or been any indication,” Rozak said, “the very first thing that would have been done would be to reach out and try to help Ms. Quinn in any shape or form, but there had been no indication.”

Rozak declined to comment on what Quinn’s future at the county would be if convicted on the charges brought against her.

Quinn’s lawyer could not be reached for comment.

The recent enactment of state I-STOP Law’s “duty to consult” aided the investigation. It allows law enforcement to have access to databases of pharmacies and the controlled substances they dispense. The law aims to rein in prescription drug abuse.

Learning a lifelong adventure at Bethlehem HILL

Institute dedicated to providing college-level courses celebrates 20th anniversary

By DANIA BIANCHI
bianchid@spotlightnews.com

Delmar retiree Barry Isenberg is versed in political affairs, international relations, Judaism, life in China and Islamic architecture. And that's just the beginning.

Isenberg is one of thousands of people in the Capital District who have attended college-level classes taught by local college professors thanks to The Humanities Institute for Lifelong Learning, or HILL, in Delmar. The program was founded in 1993 to enhance lifelong learning opportunities for the adult community in the Capital District.

HILL was the brainchild of Fred and Helen Adler. Helen Adler was a former English teacher at Bethlehem Central High School and a huge believer in lifelong education.

This month, the institute is celebrating its 20th anniversary.

Isenberg, who is also a member of the HILL coordinating committee, said what makes HILL unique from other local lifelong learning centers is that it is run by volunteers. The nonprofit group runs as an adjunct organization of the Bethlehem Central School District, which helps by distributing the HILL program brochure as an insert in the school's continuing education newsletter.

Isenberg said because of the connection to the school district, people often think you must be a Bethlehem resident to attend. This is not so.

"Initially, it was basically Bethlehem centered, but we've been trying to expand our reach to other areas of the Capital District," Isenberg said. "We have a number of people that come from Colonie, Latham, Albany and Voorheesville."

According to Isenberg, the institute has grown tremendously since 1993.

"Our first semester in the fall of 1993 – there were only three courses at that time – we had 155 registrants," Isenberg said. "Our last semester, we had over 550 registrations."

Isenberg said part of this is due to the larger number of courses available now compared to in 1993, although he said the objective is not to have a large number of attendees, but to have a nice mix of courses including art, literature, studies about foreign countries, political and economic courses.

"The political courses and courses about upcoming elections are always very popular and we get a lot of people there," he said. "One of our biggest courses was one on Shakespeare."

Professors come from local universities and colleges, including the University at Albany, Siena College, Albany Law School, Russell Sage, Skidmore College and Union College.

Alfred D'Alauro, a New York State retiree from Altamont who has been attending HILL classes for about 10 years, said some of his favorite courses have been given by Sheldon Solomon, a psychology professor at Skidmore College.

"He has come in a number of times," he said. "Psychology was one of my minors, so I was interested. He was a wonderful teacher."

D'Alauro said he generally takes at least two classes each semester and has his eye on an upcoming literature arts course.

Isenberg believes people continue to return each semester both for the social aspect and out of a desire to keep intellectually active.

"Most of the people who

University at Albany professor Richard Fogarty taught "The French, and how they got that way" in the spring of 2013 at Bethlehem HILL. The program taps area colleges for their teachers.

go to our courses are very active people," he said. "We have a broad base of people – retired teachers, librarians, attorneys – they may be retired from their profession, but intellectually they are extremely active."

Isenberg said it was his wife who first started taking HILL courses when she retired.

"She was a teacher in the Bethlehem School District, and she told me how great they were," he said.

It was then that Isenberg found he was hooked on learning.

"I find the courses extremely interesting and intellectually challenging," said Isenberg, who has been attending classes regularly for eight years.

Judi Campbell of Delmar said when she first moved to the area in 2006 she found the classes to be a great way to meet new people.

"At this point I know a lot of the people who take the classes. Often after I get the schedule I will talk to people and say, 'Are you taking this or that?'" Campbell said.

Campbell, who said she is most interested in history and current events, found she has been drawn to courses such as the Britain Empire in India taught by a professor from Skidmore, and another course about the Supreme Court.

"A lot of times, I will do two or three," she said. "The HILL committee does a phenomenal job year after year of coming up with interesting and different programs."

Isenberg said the classes are focused more on discussion than note taking and tests, the way most would think of a college class.

"It's good to go to a class where you don't have to worry about tests or notes or homework," Isenberg laughed.

The classes are kept relatively small and are held in both the fall and spring.

Isenberg said there is often a misconception that students must be over a certain age to attend a HILL class.

"Because our courses are held in the morning and afternoon, it's pretty much retired people, but we do get some younger people depending on the subject matter," he said.

However, Isenberg said if you are looking for a class in "how to" do something, HILL is not what you are looking for.

"We don't do 'how-to' classes," he said. "We have had photography but more about photography as art and the history of photography as art, but not how to take digital pictures."

Isenberg said they leave that up to the continuing education programs at the school districts.

D'Alauro said being an active lifelong learner has been an enlightening experience for him.

"I wish my college experience was as rich as the one through HILL," he said adding that the courses he has taken have allowed him to explore topics he never had a chance to do.

"It's one thing to pick up a book, but it's different to have a professor in the field presenting the subject," he said.

"You have to wait until you get old to do that," D'Alauro laughed.

The HILL fall semester begins Sept. 23 and each class meets six times for two hours. Courses being offered this semester are The Arab Spring, The Contemporary Novel, The Beatles, Judaism and the Origins of Christianity and the Presidency and Democracy in America. Bethlehem dominates Mohon

Lang scores twice as Eagles soar to a 2-0 start
By SPORTS STAFF
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem boys soccer team improved its record to 2-0 with Saturday's 2-0 Suburban Council South Division win at Mohonasen.

The Eagles controlled the action most of the day, as they out-shot the Mighty Warriors 13-2. However, only Austin Lang found the back of the net for Bethlehem, as he scored both of his team's goals. Mohonasen goaltender Pat Anunziato made six saves to keep his team in the game. Bethlehem goalie Liam Dole needed to make only one save to post the shutout. In another Suburban Council South Division game Saturday, Guilderland (1-1) eased past Columbia 5-0 in its home opener. Connor Rubin tallied twice in the first half, while Chris Connolly and Connor O'Brien added goals for the Dutchmen.

that in the first half, too."

After a scoreless first quarter, CBA broke through early in the second quarter. Wide receiver Alex Koshgarian caught a screen pass from Kolbe and turned down the right sideline for a 30-yard touchdown. Matt Hamel's extra point put the Brothers ahead 7-0.

Kolbe completed another pass on CBA's next offensive series, but it came at a price when he was tackled after releasing the ball. The sophomore quarterback was helped off the field and returned to the sideline for the second half with his left knee wrapped. Kolbe finished the night completing five of his nine passes for 72 yards.

Donald Vivian stepped in for Kolbe, and the Brothers turned to their ground game. Croskey completed the series with a 19-yard touchdown run to make the score 13-0. Vivian – who rushed for 54 yards – broke free for a 39-yard run later in the second quarter, which helped set up a 30-yard field goal by Hamel. Then in the final minute of the first half, long runs by Vivian and Croskey gave Hamel a 27-yard field goal attempt, which the junior kicker drilled between the uprights for a 19-0 lead.

Leach said that his team felt fortunate to be trailing by 19 points at halftime. "If we hadn't limited them to field goals on those last two drives, it would have been impossible to come back," he said.

Clas got Bethlehem back in the game with an 18-yard touchdown run on the Eagles' first series of the second half. CBA answered on its next possession with Marini's 46-yard touchdown run before Clas busted through three defenders on his way to his 55-yard scoring scamper that closed the gap to 26-13.

It was the final highlight for Bethlehem, though. CBA's defense came up with several key plays in the fourth quarter, including an interception by Jason Micelli.

Dutch rally past Scotties

Two Gallo TD passes in final three minutes propel Guilderland

By SPORTS STAFF
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland football team narrowly avoided an opening night loss at Ballston Spa.

The Dutchmen scored twice in the final three minutes to defeat the Scotties 28-21 in last Friday's Empire Division game.

Trailing 21-14, Guilderland quarterback Frank Gallo threw a 92-yard touchdown pass to Joe Cornell to tie the score. Then, Gallo connected with Brad Johson on a 48-yard touchdown pass in the final 30 seconds to put the Dutchmen ahead to stay.

Gallo picked up where he left off last season, when he was Section II's leading passer. The senior threw for 322 yards and three touchdowns to lead Guilderland to the victory.

Ballston Spa took a 21-14 lead on Derek Kolberg's eight-yard touchdown run in the fourth quarter.

Guilderland plays its home opener Thursday against Empire Division opponent Albany.

In other football action last weekend, Ravena-

Coeymans-Selkirk suffered a 17-6 loss to Cohoes, while Fonda-Fultonville defeated Voorheesville 49-12.

Ravena took a 6-0 lead on Fred Pechette's 16-yard touchdown run in the second quarter before Cohoes took control. Max Carey connected with Brandon LaForest on touchdown passes of 65 and 80 yards, and LaForest added a 33-yard field goal to propel the Tigers to the Reinfurt Division victory.

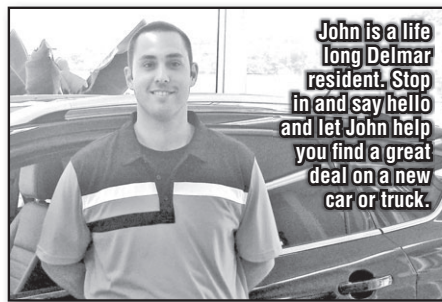

Pechette ran for 108 yards to lead the Indians in their home opener.

Voorheesville was within striking distance of Fonda following Robert Denman's 26-yard touchdown pass to Scott Touchey in the second quarter. But the Braves scored the next five touchdowns to pull away for the victory.

Pat Hart had a 61-yard scoring run and returned a punt 70 yards for another touchdown to lead Fonda.

Ravena travels to Hudson Friday for a Reinfurt Division game, while Voorheesville hosts Cairo-Durham Saturday in Class C South Division action.

Lady Dutch open with two wins

The Guilderland girls soccer team began its 2013 season last Tuesday with a 1-0 victory over Suburban Council South Division rival Bethlehem. Alyssa Kogelmann scored with less than 14 minutes left in the first half to give the Lady Dutch the victory. Guilderland followed up that win with a 5-4 victory over Columbia Saturday. Emma Oliver tallied twice for the Lady Dutch, who rallied from a 3-2 halftime deficit to beat the Blue Devils.

CBA runs over BC

Three tailbacks combine for 269 rushing yards in Brothers' victory

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Christian Brothers Academy entered last Friday's football home opener against Bethlehem minus tailback Max Anthony, who was out with an injury.

Then, the Brothers lost starting quarterback Joe Kolbe less than four minutes into the second quarter with a knee injury.

Yet, CBA kept coming with running back after running back on its way to a 32-13 victory over Empire Division rival Bethlehem.

Three tailbacks combined for 269 yards and three touchdowns to lead the Brothers. Elliot Croskey rushed for a team-high 131 yards, while Nick Marini contributed 86 yards and Nasir Tune added 52 yards.

"We're very confident in our running backs and what they can do," said CBA coach Joe Burke. "We're very deep. There are some kids on the bench who could start for other teams."

CBA's defense also came up big, as it intercepted two Dan Robeson passes and limited Bethlehem tailback Mike Graves to 52 yards on 14 carries.

The Eagles found some success by using fullback Jason Clas as a featured back out of the pistol formation in the second half. Clas had several big runs, including a 55-yard touchdown scamper in the third quarter to pull Bethlehem within 13 points of CBA.

"We started using some motion, and I think that threw them a bit," said Bethlehem coach Rick Leach. "We probably should have done

Burns places third in large school division race

By SPORTS STAFF
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland girls cross country team finished second to Queensbury in the large school division standings at Saturday's Guilderland Invitational at Tawasentha Park.

The Spartans placed five runners in the top 10 to take the team title with 23 points. The Lady Dutch had four runners in the top 10 on their way to a second-place finish with 41 points.

Emily Burns led Guilderland with a third-place finish in a time of 17:05.2, while Jenna Robinson turned in a fourth-place time of 17:24.45. Alyssa Jourdin (seventh place, 18:11.13) and Rebecca Miceli (10th, 18:31.41) also had top-10 performances.

Queensbury's Emily Guinther won the individual title with a time of 16:48.38.

Guilderland's boys team placed fourth in the large school division with 114 points. Collegiate edged Burnt Hills-Ballton Lake 48-51 to defend its Guilderland Invitational title.

Collegiate's Marco Pompilj claimed the large school division individual title with a time of 13:44.94, less than five seconds ahead of Columbia's Kyle Gronostaj. Matt Pasquali (12th place, 15:04.20) was Guilderland's top runner.

Lady Eagles get back to winning ways

Gabby Giaccone leads Bethlehem to victories over Guilderland and Mohonasen

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Bethlehem girls volleyball team is through being part of the pack. The Lady Eagles want to rise to the top of the South Division standings.

"I've been spending the past couple of years rebuilding the program, and now I think we're ready to contend again," said Bethlehem coach Lisa Kniffin.

The Lady Eagles (2-1) graduated seven seniors from last year's 7-6 team, but the nucleus from that team returned intact with seniors Kylie McKenna and Carrie Maniccia, junior Gabby Giaccone and sophomore Shannon Howland.

Giaccone and Howland paced Bethlehem in victories over defending South Division champion Guilderland and Mohonasen last week. Giaccone had 17 kills, and Howland contributed 23 assists in Bethlehem's 25-20, 25-22, 25-19 victory over Guilderland last Tuesday. Then in Friday's 25-15, 25-10, 25-16 win against Mohonasen, Giaccone recorded 12 kills and Howland added 13 assists and four service aces.

Giaccone, who is also a star on Bethlehem's girls basketball team, gives the Lady Eagles an advantage at the net, said Kniffin.

"She is very intimidating to the other teams because of her size and power," said Kniffin. "She could definitely play college volleyball, as well (as basketball)."

Kniffin said Howland also plays a key role as the team's setter.

"That's a lot of pressure to put on a sophomore, but she can definitely do it," said Kniffin. "I think we just need to get a couple more games under her belt, and she'll be fine."

Bethlehem's Gabby Giaccone spikes the ball during last Tuesday's match against Guilderland. Rob Jonas/Spotlight

Three nights of horror

Halloween hasn't even popped onto most people's radar yet, but that doesn't mean it's too early for a dose of horror.

Fantacon 2013 will present three nights of horror at the Palace Theatre. Scheduled are a "Night of the Living Dead" cast reunion on Thursday and a special Friday the 13th celebration. Ari Lehman, the first Jason Voorhees, will be on hand. It's capped off with Zombie Fest on Saturday, Sept. 14, as three zombie classics are screened.

Fantacon 2013 is a convention focusing on horror, comics and fantasy taking place this year at the Albany Marriott Sept. 14 and 15. See www.fantacon.com for more details on both events.

The 17th Annual Irish 2000 Music and Arts Festival features two days of heritage, music and fun at the Saratoga County Fairgrounds

St. Patrick's Day may be months away, but Irish eyes will be smiling when people from all over the area flock to the Saratoga County Fairgrounds for this weekend's 17th Annual Irish 2000 Music and Arts Festival. Known as one of the largest Irish music festivals in the country, the fairgrounds will be the stage for some of the country's most popular Irish music groups.

"We get bands from all over the country ... and all over the world," said Matt Nelligan, the festival's executive director.

Nelligan said that although the festival is a celebration of all things Irish, the festival does tend to focus a lot on the music.

"On Saturday, there are four stages. We have members from Ireland and all over the world," he said. "There is no other festival in this immediate area that does what we do: provide 25 different groups that play every genre of Irish music from traditional to punk, certainly not in one place at the same time for this kind of a price."

Nelligan said the event has a

Fall fun comes to Five Rivers

Annual event, now in its 34th year, highlights what environmental education center has to offer

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

As summer draws to a close, staff at the Five Rivers Environmental Education Center in Delmar are preparing for the start of a new programming year with an annual fall festival.

Now in its 34th year, the Five Rivers Fall Festival is free to the public and filled with activities for all ages. The event is not only meant to showcase the grounds and the center's guided school program, but to thank those in the community who visit Five Rivers throughout the year.

"We have a core group of visitors we see regularly," said Ray Perry, from the Department of Environmental Conservation.

little something to suit all tastes.

“People think it’s an ethnic event because it’s an Irish fest, but one of the great things about Irish music is weather you like rock bands or if you like more traditional or folk ... and we have all the great local groups as well ... and the bagpipes,” he said.

Gaelic Storm, hailing from California, will headline the festival. The group is well known for its below-decks performance in the 1997 blockbuster “Titanic.” Gaelic Storm has since become one of the most popular Irish music groups in the world.

Also taking the stage will be other popular Irish music groups, including

“There were a lot of other areas that had Irish events. The Capital District has one of the largest Irish populations in terms of Irish-American heritage in the country, and yet we didn’t have one.”

Festival Executive Director Matt Nelligan

Shilelagh Law, The Killdares, The McKrells, Hair of the Dog and the Screaming Orphans.

Nelligan said the first festival was put together 16 years ago out of a desire to promote Irish culture, history, music and dance in the Capital District.

“There were a lot of other areas that had Irish events. The Capital District has one of the largest Irish populations in terms of Irish-American heritage in the country, and yet we didn’t have one,” he said. “We thought there was a real need for it.”

The festival has grown since its inaugural event in 1997, when about 3,000 people came out to Heritage Park in Colonie. In 2007, after moving to a larger space at the Altamont Fairgrounds, the festival was lengthened to two days. Since 2009, the Irish festival has been taking place at the Saratoga County Fairgrounds in Ballston Spa and welcomes more than 15,000 visitors each year.

“We have a good crowd in the Capital Region,” Nelligan said. “But people come from all over. We get a lot of people that travel from out of the region.”

Although music is the main focus of the festival, there is no shortage of other activities to enjoy.

“We have over 100 vendors, a great kids area with rides and other things for kids, different kinds of food, local Irish dance schools and bagpiping,” Nelligan said.

He said the festival is sometimes described as a combination festival and fair.

“It’s a good family event. We have the rides, the Celtic Critter Animals, pony rides and all those kinds of things,” he said. “And it’s affordable. Kids 12 and under are free.”

The festival takes place Friday, Sept. 13, and Saturday, Sept. 14, at the Saratoga County Fairgrounds in Ballston Spa. On Friday, gates open

In addition to music, activities like bagpiping will take place throughout the festival. Vendors, rides and dance schools will also be on hand. The Irish 2000 festival started in 1997 as a way to celebrate Irish culture.

Fall recipe: Grilled white nectarine salad with goat cheese

There is still time to take advantage of fair weather fruits in interesting ways, including through this grilled white nectarine salad.

As the fall rolls around and families go back to the hustle of lunchbox packing and schedule juggling, we are taking advantage of all of the seasonal salad blends and using the grill as much as possible.

In my pantry, on one shelf, there are two decorative bowls. One is always filled with apples, the other with the latest seasonal find and the last two weeks it has been a combination of peaches and white nectarines; which I love. And, as a side note, a bunch of bananas (when they aren’t all eaten) sits on the shelf in between the two bowls. As a result of our seasonal finds, we have been using the peaches and nectarines in various recipes.

Although grilled peaches have been an ongoing rage, I actually like grilled white nectarines even better! So, recently I grilled them with a hint of cinnamon and served them in a salad with goat cheese. It was absolutely scrumptious. I recently served this dish again with company and it was a big hit. Both times I hid the extras in the back of the refrigerator and ate them for lunch the following day; they were just as delicious chilled.

- 2 white Nectarines = 4 servings
- 1 1/2 teaspoons Cinnamon
- 1/2 cup Walnuts, finely chopped
- Goat Cheese
- Baby Romaine Leaf Mix
- Balsamic Reduction

Cut the nectarines in half. Remove the pits. Generously add a coating of cinnamon to the cut half of each nectarine. Grill the nectarines over low heat until they are warm, soft and have a nice golden grill mark. Place the warm nectarines, center facing upwards, on to a bed of baby romaine leaf mix. Place approximately 1 tablespoon of goat cheese in the center of each grilled nectarine. Sprinkle the top of the salad with the chopped walnuts. Top the salad off with a decorative and flavorful drizzle of Balsamic Reduction and serve warm.

NYS Writers Institute announces season's Visiting Writers and Classic Film series

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

As the weather cools down the local literary world is heating up, as renowned writers make their way to the University at Albany.

The New York State Writers Institute recently announced its fall semester Visiting Writers Series and Classic Film Series, which kicks off Wednesday, Sept. 11, with fiction writer and essayist Jonathan Lethem and extends until the final event on Dec. 3 with author Ayana Mathis. All of the events are free and open to the public, with most writer events held at UAlbany's Uptown Campus and most films being shown at the university's Downtown Campus in Page Hall.

"The Visiting Writers Series brings many of the best contemporary writers around to Albany for free visits with the audiences and readings. We do these afternoon sessions, too, where the writers talk about their work and answer questions," institute Director Don Faulkner said. "We got a lot of firepower here, but it covers a broad range from history to poetry to fiction writing, even to political writing and biography."

The state Writers Institute, hosted at UAlbany, was founded by Pulitzer Prize-winning novelist William Kennedy in 1983 and the following year Gov. Mario Cuomo signed legislation creating the institute as a state-supported cultural program. Since 1984, Faulkner said the program has been "going at a pretty high pitch," with more than 1,000 writers sharing their work.

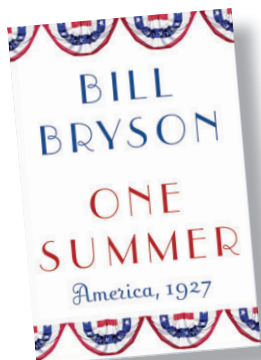

"The institute has been doing this for nearly 30 years and it is really a mainstay of the art scene in the Capital Region and Upstate New York," Faulkner said.

Over the years the program has grown and hosted more events while continuing to attract renowned and prestigious writers.

"The quality has always been part of the profile and we have always worked at the highest level," Faulkner said. "The standard is high and we work to maintain it and make it a valuable experience for our audience and writers they want to know about."

Faulkner said he was impressed with the fall series' diversity of backgrounds and ethnicities of the visiting writers.

Nabbing bestselling

Bill Bryson

nonfiction writer Bill Bryson was a "really big pick up" for the program, Faulkner said.

Bryson will be giving a reading on Saturday, Oct. 5, at 7:30 p.m., at the Clark Auditorium in the New York State Museum's Cultural Education Center in Albany.

"We are very excited to have him," Faulkner said. "He is one of the most engaging ... and easy to read writers that I know of."

Bryson's new book, "One Summer: America, 1927," focuses on a pivotal time in American history, from Charles Lindbergh becoming the first man to fly nonstop across the Atlantic Ocean to Al Capone strengthening his grip on the illegal alcohol industry through murder and government corruption.

Before Bryson, the series will host a conversation between two poets laureate – current New York state Poet Marie Howe and current Vermont poet Sydney Lea – on Tuesday, Sept. 17, at 7:30 p.m.

Howe is a Rochester native living in New York City and was awarded the Lavan Younger Poets Prize of the American Academy of Poets. She recently launched the "Poetry Everywhere" project at New York University, which is an immersive poetry class seeking to put poetry in unexpected public spaces throughout the city.

Lea has authored 11 collections of poetry and this year he released "A North Country Life: Tales of Woodsmen, Waters, and Wildlife." Lea's work tends to focus on "the mystery of the natural world" and rural lifestyle. He serves as president of Downeast Lakes Land Trust, which seeks to create a million-acre wildlife preserve on the border between Maine and the Canadian province of New Brunswick.

Closing out the Visiting Writers Series is novelist Ayana Mathis, author of "The Twelve Tribes of Hattie," which is her first novel and achieved critical acclaim. The book focuses on a family's struggles as African Americans moved from the rural South to the urban North. It was the second selection for Oprah Winfrey's "Book Club 2.0" and is a New York Times bestseller.

Ayana Mathis

"It is her first novel, but it is a very accomplished piece of work,"

The New York State Writers Institute's Visiting Writers Series and Classic Film Series kicks off Wednesday, Sept. 11.

Faulkner said. "Her appearance is sort of designed to come after book clubs have read the book and want to see the author."

He said the institute has been promoting Mathis' book to different book clubs in the area and will be providing discussion materials to clubs.

If you're interested in the cinema, the Classic Film Series kicks off on Friday, Sept. 20, with a screening of "Thurgood," which is about the nation's first black Supreme Court justice. The film captures Laurence Fishburne's Tony-nominated one-man show as Thurgood Marshall.

This focus on Marshall will continue Sept. 26, with 2013 Pulitzer Prize winner Gilbert King, a Niskayuna, who released this year a new biography on Marshall, "Devil in the Grove." The book details Marshall's early career experience defending four black men falsely accused of rape in Florida.

Faulkner said the film series has been going just as long and strong as the writer series.

"We have tried to show classic films and in a lot of ways contemporary classic films that people haven't had time to see," he said. "Things that are not seen on TV and not readily accessed on Netflix-type of opportunities. We are giving access to the real, solid, important list of films from generations ago."

Every year there is a silent film in the series that includes live piano accompaniment. This fall Mike Schiffer will be playing piano as the German film "People On Sunday" is screened on Sept. 27 at 7:30 p.m.

Niskayuna native Ben Coccio will hold a discussion after a screening of the film he co-wrote, "The Place Beyond The Pines," with the event starting earlier at 7 p.m. Coccio will also hold an informal seminar on screenwriting at 4:15 p.m. in the Science Library Room 340 earlier that day.

"The film is a big film, so it's something we are very happy to be doing," Faulkner said. "There is a 70-foot screen, so it is a screening situation that has never been had when it was shown in the area. It has always been shown in the multiplexes, which at most are a 25- to 30-foot screen."

Faulkner, who has been director of the institute for around 12 years, said he has enjoyed getting to meet and talk with all of the writers, with some being friends and others people he has always wanted to meet.

He also enjoys the process of trying to organize the series annually, which involves a "very concentrated effort of planning." He said the program doesn't have a lot of staff members, but the people at the institute are "the best at what they do."

"To see it actually take place and to see people come and learn something and enjoy it, to see people want to buy books and read them, there is a lot of pleasure in that," he said. "The sense of community has always been what the Writers Institute is about."

Visit the Writers Institute's website at www.albany.edu/writers-institute for more information on either of the series, including event dates and details.

☐ Fall

"It's good to see them come back and be committed, but the Fall Festival brings us people who we haven't seen the rest of the year or may be their first introduction to the site."

Five Rivers is open year-round, and has more than 10 miles of hiking, snowshoeing or cross-country skiing trails for public use on its 450 acres. Thousands of students take field trips to the center every school year.

The festival is a collaborative effort between the state DEC and the Friends of Five Rivers group. About 2,000 people attend the event each year.

An important component of the Fall Festival is education. Environmental experts will be on hand with exhibits and live animals to teach attendees of all ages about the natural world.

Submitted photos

This year's events include hands-on activities like learning how to use a sweep-net to catch insects and casting a fishing pole. There will also be up-close experiences with live animals and interactive, environmental exhibits. Children who attend will be able to meet Smokey the Bear and the Five River's Otter, and there are also be naturalist-led family hikes at regular intervals featuring geology, botany and wildlife.

“Like our recently retired executive director said, the festival is a compendium of greatest hits,” said Perry. “It’s a little of everything we offer at Five Rivers, so there’s something for everyone.”

The day also features live music from two local bands, Nisky Dixie Cats and the Acoustic Hartland, along with light refreshments and games.

Organizers hope the festival helps boost group membership and entices new members of the community to visit the grounds. Much of the educational programming at the center is volunteer driven through the Friends of Five Rivers, who work with the small staff there.

“The big effort here is to connect families, especially those with young children, so they become aware of the outdoors and want to experience what Five Rivers has to offer,” said Jan Messina, chairwoman of the Fall Festival organizational team.

Messina said it's important for children to begin learning about the environment at a young age so they are more likely to appreciate the planet.

“These are lessons

they can carry with them throughout their life," she said. "We only have one planet and we need to keep it as clean as possible."

Activities held during the festival also help to raise money for the center's new Guided School Program Building.

The building was partially funded through the Friends of Five Rivers and the family of Wendy Repass Suozzo. The building is intended to be a memorial to Suozzo, who founded the Guided School Program while working as an environmental educator with the DEC. The program is meant to teach children about the importance of respecting their environment.

Guided tours of the new building will be given. It is typically closed to the public.

To raise money for the Friends of Five Rivers organization and the Guided School Program, a plant sale, bake sale and raffle will take place at the festival.

The Fall Festival will take place from noon to 4 p.m. on Saturday, Sept. 21, rain or shine. Parking is free and there is no admission fee, but food, drinks, gifts and other items will be on sale.
