Boy Scouts from Bethlehem Troop 75 spoke out against the town's temporary sign law on Wednesday, Oct. 9 at Town Hall. The troop said they believe profits from their annual fundraiser went down 15 percent last year because they lost prime advertising space.

Troop says updated law hurt last year's Sportsmart sales

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

A local Boy Scout troop have become publically critical of the Town of Bethlehem's temporary sign law, saying the rules have made a dent in sales at its annual fundraiser.

Members from Bethlehem Troop 75 said sales for their annual Sportsmart event held each year at Bethlehem High School decreased by 15 percent in 2012. On Wednesday, Oct. 9, Scouts and troop leaders said they believe sales were down because they were unable to advertise along major roadways due to the town's temporary sign law.

"Route 32 is one of our most effective and visible places to put these signs," said Scout Chris Schimdt, adding the troop doesn't want to see sales continue to decrease this year.

The town passed a new sign law in June of 2012 following complaints from some nonprofit groups that their signs were being removed by the town. The

DiMaggio says more can be done to support youth sports in Bethlehem

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

Republican Bethlehem supervisor hopeful Fred DiMaggio is seizing upon recent controversies involving town youth sporting in his latest campaign initiative.

The former Republican Committee chairman said if elected, he would like to start a town-wide Youth Sports Council, which would work to give greater support to all of the town's sporting programs.

"I was approached by different sports organizations who had frustrations dealing with the town and/or school district," said DiMaggio.

"They wanted help fixing the fields of play and ran into a roadblock."

DiMaggio has been outspoken in his support of the Bethlehem Soccer Club's bid to build an indoor soccer dome at its property on Wemple Road. That organization is now headed up by former Republican Town Board candidate Jeremy Martelle.

Political campaigns were required to file financial disclosures with the New York State Board of Elections on Friday, Oct. 4, detailing activities since the last required report. What follows is a rundown of local campaign financial activity during that time period, including that campaign’s largest expenditure during that time.

Candidates marked with an asterisk (*) were in a primary, and records cover a roughly two-week period since the required post-primary filing. Records for candidates who did not run in a primary cover a much longer period of time, from mid-July. All cash-on-hand figures use the latest available data.

McCoy offers county budget below cap

Proposal would fund nursing home only to June 2014, planning on LDC takeover

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Albany County would stick to the state's tax cap for the first time under County Executive Dan McCoy's proposed budget for 2014, but the fiscal plan hinges on funding the county nursing home for only the first six months of the year.

McCoy released his 2014 Executive Budget to county legislators on Tuesday, Oct. 8. It proposes a 1.6 percent tax levy increase and appropriations totaling more than $574 million. The budget includes a three-year financial plan to bolster general fund reserves, with $150,000 added next year and $1.97 million in 2015.

The county nursing home would only be funded until the end of June under the budget plan, resulting in a savings of more than $17 million in associated health care expenses in the second half of the year.

"We have to tackle our deficit, which is $243 million," McCoy said. "We have to start knocking that down."

There are 42 existing vacancies that would be eliminated in McCoy's budget for around $2 million in savings. Twenty-one are corrections officer and 21 are nursing home staff. McCoy said there are no layoffs included in his budget.

Sales tax revenue is scheduled to remain relatively steady at $243 million.

McCoy said savings were also achieved through reorganizing departments, enhancing partnerships and shared services, revenue recovery and other efficiencies.

McCoy said he hopes to maintain the county's credit rating, as well. In September 2011, Moody's Investor Services dropped the county's credit rating from Aa2 to Aa3. Moody's reaffirmed its rating over the summer.

"We have to strive to make a profit even though we are not in the business to make a profit," McCoy said. "By doing things differently ... that helped us achieve the 1.6 percent."

The legislature's Majority Leader Frank Commisso said it was "good" McCoy was able to present a budget below the county's tax cap, but said legislators will still need to review the proposal.

"It is going to take some time for the finance committee and members of the legislature to take a look at where things are," Commisso said.

Minority Leader Christine Benedict could not immediately be reached for comment.

McCoy said his proposed budget doesn't contain any "one-shot wonders" and holds "true savings" without "draconian cuts." His budget would raise taxes by $15 for a $200,000 home.

"My budget plan outlines the path for financial health for the next three years," said McCoy in a statement. "Through partnership and compromise, I've proposed a budget that will cost the average homeowner an additional $1.25 per month, while adding money to the county's reserves and solving the longstanding nursing home crisis with the establishment by the legislature of their LDC (local development corporation)."

McCoy has long said operating the nursing home is costing the county approximately $1 million per month, and that the burden needs to be lifted off taxpayers.

The six-month timetable for the nursing

"We have to strive to make a profit even though we are not in the business to make a profit."

— County Executive Dan McCoy

home change means county legislators will need to decide how to transfer operations of the nursing home to the LDC, which holds no funds or assets at the moment.

Commisso said "it's hard to say" whether the LDC would be ready to take over the nursing home at that time. The biggest hold up could be receiving a certificate of need from the state.

"Sometimes it could linger for months and sometimes it goes on for a year or more before the certificate of need is issued," Commisso said. "I am sure there will be a lot of discussion regarding the nursing home and how we proceed from this point and taking a look from where the money would be to continue it throughout the year."

Commisso said the timetable is "achievable" if the state makes it a priority and "everything falls in place properly."

Commisso stressed the importance of operating the nursing home and said it costs a resident about "a cup of coffee" per day.

"We also have to realize the nursing home is an important piece of government," he said. "It takes care of many, many people and those in need of health care, veterans who are returning home. These are things I myself and many of the members are not going to walk away from. It is part of county government and it is part of our mission, and it always has been."

Taxpayers would

Albany County Executive Dan McCoy released his 2014 budget proposal to legislators Tuesday, Oct. 8, afternoon that keeps the county within its state imposed tax levy limit.
John Purcell/Spotlight

still be paying for the nursing home through an LDC, but making it "more professionalized" would lower the cost to a more manageable level, according to Commisso.

"If it were to cost $4 to $5 million per year, that would not be a big issue," he said.

Nearly a year ago, McCoy proposed turning over the nursing home to Upstate Services Group LLC, but legislators rejected his idea in favor of creating an LDC to run the facility. Though McCoy agreed with the legislature's plan, he said he "still favored" USG taking over the home.

"Two things are very important: protecting our seniors and accepting responsibility and giving breaks to the taxpayers," McCoy said.

McCoy said he is trying to give taxpayers relief while spurring economic development that leads to jobs.

If the legislature were to opt to continue funding the nursing home for the remainder of next year, McCoy said the legislature would have to add $6.2 million to the tax levy. This would lead the levy to increase by 8.5 percent, exceeding the tax cap, unless other reductions were made or revenues were added.

The June 30 cutoff is a year from the creation of the LDC, McCoy argued. He said the timetable is not meant to push legislators towards his plan.

"If it works, I don't mind standing there and telling them it works," he said. "As long as I protect the seniors and relieve the taxpayers, that's all I care about. Under my plan, it happens."

There will be a public hearing on the 2014 Executive Budget scheduled before the end of the month.

Police Blotter

Police: Delmar man used cab as getaway car

After picking up a Delmar man in Albany, an alert taxi driver notified police his passenger had allegedly burglarized a home and retuned to the cab wanting a ride back to the city, according to police.

Guilderland police arrested Frank Richard Markus, 50, of 489 Orchard St. in Delmar, and charged him with burglary in the second degree for allegedly burglarizing the home of a 90-year-old man.

Markus had a taxi driver transport him to a house on Wormer Road in Guilderland on Thursday, Oct. 10, police said. Markus then allegedly entered the home and returned to the cab with a jar of change. Police said the elderly man was at home during the burglary and confronted Markus. Markus did not threaten or injure the homeowner, according to police.

After returning to the cab, Markus allegedly asked the driver for a ride back to Albany, but the driver drove him to the Price Chopper in the Hamilton Square Plaza. Markus allegedly cashed in the change at the supermarket, police said.

The taxi driver called police after dropping off Markus and police detained and arrested him.

Markus was arraigned in Guilderland Town Court and remanded to the Albany County Correctional Facility.

Police: GHS student crashes into school bus

A 17-year-old Guilderland high school student allegedly crashed her car into a district school bus after failing to yield the right of way, according to police.

Guilderland police said the crash occurred shortly before 4 p.m. on Thursday, Oct. 10, at the corner of routes 158 and 146 in Guilderland Center. Capt. Curtis Cox said the crash appears to have occurred because the student driver made a left turn at the stop sign and did not yield to the school bus. Cox said the school bus driver attempted to avoid the collision but T-boned the car and forced the vehicle off the opposite side of the road.

The school bus, which was not full-sized, sustained front-end damage, but the student's car sustained "extensive damage" to the driver's side of the vehicle. The Jaws of Life was used to extricate the student from her car and an ambulance transported her to Albany Medical Center. Police said she appeared to have sustained some hip or pelvic injury.

The passengers on the school bus included a middle school student and a bus attendant. Both passengers, along with the bus driver, were examined by emergency responders on the scene and released, police said.

Police are still investigating the cause of the crash and no charges were immediately filed.

The Altamont Police Department, Guilderland paramedics and the Altamont rescue squad assisted the Guilderland Police Department. The Guilderland Center and Altamont fire departments assisted in extricating the car driver.

Traffic stop leads to heroin arrest

Coeymans Police arrested Latrell Seals, 28, of Hannacroix on Wednesday, Oct. 9, on a charge of criminal possession of a controlled substance with intent to sell, a Class B Felony.

Police accused Seals of possessing approximately 5 grams of heroin. Seals was initially stopped for making a turn without signaling, according to police. The officer then determined that Seals' license was suspended. Police said when the officer asked Seals to exit the vehicle, he began to act in a suspicious manner and appeared to be trying to conceal drugs in his mouth. The officer took him into custody. Police said they later discovered Seals had drugs hidden on his body.

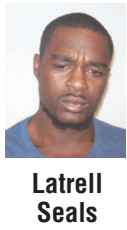

In addition to the felony drug possession charge, Seals was also charged with tampering with physical evidence and several vehicle and traffic charges. Seals was arraigned before Ravena Village Justice Harold Warner and remanded to Albany County jail without bail.

Other arrests

Guilderland police arrested Abraham J. Tolmie, 24, of 110 Glen Ave. in Scotia, at 11:35 p.m. on Friday, Oct. 4, and charged him with DWI, operating a motor vehicle without an inspection certification and equipment violations. Tolmie was driving westbound on Western Avenue and was stopped by police because his driver side tires were completely blown out down to the metal rim and sparking. Police said he allegedly had vomit on the front of his shirt, the odor of alcohol on his breath and showed impaired motor coordination slurred speech, bloodshot eyes and was "not aware of where he was." A chemical breath test revealed a BAC of 0.16 percent. Police said he was unable to be fingerprinted due to his "intoxicated condition." Tolmie was released to his parents and was scheduled to appear in Town Court on Thursday, Oct. 17.

State Police arrested James Burton, 52, of Delmar, on Thursday, Oct. 10 and charged him with felony computer trespass after if was discovered Burton allegedly used a "limited administer account" to change the passwords of other accounts without authorization. Police said Burton was working for the New York State Office of Information Technology Services at the Swan Street offices in Albany as a private contractor through a contract with C&C Consulting. The limited administrator account was immediately disabled upon discovery of his unauthorized action, police said Burton was issued an appearance ticket scheduled for Albany City Court later this month. The investigation is continuing.

Letters to the Editor

One party rule does not serve the people

Editor, The Spotlight:

Bethlehem has a long history of one party rule. First it was the Republicans and now it is the Democrats. To have one party rule, a party just has to be in the majority and vote along party lines. I am a legislator in the Albany County Legislature where there are 39 members, 29 of those members are Democrats or affiliated parties so it is a Democratic controlled Legislature. There is nothing wrong with having a majority as long as the group puts the needs of the constituents first. But it is a political area and unfortunately politics are about control and control often trump's needs.

In my opinion, a governing body is meant to be made up of representatives who serve the people. A place where differences of opinions can be voiced and decisions made in the best interest of the people. Politics and party affiliation should not play a role, but it does and I think to the detriment of those it serves.

The Town of Bethlehem

voters have a unique opportunity this year. We have a coalition ticket made up of a Republican, a Conservative and a member of the Independence Party. Fred DiMaggio is a Republican running for the town supervisor, Linda Jasinski (Conservative) and Dan Cunningham (Independence) is running for Town Board. These candidates are putting party politics aside and putting the people's needs first. It is commonly thought that Town Hall politics tend to favor central Delmar and that the outer lying areas in the south and north get little attention. As the county legislator from the south end of Bethlehem, I tend to agree with that assessment. Because residents in my part of Bethlehem feel so underrepresented in Town Hall, as a member of the Bethlehem Governance Committee, I strongly supported the establishment of wards so that all areas would have some representation.

The coalition slate of DiMaggio, Jasinski and Cunningham solve this geographic issue. Each of these candidates comes from a different part of the town. Now all parts of the town would be represented by elected officials who have knowledge of their area.

We all want to be proud of our town. Let's elect candidates who put people before politics. Let's elect candidates who represent the whole town. Join me in voting for Fred DiMaggio for supervisor and Linda Jasinski and Dan Cunningham for Town Board.

Richard Mendick
Albany County
Legislator, 36th District

Cunningham the right man for Town Board

Editor, The Spotlight:

Voting is about "choice" and this year we can choose from among a field of dedicated candidates for the Bethlehem Town Council. Newcomer Dan Cunningham, who is running for the Board, offers a unique record of experience and accomplishment that recommends him for this position.

Cunningham has lengthy experience in finance, early stage investing, governmental accounting, education and, more recently, community organizing. Earlier this year he co-lead a grass-roots campaign of organized opposition to Town Referendum No. 1 which would have stripped us of our voting rights. As we all know Dan and his partners in the "Vote No" effort prevailed and our voting rights were preserved.

Dan is running on a platform that includes: cutting taxes; restructuring the Bethlehem Industrial Agency to stop the tax giveaways; and an economic development plan that monetizes commercial areas that already exist within the town.

Cunningham has a record of results in his career and in service to the electorate in Bethlehem. His campaign platform offers an action plan for moving Bethlehem forward to a brighter future. For my money, Dan is the man with the plan and I urge you to vote for him on Nov. 5.

An independent choice

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am an Independence Party member and an Independence Party committee person. When I go to the polls I vote for the candidate running for election based on their qualifications. That includes not only their technical skills, but also their leadership abilities, and their involvement and commitment to their community. On Nov. 5 my vote for highway superintendent is going to be for Brent Meredith.

His more than 2-to-1 win in the Democratic primary is testament to the community recognizing his qualifications. He is a highly educated professional engineer, graduating from Clarkson University and continuing with graduate work at Virginia Tech. Mr. Meredith managed multi-million dollar projects as a civil and environmental engineer for the Federal government and as a U.S. Army Engineer Officer. He is committed to service: five years as a Delmar firefighter; as an Army National Guard Engineer Officer; and, with four children in Bethlehem schools, participating in multiple (probably an understatement) school and sports activities.

In short, he brings the knowledge, skills, and abilities that we in Bethlehem should always want in our elected officials. Bethlehem voters chose to have the highway superintendent be an elected position. Now we need to choose the right person to fill this position. Brent Meredith is that person.

Letters to the Editor

Clarkson’s record shows the real ‘results’

Editor, The Spotlight:

Our Town Supervisor John Clarkson in his re-election bid touts his “results.” But let’s look at his true results.

- Mr. Clarkson attempted to eliminate the elected position of highway superintendent and make it appointed so he could control who was hired for that position. To insure the referendum was passed the referendum vote was done as a special election, off cycle from any other election and was limited to one voting site, Town Hall, in an attempt to keep South and North Bethlehem voters away from the polls. Clarkson had misread the citizen’s sentiment and the referendum was soundly defeated by over 60 percent of the votes.
- The supervisor and Town Board members attempted to pass a resolution in support of the SAFE Act without public comment or hearing. When many citizens came to speak against the SAFE Act the support resolution was withdrawn, but that didn’t stop Supervisor Clarkson and board member Bill Reinhardt from writing and signing a letter of support for the SAFE Act, which was published in The Spotlight. They violated the public trust by taking a position, in their elected capacity, without public input or consent.

- Town services have been reduced. The hours of the transfer station have been significantly reduced. The compost facility had been closed. Only after objections from many town residents did the supervisor reinstate limited hours at the compost facility. These moves have affected many town residents and again demonstrate the supervisor and Town Board lack of sensitivity and understanding of town issues.
- Town taxes rose over 11.3 percent last year. Is it any surprise that this year, an election year with the supervisor running for re-election, that the tax increase was a modest 1.23 percent. In the proposed 2014 budget, however, taxes are projected to increase 2 percent a year over the following three years.
- The Town Board and supervisor enacted a local law against signs that is so restrictive that even not-for-profits, like the Boy Scouts, cannot advertise for their fundraiser.

Can the residents of Bethlehem afford another two years of this type of misrepresentation? It is time for a change to a more representative type of government that understand the needs of the town of Bethlehem residents.

I will be voting for Fred DiMaggio for supervisor, and Dan Cunningham and Linda Jansinski for Town Board. These candidates come from three different areas of Bethlehem and know the needs of the people. They come from three different political parties and will put the needs of the town residents before political allegiances. This “Bethlehem United” slate believes in listening to the people and has been holding meetings across town to answer questions and hear town residents’ concerns.

The Town needs quality people who are knowledgeable, experienced and caring. The town needs DiMaggio, Cunningham and Janinski.

A message to all

Bethlehem voters

Kelly for justice

Editor, The Spotlight:

In the last two years John Clarkson has managed town government with skill, openness, efficiency and compassion. His vision led us to fiscal stability while, at the same time, maintaining and enhancing services that benefit our entire town. John Clarkson’s leadership style brought the expertise of many of our citizens to Town Hall to participate in a variety of volunteer committees and initiatives. He implemented operational and management efficiencies that resulted in a $776,000 award to the town. He has worked to correct and eliminate some of the fiscal tricks used in the past to shuffle, postpone and hide fiscal responsibilities.

In addition to getting the annual budgets under control, John has implemented multi-year budget planning and presented a capital plan to address essential long-term needs of our aging infrastructure as well as quality-of-life planning issues. We can all appreciate John’s determination and success in “right sizing” our workforce and expenses while seeking greater efficiency and increased revenues.

John has also taken a forward looking approach to the town’s economic development and planning. From an innovative sign ordinance that reduced roadside clutter to tree plantings and sidewalks as well as openness and availability of numerous meetings, he has encouraged community involvement and fostered initiatives to keep our town attractive.

We all have opinions about government, budgets, taxes and municipal responsibilities and I think, using whatever measures you use to formulate your own opinion, you will conclude that John Clarkson has put our town in a better place in the last two years. In the next few weeks we will see political assertions from others - check their arithmetic, look at the shallowness of their promises, and challenge their deceptive practices. Most of all, compare their one-line assertions with John Clarkson’s accomplishments. We should all welcome, with enthusiasm, another two years of John Clarkson as Town Supervisor.

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am a candidate for Bethlehem town judge, having been nominated by both the Conservative and Independence parties.

The Town Court handles matters in three separate areas – traffic, criminal, and civil claims. The person elected town judge should have broad-based experience in each of these practice areas.

Traffic matters are the least complicated. Nearly all lawyers have experience in traffic matters, and I have represented clients in this capacity for more than 30 years.

More complex, and far more important to public safety, is the court’s jurisdiction over criminal matters. In criminal cases originating in the town, the court handles preliminary issues and retains jurisdiction through final disposition of misdemeanors and violations. Experience in criminal matters is vital to a town judge’s ability to properly carry out his or her responsibilities. I have over 30 years of experience handling criminal cases in Town Court, County Court, and the United States District Court. I have also handled appeals addressing matters of criminal and constitutional law in New York’s highest court, the Court of Appeals. Experience in these matters, I submit, is essential for a town judge.

The third area of responsibility is the civil jurisdiction of the court, including small claims and matters involving disputes between neighbors and small businesses. These are the same types of matters for which I have worked as an appointed arbitrator in Albany City Court for the last 20 years. I have heard parties present their claims in more than 100 cases, and my decisions have repeatedly been adopted as the final judgment of the Court. Experience in this capacity will provide the litigants and the Town Court with a decision maker who is not new to the process. In addition, my 34 years of experience as a lawyer has resulted in my receiving the designation of Super Lawyer, Civil Litigation from my peers in the Albany community. This designation validates my qualifications for this office.

The three candidates for town judge are all lawyers, and determining the qualifications of each requires an evaluation of the above three areas, as well as an evaluation of the intangible – the candidate’s temperament and dedication to the community. In that regard, in the 29 years I have lived in Delmar, I have been involved in organizations from Tri-Village Little League to the Bethlehem Democratic Committee. I have been the President of both the Bethlehem Central Athletic Association and the Capital Region Cornell Club. My commitment to the community is longstanding. I have been committed to the progress of this community and remain so.

Please vote for me on the Conservative or Independence line on Nov. 5.

Letters to the Editor

Hyer most qualified candidate

Editor, The Spotlight:

I am writing to convey my strong support for Howard Hyer, who is clearly the most qualified of the candidates seeking the office of Bethlehem Highway Superintendent.

One of the most important aspects of the highway superintendent's job is to effectively supervise a staff of approximately 60 employees. Howard is the only candidate who has actual supervisory experience with the current staff of highway department employees, and thus we know that he will be able to handle this important task because he has already demonstrated that he can. Moreover, Howard will be in the best position to have the ongoing respect of the highway department staff because he has worked along side of them in all aspects of their work and he has already shown his capabilities as a manager as he advanced through the supervisory ranks during his 21 years with the Highway Department. He is the only candidate who has this real world, hands-on experience in doing and managing all of the various tasks needing to be done in this town on any given day.

In addition, Howard is committed to using the most efficient methods, tools and analytical techniques available in order to maximize how much work gets done, while still maintaining safety for the public and the staff, and within the limited budget resources available to the department each year. Although the office of highway superintendent is still an elected position, this is not a position where personal political connections and affiliations are more important than the actual knowledge, expertise, and experience to get the job done each day.

I urge all of the voters of the Town of Bethlehem to think long and hard about what it really takes to handle the important job of highway superintendent, and then compare the knowledge, expertise, and actual hands-on experience that each of the candidates offers. There is no doubt whatsoever that Howard Hyer stands ready to assume the full range of responsibilities of the job on what could be a very stormy Jan. 1, 2014, or any given day thereafter.

Let the truth be told

Editor, The Spotlight:

Supervisor Clarkson, leader of the so-called "Bethlehem Reform Democrats," and his cronies in the group have been successful during the past two years in duping those who supported them. The group advocated for transparency and participation within the Bethlehem Democratic Committee, but once they gained control quite the opposite has been their practice.

The fact is in 2012 when the committee convened to elect officers, the newly elected "reform group" committee members occupied fewer committee seats but had a majority of the weighted vote. Nevertheless, the "reformers," with their overseer looking on, demanded and insisted on a secret vote, contrary to the transparent show-of-hands or voice votes that had worked so well for years and had been common practice.

The fact is Matthew Clyne admirably led the committee for many years and worked tirelessly to see the day Democrats were elected to town offices and ultimately to supervisor. Fellow Democrats were always encouraged to participate in the intensive work of the committee but few ever voluntarily stepped forward to serve. The supervisor chose not to be actively involved, but in 2011 during candidate interviews he gave the impression he was entitled to be fed the party endorsement for supervisor on a silver spoon.

The fact is the "reformers" controlled committee this year engaged in the exact same process as they criticized for endorsing candidates for public office. Unfortunately, the supervisor seemed unwilling to accept the committee endorsements and failed to openly and actively support all the party candidates.

The fact is the most recent committee meeting was held on Primary Day which prevented those committee members who work as election inspectors from attending. Coincidence? Doubtful!

The fact is the "reformers" are making a mess of the Democratic Committee, our town departments and the quality of life we have enjoyed for generations. I encourage all voters to turn out on Election Day to oppose and reject the "reformers" because the supervisor and his group, if given the chance, will again attempt to take away our right to vote and to eliminate vital services.

The fact is for the supervisor and his cronies the only "reforms" they seek are control of power, self-aggrandizement and citizen disenfranchisement.

Reform? What reform? The supervisor's motto of "Modernize and Economize" translates to "ME".

Don't be fooled again. The "great and powerful Oz" is uncurtained.

Tour Guilderland’s memory lane

Join Guilderland Historical Society’s photo archivist, Mary Ellen Johnson, at the Guilderland Public Library on Friday, Nov. 22, at 2 p.m, for a slideshow tour of buildings that once lined the town’s main roads but now exist only in memory and old photographs.

Using slides from the historical society’s extensive collection, Johnson will share photos of a variety of long-gone structures. How and why these landmarks disappeared and what stands in their place will be discussed. Register for this program online, in person or by phone 456-2400, ext. 2.

Learn the latest in breast cancer treatment

Dr. Valerie Brutus, an Albany Medical Center specialist in breast surgery and in the treatment of both benign and malignant breast tumors, will present an informative program on breast cancer – from prevention, to detection and treatment – at the Guilderland Public Library on Saturday, Nov. 23, at 6 p.m. This is an essential program for any woman who wants to be proactive about maintaining her health. When actress Angelina Jolie announced her decision to have a preventive double mastectomy after learning she carried BRCA-1, the gene that greatly raises the risk of breast cancer, the news generated much discussion of the issue; Dr. Brutus appeared on WNYT Channel 13 News to provide some perspective on Jolie’s decision to have the risk-reducing surgery. Call 456-2400, ext. 2 to register for this consumer health event.

A breast cancer survivor’s story

Local author Connie Bramer will tell how she triumphed over breast cancer at a special “Breast Cancer Awareness Month” program at the Guilderland Public Library on Friday, Oct. 18, at 6 p.m. Ms. Bramer will relate how she stayed sane by blogging about her breast-cancer treatment experience and then gathered those thoughts in a book, “How Connie Got Her Rack Back,” filled with laugh-out-loud humor. She will share some of the funny and poignant moments of self-discovery on her way to good health. The author will have copies of her book available for purchase.

Annual holiday bus trip to NYC

The Guilderland Chamber of Commerce and the library are again co-sponsoring the annual holiday bus trip to New York City, on Saturday, Dec. 7. The bus leaves the library parking lot precisely at 7:30 a.m. and will drop you off near the New York Public Library (42nd Street & 5th Avenue) about 10:30 a.m. You will get to see the sights, lights, and heights of Manhattan all dressed up for the holiday season without the hassle of driving down and back. You must reserve your seats by Nov. 1. Reserve by calling Erika at the Chamber at 456-6611, or emailing egauthier@guilderlandchamber.com. Cost is just $40 per person.

Authors to speak about Hudson Valley in the Ice Age

The Hudson Valley is a landscape that has defined America. It has itself been defined by ice—the slow, inexorable advance and retreat of a grinding glacier a half-mile thick. Robert and Johanna Titus, authors of “The Hudson Valley in the Ice Age: a geological history and tour,” will give an illustrated talk about the formation of our region’s mountains, rivers, falls, lakes, dunes and deltas at Bethlehem Public Library this Sunday, Oct. 20, at 2 p.m. A question and answer session, book sale and book signing will follow.

Robert Titus, Ph.D., is a paleontologist who has done considerable professional research on the fossils of upstate New York. He teaches in the geology department at Hartwick College. His previous books, “The Catskills: A Geological Guide” (3rd edition, 2004), “The Catskills in the Ice Age” (revised edition, 2003), and “The Other Side of Time: Essays by “The Catskill Geologist” (2007) were published by Purple Mountain Press.

Johanna Titus holds a Master’s degree in molecular biology. She teaches in the Allied Health and Biological Sciences Department at SUNY Dutchess. Robert and Johanna write regular columns for Kaatskill Life magazine, the Register Star newspaper chain and the Woodstock Times.

Book authors will give an illustrated talk about the Ice Age at the Bethlehem Library on Sunday, Oct. 20.

Applying to college

Decision time is fast approaching for high school seniors looking to attend college. Jill Rifkin returns to the library to guide parents and high school students through the labyrinthine college application process next Monday, Oct. 21, at 7 p.m. Find out how to select challenging high school courses, write persuasive essays, choose meaningful extracurricular and community service activities, survive standardized testing, and highlight special talents. Rifkin will also discuss the pros and cons of early decision vs. regular application, and conduct an optional mock college interview.

Rifkin is an independent college counselor and founder/head of College Options in Delmar.

Subject to credit approval. Your actual APR and payment amount will vary based on your credit qualifications, loan amount, term, occupancy, lien position, collateral and whether or not you are eligible for and/or choose to take advantage of the available discounts. Refinance transactions that equal or exceed 100% of your current KeyBank debt may be eligible for this offer. <sup>1</sup>The advertised APR is available for a limited time to our most creditworthy applicants and reflects multiple available discounts including waiver of the $125 origination fee, and a 0.25% rate discount for choosing automatic deduction of payments from a KeyBank checking or savings account. The APR is based on a loan amount of $50,000.00, with a 180-month term and a monthly payment of $369.59. The payment example does not include amounts for taxes and premiums for required insurance. Hazard and (if applicable) flood insurance are required on the real property securing the loan. If your loan terminates for any reason within 36 months, an early-termination fee not to exceed $450 will apply. Closing cost waiver applies on loan applications of $250,000.00 or less. Loans above $250,000.00 pay title insurance premium from $12.50 - $2,859.00. NY and FL loans above $250,000.00 pay mortgage tax and doc stamps. <sup>2</sup>The advertised APR is available for a limited time to our most creditworthy applicants and reflects multiple discounts including: a waiver of the $125 origination fee, a 0.25% rate discount for a qualified green vehicle, and a 0.25% rate discount for choosing automatic deduction of payments from a KeyBank checking or savings account. The advertised APR is based on a loan amount of $25,000.00 with a 72-month term and a monthly payment of $375.83 and reflects the discounts mentioned above. If the loan is paid off in the first 18 months there will be a $150 fee for prepayment. The qualifications for each discount must be met before being applied to your loan rate. ### The authors are coming

You can mingle with the two dozen Albany County authors who are coming to the Guilderland Public Library's local author book fair on Saturday, Oct. 19. No need to register, no need to sign up; just come to the fair and meet your soon-to-be favorite local writers.

While "mingle time" with the authors starts at 2 p.m. and lasts until 4 p.m., the event officially kicks off at 1 p.m. with a very special keynote interview with New YorkTimes bestselling author, and Guilderland's own, Joseph E. Persico, who's crafted a wealth of historic works, notably his latest, Roosevelt's Centurions: FDR and the Commanders He Led to Victory in World War II.

Each author will bring copies of their works, a particularly opportune time for you to get in some early holiday shopping.

Learn more about health care options

On Wednesday, Oct. 23 and Friday, Oct. 25, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., Healthy Capital District Initiative will be holding private meetings with patrons to discuss health care options. This will include the Healthcare Marketplace, as well as other options that may be available. The representatives from HCDI are trained navigators for the Affordable Healthcare Act and will be able to help you fill out whatever paperwork or online forms needed to register for this new state-based health insurance exchange. Due to high demand, we are asking that you call ahead to register. Please call the library at 765-2791 to schedule an appointment.

What is the Trans Adirondack Route?

On Wednesday, Oct. 23 at 6:30 p.m., we will be welcoming Erik Schlimmer, hiker and founder of the Trans Adirondack Route. Erik will give a presentation highlighting the history, ecology and preservation of the Adirondack Park, as well as photographs of his personal trek traversing the entire park. His guidebook and maps will also be available, so you can follow his footsteps across the largest park in the United States.

Shopping on Amazon.com for the Holidays?

If you'll be shopping at Amazon.com this holiday season, please remember to start on our library home page, www.voorheesvillelibrary.org. Click the Amazon box and our Friends of the Library will receive a portion of every dollar spent.

Renew Overdues Online

Overdue items can now be renewed online as long as there is not a reserve list for the items. Any fines that are due will be added to the cardholder's account.

NYC Bus Trip

Saturday, Dec. 7 is the date for the Friends of the Library bus trip to NYC. The bus will leave from the Voorheesville Elementary School parking lot at 7 a.m. and arrive at Bryant Park in NYC at 10 a.m. For the return trip, we will be leaving NYC at 7 p.m. and arrive back in Voorheesville at 10 p.m. The FOL bus trips always fill quickly, so stop by the library at your earliest convenience. The price is $35 FOL members/$40 non- members. Paid reservations will be accepted at the circulation desk at the library.

Hall Gallery and Display Case

Stop in and admire the works of our October artist of the month, Barbara Meilinger. Barbara has graciously agreed to display her incredible quilt collection. If you love beautiful handiwork, you won't want to miss this. Also, if you didn't have a chance to see the miniatures display by Ivan Lawson, you're in luck. Ivan has allowed the library to continue his display through October. We have had many, many visitors who've traveled expressly to admire this incredible talent. We are so pleased to be able to extend this exhibit for those who haven't had a chance to stop by.

New Scotland budget at cap

$7.2M spending plan draws $332k from fund balance

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

New Scotland is up against the state tax cap with a proposed 2014 budget totaling almost $7.18 million, while maintaining a substantial fund balance.

Town Supervisor Tom Dolin filed a 2014 Tentative Budget calling for a 1.66 percent property tax levy increase. Expenditures between the town's four main funds would increase by around $24,500. The proposed budget would drain around $330,000 from fund balances and is projected to leave $2.57 million in reserves, which is still 29 percent of next year's total budget.

There was little flexibility in crafting next year's spending plan, according to Dolin.

"Between the 1.66 percent tax cap and the slow recovery in the sales tax, we are kind of squeezed," Dolin said.

There are no layoffs in the budget, but two positions would be eliminated through attrition. Town retirees would also be switched to a different health insurance plan, yielding savings around $70,000.

Dolin said more funds weren't tapped from the town's fund balance this year because he expects coming years will be more challenging.

"We anticipate we are going to have to (use more fund balance) over the next few years unless the economy improves substantially," Dolin said. "It is our rainy day fund and it's still raining out."

Dolin said 2014 might be when the town has to dig deeper into its fund balance. He said previously the town has deferred capital projects and not filled vacancies to help balance its budget.

"Over a five-year period our reserves have actually increased," he said.

While the tax cap was created to slow the rise of property taxes, it has also acted as a deterrent to keep taxes from growing at all. If the town went with a lower tax levy in 2014, that would affect how much could be raised the following year.

This year, the town budgeted around $375,000 from its fund balance, but its four main funds will actually see $146,000 going into reserve accounts.

"We are realizing some of the health care savings. We are realizing some savings from the retirements," town Bookkeeper Lisa Boehlke said. "We have not seen a high use of Highway Department overtime."

Dolin said the town also "under estimated" sales tax revenue for this year, which helped bolster the fund balance.

Sales tax revenue, which Albany County distributes through a formula, collected in 2012 totaled $1.8 million, and this year the town is estimated to collect just a few tens of thousands less. For 2014, the tentative budget includes $1.8 million in sales tax revenue.

In New Scotland, homeowners bear 95 percent of the tax burden, with commercial or industrial users picking up the rest.

There is approximately $794 million of assessed residential property in the town and there is more assessed value of vacant land ($39.4 million) than there is of commercial ($33.4 million). The town's taxable value of land totals $885 million between 4,161 parcels.

Dolin added outside of maintaining the community's character and quality of life, there are benefits to drawing funds primarily from residential taxpayers.

"We don't have all of the service requirements that a heavy commercial, retail district would require," Dolin said. "We don't have a police force, which if we got heavy into retail we would probably have to provide some kind of police protection."

The Albany County Sheriff's Department provides police coverage for the town.

What you need to know before cosigning a loan

By HUGH DONLON
President
Capital Region
KeyBank

You might be asked to cosign a loan for a car you don't drive, a college you don't attend or a house you don't live in, but that does not change your liability. When you agree to put your name to paper on a joint loan, you're assuming a risk a lender isn't willing to take on—and it can have negative consequences, both in the short and long term.

For borrowers with less than perfect credit reports or a limited credit history, getting approved for a loan can be a struggle. With the help of another creditworthy signer vouching the debt will be repaid on time, the odds of securing a credit card, car loan, mortgage or a private student loan improves dramatically. What that means is that a third party (in this case, you), in addition to the primary borrower, assumes full responsibility for ensuring the terms of the loan agreement are fulfilled.

Many people offer to cosign a loan for their child or spouse, but even then you need to think about the repercussions of that obligation. It is important for a cosigner to understand that the borrower needs a cosigner for a reason. The question becomes, are you willing and able to—and should you—take on that risk when the lender won't?

Before agreeing to cosign a loan, consider the following obligations:

- If the borrower passes away, you assume the same responsibilities for the deceased as if you applied for the loan yourself.
- If the borrower misses even a single payment on a loan, a lender may have the ability to demand full repayment of the entire outstanding balance on the loan immediately, from you.
- If the borrower defaults, additional penalties, including late fees, higher interest rates and other charges may be piled on top of the amount owed, and you are responsible for those penalties and fees.
- If the borrower defaults on the loan and it moves into the collection process, the lender may collect the debt from you. That means the lender may be able to take legal action against you.
- If the borrower makes late payments, your credit may be damaged.

These are important considerations, because they have an immediate impact on your financial freedom. For example, this new debt obligation will appear on your credit report and will impact your debt-to-income ratio. Debt-to-income ratio is the percentage of your monthly income that must be applied to your repayment obligations to debtors. As a result, your capacity for future borrowing will be diminished. The extent of how much weight this carries in the decision-making process will vary from person to person, as people have different income and debt levels, but it is something that needs to be looked at.

Hugh Donlon

In addition, you are responsible for the actions—or lack of action—of the primary borrower. If your credit score takes a hit because of lack of timely payments and/or failure to make payments, it will impact your financial life and decrease your credit score. This is important because your credit score largely dictates the interest rates you qualify for on future loans or credit card applications. Lower credit scores can increase the cost of your auto and homeowners insurance. Premiums are based, in part, on your credit history. Also, if you want a vacation home, you will pay a higher interest rate on the mortgage. The same is true for auto loans or personal loans.

If you are still willing and able to take the risk as a cosigner, be sure to get copies of all the loan documents, plus the repayment schedules. Research whether you have any cosigner rights under your state's law. Make sure you understand your obligations under the terms of those documents. Ask the lender to agree in writing to notify you as quickly as possible if the borrower is late with a payment, misses a payment or is otherwise in default. That way you can make the missed or late payment(s) or cure the default to prevent damage to your own credit report.

Also ask the lender to calculate the amount you might owe. According to the FTC, you may be able to negotiate specific terms of your obligation. For example, you may be able to limit your liability to the principal on the loan and not the late fees, court costs or attorney fees. Ask the lender to include a clause in the contract that states: "The cosigner will be responsible only for the principal balance on this loan at the time of default," before you cosign the loan documents.

There's a popular saying with financial planners: you can't borrow money for retirement. The idea is that your first obligation is to secure your own financial future. Be certain that you can afford to make the payment on the loan you cosign while maintaining your other financial obligations. If you cannot, do not cosign any loan document. Because as much as you may want to help a friend, loved one or family member, you simply can't afford to take the risk.

Understanding the difference between cosigning a mortgage and joint ownership of property

People turn to cosigners when they lack either the credit or income to secure a loan on their own. Legally, a cosigner is fully responsible for repayment of the loan should the primary borrower not meet their financial obligations.

Joint ownership is not unlike a cosigned loan in that it makes it easier to qualify for the loan. In fact, one of the great benefits of joint ownership is that borrowers may qualify for much larger loans by combining incomes and credit scores. However, both parties are still legally obligated to repay the debt. Still, despite the similarities between the two, there are three major differences between joint ownership and cosigning:

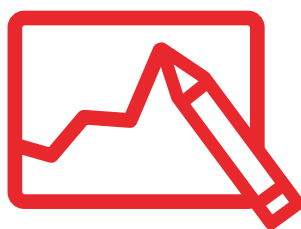

1. With joint ownership, both borrowers share ownership of the property.
2. Joint owners can benefit from the property's value
3. Both joint owners have legal rights to make decisions regarding the property.

Cosigners do not have these rights. They assume full risk for the loan without any of the benefits. With personal loans, this is not as worrisome. Most personal loans are backed by an asset. If the primary borrower defaults on the loan, the lender can seize the asset and the cosigner will often only be on the hook for the value of the loan. However, mortgages are very different. If the primary borrower defaults on the loan, cosigners are personally liable. It will affect their income and credit score.

A drawback of joint ownership is that it is neither easy nor simple to withdraw from. Most lenders will not allow borrowers to exit the loan agreement until the loan is fully repaid. In most cases, borrowers that wish to terminate a joint ownership partnership will have one party refinance the loan. However, the party that remains in possession of the property may be required to compensate the other owner for accrued equity. In addition, without the other owner's income and credit, the remaining owner may not be able to qualify for the refinance.

Before entering into any cosigning or joint ownership agreement, it's important to review all of your financial and legal obligations. You should consult with your attorney and/or your financial institution.

No bones about it

Bonefish Grill opens on Wolf Road with fresh seafood and specialty cocktails

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Seafood lovers will be diving into the area’s first Bonefish Grill, which is aiming to tantalize taste buds in a metropolitan atmosphere.

Bonefish Grill, a casual dining seafood chain restaurant, held its grand opening on Monday, Oct. 7, after holding a charity event benefiting the Capital District Habitat for Humanity the prior Saturday. That event raised more than $7,800.

The 5,941 square-foot restaurant located at 59 Wolf Road in Albany features a spacious dining room and a large bar area that includes three community tables. The restaurant has seating capacity for 229 patrons, including 65 in the bar area.

Bob Hillman, managing partner of the local Bonefish Grill, said the charity event was the “perfect” way to welcome the community to the restaurant.

“We look forward to many more opportunities to help support the Capital District,” Hillman said, “and to welcoming the community to the restaurant to show them what we do best ... inviting dining and a big-city bar.”

The restaurant, which dubs itself as the “fresh fish experts,” welcomes guests with a sleek hardwood design that features hand-blown glass lamps. There are also art pieces ranging from large metal sculptures of mangroves and fishing scenes to three “mystical fish” rubbings.

Appetizers range from $4 for steamed and seasoned edamame to $12 for Maryland crab cakes. A large portion of the ahi tuna sashimi (sesame seared and served with wasabi and pickled ginger) is $17. The most popular starter is its crispy “bang bang shrimp,” which is tossed in a creamy and spicy sauce.

bass, Atlantic salmon, sea scallops and shrimp, rainbow trout, longfin tilapia and cold water lobster. The prices for regular portion sizes range from just over $15 to $28. There are also other non-seafood grilled specialties, along with sautéed and baked choices.

There is a gluten-free menu available upon request and also a kids menu.

The chain recently started offering a new Sunday brunch menu, which is available at its Albany location from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m.

“What better way to enjoy Sunday morning than with grilled filet mignon, lobster, and poached eggs in the surf and turf eggs benedict,” Bonefish Grill President Stephen Judge said in a statement. “We created this dish to provide an indulgent option for our customers that stays true to our specialties yet unique to the menu.”

Some other new brunch additions include huevos benedictos with crispy corn tortillas and chorizo, spinach and mushroom eggs benedict, “American style” kobe beef and egg burger and Cajun shrimp omelet. The brunch is completed with peach Bellinis and traditional or passion fruit mimosas.

Health-conscious eaters can also request omelets be prepared with egg white substitute.

Bonefish Grill touts its dedication to “responsible fishing practices and the healthy stewardship of the world’s marine resources.” The company the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration and government regulations guide how it obtains fish and seafood. Its parent company, Bloomin’ Brands, also has a Seafood Advisory Council to help implement best practices.

Bonefish Grill is also affiliated with Ocean Trust, which is an “award-winning ocean conservation foundation building science, conservation and industry partnerships for the sustainability of the oceans.”

Diners can make reservations at www.bonefishgrill.com/Albany or could call the restaurant at 459-2046. Reservations though are not required. Information and menus are also available on the website.

The restaurant was founded in St. Petersburg, Florida, in 2000, and has since expanded to around 190 restaurants in 32 states.

Top award for busing baron

Bethlehem Central School District Transportation Director Al Karam has been named the National School Bus Fleet Administrator of the Year by school transportation publication "School Bus Fleet." The title is bestowed once a year to someone who is "a national role model of success in pupil transportation"

Karam was recognized for his work in consolidating bus routes to cut costs, reducing the district's out-of-service bus fleet and selling unused buses. His efforts helped save the department about $900,000 last school year, according to the district. He is the 40th recipient of the honor.

"This award is a reflection of the entire transportation department," Karam said in a statement. "I may be the one who receives it, but the honor really belongs to my colleagues, from the administration who supports our department, to the people I work with every day."

BC Transportation Director Al Karam has been named the National School Bus Fleet Administrator of the Year.

Superintendent Tom Douglas said the district is extremely proud of Karam's work.

"His leadership is evident not only at budget time or when we need to make last-minute adjustments to the school schedule," said Douglas in a statement. "It's clear any time you talk to one of his drivers or walk into one of the maintenance bays."

Karam will travel to Grand Rapids, Mich., later this month to accept the award at the National Association for Pupil Transportation's annual conference.

"This is a complex business, but it's a people business. And I don't know of one person who works here who doesn't take the job seriously," Karam said.

rank of Eagle. He was inducted into the Order of the Arrow, Scouting's National Honor Society.

Ethan graduated Magna Cum Laude from the University at Buffalo with a Bachelor of Science degree in Nursing. He was president of the Nursing Student Organization and received the Anne Walker Sengbush Award for Leadership in School and Community Activities "for providing notable service and leadership to the School of Nursing, the university and community." He was a member of Sigma Theta Tau, the national nursing honor society.

Ethan worked as a Registered Nurse in the Trauma ICU at the Erie County Medical Center. He said of his job, "I can't imagine working any place else. This is where I was meant to be." He was a preceptor for nursing students and was known as a very caring and compassionate nurse, especially to his patients, their families, and to the new nurses.

He was a member of Amherst Lodge No. 981, Free and Accepted Masons, and was actively involved in many local charities. He was a member of the First United Methodist Church of Delmar and the Walk to Emmaus and Chrystalis community.

Ethan loved the outdoors, especially boating and camping on Lake George. He enjoyed playing guitar and video games, skiing, snowboarding, swimming, fishing, hiking, tennis, soccer, chess, and most recently, geocaching. Ethan cherished his faith in God's gracious love and mercy, and he truly adored his family and friends. He will be remembered for his beautiful smile and contagious laughter, his endless energy and enthusiasm, and for living life to the fullest. He will be forever in our hearts.

Ethan's life will be celebrated at a Memorial Service at the First United Methodist Church, 428 Kenwood Ave., Delmar, at 11:00 a.m. on Sat., Oct. 19th. A reception will follow in Fellowship Hall.

In lieu of flowers, donations may be made to the Ethan Christian Memorial Fund, c/o CAP COM FCU, 18 Computer Dr. East, Albany, NY 12205. Funds will be used to provide an annual award for excellence and compassion at the UB School of Nursing; to support Boy Scouting through Troop 75; and to encourage the spiritual growth of youth through Chrystalis.

New author celebrates first book

Guilderland native's first book is the initial installment of adventure fiction series

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Benjamin Deer's inspiration for an adventure fiction book series bubbled up in the most unlikely of places: a bubble bath.

"I was taking a bubble bath and I was just relaxing," Deer said. "I went under to wash my hair and I saw an image. It wasn't like a vision ... but it was an image that when I closed my eyes I saw and everything the book encompasses stem from that one image."

He said the image was of two needles, like drills, going into a character's eyes.

"I came up out of the water and I said, 'Well, that was interesting,'" he said. "Being a creative writer I had that as the main focus and built a story around that image."

Deer, a 2006 Guilderland High School graduate, graduated from SUNY Oneonta and became managing editor at "The Freeman's Journal," a weekly newspaper covering Otsego County. But Deer decided to move back to his hometown.

Once living in Guilderland again he latched on to his inspiration to craft a series around main character Johnny Engleheart.

"I just told myself that I had these ideas for this series and I just said, 'Why don't I just go for it?'" he said. "Sometimes, I was staying up until like three in the morning ... working and staying up. I saw it in the distance and I just followed it and made a beeline to it."

"Originally, I had thought this was going to be one book, and I had seen the ending and I had the beginning already written. Along the way ... it got so much bigger as the book progressed."

— Benjamin Deer

The first installment of Deer's adventure fiction series, "Emerus: The Beginning," was welcomed during a launch party on Friday, Oct. 11, with family and friends offering congratulations and hugs to the newly published author. The book was published through Xlibris, a "print-on-demand" service company.

In the book, it is discovered Johnny, an 18-year-old kid, finds a strange metal chip implanted in his neck after he faints during a baseball game. His once normal world is suddenly filled with frightening nightmares, and he finds himself playing a key role in a situation that could determine the fate of the world.

Deer said the experience of publishing his book was "surprising" and unlike anything he imagined it would be.

"I thought writing was the hard part," he said. "That was not the hard part. Everything else was the hard part."

The majority of his book was written between September 2012

Benjamin Deer, a 2006 Guilderland High School graduate, has penned his first book, an adventure novel that is set to be first in a series.

John Purcell/Spotlight

and this May and is meant to be a quick, thought provoking read that comes in at 188 pages. The series is planned to be three parts in total, but Deer said it could stretch to up to five parts. He plans to have the second part done in April.

"Originally, I had thought this was going to be one book, and I had seen the ending and I had the beginning already written," he said. "Along the way, so many things happened with character development and plot sequences; it got so much bigger as the book progressed."

Deer said his interest in creative writing was spurred as a child, because his mother was something of a writer, too. His mother died when he was 12 years old, but that inspiration has stuck with him.

"I learned from her about the freeing quality that creative writing can give to you," Deer said. "I have been writing things ever since I was 10. This first book is the culmination of everything I have learned up to this point in my life."

Deer's grandmother, Doris Vourdeois, said he was always a "great writer" and remembered his early works fondly.

"In high school I remember some of his essays and things he would show me," Vourdeois said. "I said, 'He is going to be great and I have a lot of confidence in him.'"

Vourdeois said she could "definitely" see her daughter come through in his writing.

"She was a great writer, too," Vourdeois said.

Voorheesville proposes $2.7M project

District scales back proposal for repairs, more projects likely in coming years

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Voorheesville High School desperately needs a reconstructed, modern roof, according to district officials, and technology upgrades at all its buildings to prepare for the planned shift to computer-based testing and evaluations.

The first phase of many likely capital projects at Voorheesville schools was unveiled during a special Board of Education meeting Monday, Oct.

“The weakened roof puts in jeopardy the interior structure of the building. It has to be done in order to avoid even larger costs in the future to repair.”

- Gary Hubert, VCSD Board Member

7. District voters will ultimately have the final word on the proposed $2.7 million project through a permissive referendum tentatively scheduled for Dec. 17.

District officials and board members stressed the proposal was scaled back from the original plan, which totaled more than $11.48 million.

“This is a significant pull back from where we started,” board member James Coffin said.

Fellow board member Gary A. Hubert said the scaled back project is the “absolute bare minimum” that must be done to properly maintain facilities.

“The weakened roof puts in jeopardy the interior structure of the building,” Hubert said. “It has to be done in order to avoid even larger costs in the future to repair.”

A majority of the project cost is tied to reconstruction of the high school’s built-up roof for $2.345 million. The roof would then be under warranty for 30 years. Reconstructing walls above the roof also accounts for $78,000 worth of work. Replacing network switches and adding 60 drops of wireless access totals a cost of $279,500.

Board member Cynthia Monaghan said the limited scope of the project was drawn up to fit what the public could – or rather, would – support.

Superintendent Teresa Thayer Snyder said delaying several improvements and upgrades would allow the district to monitor community demographics and not rack up “massive” debt if there are significantly fewer students.

“One of the issues we are concerned about is we have a declining enrollment. I don’t know if this is going to be just a blip or if it is going to be a matter of reality and trend going forward,” Snyder said. “As we postpone other elements of the project to a future date, it will give us time to monitor our enrollments.”

The enrollment this school year is 1,176 students, approximately 116 fewer than on the first day of school in the 2002-03 school year. Particularly troubling to Snyder is the kindergarten and second grade enrollment on opening day this year, which falls at 66 and 64 students, respectively.

“If that doesn’t change, there are going to have to be some real pointed discussions about the future of the district,” Coffin said, “because it becomes very difficult to hold together a really great school district with just 700 to 750 students.”

Preliminary estimates on what the proposed project would cost homeowners is 6.7 cents for $1,000 of assessed property value in New Scotland, 7.3 cents for Guilderland and 10.1 cents for Berne, according to Assistant Superintendent for Business Gregory Diefenbach. The estimates include the 61.8 percent state building aid reimbursement and securing a 15-year bond.

Board President Timothy Blow questioned why the roof has deteriorated as much, as it was installed in 1995.

“This has been a piss-poor roof for the last several years,” Blow said. “Why is it that there is no warranty or any kind of culpability?”

Gene Browning, an architect hired by the district, said built-up roofing typically lasts 20 years. He added the new EPDM (ethylene propylene diene terpolymer) roofing is more durable and leaks could be found easier.

Browning said

approximately 10 to 15 percent of the roof has water absorption issues.

District taxpayers could be faced with another capital project proposal relatively soon.

“In scaling this back, one of the things that I think has to remain out in front and the public has to be aware of is there are other significant things here that the buildings need,” Coffin said. “Depending on other issues with infrastructure, we may have to in two years come back to the public again for another bite of the apple. I don’t want anybody to lose sight of that.”

One big-ticket item to be targeted next is replacing boilers districtwide at a cost of $1.17 million. The next items to be addressed, including boilers, total less than $3.48 million and address fire and safety, infrastructure and a 2,500 square-foot shelter for satellite fields.

The board expects to approve the capital project bond resolution on Monday, Oct. 21.

Program to explore issue of hunger

St. Thomas the Apostle Church Pax Christi and Public Policy ministries present Hunger Amidst Plenty, “For I was hungry and you gave me food...” at a free dinner on Monday, Oct. 21, at St. Thomas the Apostle School, at 42 Adams Place in Delmar.

Dinner will begin at 6 p.m. with the presentation to follow at 7 p.m.. Featured speakers will include Mark Dunlea, executive director of Hunger Action Network of NYS, a community organizer and longtime anti-poverty, food justice and peace advocate; Father John Bradley, pastor of Blessed Sacrament Parish in Albany; and Dr. Gary Kleppel, a local farmer and professor of biology at the University at Albany.

Pax Christi is jointly presenting the Hunger Amidst Plenty program with the Public Policy Ministry. The presentation will focus on hunger in New York state and the extent of this problem in our area, to raise our awareness about the issue, what is being done and what we can do to advocate for those who face hunger daily.

Reservations are required and may be made by contacting mariecopeland62@gmail.com or calling Marie Copeland at 439-4050. An optional free-will offering will be accepted.

GCSD to host recycling event

The Guilderland Central School District will be hosting a Fall Recycling Extravaganza on Saturday, Oct. 26, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m. at Farnsworth Middle School.

This is a community-wide event and is open to both residents and non-residents of the school district. Individuals are encouraged to bring their unwanted papers, metals, plastics (including bags) and bikes for free drop-off. All items will be re-used and/or recycled.

As of October 2013, the district will no longer be able to accept electronic equipment for recycling. No items with hazardous materials will be accepted.

The district will also be collecting any new or like-new donations of clothing for children

Froyo store gets a handle on giving

The ribbon was cut Friday, Oct. 4, at 16 Handles’ Community Appreciation Celebration, during which the store offered discounts and family activities to benefit the Mohawk Hudson Humane Society and Bethlehem Senior Services. Kerry Gunner, owner and son Sean (center) were joined by (from left) Barbara Saati, A1 Merchants; Nanci Moquin, Town Clerk; Town Supervisor John Clarkson; Monique Matuszek, Bethlehem Chamber; Joyce Becker and Elizabeth Mosier, Bethlehem Senior Services; Bob Miller, Bethlehem Chamber Board; Jennifer Kilcoyne, Bethlehem Chamber; Gerry Oestreich, ABC Leasing; Marge Kanuk, Realty USA; and 16 Handles staff.

and adults, accessories, linens, pots, pans, house wares, books and unused toiletries. These items will be collected by Grassroot Givers and made available free-of-charge at the Grassroot Givers Community Store in Albany for individuals and families who are homeless, living on a limited income or leaving a shelter to move into a new apartment.

Representatives from the Albany Book Project will also be on hand collecting current (less than 10 years old) books in new or like new condition. Books are distributed to schools and classroom libraries, senior centers, social services offices, literacy programs, clinics, military bases and hospitals.

Capital City Rescue Mission will be collecting rags as part of the event.

Mavens of Mayhem to meet

The Upper Hudson Chapter of Sisters in Crime (the Mavens of Mayhem) will hold their monthly meeting on Saturday, Oct. 19, at 10:30 a.m. at the Bethlehem Public Library (451 Delaware Avenue, Delmar).

This month’s program is Capitol Hauntings: A Historical Ghost Tour of the New York State Capitol. Explore the haunted history of one of New York State’s architectural treasures: the Capitol building in Albany. A slide lecture will be presented by Stuart Lehman, education coordinator for the New York State Capitol.

Sisters in Crime is an organization for readers and writers of mystery and crime fiction. The meeting and program are free and open to the public. For more information, visit www.upperhudsonsinc.com.

Guided walk at Five Rivers

A naturalist’s tour of the Wild Turkey Trail will be conducted at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation’s Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar on Saturday, Oct. 26, at 10 a.m.

On this outdoor foray, Center naturalists will explore a charming, yet seldom-visited section of Five Rivers featuring, among other things, a 55-acre grassland habitat, as well as a picturesque woodland along the Phillipinkill known to hold owls, turkey and other forest wildlife. The tour will cover approximately two miles over flat surfaces, with a few moderate ups and downs.

The program is open to the public free of charge. Participants are urged to dress for outdoor activity. In the event of severe weather, this program may be cancelled. For more information, call the Center at 475-0291.

Church to hold Fall Festival

The New Baltimore Reformed Church’s Fall Festival will be held Saturday, Oct. 19, between 9 a.m. and 3 p.m. in the Fellowship Hall at the church, located on the corner of Route 144 and Church Street in the hamlet.

This year’s festival will have a variety of food to eat in or take out, the traditional booths, as well as an indoor farmers market featuring many of the folks who participated at the summer market at District 2 park as well as the church selling their specialty fresh baked bread. Amy’s Lavender Tea Room will be on hand, as well.

This will also be the last Saturday that the Sharing Shed will be open with all sorts of bargains and items. There will once again be the chance to purchase books, tapes and crafts along with a few extra special items that could just be the perfect choice for someone near and dear on your holiday gift list.

Succeeding in the digital world

On Thursday, Oct. 17, the librarians of Guilderland Central School District are joining together to present a workshop for all district families.

“Cyber Smart: Succeeding in a Digital World” will be held from 6:30 to 8 p.m. in the Farnsworth Middle School Learning Center and will feature interactive presentations containing tips to stay safe and savvy online as well as tools to help students make the most of their online experiences.

Presentations will focus on discretion when sharing information online, including faux chat sessions to demonstrate best practices; podcasting basics using free, online software; the district’s new online digital catalog for school libraries; efficient and effective web searching; electronic and audio books; and a closer look at the school library online databases.

The event is free and open to all district students, K-12, and their parents.

Senior Citizens’ Law Day

Robert Abrams, a nationally recognized health and elder law attorney, will talk about expanding legal services to senior citizens throughout New York state when he delivers the Nancy Sills ’76 Memorial Lecture at Albany Law School’s Senior Citizens’ Law Day on Saturday, Oct. 26.

Senior Citizens’ Law Day, a free event for Capital District seniors and their caregivers, is organized by the law school’s Pro Bono Program and will be held from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at Albany Law School, 80 New Scotland Ave., Albany.

Attendees can register the day of the event for a free one-on-one counseling session with a representative from the Elder Law Section of the New York State Bar Association. Albany Law School professors, attorneys and other experts will also conduct workshops covering approximately 25 topics, including health care decision making, protecting against scams, estate planning, Medicare and Medicaid and charitable giving.

No registration is required for workshops; attendants receive a free resource guidebook. For more information, visit www.albanylaw.edu/event/sld/Pages/default.aspx or contact erang@albanylaw.edu or 445-2304.

old law did not allow for signs to be placed in the right-of-way of any road owned by the town, county or state, but because of vagueness in the wording and poor enforcement, many believed otherwise.

The new version of the law allows temporary signs to be placed on private, non-commercial property at the discretion of the property owner for up to three months. Temporary signs, such as signs advertising community events and political signs, cannot be placed on town-, county- or state-owned roads and can be no larger than 6 square feet. The Town Board also shrank the proposed right-of-way distance in the law for signs on private property from 15 feet to 5 feet.

Councilman Jeffrey Kuhn, who did much of the research into the temporary sign law, along with Town Attorney Jim Potter, attempted to explain the law to the Boy Scouts who attended the Wednesday meeting. He said a large portion of the law remains the same as it has for years, but is now being better enforced to ensure fairness.

Town Board members said they had wanted to allow nonprofits and community groups to be able to put up their signs on public property, but found it would be unconstitutional for the town to enforce the law for political signs but to look the other way for signs they were in favor of.

Some of the older boys who attended the meeting seemed to understand Kuhn's explanation, while other younger Scouts appeared not to.

Supervisor John Clarkson said he would be happy to put the Boy Scouts in touch with other community groups who have found ways to work around the sign law, while Councilman Bill Reinhardt offered up his own yard as a location to place signs after election season is over. They also said another "loophole" is to physically hold up the signs, but Town Board members said they do not suggest kids do so along busy roadways or without adults present.

Peter Lauricella, the troop's adult spokesperson and co-chairman of the Sportsmart organization committee, said as a lawyer himself he disagreed with Kuhn's interpretation of the law because it limits First Amendment rights.

Kuhn then read from the State of New York's 75-page Municipal Control of Signs document, describing a specific court decision that upheld a town's sign law because it specifically enforced the same restrictions of all temporary signs and not just those of a political nature.

Lauricella said he understood the concept but still feels all signs should be allowed.

Town Board members said they do not plan to make changes to the sign law, but vowed to help the Boy Scouts with their advertising efforts.

Kim Lawler, co-chairwoman of the Hamagrael (Elementary School) Craft Fair, spoke at the meeting and said she was originally against the law, but her group found a way to make their event successful and did not see a drop in sales.

"For what was proposed initially, I find it fair that you, the political committee here, do they same thing that we do. Nothing more, nothing less," she said. She offered to speak with the Boy Scouts after the meeting.

Republican Supervisor Candidate Fred DiMaggio stood at the meeting to say he was still opposed to the law. He also agreed with a local business owner that commercial property owners should be able to display temporary signs. The Town Board is looking into that portion of the law.

Following the meeting, Troop Leader Felix Rosa told his scouts he was proud of them.

"What you saw today was your government at work," said Rosa outside Town Hall. "We might not have liked their answer, but they were respectful, they listed to what we had to say, and they gave us suggestions."

Clarkson later provided the group with contacts of local nonprofits and community organizers who hold fundraisers, and said many local politicians have offered their yards as sites to host the Boy Scouts' signs.

Sportsmart will be held on Saturday, Nov. 23 from 1 to 4 p.m. at the Bethlehem High School. The event at which the public can purchase new and used sports equipment has been a major source of funds for the troop for years.

recognized," said Delmar Postmaster Geoffrey Randall.

Degonzague, who has worked at the Post Office for 11 years, said she was following her normal route one afternoon when she began to hear yells for help. She had no idea where the voice was coming from and thought one of the older residents along her route may have fallen within their home.

"I tried to look through the window but didn't see anyone," she said. "That's when I heard the voice say she had fallen behind a bush."

The older woman had fallen outside and broke her femur, Degonzague said.

"She was a real champ. I think I was more nervous than she was," Degonzague said. "She asked if I had a cell phone, and told me to stay calm and call 911."

Degonzague did what she was told, then she ran up the road to the woman's son-in-law and then stayed with them both until help arrived.

"I'm just glad I was there," she said.

Pytell faced a similar circumstance that, if it went unresolved, could have had a dire outcome.

The 28-year Post Office veteran said he was following his route when the mother of one of his customers stopped at her son's house and said she wasn't feeling well. Pytell said he knew she didn't look right and she was having trouble, so he suggested they call 911.

It turned out the woman was having a heart attack that was mimicking the side effects of a stroke.

The family of the woman Pytell helped sent in a letter of thanks, which was read aloud at a short ceremony held on Thursday, Oct. 10, at the Delmar Post Office.

"I'm grateful for Bob's quick thinking and actions because he saved my mother's life," the letter read. "Had Bob not stopped and recognized she was in distress, she would likely have died or suffered irreversible brain damage. Because of Bob's quick thinking my mother is alive and well today."

Pytell said it was nice to be recognized, but that's not why he stopped to help. Degonzague said receiving an award "was weird."

"It's nothing anyone else wouldn't do," said Pytell. "I was just in the right place at the right time."

The National Rural Letter Carriers' Association presented the pair with Rural Carrier Hero Certificates and the U.S. Postal Service awarded both with Certificates of Appreciation. Pytell and Degonzague were both nominated for the awards by Randall.

"We do have senior alert, where we keep an eye on the seniors we deliver to," said Randall. "We don't tell them we do it, but we keep an eye on the residents if they are elderly. In this case, they both stumbled upon (a situation) and reacted."

Randall said it was nice to know his employees took the time and care enough about their customers to help when needed.

"It was nice that good came out of the situation," he said.

DiMaggio has also spoken in favor of Bethlehem Micky Mantle's effort to obtain help from the town for upgrades to town Field No. 5 at Elm Avenue Park to correct drainage issues. The project has since been completed after town engineers and Parks and Recreation Department officials granted the organization permission to do excavating work detailed by a company hired by the baseball league.

"The issue would not have been fixed if it wasn't for the work of volunteers," said DiMaggio. "It speaks to the longstanding nature of the issue."

Steve Peterson, the president of Bethlehem Mickey Mantle, has since come out in favor of DiMaggio's plan after dealing with the town, but said he is doing so as a private citizen and not on behalf of the league.

"I'm a registered Republican in town, but that doesn't matter to me," said Peterson who has been sending out emails on his private account in support of DiMaggio. "I just want the right thing done for the community. I wasn't getting any cooperation from Parks and Rec or the town, so Fred and the other people running came up to me to ask what our concerns are."

Supervisor John Clarkson said he thought things had gone well when it came to the negotiations with Bethlehem Mickey Mantle.

"Bethlehem Mickey Mantle is not unlike many of the other sports groups using town facilities," he said. "Our engineers provided advice with how to proceed, but we understand it was a halfway option because it wasn't exactly what they wanted to do. We'll have to wait and see if it works for sure next year."

Peterson, however, said he was not satisfied with how the issue was dealt with and said difficulties began long before the current administration came into office.

"Saturdays, it's bumper to bumper cars in town because of people going to youth sports," he said. "There's so much traffic, there's no place to put the cars. A little coordination between us and the town would make the whole effort a lot better."

Clarkson said his feeling on the council would depend on the details of what DiMaggio is proposing.

"I think those are questions for the organizations themselves," said Clarkson. "I have had talks with them and think more integration would help, but sometimes they want to do it and sometimes they don't."

DiMaggio said he would like to pursue the idea even if he isn't elected in November.

"I've always said, sports keep kids out of courts, and I would be happy to help," he said. "I think (youth sports) provide a great service. It's just one more way of supporting the business community."

Golf course operator plans partnership

Colonial Acres could hook up with nonprofit to pursue expansion goals

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem may soon be the home of the country's first Sustainable Golf and Community Club.

Dale Ezyk, manager of Colonial Acres Golf Course, and Ron Dodson, chairman of the nonprofit International Sustainability Council and Audubon Lifestyles, have announced a new partnership that will use Colonial Acres as a pilot facility. The new relationship could help the golf course expand and be available for wider use by the community.

"I think Colonial Acres is the future of golf," said Ezyk. "It won't replace traditional country clubs, but time- and money-wise, this is where people will start and keep coming back to."

Ezyk took over operation the course in April after the town opted to no longer fund the golf course in the 2013 budget. Officials had previously projected the nine-hole, par-three course to run at an annual loss of $40,000. Scheduled capital improvement projects could have seen the town spending up to $270,000 in the coming years. Under the operating agreement, the town and the Open Space Conservancy will split some of the course's profits on a sliding scale.

The first project scheduled under the partnership will be seeking out grants to begin the venture. Then, management and maintenance operations will be assessed. The pair will then look to implement more environmentally sustainable practices at the course.

Ezyk said the course has already been at the forefront of conservation efforts for years under previous management. Staff uses as little water as possible on the grass and do not use chemicals. They have also eliminated entire areas of the course that get mowed or fertilized.

"It helps to keep my expenses down, and I don't have to charge as much a green fee," Ezyk said. "Some golf courses manicure to the nth degree, and it's almost not good for the game of golf because the average golfer would never get to play a course like that in his life just because of the cost in maintenance fees."

They are now looking to take their conservation efforts a step further by including hiking trails and a wildlife sanctuary for the greater community to visit. Ezyk said he also wants to invest in a new clubhouse and better bathrooms to attract more customers. Any new facilities added would be entirely green. The clubhouse would include additional classrooms for beginner golfers, and could also be used by community members for meetings.

"We think Colonial Acres is an asset to the town, and we want people to look to it as a community resource," said Ezyk.

After a few years, both men would like to take their idea to other golf courses throughout the country.

"We're just in the formative stage, but I think this could be a really good thing to turn Colonial Acres into a recreational area for the whole town, not just golfers," Ezyk said.

Ezyk said he does not believe they will be asking for donations or holding fundraisers. The hope is to raise all of the money through grants, and he did recognize that could take some time. But he said other golf professionals he spoke with about the project are excited.

"We look forward to pursuing it," he said.

Thrown

high pass towards his top receiver, Jake Smith. Smith leaped for the ball, but it bounced off his fingers and into the waiting hands of CBA defensive back Ben Anthony. A penalty against the Dutchmen set the Brothers up at Guilderland's 43-yard line.

CBA wasted little time taking advantage of its great field position. Nick Marini broke free for a 31-yard touchdown run on the Brothers' fourth play from scrimmage to make the score 7-0 less than three minutes into the first quarter.

"That interception definitely gave us momentum," said Croskey. "It gave us energy and set the tone for the rest of the game."

Guilderland's second series ended when Gallo fumbled the ball as he was sacked. CBA recovered the ball at the Dutchmen's 31-yard line, and Croskey scored from there two plays later to put the Brothers ahead 13-0.

CBA's next two touchdowns came courtesy of the halfback option pass. Marini connected with Alex Koshgarian on a 26-yard scoring strike late in the first quarter, and Donald Vivian hit Croskey on a 32-yard touchdown pass with 1:05 left in the second quarter.

"Those types of plays are real important," said Marini. "If you can get a team to trip themselves up, then you can keep the momentum going."

Guilderland was certainly fooled on Vivian's touchdown strike to Croskey. With no one near him, Croskey had time to stop, go back to catch the pass before it hit the turf, turn around and run into the end zone untouched.

"I saw a wide open field," said Croskey, "so I went back for it."

While the halfback option pass was working for CBA, nothing was working for Gallo and the Guilderland offense. Even when it appeared that the Dutchmen gained some traction with a big play, they'd slip up again. In one instance, Gallo connected with Smith on a 45-yard pass to bring the Dutchmen to CBA's 18-yard line with 7.4 seconds left in the second quarter, but the Brothers sacked Gallo on the next play to end the half.

"I'm proud of the way our team has played all season, but tonight we made mistakes that we hadn't made all year," said Penna.

CBA started the second half the same way it started the first half – with a touchdown. This time, quarterback Joe Kolbe hit Croskey with a 45-yard scoring strike to put the Brothers ahead 33-0.

Guilderland ended CBA's shutout bid midway through the third quarter with an 86-yard drive capped by Gallo's 35-yard touchdown pass to Smith, but Marini tacked on a nine-yard scoring run before the end of the period to give the Brothers their final margin of victory.

Croskey rushed for 109 yards and added 77 yards on his two touchdown receptions, while Marini gained 108 yards for CBA.

The Brothers finish the regular season Friday when they visit LaSalle for a cross-divisional game, while Guilderland battles Saratoga Springs to see which team finishes second in the Empire Division and gets a home playoff game for the Class AA tournament.

Eagles ease past Dutch

The Bethlehem boys volleyball team improved its record to 13-0 with last Friday's three-set sweep of Guilderland.

John Sica had nine kills and two aces to lead the Eagles, who won by scores of 25-10, 25-12 and 25-21. Kevin Cahill and Kyle Morelli each contributed three kills and two aces, and Kevin Mahar added 28 assists.

Bethlehem hosted Columbia Tuesday.

Cup

Shaker (4-0 division, 5-1 overall) has been dominant in its divisional games. After escaping LaSalle in Week 1 with a 19-15 victory, the Blue Bison have outscored their next three divisional opponents – Niskayuna, Columbia and Schenectady – by a combined score of 108-7.

Shaker has developed a passing attack with quarterback Matt Woods (371 yards in his last three starts) to go along with a running game fueled by Deven Koehler (318 yards) and, lately, Jake Quay (124 yards against Schenectady last Friday). And there's the defense, which has posted three shutouts in six games.

Colonie (3-1, 4-2) hasn't been the force of nature Shaker has been this season. The Garnet Raiders have been tested in nearly every game, as they posted comeback wins against Niskayuna, East Syracuse-Minoa and LaSalle. They also dropped a 34-28 game to Schenectady that they led by 14 points in the second half.

Colonie has gotten by on the strength of its three-pronged running attack of Devon Edwards, Wayne Burt and Kevon Johnson, but it may only be a two-pronged attack when Shaker visits. Edwards was injured in last Friday's 32-26 victory over LaSalle, leaving Burt and Johnson to split the lion's share of the carries. Burt finished with 210 yards on 36 carries and three touchdowns, while Johnson added 94 yards on 15 carries and a touchdown.

The playoff implications are fairly straightforward. A Colonie win gives the Garnet Raiders the division title based on their head-to-head victory over Shaker. A Shaker win gives the Blue Bison their second straight Liberty Division title and sends Colonie into a potential three-way tie for second place with Schenectady and LaSalle. At that point, quarter points will determine who gets the No. 2 seed and a home playoff game.

With much more than the Colonie Cup on the line Friday, look for a high-intensity battle between Shaker and Colonie. It should be a hard-hitting, entertaining game.

By the way, save that description for the upcoming Section II Class AA football playoffs. Now that Christian Brothers Academy knocked off Guilderland 40-6 last weekend, there is no clear cut favorite to win the Sectional title.

The Dutchmen had been considered the favorite to win it all following their victories over Shaker and Shenendehowa in their previous two games, but the Brothers proved that an aggressive pass rush and the occasional use of trick plays on offense could beat Guilderland. CBA sacked Guilderland quarterback Frank Gallo seven times – six times in the first half alone – and scored twice on halfback option passes.

CBA's win coupled with Saratoga's 33-6 victory over Shen locked up the Nos. 1 and 4 seeds in the Empire Division. CBA owns the division title because it has head-to-head wins against Saratoga and Guilderland, while Shen has to settle for the No. 4 seed because of head-to-head losses against Saratoga and Guilderland.

The only thing to be determined in the Empire Division is whether Guilderland or Saratoga gets the No. 2 seed and a home playoff game. The Dutchmen and the Blue Streaks settle that on the field when they play each other Friday night.

Burns leads G'land at invy

Lady Dutch place fourth in its division at regional meet

By SPORTS STAFF
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

The Guilderland girls cross country team turned in a fourth-place finish in the E division race at Saturday's Manhattan Invitational in The Bronx.

Emily Burns' fifth-place finish helped the Lady Dutch finish fourth in the team standings with 132 points, three points behind third-place North Penn.

Burns completed the course with a time of 15:19.1 to pace Guilderland. Jenna Robinson finished 11th with a time of 15:41.1, and Sarah Forman placed 23rd with a time of 16:09.6.

The Bethlehem girls team also fared well at the Manhattan Invitational. The Lady Eagles took fifth place in the B division with 197 points. Bronxville finished first with 115 points, and Colonie claimed second place with 131 points.

Julia Champagne, Danika Jensen and Natalie Muller all had top-40 finishes for Bethlehem. Champagne was 22nd with a time of 16:05.6, Jensen placed 30th with a time of 16:17.3 and Muller finished 39th with a time of 16:27.9.

On the boys' side, Bethlehem's Stephen Booker proved himself to be one of the top runners in the Northeast by placing 12th in the Eastern States Championship division with a time of 12:38.8. The Eagles finished 18th in the team standings with 480 points.

Guilderland claimed 10th place in the Boys G division with 291 points. Jon Feil guided the Dutchmen with a 46th-place time of 14:02.1.

CBA sacks Gallo seven times in Empire Division victory over Guilderland

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

By doing something no one else had managed to do all season, the Christian Brothers Academy football team accomplished something it hadn't done since classification play began in Section II.

The Brothers (6-1 league, 6-1 overall) hammered Guilderland (5-1, 6-1) 40-6 last Friday in Colonie to clinch their first Empire Division title.

"This school hasn't gotten a division title in a long time," said CBA senior running back Elliot Croskey.

Saratoga Springs (5-1, 6-1) helped CBA lock up first place by knocking off Shenendehowa 33-6 last Friday. Shen (3-2, 4-2) was the only team that could have denied CBA the division title in a head-to-head tiebreaker, thanks to a 35-21 victory over the Brothers in Week 2. CBA owns a 34-21 win over Saratoga and now a 34-point victory over Guilderland.

To beat Guilderland convincingly, CBA blitzed Dutchmen quarterback Frank Gallo early and often. The Brothers sacked Gallo six times in the first half, one of which resulted in a fumble that led to the second of CBA's four scoring drives before halftime.

"Our defense was awesome all night," said CBA coach Joe Burke. "It just felt like (Guilderland) didn't get a whole lot of yards."

"Credit their defensive line. They have a fast defensive line," said Guilderland coach

Dan Penna. "It's a team game, though. We didn't do a good job of protecting our quarterback."

Croskey was a big part of CBA's effort on both sides of the ball. Besides scoring three touchdowns and gaining 186 total yards, Croskey had four of the Brothers' seven total sacks of Gallo.

"Frank Gallo is a good player," said Croskey. "We knew we had to get pressure on him."

"The defensive stuff is what I'm most proud of because Elliot is a big time player," said Burke.

Another big defensive play gave the Brothers the upper hand on Guilderland. On the Dutchmen's fourth play from scrimmage, Gallo launched a

More than a cup is on the line

Meaning has finally been restored to the annual Colonie-Shaker football game.

Both the Colonie Cup and the Liberty Division title are on the line when Shaker visits Colonie in Friday's regular season finale.

This is a vast improvement over what has happened to the Colonie Cup game in recent years. The crosstown battle has been played in Week 2 of the season each of the past two years, depriving the game of some of the gravity it used to have when it was played later in the season. Rivalry games need to be anticipated for longer periods of time than one or two weeks in order to get the right atmosphere.

There shouldn't be any problem building the appropriate atmosphere for this year's game. The winner gets the Colonie Cup and the top seed out of the Liberty Division for the Section II Class AA playoffs, while the loser settles for at least a share of second place.

Guilderland increases winning streak to 10 games following victory over Colonie

By SPORTS STAFF

The Guilderland girls soccer team ran its winning streak to 10 games with last Thursday's 3-0 victory over Colonie in a Suburban Council South Division game.

The Lady Dutch (13-1-0) jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the first half and added a second-half goal to improve their record to 8-0 against divisional opponents. Their lone loss was against North Division-leading Niskayuna on Sept. 13.

Rebecca Golderman, Alyssa Kogelmann and Breanne Ford tallied for Guilderland, which owned a 16-1 advantage over Colonie in shots on goal. Colonie goaltender Courtney Yule made 13 saves.

After hosting Averill Park Tuesday, the Lady Dutch conclude their regular season Thursday against Mohonasen.

Three Guilderland players crash the goal in an attempt to knock the ball past Colonie goaltender Courtney Yule during last Thursday's Suburban Council South Division game.

The Greater Loudonville Association is hosting a fall festival to celebrate the season.

The festival will be held at the Pruyn House on 207 Old Niskayuna Road, Sunday, Oct. 20 from 2 to 4 p.m. Many members of the community have come together to help organize what is to be a family-friendly event.

The festival will have many activities that will appeal to kids. There will be pony rides, face painting, pumpkin decorating, wagon rides, a petting zoo and a scavenger hunt.

Faddegon's Nursery is donating the use of their wagon and Bill Brizzell, husband of Mary Brizzell, who is president of The Friends of Pruyn House, is donating the use of his tractor to tow the wagon. All of the workers are volunteers and many are on the Greater Loudonville Association's board of directors.

"The Greater Loudonville Association is a very positive and vibrant force in our community and this is our way of staying connected with the community and saying 'thank you,'" said Pamela Rowley, assistant curator at the Pruyn House.

There will be cider and doughnuts offered as

Guilderland's Trick-or-Treat Street offers festive indoor activities for local families

Trick-or-Treat Street has grown over its 10 years and now covers more than three-quarters of the high school. Last year, more than 1,500 children attended the event.

H oards of young, ghastly ghouls, supreme superheroes and pretty princesses craving sugary treats are expected to descend upon Guilderland High School for more than just a bounty of candy.

Guilderland High School is preparing to host its 10th annual Trick-or-Treat Street Saturday, Oct. 26. The event will see the school's halls, cafeteria and gymnasium transformed into a Halloween haven. The school's classes of 2014 and 2015 host the event as a fundraiser for events like proms and senior ball, but a portion of proceeds will also benefit Adopt a Family.

The event has grown every year and around 1,500 children attended the event last fall. The candy budget alone has increased by more than six-fold when compared to the first event.

"We started out very small ... I think we were maybe 20 classrooms and one little cafeteria, and now we are three-quarters of the whole building," said Ann Marie McManus, Class of 2014 co-adviser and a staff member at the high school.

McManus has been at the helm since spurring the inaugural event, which is also organized by students of the graduating class each year. Feedback about the event also been positive, she said, and has helped shape its growth.

"Every year we evolve and change it has much as we can," McManus said. "I see the same faces year after year, so we must be doing something right to have them keep coming back."

District Superintendent Marie Wiles agreed the Halloween event has become a welcomed festivity for the community.

"Trick-or-Treat Street has become a wonderful tradition in Guilderland," Wiles said. "Children of all ages look forward to this opportunity for the

Guilderland Public Library's event to focus on local authors

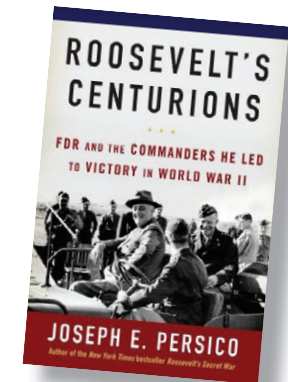

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

Many in the Capital District may be surprised to learn about number of authors in their midst. A neighbor, coworker or acquaintance could be published, with those around them none the wiser.

The Guilderland Public Library is looking to change that with its first Local Author Book Fair. Published writers from throughout Albany County have been invited to participate so as to highlight "the author next door."

"I'd done a similar event at another library and it's a great way to promote local authors because it's a great venue to promote their books," said Natalie McDonough, who is in charge of programming and public services for the library.

Nearly 20 authors have signed up to participate in the event. The keynote speech is to be given by New York Times bestselling author Joseph E. Persico of Guilderland.

Persico was the speechwriter for former Vice President Nelson Rockefeller and the author of 12 nonfiction books. His latest is called "Roosevelt's Centurions: FDR and the Commanders He Led to Victory in World War II."

The rest of the event will be run like a typical book fair, with tables set up throughout the library so visitors will be able to speak with authors in person, purchase their books or get books signed.

"We're really pleased with the amount of authors who responded to our request," said Mark Curiale, the library's public information officer. "I think it might come as a surprise that there are so many published authors in the area."

The event will feature writers who were both self-published and had their work picked up by traditional publishers.

McDonough said visitors typically like the one-on-one time they are able to get with authors at the event. Also, if they like a book they see, there isn't pressure to purchase the book like there might be at similar events. Because they are already at the library, visitors can simply add those books to their request lists.

"It's good exposure for these authors to garner more readers," said McDonough.

The event is open to all ages.

Curiale said he was delighted to learn how many children's authors there are in the area and that a significant number of them will be attending the event at the Guilderland Public Library.

"It was a nice treat," he said.

Those in attendance will learn the true identity of the author behind the pseudonym Dahl Quarray, who has written such children's books as "Arless and his Suit of Armor" and "The Perfect Ball." Heather Spitzberg of Slingerlands, author of the children's series following Cricket the Dog, will also be at the event.

The entire list of authors who will be present at the event has yet to be released.

"We want it to be a bit of a surprise," said McDonough.

Curiale said with the holidays approaching, the book fair is the perfect place to start shopping for a unique gift to give picky book worms, as authors will be on hand to add a personal message to their works.

McDonough said she hopes the event is popular with the community and it can grow in future years.

"There's really something for everyone here," she said.

The Local Author's Book Fair will be held at the Guilderland Public Library on Saturday, Oct. 19. The keynote speech by Joseph Persico will begin at 1 p.m. and the fair will follow from 2 to 4 p.m.

Come out in costume for hayrides, trick-or-treat bag decorating, face painting, balloons, games, snacks for sale and more.

This event is free.

Crossings gets Halloweened

The Town of Colonie will host a free Halloween Celebration for children at The Crossings Park on Saturday, Oct. 26, from 10:30 a.m. to noon.

The Halloween Celebration will feature Halloween crafts as well as music by Crick Diefendorf of Made in the Shade Music from 10:30 to 11:15 a.m., a Spooky Story Time presented by William K. Sanford's Children's Services Department from 11:15 to 11:30 a.m. and a costume parade from 11:45 to noon.

Otto the Auto, of the AAA Hudson Valley Auto Club, will also be on hand from 11:15 to noon to present safety tips for children.

Cookies and drinks will be served.

The critters of Halloween

A presentation on the critters of Halloween will be conducted at the New York State Department of Environmental Conservation's Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road, Delmar on Wednesday, Oct. 30 at 5 p.m.

At this family-friendly indoor program, Center naturalists will share fun natural history facts and dispel common misconceptions about bats, spiders, snakes and other creatures of Halloween myth. Attendees will make crafts indoors and play outdoor games in anticipation of this spooky holiday. Dress for the weather.

This program is open to the public free of charge. Parents and children must accompany one other. Participants are welcome to come in costume. Call 475-0291 for more information.

community to come together and enjoy the spirit of Halloween in a safe and fun environment.”

“Trick-or-Treat Street” is not confined to the district, though, because anyone can attend the event.

“I have gotten emails, phone calls from outside the district thanking me for the event,” McManus said.

Mimi Falcone, a senior helping organizing the event, said planning the event is stressful at times, but it’s also very rewarding.

“I definitely love seeing every year all the kids that come out in the community,” Falcone said. “I really think it is awesome some many people think of Trick-or-Treat Street as a safe, fun environment.”

Falcone is looking forward to seeing the carnival up and running, because this year is going to be bigger than ever.

“We are adding a bouncy bounce and a couple more attractions and we are adding another food vendor,” she said.

The cafeteria will be transformed into a haunted house and the gym will hold all carnival activities, including games and prizes.

“Pretty much everyone is a winner at every game, so the kids don’t go home crying,” McManus said.

There will be magician holding three magic shows throughout the event in the auditorium, and carnival clowns to entertain visitors.

This year, Guilderland Martial Arts will hold presentations and Michele’s Charcoal Pit will offer homemade French fries, hot dogs, hamburgers, Philly cheesesteaks and grilled chicken. For a cooler treat, TCBY will offer frozen yogurt. Some of the additional food and refreshments include popcorn, pizza, cotton candy, water and juice.

McManus said seeing high school students entertain children who are trick-or-treating is worth all the effort of preparation.

“I just like seeing kids dressed up and I love seeing the way they interact with the high schoolers,” she said. “I think the big kids get a kick out of seeing the little kids react to how they dress up.”

There is a $5 cost for children entering the event, but adults can get in for free. Many activities are free, but some things cost money, such as food and raffles.

Trick-or-Treat Street lasts from 4 to 7:30 p.m. on Saturday, Oct. 26, but trick-or-treating ends at 7. Additional parking is at the rear of the school.

Organizers say one of the biggest thrills is seeing the kids all dressed up in their Halloween costumes.

refreshments. The Colonie Youth Center will be running the scavenger hunt as well as the other games.

Children are encouraged to wear Halloween costumes to make the event even more festive. Last year, event drew a crowd of approximately 100 people and this year, the Greater Loudonville Association is hoping for even more people to show up and enjoy the festivities. Admission to the festival will be free.

Here’s How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

Bolshoi Ballet comes to SPAC in 2014

Saratoga venue one of only three U.S. locations

Russia’s legendary Bolshoi Ballet, the largest ballet company in the world and one of the most prestigious, will perform at Saratoga Performing Arts Center (SPAC) as one of only three U.S. locations from July 30 to August 1 during the summer of 2014, announced President and Executive Director Marcia J. White at the annual October meeting of the Board of Directors. The illustrious Moscow-based company of more than 200 dancers, a revered symbol of Russian culture, is famous for elaborately staged productions of classics and a bold, dramatic style. The company’s SPAC engagement will feature four performances of its signature production of Don Quixote.

“The grandeur, history and artistry of the legendary Bolshoi Ballet have affirmed its status as one of the world’s great ballet companies,” said White. “In 2014, SPAC’s stage will mark a milestone when it becomes the showcase for Russia’s Bolshoi Ballet and one of its most thrilling and elaborate productions, the full-length story ballet Don Quixote.”

“We are immensely proud and excited to offer the public this rare opportunity,” said White. “The Bolshoi has influenced and, in many ways, defined the art of classical ballet for more than two centuries.

The company’s presence at SPAC will be an epic event for the Capital Region community.”

Founded in 1776, the Bolshoi Ballet is among the world’s oldest and most renowned ballet companies. Known for bold choreography, outstanding ensemble skills and lavish scenery and costumes, the Bolshoi is characterized by power, strong technique, athleticism and dramatic intensity. The company’s corps de ballet is legendary, praised as “an unfailing marvel” (Financial Times, London) for its flawless synchronization and beauty. The company will also be accompanied by its 80-piece orchestra.

“We are honored to present the iconic Bolshoi Ballet on the heels of an extraordinary artistic season that will welcome back our beloved resident company, the New York City Ballet.

The wide breadth of programming will also include engagements by contemporary group, Martha Graham Dance Company, performing at SPAC for the first time since 2008, and MOMIX, following its popular SPAC debut last season,” said White. “SPAC’s audiences welcomed the innovative performances displayed on our 2013 summer stage; next season we continue that trend with the best and brightest stars from the classical and contemporary worlds.”

Founded in 1776, the Bolshoi Ballet is among the world’s oldest and most renowned ballet companies. The company will perform at Saratoga Performing Arts Center as one of only three U.S. locations from July 30 to August 1 during the summer of 2014.
