Jericho fails to raise needed funds for new projector

By MARCY VELTE

Jericho Drive-in is still in need of funds to purchase a new digital projector to stay open next summer.

Last summer, Jericho Drive-in owners Mike and Lisa Chenette lost their bid to win a new digital projection machine through a competition sponsored by Honda Motor Company. Drive-ins and independent movie theaters are being forced to upgrade to digital projection machines as the movie industry phases out the use of 35mm film.

Village officials to pursue funding options; county sets goal to pave pathway

By JOHN PURCELL

Voorheesville isn't receiving funding local officials sought to enhance its end of the Helderberg Hudson Rail Trail, but their vision is still in focus.

Earlier this month, Voorheesville officials learned the village's application seeking $1.3 million of federal Transportation Alternatives Program funding was denied. Village Mayor Robert Conway said the denial was partially hinged on some items not being "transportation related." The bid sought funding to slightly extend the trail and create additional parking and amenities, along with building a museum.

Applying for the grant did form a master plan for Voorheesville's trailhead, which Conway is not ready to set aside.

"The fact that the money went away doesn't mean that the ideas go away," Conway said. "It might happen on a slower time schedule, but I think ultimately that will still be our goal."

Dems get ready for showdown

Two ideologies struggle for dominance as key committee seats hang in the balance

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

Bethlehem Democrats could see a potential change in leadership as some committee members primary to keep their district seats, setting up a showdown between the party's old guard and a progressive movement from within.

Among those up for re-election on Tuesday, Sept. 9, are Democratic Committee Chairman Jeffrey Kuhn, who is also a town councilman, and Matthew Clyne. Clyne was replaced by Kuhn as chairman in 2012 following a push for reform from some of the committee members.

"Two years ago, there was a movement to reform the Bethlehem Democratic Committee, and that resulted in myself becoming the new chairman and Matt Clyne removed as chair," said Kuhn. "I think what you're seeing is Clyne and some loyalists trying to take back control of the party, and one of the ways is by trying to remove me from the committee and primary me for my spot."

Former Bethlehem supervisor and longtime Democratic committee member Jack Cunningham, whose seat is also up for reelection, said the current party leadership hasn't delivered on the promise of reform.

"From what I understand, and in my own dealings, the leadership has made a concerted effort to set up primaries against people who were on the committee prior to their (Reform Democrats) leadership,"

Fischer, Tonko camps squabble over debates

Televised debate, two public forums planned for the 20th Congressional District race

purcellj@spotlightnews.com

Even before the 20th Congressional District candidates have officially squared off, both campaigns have debated the process of setting up debates.

Incumbent Paul Tonko, D-Amsterdam, is planning to meet challenger Jim Fischer, R-Ballston Spa, for three debates, but details are still be finalized on the third. Each campaign has chided the other for a lack of communication over scheduling public forums. Fischer also isn't pleased with only the three debates being scheduled and is pushing for Tonko to debate in each county he represents.

Two debates have been agreed upon between the candidates. The first will be broadcast live on WMHT on Oct. 9 at 8 p.m. and a panel of journalists to lead the debate, along with questions sent through social media. The League of Women Voters is hosting the next debate, which will be held at the Clifton Park Public Library on Oct. 23 at 6:30 p.m.

A third debate is targeted for Oct. 28 in the City of Albany, according to Tonko's office, but it had not been finalized before Spotlight News went press.

Fischer had wanted to hold a forum across each of the five counties in the 20th Congressional District — Albany, Montgomery, Rensselaer, Saratoga and Schenectady — during congress' recess from Aug. 18 through the first week of September.

"Aside from staged events and partisan barbecues, voters deserve a side-by-side discussion of ways to tackle key issues," Fischer said in a prepared statement Wednesday, Aug. 20. "Denying voter forums for the entire congressional vacation is bad enough given the crises at hand. Already limiting a fall campaign season debate schedule to three ignores huge swaths of a district dramatically revamped in 2012 and is simply unacceptable."

Tonko's campaign had chimed in after Fischer called for the five summer debates, and pointed out debates had already been scheduled for later this year. "Congressman Tonko has already agreed to two debates with his opponent," said Sean Magers, spokesman for Tonko, in a prepared statement Wednesday, Aug. 20. "In the meantime, he will continue the job he was elected to do — listen to his constituents, represent the needs of the Capital Region in the halls of Congress and work to enact policies that create jobs and expand the middle class."

Paul Tonko

Holding debates during the end of the summer would have been atypical of area elections, with most usually occurring closer to Election Day.

Magers said Tonko typically attends one to three debates each election cycle, along with town hall style meetings and roundtables throughout each year. He also pointed to other members of Congress representing similarly sized districts having similar debate schedules.

He added Tonko would continue holding "countless public events to discuss wide ranging issues" important to Capital District residents.

"Last August, Congressman Tonko organized or attended more events than any of his Democratic colleagues," said Magers. During last year's summer break, he said, Tonko attended around four to five events each day.

Fischer has repeatedly blasted Tonko for his legacy being the "death of the American dream" in campaign emails and press releases.

Fischer has pointed to a Wall Street Journal/NBC News poll conducted this month, which had about 75 percent of respondents not confident the life for "our children's generation will be better than it has been for us." This was reportedly the highest negative response the question has garnered in the poll's history.

"Voters I speak with know we are on the wrong track," Fischer said in a statement. "We need a robust discussion of how to restore the American Dream with simpler policies focused on competing choices of healthcare, lower taxes and investments in our infrastructure and education."

Magers said he would not respond to "hyperbolic 'doom and gloom' attacks" focusing on problems and not offering solutions.

"Tonko is better equipped to move the region forward because he meets with New Yorkers each and every day he is back home to listen and take their concerns to Washington," Magers said in a statement to Spotlight News. "There, he works with both parties to craft legislation that aims to create quality jobs, provide opportunity for the middle class and those struggling to enter it, and ensure we balance the budget the right way instead of hitting our most vulnerable and underserved populations."

Fischer's campaign manager, Michele Baker, said he is planning to release his economic plan to increase jobs across the region in September.

"When you have someone like Jim who is new and excited and has fresh ideas he will bring those with him and work hard for us," said Baker.

Tonko is seeking his fourth two-year term in Congress and has defeated three different Republican challengers over the years, along with an Independence candidate when he first ran for his seat.

Tonko, a lifelong resident of Amsterdam, was president and CEO of the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority before joining Congress. He also served for 25 years in the New York State Assembly. He graduated from Clarkson University with a degree in mechanical and industrial engineering.

Fischer was raised in Schenectady and graduated from Niskayuna High School in 1979. He earned his bachelor's degree in economics, with an American history minor, at SUNY Cortland. He founded his own business, Crystal Clear Communications, in 1990, which was originally named Northeast Radio Spectrum.

Fischer, while likely being a new face for most voters, did volunteer for the 2010 and 2012 GOP congressional campaigns for the 20th Congressional District.

Home demolition to make way for apartments

Guilderland zoning board OKs plan after developer makes changes

By JOHN PURCELL
purcellj@spotlightnews.com

A few more high-end apartments are coming to Guilderland after developers opted to demolish a single-family home abutting the state Thruway.

The Guilderland Zoning Board of Appeals approved granting a special use permit to demolish a single-family home and construct 16 apartments across 71 and 75 Schoolhouse Road, along with a variance relating to its buffer area to a business. There are some changes from the original proposal, which property owner Carl Breitenstein said were made based on feedback from local officials and residents.

"I am really happy with the way things turned out," said Breitenstein. "We were able to come up with a design that really meets everyone's best interest."

Breitenstein said the growth of nanotech locally has led to an increased demand for temporary housing and high-end rental units, which are about 1,700 square feet with three bedrooms and two bathrooms. He hopes to have the foundations installed before this winter and start renting out units in the spring.

Instead of being four buildings with four units each, there will be eight, two-unit buildings. Breitenstein said the switch is better for him and neighbors.

"This reduction in size reduces the visual impact of the building and reduces their size to a more appropriate scale," said Zoning Board Chairman Peter Barber.

A sidewalk was also added across the length of the property, which the town had sought. The town plans to connect this to the sidewalk being installed along Western Avenue. There will be no parking allowed on Shady Lane, which is across from the property.

Thomas Remmert was the only board member voting against Breitenstein's application.

"I think we're trying to put 11 pounds of stuff in a 10-pound bag here," said Remmert.

Donald Reeb, president of the McKownville Improvement Association, said building eight buildings on a 2.2-acre property was "more than what's reasonable."

Barber pointed out the density ratio is proposed to be reduced in the new town code, but currently allows up to a dozen units per acre. The revised code is seeking to lower it to six units.

Barber has also said applications cannot be held up to see what zoning changes the Town Board approves.

A rendering shows the proposed high-end apartments developers are planning to build on Schoolhouse Road in Guilderland.

Submitted

"This is what you can do on this property," said Barber.

Several residents surrounding the proposed apartments have previously spoke out against the development, which includes potential traffic impacts and fitting in with the community's character.

"We as a residential neighborhood have slowly been losing this neighborhood feeling, as we are continually encroached upon," Jean Finnegan said in an email to the town in April. "At times, it is even difficult to pull on to Schoolhouse Road, as there is so much traffic and many of these cars are not abiding by the speed limit."

Several residents complained about trees already chopped down on the property and claimed traffic noise from the Northway has increased. There will be new trees planted as the zoning code requires for multiple residential properties.

"At present, the site is vacant with mature trees having been removed. While those trees may provide a visual impact they would play little or no role in masking the sound from the Thruway," said Barber.

The town-designated engineer for the project said the applicant had done as much as possible to reduce traffic noise.

Barber said he reached out to the state Thruway Authority to learn why sound barrier walls were not installed behind the Schoolhouse Road property during the recent reconstruction of I-87.

"They said because it was vacant land and nobody asked," said Barber. "They don't plan on any future development."

Three men arrested for forgery after Thruway stop

State Police stopped a driver for speeding southbound on I-87, which led three men being arrested on forgery charges.

Anthony T. Bailey Chandler A. Pierce Owusu S. Yeboah

Police stopped Chandler A. Pierce, 20, of Peekskill, around 4:15 p.m. Monday, Aug. 25, for speeding and observed the smell of marijuana coming from his car. Further investigation led to police find approximately three grams of marijuana and forged checks.

Police arrested Pierce, along with his passengers — Owusu S. Yeboah, 22, of Bronx, and Anthony T.

Bailey, 21, of New York — and charged all three men with possession of forged instrument in the second degree, a felony. Pierce and Yeboah were also charged with unlawful possession of marijuana.

G'land crash leads to DWI, weapon charge

Guilderland police responded to a car crash on Route 155 and found a man allegedly driving while intoxicated with an illegal weapon in his vehicle.

Christopher Steffens, 55, of 424 Lincoln Drive in Guilderland, allegedly exited Presidential Way onto Route 155 in Guilderland and pulled in front of a motorcyclist. When police arrived, Steffens was reportedly lying on his back outside his car and said he was having a panic attack.

Police observed Steffens to have a strong odor of alcohol on him and bloodshot eyes. He allegedly admitted to consuming alcohol and was helped to his feet. After failing standardized field sobriety tests police found a collapsible baton, which is an illegal weapon, on the passenger side floor of his vehicle.

A chemical breath test revealed he had a BAC of 0.1 percent, according to police.

Steffens was charged with criminal possession of a weapon in the fourth degree, reckless endangerment in the second degree and DWI.

Man sentenced for two felony DWI charges

Albany County Judge Peter Lynch sentenced Jimi Hawes, 38, to concurrent terms of one to three years in state prison on Wednesday, Aug. 20, for felony DWI charges, according to

Jimi Hawes

District Attorney David Soares.

Police said Hawes, of Albany, was driving while intoxicated on Oct. 17, 2013, and crashed into a row of bushes around 10:50 p.m., which caused property damage. He left the scene without reporting the incident, but a license plate from his car was left in the bushes.

Prosecutors requested bail be set on Hawes when he was arraigned in county court on April 8 after he pleaded not guilty, but he was released under the supervision of probation. Guilderland police later that night arrested Hawes for DWI.

Hawes, of Albany, pleaded guilty to two counts of felony DWI on June 24.

Other arrests

- Guilderland police arrested Philip M. Dinuzzo, 29, of 415 Greenhill Court in Albany, at 2:50 a.m. Saturday, Aug. 16, and charged him with DWI, refusal to take a breath test, a traffic device violation and speeding. Police said Dinuzzo was driving 15 mph over the speed limit on Western Avenue and made a sharp left turn through a solid red light. Police observed him to have a strong odor of alcohol, slurred speech, bloodshot eyes and a dazed and confused look on his face. Dinuzzo allegedly denied consuming any alcohol and driving through a red light, but admitted to speeding. He reportedly said his license was at home. He demanded to be allowed to call his girlfriend and allegedly said to police, “you guys act like city cops,” “you don't have anything better to do,” “I'm almost home” and “I'm on my street.” He also allegedly told an officer he knew him from “the barber shop” and said, “Franco cuts your hair.” Police said he refused to take a breath test, along with refusing to answer questions during processing, taking fingerprints and taking his mug shot. He was remanded to Albany County jail to be arraigned later Saturday morning. Police said Dinuzzo apologized for his earlier actions toward officers while walking into jail.

- Guilderland police arrested Michael J. Dorato, 53, of 11 Victor Drive in Albany, around 12:40 a.m. Sunday, Aug 17, and charged him with DWI, failure to keep right and speeding. Police said Dorato was driving 51 mph on Western Avenue and crossed over the solid yellow line to pass a vehicle. Police observed him to have a strong odor of alcohol on his breath and bloodshot, glassy and watery eyes. A chemical breath test revealed he had a BAC of 0.15 percent, according to police.

Your Opinion in The Spotlight

'Conti' judicial delegates backing Margaret Walsh

Editor, The Spotlight:
Most judges in New York are elected directly by the people. However, Supreme Court judges serving the seven-county district that includes Albany County are selected by delegates at a judicial convention. Historically, the judge-nominee is selected by party bosses who then put together a slate of "delegates" to present to the people to rubber-stamp.

This year is different and Democrats actually have a choice on Primary Day, September 9. The Albany County Democratic Committee's Executive Committee endorsed Legislator Justin O'Connell Corcoran for Supreme Court and is running a slate of delegates who would vote for him at a convention. We, the undersigned, are part of an alternative slate of delegates in the 109th Assembly District that are independent from the county party leaders. Our slate has fought hard to also appear on the ballot so as to give Democratic voters a choice. Matthew Clyne - who serves as both Albany County Democratic party boss and one of the county elections commissioners - invalidated our petitions. This led to a court challenge in which the judge determined that our petitions were perfectly valid. Clyne appealed and the appellate court unanimously affirmed, finding that Clyne's action was motivated by a "misguided interest" and was "an unreasonable and unjustified restraint upon the right of primary voters to choose among eligible and qualified candidates."

If you haven't seen the Times Union editorials and commentaries faulting Mr. Clyne, you can Google these: Editorial: Supreme Shenanigans (7/27/14); Vote Offers Opportunity to Break Judicial Barrier (editorial by Nancy Burton, 8/23/14) Which Hat, Mr. Clyne? (8/27/14). One Times Union editorial states that "Mr. Clyne's [attempted move to knock the second slate of delegates off the ballot] effectively blocks Democratic voters from a voice in choosing their party's judicial nominee. ... Until Mr. Clyne and other good ole' boys abandon the backroom manipulation of these key judicial races, the glaring gender disparity on the bench is unlikely to change."

If selected on Primary Day, our slate will consider the fact that ours is the only district in New York that does not have a single woman elected Supreme Court trial court justice. One highly qualified candidate is the Honorable Margaret Walsh. She has been serving the county as a Family Court judge for ten years. During this time, she has served as an acting Supreme Court Justice, so she is ready to step in and hit the ground running if selected by our delegates and elected this November.

By virtue of a lottery, our slate will appear second on the ballot. In the interests of democracy and assuring diversity on the bench, we ask for your support and vote and ask you to vote for the Conti-Robbins-Clarkson-Brousseau-Coffey-Treffiletti slate of delegates.

Although this is the last day for letters dealing with the upcoming primary to appear in print, The Spotlight will continue to run letters to the editor of a political nature online through Monday, Sept. 8, at noon. Pettit has experience, empathy

Editor, The Spotlight:
I am writing to encourage you to support Stacy Pettit for Albany County Surrogate's Court Judge on Primary Day, September 9. Stacy and I have been friends for more than 30 years - through the early days of our careers and marriages, through putting babies in diapers and sending kids off to college and she is one of the kindest, most hard working and caring people I know. Stacy is honorable, compassionate and immensely qualified for this position.

It is important to note that Stacy has made the business of Surrogate's Court her life's work and calling, and she is the only candidate running who can say this. In the 16 years Stacy spent in private practice, she concentrated in family estate and trust planning, guardianship as well as Surrogate's Court litigation. Most importantly, she served 11 years as Chief Clerk of Albany County Surrogate's Court. This in particular makes her uniquely qualified for the position of Surrogate Court Judge. She knows the logistics of running this court and will be able to organize and work through the backlog of cases that have piled up while waiting for the removal of the previous judge. Stacy has also been a consumer of Surrogate's Court as co-guardian of her sister. She personally understands the importance of showing compassion and strength while presiding over often emotional and difficult times in people's lives. Her opponent has no such resume.

As a lifelong Democrat, I am also insulted by the campaign material of Stacy's opponent in which he calls himself "the only true Democrat" the implication being that Stacy is not a true Democrat. Stacy has, in fact, been a lifelong Democrat who has consistently promised to support progressive values and advance policies of equality and fairness. Ironically, her opponent - the "true Democrat" - actively courted and received the Conservative Party line, a party whose ideology is inconsistent with much of that of the Democratic Party. He ended up rejecting it only out of political expediency. In an ideal world, our judges would be separate from and above politics.

Democracy is all about having choices. Please exercise this right and vote on Primary Day, September 9. When you vote, look at the candidate's resumes, ignore politics and vote for the most qualified person - Stacy Pettit for Albany County Surrogate's Court Judge.

Pave the way to a better commute

Normally, we wouldn't advocate laying an asphalt strip through the woods to allow greater access to nature. But when it comes to the Helderberg Hudson Rail Trail — a route designed to be paved — the sooner the paving project can be completed, the better.

Currently, Albany County is anticipating having the entire trail — from South Pearl Street in Albany to Grove Street in Voorheesville — paved by 2016. Voorheesville Mayor Robert Conway said he thought that the timetable was "a little optimistic," but we think it can be done, as long as the project gets the financial backing it needs.

Having a paved Rail Trail would create a safer way for people to commute between the city and the suburbs. Bicyclists on the trail could ride into and out of Albany without battling cars, trucks and buses. All they would have to watch out for are the pedestrians also using the trail. That's far less stressful or dangerous for bicyclists than having a large truck coming up from behind them, and it might even encourage your weekend cyclists to see their bikes as a viable means to get to and from work.

If you need proof of how valuable a paved trail is to bicyclists, visit the Mohawk-Hudson Bike-Hike Path and watch how many people are out riding or walking along it. There is a reason why it's one of our region's most popular trails. It's safe to use, and it can be maintained even in winter.

And let's face it, the Rail Trail would be easy to pave. The railroad line that used to be there may have been taken up, but the strip of hard-packed, crushed rocks that provided the base for the line is still there. That strip gives crews the base they need to pour the asphalt for the path. As unnatural as it may seem to place pavement through the woods, the Rail Trail is perfectly designed for this project.

Certainly, the Mohawk Hudson Land Conservancy feels that way. They've always advocated paving the Rail Trail, and they've made certain county officials keep that idea in their heads as they have proceeded with the various stages of creating it. We know bringing the trail to paved completion involves a significant financial commitment, with overcoming deteriorating bridges one of the biggest expenses, but we don't understand why it has taken so long to find the funding. So far, the lion's share has been paid for with grants, but in a state where incomprehensible sums of taxpayers' dollars are thrown at projects that have little public benefit, we are baffled as to why the Rail Trail has had to play a game of catch as you can find the money needed to move it along.

At least the county has a plan to make it happen. To pave the Rail Trail section from Bethlehem to Voorheesville, the county is expecting to receive a $1 million grant from the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority. We would hope NYSEERDA gives the county the money it needs for the paving project, but there are no guarantees.

Of course, that plan could be pushed further back if funding can't be acquired. Voorheesville found out the hard way when its application for a federal Transportation Alternatives Program grant was denied. The money would have gone toward a small extension of the trail to Grove Street and building some additional amenities at the trailhead, including a museum. Like the county, Voorheesville isn't abandoning its goal to create something special at the Rail Trail. They are continuing to pursue building a museum, and the village is moving forward on the trail extension and establishing a parking lot.

Let's hope the talk of paving the Rail Trail pans out. It will have been a long journey, but one worth it in the end.

Guest Commentary

The rule of law

A philosophical battle for the soul of the local Democratic Party has been taking place over the last several years. On one side are the progressive good government reform advocates — people like Bethlehem Supervisor John Clarkson and Albany Mayor Kathy Sheehan. On the other side are entrenched remnants of the Albany political machine, now led by Matt Clyne in his dual role as both chairman of the Albany County Democratic Committee and commissioner of elections, who view the party primarily as a patronage vehicle to support their own power.

Grassroots Democrats in Bethlehem have been at the vanguard of efforts to reform the party, and in 2012 Mr. Clyne was removed as chairman of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee and I succeeded him. The current contest to elect delegates to the judicial convention to select the Democratic nominee for Supreme Court — and Mr. Clyne's illegal and undemocratic efforts to quash the candidacy of Judge Margaret Walsh — is but the latest chapter in this story.

In contrast to basically every other elected position in New York State, there is no direct primary for Supreme Court justices. Instead, delegates to a judicial convention select party nominees. This odd arrangement has allowed party bosses to maintain almost complete control over who is eventually elected to serve as a judge.

For far too long, the leadership of the ACDC has selected nominees on the basis of personal connections or "service to party" as opposed to merit, qualification or experience. The embarrassing reality of this broken system is that Albany County's judicial district is now the only one in New York State where every elected Supreme Court justice is a white man — despite the fact that women and minorities comprise a large percentage of attorneys in the area.

When a vacancy on the Supreme Court opened up this year, word immediately circulated (before any interviews were conducted) that the ACDC would endorse County Legislator Justin Corcoran, a close associate of Mr. Clyne who has handled his political legal work for years. The ACDC's predetermined endorsement of Mr. Corcoran notwithstanding, other candidates, including Family Court Judge Margaret Walsh, announced that she would interview for the ACDC's endorsement. Although Judge Walsh is an objectively more qualified candidate for Supreme Court, to the surprise of no one, Mr. Clyne's hand-picked law committee endorsed Mr. Corcoran.

A group of concerned citizens (myself included) who believe that diversity on the bench is important and that Democratic voters should have a say in the selection of our party's nominee got together and circulated petitions to get on the ballot as alternative judicial convention delegates with the intent of supporting Judge Walsh. This step, although extremely rare, is a fundamental component of our Election Law; it provides for giving voters the ultimate choice. This step to empower voters infuriated Chairman Clyne because it challenged his power. Accordingly, Jack Cunningham, Mr. Clyne's right-hand-man in Bethlehem and a supporter of Mr. Corcoran, filed a frivolous challenge to our petitions, arguing that anyone suspected of supporting Judge Walsh was ineligible to be a delegate. In a clear conflict of interest, Mr. Clyne, in his day job as election commissioner, upheld Mr. Cunningham's flimsy challenge and removed us from the ballot. Mr. Clyne thus used his taxpayer-funded office in an illegal scheme to help Mr. Corcoran waltz into office unopposed — a gross violation of the rule of law and a direct threat to our democratic process.

In the ensuing lawsuit, five judges on two separate courts unanimously held that Mr. Clyne's actions violated the law. In a strongly worded rebuke, the Appellate Division held that Mr. Clyne's attempt to remove us from the ballot was "misguided" and "amounted to little more than an unreasonable and unjustified restraint upon the right of primary voters to choose among eligible and qualified candidates."

This fiasco demonstrates that both the ACDC and the Albany County Board of Elections are desperately in need of new leadership. The Sept. 9 primary election provides Democratic voters an opportunity to help reform our political process. By voting for the candidates for the judicial convention supporting Judge Margaret Walsh (the "Conti" row), Democratic voters can ensure that our party nominates the most qualified and experienced candidate for the critical office of Supreme Court justice.

Jeffrey Kuhn is the chairman of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee.

What are you listening to?

I'm pretty boring and very old school: Aretha Franklin, James Taylor, Motown.

What have you been reading?

Rick Riley has a new book, "Tiger, Meet My Sister ... and Other Things I Wish I Never Said". Almost a good laugh a page.

What have you been watching on TV?

I love TV. It could be such a powerful tool for good, so much more than it is. I'm a Golf Channel guy. I hate the political "news" stations like Fox. I think they are really harmful. The 30/30 series on ESPN is really well done.

What was the last movie you saw?

A terrific local production called "Ballin' at the Graveyard" about relationships of basketball players at Washington Park, here in Albany. Great, great, sports movie.

What would your dream vacation be?

I recently changed my vacation criteria. I was on a golf vacation with three guys I played football with in college years ago. I have now decided that laughter is the most important part of any vacation. Not sites, not food, not history, excitement or education ... I go where I'm going to laugh.

What are some of your hobbies?

I love golf, and recently have been enjoying water aerobic at the "Y". Mostly spending time with family and friends and I like spending time with my wife, she's fun.

What would your last meal be?

I know peanut butter would be involved. Maybe a great deli sandwich or a fresh farm to table seasonal dish. I love a great soup.

Who is the one person, dead or alive, you would most like to meet?

Ben Franklin, just the coolest guy ever.

What is your favorite local moment?

I am passionate about the "Flower Power" movement and the local "Grow Menands" program. Improving our landscaping by adding flowers to our homes and businesses is such a simple way to improve the value of our properties and communities. Flowers are contagious and can change whole neighborhoods overnight.

"Get to know" is a weekly feature where community members are asked questions that aren't necessarily related to their jobs. If you know of someone you think should be highlighted, email news@spotlightnews.com.

Lawson Lake struck with algae bloom

An algae bloom has blossomed again at Lawson Lake, and local officials are prohibiting fishing and other water-related activities from 420-acre park.

Albany County Executive Daniel McCoy issued an advisory Tuesday, Aug. 26, that a blue-green algae has developed in the water body, which is located in Lawson Lake County Park. The algae bloom is mostly concentrated in the middle and southwest portion near the beach. Fishing and non-contact water activities are prohibited at the lake until the bloom clears.

County officials said the bloom naturally grows at the lake because of the shallow, nutrient-rich water, along with hot weather spurring its occurrence. Typical conditions of the bloom may pose health risks to people and pets. Consuming fish from the lake is not recommended.

"It's important that people and animals be aware of the algae blooms at Lawson Lake," McCoy said in a prepared statement. "As in the past, nature will take its course and with cooler weather the blooms will die off. ... There are hiking trails and many other recreational activities for residents to enjoy at the park."

County officials are working with the state Department of Environmental Conservation to place signage warning of the algae bloom. Swimming is not allowed at the lake, regardless of the algae.

A similar advisory was issued last August warning of an algae bloom at the lake.

Anyone who experiences symptoms associated with exposure — vomiting, nausea, diarrhea, allergic reactions or breathing difficulties — should immediately get away from the water and seek medical attention if needed.

Anything coming in contact with the lake is recommend to be rinsed off with clean water and soap. Pets should avoid the water, too.

Bird programs at Five Rivers

Five Rivers Environmental Education Center, 56 Game Farm Road in Bethlehem, is offering several birding programs in September.

The center is conducting early morning bird walks every Thursday in September, beginning Sept. 4 at 7:30 a.m. On these outdoor surveys of fall migration, Five Rivers naturalists will lead participants along the trails to look for seasonal specialties, as well as year-round avian residents. The long term data collected on these walks help to monitor bird trends such as response to changing land use, climate change and other environmental influences.

Visitors can also learn about bird migration Saturday, Sept. 6, at 10 a.m. During this program, participants will learn about different migration strategies and mechanics, the advantages and disadvantages of migration and the techniques used to study these travelers.

A Beginning Birding program takes place Sept. 6 at 2 p.m. During this indoor/outdoor clinic, center staff will provide an overview of tools and techniques that will help people see the different types of birds. Five Rivers encourages people to bring their own binoculars, but it will have some to loan.

For more information, call Five Rivers at 475-0291.

Lynnwood Church hosts barbecue

There will be a Brooks Barbecue Thursday, Sept. 4, at 4 p.m. at Lynnwood Reformed Church, 3714 Carman Road in Guilderland. Meals are for drive-through pick-up only.

For more information, call the church at 356-4327.

BBC schedules registration

The Bethlehem Basketball Club is holding registration for its co-ed recreational leagues Sunday, Sept. 21, from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. at the Bethlehem Town Parks and Recreation Department office, Elm Avenue Park in Bethlehem.

Space is limited for all three leagues — Elsmere Basketball Club (grades three and four), Bethlehem Basketball Club (grades five through eight) and High School BBC (grades nine through 12). Fees are due at the time of registration.

Information about the club's travel program for children in grades four through eight will also be available at the registration session.

For more information, call Steve Morelli at 598-1257 or Eric Niehaus at 433-8130.

Chamber seeks soup vendors

The Guilderland Chamber of Commerce is seeking local restaurants and caterers to participate in the eighth annual Souped Up on Guilderland event Saturday, Oct. 4, at the YMCA Adventure camp.

There are categories for best soup, best chili and best stew. There is no charge to enter, but participants must bring at least eight gallons of food or else they will run out.

The event also features an antique car show, where visitors will vote for the best vehicle. The chamber is also looking for vendors to showcase their items, businesses, farms or crafts.

For more information, call the Guilderland Chamber of Commerce at 456-6611 or email info@guilderlandchamber.com.

Grange hosts rummage sale

The annual rummage sale takes place Friday, Sept. 12, and Saturday, Sept. 13, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Bethlehem Grange, 24 Bridge St. in Selkirk.

Furniture, clothes, computer equipment, Christmas items and more will be sold. On Sept. 13, homemade soup and sandwiches will be available.

The event takes place entirely indoors, and proceeds benefit the Bethlehem Grange. Donations are also accepted.

The Bethlehem Grange is also looking for furniture, household items, tools, crafts and hobby items, collectibles, books, games, toys, clothing and other items to be donated for the rummage sale. For information and to arrange delivery, call Carol Carpenter at 421-1384, Mary Starr at 767-9672, Caroline Wirth at 424-4953 or Jo Downey at 767-2985.

Additionally, the Bethlehem Grange is seeking new members. Meetings are on the fourth Tuesday of the month at 7 p.m. The community rooms are also available for rental. All community rooms include a full kitchen and are handicap accessible. For information on renting the community rooms, call Mary Starr or Jo Downey.

Sharing Shed extends dates

Due to popular request, the Sharing Shed/Community Corner will run through Saturday, Sept. 20, at the Fellowship Hall of the New Baltimore Reformed Church, located on the corner of Route 144 and Church Street in the hamlet.

The Sharing Shed features quality clothing and accessories, household goods, some furniture and other items. Donations are welcomed, and organizers ask that donations are fair and within a person's ability to give.

Those wanting to donate items to the Sharing Shed are asked to bring them by when the Shed is open, Saturdays from 9 a.m. to noon. All non-claimed items will be donated to another charity.

Swim lessons registration

Registration is underway for the Albany Jewish Community Center's fall swimming lessons.

Registration runs through Friday, Sept. 19, for the swimming lessons, which begin Sunday, Sept. 14, and continue through Oct. 25.

Level I lessons take place Mondays and Wednesdays at 1:15 and 4 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1:45 and 4:30 p.m.; Saturdays at 1:15 p.m. and Sundays at 2:30 p.m. Level II lessons take place Mondays and Wednesdays at 1:45 and 4:30 p.m.; Tuesdays and Thursdays at 1:15 and 4 p.m.; Saturdays at 1:45 p.m. and Sundays at 3 p.m. Level III lessons take place Mondays and Wednesdays at 4:30 p.m. and Sundays at 3:30 p.m.

Additionally, there is an infant parent aquatics program for children ages 12 to 36 months Sundays at 10:30 a.m., and adult swim lessons Saturdays and Sundays at 5:30 p.m.

The cost is $75 for AJCC members and $110 for non-members.

Celebration set to honor departing director

After 20 years as Director of the RCS Community Library, Judy Felsten is retiring at the end of September. From the chartering of the library through the inception of Romp and Read, the Fun Fair and Acoustic Doorways, to the recent move to 95 Main St., under Judy's leadership our library has become a modern, relevant resource for our community.

On Sept. 27 from 3 to 6 p.m., the library will host an open house in honor of Judy. Library users and community members are invited to share their thanks and good wishes to Judy for a happy retirement. For those who can't attend, there will be an online guest book at the library's website, www.rcscommunitylibrary.org.

Library storytimes

Library storytimes return, beginning Sept. 9. If you are looking for something special to do with your little one that is free and nearby, the library has a storytime for you. There is no need to register, just bring your child and have some fun.

Positively Preschool meets at 10:30 a.m. on Thursday mornings at the library with Kathy Domery. Bring your preschoolers for a story and related craft, lots of smiles and a chance to meet new friends.

Romp & Read offers stories, songs and games for the toddler set. Meet Kathy Meyer in Selkirk on Tuesday mornings at 10 a.m. at the Selkirk Firehouse on Route 396, east of Route 9W. Romp and Read also meets at the library on Friday mornings at 10:30 a.m.

Library Babies is just for babies age 6 months to 2 years and their caregivers. Join Kathy Meyer on Friday mornings at 9:30 a.m. at the library. Songs and finger plays, as well as lots of giggles, are a great way to start the morning with your baby.

All storytimes are free and open to the public. No registration is required.

Read banned books this month

"Books and ideas are the most effective weapons against intolerance and ignorance." – President

Lyndon Baines Johnson

The library is planning to observe Banned Book Week in September by inviting the community to read their favorite banned book either live or on video. Join fellow community members on Thursday, Sept. 25, from 6 to 8 p.m. in celebrating the right to read.

Plan to be a reader at our event. It doesn't have to be fancy or perfect – remember this should be fun. Get creative by getting your friends and family involved. The library is here to help with a list of banned books and tips for reading live or recorded.

Rewarded for reading

Adults and teens continue to enter for their chance to choose a prize from the Rewarding Readers prize basket. Pat Kennedy and Caroline Borger were this week's Rewarding Readers adult prizewinners, and Willo Suttin and Bridget Donnelly's names were drawn for the teen prizes.

Teens and adults can enter a coupon for every three books read this summer in the Rewarding Readers weekly prize drawing. Each Friday, the library draws the name of a teen and an adult winner.

Computer classes

Make plans to sharpen your Microsoft skill set this fall with computer classes at the library. Familiarity with these programs is useful in the work setting as well as at home. Class size is small, so your questions will get answered. All classes are free and take place in the library. Registration is required: call 756-2053, or email info@rcscommunitylibrary.org

Take the library card challenge

Got a card? Get a card. Bethlehem Public Library cards are free to Bethlehem Central School District residents and come with other advantages besides borrowing privileges for books, magazines and DVDs.

With your library card, you can borrow passes to regional museums, get email due-date reminders, request and renew items online, download audiobooks and eBooks, use a public computer and access library-purchased online reference tools.

You can apply for a card at the library or, if you are 14 or older and live in the Bethlehem Central School District, you can apply online. Children under 14 who would like a card can visit the library with a parent or guardian, who will need to provide a picture ID and proof of current residence. Special kid-card designs are available. Find out more at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org; click on the library card quicklink.

This month, young people from preschool to high school are invited to pick up a Library Card Month Challenge sheet at the youth services desk. Get yours and get to work.

The sessions will be led by Cathy Brenner, who has studied tai chi for six years and is certified by the Tai Chi for Health Institute. As many of you know, she is also a youth service librarian at Bethlehem Public Library.

The program is accessible to people of all ages and abilities. No prior tai chi experience is needed. Wear loose clothing and smooth-soled shoes.

Mind your health

Every Friday at 4 p.m. from this Friday, Sept. 5, through Oct. 24, we've set out a smorgasbord of healthy fun for kids in grade K-5. Sample Wii dancing, yoga and tai chi; try your hand at making apple snacks. The complete schedule can be found in the library and in the September/October issue of footnotes, the library's bimonthly newsletter. Come to one or all. (Please note that Hands-Only CPR is open only to children age 10 and up, and is the only program in the series where signup is required.)

Weekly tai chi instruction

Tai chi is an ancient Chinese art that enormously benefits health and wellness. "Tai Chi for Health" will meet at the library on Wednesdays at 11 a.m. from Sept. 10 to Oct. 29. Bethlehem Y helps meet back-to-school needs

Thanks to the outstanding efforts of the Bethlehem YMCA staff, 70 students from local families in need will be starting school with backpacks and school supplies. The Y's annual Back Pack Program is a joint effort with the Bethlehem Senior Services Department. Special thanks to YMCA staff members Shannon Vigers, Mark Thurman and to Jane Sanders and her team from Senior Services for their efforts and time to such a worthy cause. And thanks to everyone who donated supplies. Additional school supplies were donated to Venture Church's food pantry in Selkirk and to seven local schools.

Y Summer Camp is a big success

Here is one side of a typical early September conversation among parents in Bethlehem: "How was your summer? Yeah, ours was good too. Did you get away? Great, so did we. What did your kids do over the summer? YMCA camp – did they like it? Wow, lots of activities, fun games and trips, they loved the counselors ... that sounds fantastic! I'm going to have to sign up my kids to go to YMCA camp next summer too."

This year's summer camp at the Bethlehem YMCA was a spectacular success for the Y and, even more importantly, for the kids who attended the camp. On average, 120 campers came to the Y each week during July and August, and each one went home with a smile every day, new experiences every week and new friends by the end of the summer.

Combine the Y camp experience with a family trip to Cape Cod, the Adirondacks, the Jersey Shore, the Outer Banks or wherever your favorite vacation spot is – and that adds up to a great summer. Here are some comments the Y received from parents:

"Thank you so much for making this incredible program available to children in the Capital District."

"My son is really enjoying the programs and activities and making new friends. His counselor, Ben, is fantastic. He keeps the kids engaged and active and is very patient and kind. My son also enjoys swimming in the pool and just being outside having fun. The field trips are also educational and fun."

"It's great to have this resource available. I also like the healthy activities, and how physical activity and nature are core components of the camp. Kids today need more programs like this and less TV and video games. It's great to see the kids playing together and interacting with other children as a camp group."

"Thanks so much for all you do for the kids."

"My daughter is having a wonderful time in the summer camp. The counselors are very attentive to the children and the staff is extremely professional. Emily and all are doing a superb job. Want you to let them know they are doing great – no issues with anything and have poked around with other parents to see their comments, as well. Everyone is raving about the summer program!"

The Bethlehem YMCA thanks all the camp counselors, especially Emily Field and Rusty Decker, for everything they did to bring smiles to the faces of so many children and helping to make their summer a memorable one. We look forward to seeing everyone back – along with some of their friends – at Y summer camp next year.

Bethlehem passes conservation easement law

'Bare bones' version allows tax breaks to preserve open space

By MARCY VELTE
veltem@spotlightnews.com

After Gov. Andrew Cuomo signed legislation into law allowing conservation easement exemptions for Bethlehem landowners, the town board took action on its local law last week.

The town passed a "bare bones" version of the law on Wednesday, Aug. 27, which includes all of the state's mandates and allows the town to take advantage of the governor's approval. Further requirements and qualifications specific to Bethlehem will be determined through recommendations from a Conservation Easement Advisory Group, to then be passed through a resolution of the town board.

"We're passing something we're very sure of. Indeed it's the only thing we can pass at this time. We're very much governed by the state law in this case," said Supervisor John Clarkson. "We want to do so with all due speed so land owners can have the time to consider whether or not they want to do this, particularly in the first year. They'll have to make up their mind prior to March 1, or wait until next year."

Clarkson said he hopes to have the law passed, the mission described and a Conservation Easement Review Board appointed, all by the early fall. This will give landowners more time to think about applying for the coming year.

The supervisor also agreed to set up a public meeting with large landowners before the next town board meeting.

At the public hearing, most were in favor of the proposal but still had questions.

One resident asked if they would still be able to log their land, and who would police the areas to make sure no development occurs. Planning Director Rob Leslie said all uses of the land would need to be discussed with the Conservation Review Board and placed within the agreement the landowner signs with the town. He also said in other communities, sometimes the Building Department checks the land or a review board member visits once a year.

Town Attorney Jim Potter said landowners would also need to file documents with the town's Planning or Zoning Department for development to take place, which could also act as a self-policing measure.

For years, different advisory groups have suggested a conservation easement for the town, but the idea was reintroduced in February as a possible goal for the Bethlehem's new Open Space Technical Advisory group. Some large land owners were also interested in an exemption during the recent reassessment processes as another way to provide tax relief.

Landowners could see an exemption of 50 to 90 percent on their general municipal and school district taxes by participating in the program, according to the New York State Department of Taxation and Finance.

The exemption would mainly be based on how long they committed their land to remain open space. The shortest amount of time, which is mandated by the state, would be 15 years. No development can occur on the land during the easement's timeframe.

The town's Open Space Technical Advisory group previously discussed the guidelines for Bethlehem's program.

In early May, Leslie presented the Bethlehem Town Board with examples of conservation easements in other municipalities across the state. He gave another presentation in early August with suggestions specific to Bethlehem.

The advisory group reached out to other towns that have similar easements to see how those programs were developed. Members are also seeking advice on how to best administer the program in Bethlehem.

Depending on the amount of acreage approved to qualify for an easement, 157 parcels of land were identified in the town as "possible participants" in the program. Land already receiving an agricultural exemption would likely not qualify.

During the presentation in May, Leslie suggested a tax clawback be set into the law, so a landowner could still sell or develop their land if they wished. However, they or the purchaser would then need to pay the back taxes on the property. It is those types of details that will be included in discussions for the local law.

The legislation, which was introduced by Sen. Neil Breslin and Assemblywoman Patricia Fahy in May, passed both houses before the end of session.

"With this bill now signed into law by Gov. Cuomo, the town can now advance their open space preservation program in a transparent and fair manner while providing incentives for those who choose to preserve undeveloped, open property," said Fahy in a statement. "What happens in Bethlehem could be used as a model for other communities facing this issue."

Albany County Democratic Committee elections

Voting takes place Tuesday, Sept. 9

Candidates from within districts in the Town of Bethlehem:

Election district	Candidates considered part of the progressive movement
8	George Harder Pam Skripak and Jennifer Birn
9	Jack Cunningham Josh Kapczynski and Matt Meyer
10	Frank Murphy Linda Miller and Maureen McLeod
14	Fran Royo and Jim Kelly Amy Conway and Jeff Kuhn
22	Matt Clyne and Shelly Andrews Susan Hager and Suzy Sodergren
28	Steve Vazci and Pat Dorsey Matt Miller and Howard Shafer
31	Bonnie Fahey, Judy Coyne* and Michael Coyne

Two committee members from each district are selected. They serve for three-year terms.

Candidates listed in blue are incumbents.

* Judy Coyne has held her seat for the past year due to appointment and is seeking reelection.

said Cunningham, a Clyne supporter. "I was told by Mr. Kuhn that the committee met and decided who would run and be endorsed for those seats, and those were discussions I and other committee members weren't a party to."

The Bethlehem Reform Democrat movement began in May 2012, when group organizers said they were frustrated with the inner workings of the town's Democratic Party and did not like the direction the party was headed in. They said the point was "not to form a new party, but to be proud of and participate in" the current party. Supervisor John Clarkson also had endorsed the movement and its candidates for office.

That year, members of the Reform group put forward 40 candidates for committee seats, winning 26 out of 62 seats in the September primary.

Kuhn, who was not an organizer of the movement and has never considered himself a member, said he does support their initiatives. He became chairman in October 2012, after a weighted vote by the committee.

At the time, Kuhn said he decided to run because he could no longer back the current committee leader and decided he would accept the nomination if someone put his name forward.

Although Clyne lost the position of chairman, he remained a committee member.

Now, Clyne loyalists and former Reform Democrats, now calling themselves progressives, are attempting to knock each other out of the committee, but Kuhn said he believes the majority of committee members will continue to be from the progressive side despite the election's outcome.

"I think there is a personal loyalty to Matt Clyne and a personal investment in the old machine-politics system," said Kuhn. "You can see that is basically what motivates them. They're not motivated by the desire to see Democrats elected or the party's principals. Several of the people who support Clyne and are primarying either overtly or covertly supported Republicans in the 2013 election."

In recent years, the new Democratic Committee has worked to change how the party operates within the town. Many of the changes were implemented because of the earlier requests from Reform Democrat candidates who called for greater transparency and more oversight of the party.

Meetings are now open to the public, and Kuhn said the committee also changed the interview process for campaigns and how it endorses candidates.

"We now endorse candidates based on merit, not who the person knows," said Kuhn.

Cunningham said that in his own race, neither of the candidates running against him live in the election district they're running for. Kuhn said the same issue is also occurring with candidates from the other side.

There is nothing legally preventing that from happening, though, as candidates can run for a committee district seat even if they don't live within that district. Eligibility for seats is determined by Assembly district, so a candidate could potentially run for a committee seat in a certain district, even if they don't live within the town.

"This is something that's always happened, but they (the Reform Democrats) ran on a commitment to introduce reforms," said Cunningham. "When I asked if something was going to be changed, I was told by Kuhn that it wasn't realistic because it can't be done for every election. That's fine, but it was their commitment to the public, and now it's gone by the wayside."

Cunningham has not been endorsed by the party, and he has also not hidden the fact he supported his brother, Dan Cunningham, who ran as a Republican for the Bethlehem Town Board.

"I'm obviously going to support my brother," he said.

Kuhn said the party saved its endorsements for members who would "work for and support the election of Democratic candidates."

"The others have done nothing for (the party), or in several examples, have overtly worked to support Republicans, and that's why we can't support their continued membership on the committee," said Kuhn.

Matthew Clyne did not return calls for comment.

The state primary elections will be held on Tuesday, Sept. 9.

been told for the past few years film is going away, and if we can't get the projector, we'll have to discuss what can be done before the start of next season."

The Chenettes started a fundraising campaign on their own at the beginning of the season, but are still short of their goal. The couple will have to raise the money for a new digital projector or face closure next year if they can no longer find movies on film.

Depending on the equipment needed, the projectors can cost between $70,000 and $100,000.

As the season began, buckets were placed at the entrances in the hopes customers would donate some extra money when they paid for admission or at the snack booth. The Chenettes also started a Paypal account so people could donate directly to the cause.

"We didn't do a Kickstarter campaign yet because the goal is so high," explained Chenette. "We wanted to start fundraising for a year first because it's all or nothing. With Kickstarter, we either have to raise the goal we set or get none of the money."

On Wednesday, Aug. 27, the drive-in held a special fundraising event. A carload of people paid just $20 to see three movies released earlier in the summer. There were also raffles, T-shirts on sale and old movie posters. However, turnout for the event was lower than expected due to the poor weather.

Chenette said they have yet to raise even 25 percent of their goal.

The drive-in has been a Glenmont institution since it first opened in 1957. In 1995, it was purchased by Mike Chenette, who had saved up for years in order to own his own business.

The couple added the ice cream stand in 2007, and the next year purchased a brand new 40-by-90-foot screen. They are still in the process of paying back both investments. This is the 20-year anniversary of the Chenettes' ownership of the drive-in.

Earlier in the year, Chenette said although she has been told the drive-in will still be able to get movies on film this year, she is already seeing the effects of the switch.

Typically drive-ins show two movies at each showing, which is the main allure for families on a budget looking for summer fun with their children. Each night, one movie is usually a new release, with the other being a bit older.

The concession stand at the Jericho Drive-in was updated a few years ago.

Since it is getting harder to find movies on film, theaters that haven't made the switch are holding on to their reels longer, meaning it is getting harder for the Chenettes to find those older movies for the second show.

"I haven't heard yet that they stopped producing the movies on film, but once they do, it will all fall like dominos," said Chenette. "I'm hoping that the industry makes prints for longer, since so many drive-ins and independent theaters are struggling."

Mike and Lisa Chenette both said they are appreciative of everyone's donations throughout the year. They said the community has been very supportive, and they've received a lot of well wishes.

"If we could open again next year, that would be great," said Lisa Chenette. "We'll have to speak with our movie booker and find out what the trends are and what films we can get."

Depending on the weather and which new films continue to be released on film, the drive-in could stay open into October on the weekends. One of the last films to play will be "Dolphin Tail 2" on Sept. 12, but they are unsure what films can be secured after that date.

Anyone who wishes to donate can do so through the drive-in website at www.jerichodrive-in.com, or by visiting the theater and ice cream stand in person.

Trail

some frustration over Voorheesville's application being completely denied.

"The application was pretty exhaustive," said Conway. "Our feeling is, red line the things that aren't transportation-related and consider the ones that are, but that's apparently not the way they operate."

The village would have been responsible for covering 20 percent of the cost, or $260,000, if it was awarded the TAP grant. Local officials were looking to use in-kind services for its contribution.

This year, the village is planning to tackle a few smaller projects. Conway is looking to clear out and extend the trail from where it ends at Voorheesville Avenue to Grove Street. At the Pine Street trail entrance, he hopes to start clearing out a pathway to the trail.

Conway said the trail even gets a "fair amount" of use in the winter, and he expects this will likely increase this year.

To provide further enhancements, the village is looking at trying to receive grant funding in future years.

Long-term goals of its master plan include constructing an overlook tower with restroom facilities and constructing a railroad museum across the street from it. This would include roughly 50 paved parking spaces at the new trailhead off Grove Street, which wouldn't require removing any trees.

Ideally, the museum would be constructed to replicate an old rail station or utilize an old rail car.

Regardless of steps the village is taking, Albany County officials have set a goal to pave the entire Rail Trail by the end of 2016.

Mary Rozak, spokeswoman for the county executive, said it's expected that a $1 million Cleaner, Greener Communities grant from the New York State Energy Research and Development Authority will be used to pave the trail from Delmar to Voorheesville. This likely would not cover the entire cost though, according to Rozak.

Conway said the county's paving goal "seemed a little optimistic," but he believes the benchmark shows county officials' dedication to the project.

This month, Rozak said, the county expects to issue a request for bids to begin construction on the "phase three" section of the Rail Trail project, which stretches from the trail's current end in Delmar to a proposed trailhead parking lot along South Pearl Street in Albany. This work includes paving this portion of the trail.

The third phase project will cost around $4.1 million, and the goal is to complete it in the fall of next year. Grant funding covers most of the costs.

Federal funds are provided through the Congestion Mitigation and Air Quality Improvement (CMAQ) Program and total $3.637 million. There is also $500,000 coming from the state Office of Parks, Recreation and Historic Presentation. The county must cover 20 percent of the project, or around $825,000.

The county has spent approximately $800,000 to date to open sections of the Rail Trail between Voorheesville and Bethlehem. There was also cash and in-kind assistance provided from the Friends of the Rail Trail, the towns of Bethlehem and New Scotland and the Village of Voorheesville.

"Really, the impact on Voorheesville for having three divisions is we're now in a division with a mix of old South Division rivals plus a three-way merged program (Holy Trinity) and a couple of North Division teams that we haven't faced much," said Sapienza.

Voorheesville plays two historic road games to begin the season. The Blackbirds are Holy Trinity's first opponent when they meet Friday, Sept. 5, at Catholic Central in Troy. Then, they are the first team to play Watervliet on its refurbished home field Sept. 12 — the first night game in Watervliet's history.

"We'll have the privilege of being the first team to play Holy Trinity, and then we have the privilege of playing Watervliet on its new field," said Sapienza.

Voorheesville's first home game is Saturday, Sept. 20, against Mechanicville.

Rebuilding the Dutch ship

Guilderland has holes to fill after graduating most of last year's starters

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Expectations are different for the Guilderland football program.

Last year's Section 2 Class AA title contenders are now hoping to make the playoffs following the graduation of most of their starters, including quarterback Frank Gallo, wide receiver Jake Smith and running backs Micaiah Henningham and Joseph Cornell.

"You can never truly replace guys with multiple years of experience and have played at a high level," said Guilderland coach Dan Penna. "You can only ask for young guys who are excited to be here and ready to learn."

What Guilderland has left over from last year's team that reached the Sectional semifinals is a group of role players. Starting quarterback Andrew Sentz was known primarily to Dutchmen fans as the team's placekicker in 2013. Tailback Ryan Gallup played behind Henningham and Cornell. Andy Hines and Tim Pasquini were part of the offensive lineman rotation, but not starters.

"We had some big guns on the offensive line last year (who have since graduated), but our younger guys were key role players," said Penna.

Even though many of the offensive starters are new this season, Penna said Guilderland won't back off from its fast-paced, no-huddle scheme that helped it become one of the top scoring teams in Class AA.

"We're running our same offensive scheme," said Penna. "We've always felt like we've played our best when we have a balanced attack. And even though we thrived on big plays last year ... we want to execute the little things and create longer drives."

Guilderland breaks in its new starting lineup Friday, Sept. 5, when it visits Colonie in a rematch of last year's Sectional quarterfinal that the Dutchmen won 38-35 on Sentz's last-second field goal. Colonie has also undergone significant changes to its team, including the graduation of its top three running backs and the appointment of Eric Rouleau to replace Bill Roemer as head coach after Roemer's teaching position was eliminated in a budget cut this past spring.

"It's a great match-up," said Penna. "A lot of the first week match-ups are great because many of them are rematches from last year's playoffs."

For Guilderland to get back to the playoffs this season, Penna said his players will have to adjust quickly to being varsity starters.

"For us, we've got to stay healthy. We have to mature and grow. We have to use our (two) non-league games to get our feet under us before heading into the teeth of our league schedule," said Penna.

Guilderland's Empire Division schedule begins Sept. 19 at Saratoga Springs.

2014 schedule

- Sept. 5 — at Colonie, 7 p.m.
- Sept. 12 — Columbia, 7 p.m.
- Sept. 19 — at Saratoga, 7 p.m.
- Sept. 27 — at Albany, 1 p.m.

Veteran-laden 'Birds seek wisdom

Voorheesville is hoping to cut down on mistakes in 2014

By ROB JONAS
jonasr@spotlightnews.com

Will experience lead to wisdom?

That's the question at Voorheesville, where 18 seniors return to the varsity football team this season.

"It's very rare in a small school situation to have 18 seniors, and the bulk of that group have been contributing in some way to the varsity level since ninth or 10th grade," said Voorheesville coach Joe Sapienza.

The Blackbirds had issues with mental mistakes last year, as penalties and turnovers cropped up during a 4-4 season. It was most noticeable in Voorheesville's 39-19 loss to Corinth in the Section 2 Class C quarterfinals, as a series of turnovers helped Corinth jump out to a 24-7 halftime lead.

"Right now, we're working on playing mistake-free, patient offense — taking what other defenses give us," said Sapienza.

Voorheesville's offense has several key skill position players back, including quarterback Robert Denman, tailbacks Matt Feller and Scott Roney and wide receiver Mickey Knight.

"Our offense is going to be unbelievably balanced. We're very strong in all aspects," said Sapienza. "We have two powerful runners in Roney and Feller. Our quarterback can read defenses, so we're going to give him read checks. We have excellent slot receivers.

"We'll be able to do some things that we haven't been able to do (on offense) because they have been in our system for three or four years," he added.

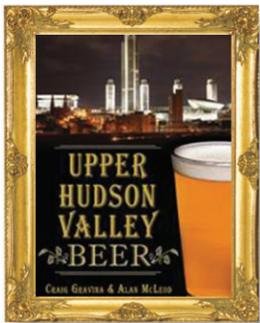

Voorheesville's defense should also be strong with most of last year's starters returning. The issue will be keeping those players healthy, since many of them are two-way starters.

"Last year when we were healthy, we were very good. We had a couple of games where we had key guys out, and that's where we had problems," said Sapienza. "So, we're making certain we have some depth this year. That's where some of our younger guys (six underclassmen) come in."

Voorheesville's schedule won't give the Blackbirds many breathers this season. Playing in the Central Division — one of three divisions in Class C — they face the likes of Watervliet, Mechanicville, Tamarac and Stillwater. Class C moved to three divisions with the additions of Holy Trinity —

All about beer

On Thursday, Sept. 11 from 6-8 p.m., the Albany Institute of History & Art will host a special launch of Craig Gravina and Alan McLeod's new book, "Upper Hudson Valley Beer."

Remarkable Liquids, the area's only craft-focused beer distributor, will be on hand to provide samples. "Upper Hudson Valley Beer" is a 400-year history of brewing and beer-making in our region.

Tickets to the event cost $30 per person or $50 per couple and include one copy of the book and samples of beer (ages 21 and over). For more information and to purchase tickets, call (518) 463-4478, ext. 412 or go online to www.albanyinstitute.org.

Troy story

By DANIA BIANCHI
bianchid@spotlightnews.com

RCHS exhibit focuses on the vast and varied history of downtown intersection

The year is 1914. You are standing upon slate sidewalks in Downtown Troy. Early automobiles pass you by on cobblestone streets. People on horse and carriage are delivering goods to nearby businesses, and the Caldwell Apartment building, just seven years old, is visible on the corner.

It's the corner of Second and State streets in the City of Troy, and the Rensselaer County Historical Society wants to bring you back for a peek into life all those years ago.

"We know all the amazing things that happened there — the music hall, anti-suffrage and pro-suffrage rallies, the amazing rescue of freedom seeker Charles Nalle in 1860," said Ilene Frank, executive director at RCHS. "You can stand on one corner and tell people all these amazing stories, and we can do that."

The exhibit is called "At the Corner

Tugboats will be the stars of the show at the Tugboat Roundup in Waterford Sept. 5-7.

Tugboat Roundup turns 15

It's been called one of the largest maritime festivals in Upstate New York. Waterford has hosted the Tugboat Roundup for 15 years. The public festival takes place on the Waterford waterfront on Sept. 5-7.

A gathering and showplace of both working and historic tugs of the Hudson River and New York State Canal system, the Roundup has evolved into a festival of boating at the Gateway to the Canal System.

More than 35 boats are expected to be along the wall in Waterford this year, according to Tom Beardsley, Marine Event Coordinator.

"We'll have working tugs that push freight on the river, the canal system and the Great Lakes. We'll have antique and historic craft, too. One of the boats is the official ambassador for the NYS Canal System, the 1901 Tug Urger," said Beardsley.

There is no admission. The only cost is for food and for a boat ride.

Several of the larger boats will be available for walk-through's, allowing festivalgoers to see the inner workings of these iconic maritime work-horses.

The festival is a of Second & State: Where Troy's History Intersects," and will be displayed in the Grimm Gallery at RCHS.

As a key location in Troy's original grid pattern, the four corners that make up the intersection of Second and State streets and the surrounding blocks witnessed many important events and developments throughout history.

"It's easy to do the history of your town and include a little of everything, but the story can get muddled," Frank said. "What we are doing is focusing on one intersection and radiating just slightly from that intersection, telling the history of Troy using filters — a model we hope to take out into the city."

Frank believes with a tight focus like this, you can tell a broad story.

Four key themes will be explored in the exhibit — the grid, the architecture, cultural history and social action. The exhibit will explore the grid pattern and how it has organized city life. It will also highlight residential and commercial structures that still exist in the historic district, such as the Caldwell Apartment Building and the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall.

Using the archival collections at RCHS, the exhibit will feature historic photographs and objects such as architectural plans of key buildings, a Votes for Women banner from 1915, a seat from the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall, photographs of parades and portraits taken on the steps of the music hall.

"Our hope is that you come into the exhibit and get some info, pick up a map and walk the 20 steps to the corner, stand there and see all this stuff — the music hall, the Caldwell Apartment Building — and it takes you back and makes you realize the generations that have been there," said Frank.

The exhibit will open on Monday, Sept. 8, and remain open for 15 weeks.

A companion exhibit, "Conserving the Welfare and Best Interests of our Depositors — The Troy Savings Bank," will focus on the history and impact of the bank.

"When we were planning for the main exhibit, one thing that kept coming up was the importance of the music hall. We wanted to tell its story but with a variety of stories, so we decided to break that out into a companion exhibit and give it more space to tell that story more deeply," Frank said.

She adds that she would be the first to say sometimes banking doesn't seem like an interesting story, but the Troy Savings Bank was founded at a time when the concept of a savings bank was new.

"There was more morality involved with early bankers thinking they could convince the working class to save their money, and it would improve their morals. They wanted to stress the importance of saving money to better yourself, not to waste money on frivolous things. Because of that, the bank was really invested in the community," Frank said.

The exhibit will look at the history of the bank, the impact on the community and the legacy left behind with the music hall.

A variety of programming will accompany both exhibits, including walking tours for visitors to explore the area.

"We are blessed in Troy to be in a city that when you come here, even if you are not a history person, you can't help but be aware that you are in an old city that clearly has something going on in its past and the buildings remain,"

Frank said. "History wasn't my favorite subject in school, but this is the way to have that entry point without being an academic textbook about what happened here and who walked before me."

RCHS is located at 57 Second St. in Troy and is open Thursdays through Saturdays, noon to 5 p.m. The main exhibit runs through Dec. 20, and the companion exhibit runs through Nov. 15. There is no fee to view the exhibits, although donations are encouraged. Guided tours of the exhibit are available for groups. For more information, call 272-7232 or visit www.rchsonline.org.

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!

celebration for the public and for the tugboat industry, highlighting the rich history of New York State's inland marine history. Arts and crafts vendors, food, kiddie rides and various displays on canal, river and marine history will be along the waterfront, along with the boats, throughout the weekend. The Waterford Farmer's Market will be held concurrent to the event.

Dick Hurst, Harbor Master in Waterford, is in charge of the land displays and vendors.

"This year, we have a range from marlin-spike artists to oil artists," Hurst said. "There are historical displays, food vendors, antique outboards, souvenirs, painters, crafters and more. There should be well over 100 different vendors this year."

Boat rides on the Caldwell Belle (homeport of Schuylerville) will be available on the Hudson River near the canal junction and through Lock 2 of the NYS canal system. Live music will be playing throughout the weekend along the canal in front of the Waterford Visitor's Center.

Fireworks on Saturday night usually draw the biggest crowd.

"The entire weekend brings in well over 10,000 unique visitors," says Beardsley, adding "a large number of them are there for the fireworks on Saturday night."

This year, for the first time, a boat show has been added with pleasure craft on display. This show is hosted by the Eastern NY Marine Dealer's Association, the Southern Saratoga Chamber of Commerce and Boating on the Hudson magazine.

The Tugboat Roundup honors a "Tug of the Year" annually. This year, the tug is the C.L. Churchill, celebrating its 50th year. The Churchill is the tug for the replica 19th century canal schooner, Lois McClure, of the Lake Champlain Maritime Museum.

The two boats make annual tours throughout the Northeast each season and will be open for tours during the Roundup.
