Late storm threat to local crops

Snow showers come after plants bloomed

By TRICIA CREMO

cremot@spotlightnews.com

GUILDERLAND — An unexpected winter storm is causing concern among local apple growers.

A winter of warmth led flowers to bud early at local farms, but the sudden snow fall on Monday, April 4, has the potential to spoil an entire season of crops. Farmers say it is still too early to say whether the weather significantly damaged crops. Apple and blueberry crops are most at risk of damage, as those crops had just begun to bloom, and were thus most susceptible to the sudden temperature change.

As many farms, including Indian Ladder Farm in Altamont, continue to recover from a severely cold spring in 2012, a second bad season of crops would be devastating for business.

Its crops survival will largely depend on whether

■ COPS, COURTS AND EMERGENCY CALLS

Other arrests: New York State Police

• Genna A. Ward, 31, of New Scotland, was arrested for aggravated DWI after allegedly crashing her car into a guide rail on Delaware Turnpike in the Town of New Scotland on Thursday, March 31. Ward displayed signs of intoxication upon interview and failed field sobriety tests, said police. She reportedly had a BAC of 0.20 percent. She is scheduled to appear in New Scotland Town Court on April 28.

• Christopher M. Brown, 39, of Troy, was arrested and charged with aggravated DWI on Saturday, April 2, around 1 a.m. Police stopped Brown on I-87 for an alleged traffic violation and reportedly found him to be intoxicated. Police said he had a BAC of 0.21 percent. Brown is scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on April 19.

• Troopers out of Latham assisted Guilderland Police to arrest Jorge A. Alvarez, 23, of Tarrytown, after he reportedly drove the wrong way on the Northway early Sunday morning, April 3. Police said cell phone calls came into Latham just after 6 a.m. reporting a vehicle travelling southbound in the northbound lane of traffic from the Twin Bridges in Colonie. The vehicle was spotted by troopers near Exit 4, and with the help of Guilderland officers, police were able to stop the vehicle near Western Avenue in Guilderland. Alvarez was charged with DWI after he reportedly failed field sobriety tests and provided a BAC sample over the legal limit. Alvarez was additionally charged with felony reckless endangerment due to his contact while operating his motor vehicle. He was arraigned in Guilderland Town Court and is scheduled to reappear at a later date.

Crash closes Delaware Avenue Bridge

DELMAR—The Delaware Avenue Bridge which connects the city of Albany with the town of Bethlehem was closed temporarily the morning of Monday, April 4, after a weather-related crash.

Snow was falling when a woman driving south lost control of her car and was struck by a Center for the Disabled van near the center of the bridge, Albany Fire Department personnel said. The two people in the van were not injured. T

The female driver involved in the crash was removed from her vehicle and taken to a hospital where she was treated for internal injuries, which did not appear life-threatening, emergency workers said.

Firefighters also put out a minor fire in the van. The van driver and his passenger were picked up from the scene by another Center for the Disabled driver. Bethlehem Police are handling the accident.

The bridge carrying Delaware Avenue over the Normanskill Creek was closed temporarily after this two-vehicle accident on April 4.

Weather possible factor in fatal crash

GUILDERLAND—Snow falling the morning of Monday, April 4, may have been a factor in a motor vehicle crash which occurred on State Route 155 between Worner Road and Griffen Laboratory.

Ashley C. Taheri, 55, of 18 Voorheesville Ave., Voorheesville, was travelling northbound when she lost control of her vehicle around 10:21 a.m. Police said Taheri rotated her car into oncoming traffic, and her vehicle was hit on the driver's side door by a vehicle operated by Isabel D. Glastetter, 64, of 1 Maewin Drive, Glenmont.

Taheri was pushed into the guardrail on the western side of the roadway. Police said she suffered traumatic injuries and was pronounced dead at the scene. Glastetter suffered an injury to her ankle and was transported by Western Turnpike Rescue Squad to St. Peter's Hospital.

Alcohol does not appear to be a factor in the collision, which remains under investigation.

Altamont woman dies in crash

PRINCETOWN—Stephanie S. MacGillfrey, 52, of Altamont, died Thursday, April 7, from injuries sustained during a two-vehicle crash on Western Turnpike in the town of Princetown earlier that day.

At around 9:55 a.m., MacGillfrey attempted to pull out into the westbound lane of Western Turnpike from a parking lot of a convenient mart located on the roadway. The second vehicle, operated by Earl E. Allen, 72, of North Blenheim, was travelling eastbound on the road and struck the driver's side of MacGillfrey's vehicle. MacGillfrey was transported to Ellis Hospital where she succumbed to her injuries. Allen was evaluated at the scene and was not hospitalized.

The cause of and circumstances surrounding the accident remain under investigation. Police have not yet not issued any tickets nor levied any charges.

Drunk driver sentenced

GUILDERLAND—Kristopher Davis, 29, of Scotia, was sentenced to serve seven months in custody after pleading guilty to aggravated DWI, a felony, committed in September 2015, announced Albany County District Attorney David Soares on Tuesday, April 5.

Davis was arrested after being stopped at a DWI checkpoint at Exit 25 of the Thruway in Guilderland, where he had a BAC of 0.19 percent, more than twice the legal limit. Davis has a prior felony conviction for aggravated DWI with a child in the vehicle from 2010.

Davis also pleaded guilty to one count of circumvention of an interlock ignition device, a misdemeanor. Following his jail sentence, Davis will serve five years of felony probation. He is also required to pay fines and attend both a victim impact panel and a drinking and driving program. In addition, Davis is also subject to having his driver's license revoked for a minimum of 18 months.

Delmar man acquitted of rape

BETHLEHEM—Kenneth G. Winston, 51, of Delmar, who worked for the state Justice Center for the Protection of People with Special Needs, was acquitted of rape charges unrelated to his job on Wednesday, April 6, after a three-week trial.

Winston had been charged of predatory sexual assault of a child, the most serious sex crime charge available in the state of New York, as well as endangering the welfare of a child, a misdemeanor. The charges could have sent him to state prison for 25 years to life.

Winston faced allegations that he raped a 12 year-old girl 65 times in Bethlehem between May 2014 and November 2014. He was fired from his position at the Justice Center shortly after the charges were filed.

Attorney Terence L. Kindlon, who represented the defendant, argued that no physical evidence of the accusation existed, no report was filed until March 2015, and that the girl's interview with police was not recorded.

School board ponders budget additions

By TRICIA CREMO
cremot@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM —

With the full restoration of the Gap Elimination Adjustment, members of the Bethlehem Central School District Board are carefully considering how to allocate increased funds.

Budget presentations made over the last few weeks revealed that departments are still in desperate need of state funds which were greatly reduced when the GEA was established in 2009. Officials estimate that the district lost roughly $13 million of aid as a result.

With increased state funding, the district is weighing a number of finance items proposed by the departments. With a wealth of options before them, members of the School Board decided during their April 5 meeting to hold off on adopting the final budget until its April 19 meeting.

The total net cost of the additional requests is $1,401,050, after factoring in the removal of both International Baccalaureate (IB) funding (an advanced instructional program the district had considered investing in) and a sixth grade team at the middle school, thereby reducing staff by 0.8.

A total $27,816,000 in state funding will be received this year - $179,000 more than originally proposed.

The requests include:

Athletic Dept.:

- $18,000 to replace contracted part-time trainer with full-time district employed trainer
- $12,300 to add modified boys and girls cross-country and track and field teams.

The athletic trainer attends to the medical needs of student athletes during practices. The trainer also oversees the return to play process, which deals with concussion management. According to Athletic Director Leonard Kies, this task takes an enormous amount of monitoring. Last year close to 80 middle school and high school students underwent the process.

The athletic trainer also needs to be a certified first aid and CPR instructor, and could thus train and re-certify other district employees, such as physical education and health teachers, who must have their certifications updated yearly. Last year, the district spent close to $4,000 to re-up certifications. The athletic trainer could also assist with student CPR training, now required by state law before graduation.

Adding modified teams has the potential of reducing student management responsibilities of varsity track and field coaches, who are responsible for over 100 students, and would provide middle school students with more athletic opportunities.

Transportation Dept.

- $195,000 to add five elementary bus runs
- $45,000 to restore an assistant supervisor.

These requests are in addition to the bus replacement request, which requires voter approval. The district is looking to buy 15 new buses at a cost not to exceed $1,413,000. All but three would replace aging vehicles that have not been replaced in the past six years due to budgetary constraints.

One additional route would be added at each of the five elementary schools to ease student management responsibilities of bus drivers. Elementary principals have reported disobedience problems on routes. Most routes transport about 40 children, said Director Cindy Jurewicz, and all are under the watch of the bus driver.

Jurewicz has also requested a 0.6 supervisor position eliminated several years ago be returned to her department.

Operations/Maintenance Dept.

- $57,100 for one full-time custodian at Bethlehem Central Middle School.

The additional staffing would bring the department back to 2009 levels. The custodian would aid in nighttime cleaning. According to department director Greg Nolte, "There is a lot of stress on the nighttime staff. Our buildings are being used more than ever, and there's been some work that they've had to reserve for summer and other breaks in the year." Additional staffing would address this issue.

Special Education and Student Services Dept.

- $363,580 for 2.6 teachers and 5 aides.
- $256,000 in increased BOCES funding.
- $2,000 to increase substitute nurse rates.
- $28,000 to increase non-instructional substitute nurse rates.

It has been several years since the department has received funding. Department Director Kathleen Johnston has requested additional staff to restore the department to previous levels, create an intensive skills class at the high school and to account for increased student need. Increased student need also accounts for the request for increased BOCES funding (which offers special needs services as well as career-oriented classes), as the district has seen an uptick of students requesting BOCES services for mental health issues. Johnston requested increased nurse substitute wages as it has been difficult to find substitutes at the current wage.

Substitute custodians, bus attendants, aides and cafeteria staff currently receive $10 per hour. Finding substitutes has been difficult at this wage, given market values. The substitutes would receive a wage increase to $11 or $12 per hour.

Instructional Dept.

- $424,070 in additions

Primary requests include increasing substitute teacher pay from $95 to $105 per day and the rate for home instruction tutors. The district also plans to extend noon hour lunch and recess time at the elementary level, requiring increased noon hour aide time, and thusly an increased noon hour aid budget in accordance. Supervisors of the five core subjects, who currently are required to perform as a 0.2 instructor, would be absolved of this responsibility, to focus solely on supervising, thus requiring what is the equivalent of one full-time educator.

Secondary Requests include a request from Lab School to create an honors program at a cost of $28,320; funds to repair and replace music department equipment; to train a new advanced placement chemistry teacher; restore the middle school and high school art clubs; fund Project Lead the Way; restore a library media coordinator position; and to restore a k-12 guidance counselor.

As a result of the increased state funding, the budget's tax cap was reduced from a 1.45 percent increase to a 1.34 percent increase, which will yield $64,328,000.

A full list of budgetary requests is available on the school district's website, www.bethlehemschools.org. A public budget vote will occur Tuesday, May 17.

■ STATE GOVERNMENT

Senate approves $147 billion budget

By ALI HIBBS
hibbsa@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — Wrapping up a long week of late nights, state legislators passed the final bills approving the 2016-17 state fiscal budget on Friday, April 1, just hours past the March 31 deadline. A product of negotiations between both houses of the state legislature and the administration of Gov. Andrew Cuomo, the $147 billion approved budget includes a progressive minimum wage raise, paid family leave, significant tax cuts for the middle class, infrastructure investments and the restoration of millions in education funding—while keeping spending growth under two percent for the sixth consecutive year.

In a press conference the night of Thursday, March 31 — the first Cuomo has held in Albany since last summer — the governor and key budget officials outlined the agreements that have been reached since the governor proposed his executive budget three months ago and highlighted significant changes from last year's spending plan.

School aid

The largest budgetary increase, said Budget Director Robert Mujica, is to education funding, which, with an additional $1.5 billion, represents 6.5 percent growth to $24.8 billion. Medicaid is growing 3.4 percent to about $18.5 billion. And higher education will receive $7.2 billion, about a 2 percent increase. "The rest of the budget is relatively flat," said Mujica. "From the governor's budget, we added about $1.4 billion dollars in legislative adds, which includes the largest school aid number in history."

The increase in education aid is something that leaders of both houses identified as a priority following the release of the governor's proposed budget in January, a budget which critics claimed dramatically underfunded public schools. In particular, the governor's budget failed to fully restore funding known as the Gap Elimination Adjustment (GEA) that has been withheld from school districts since the 2009-10 fiscal year to address budget deficits created by a faltering economy. Some of that funding has been returned, incrementally, over the last several years, but local school districts have been calling for full restoration since 2012.

In addition to restoring GEA funding, the approved budget also increases Foundation Aid—funding that districts use for operational expenses—by more than $600 million. While that will still not bring education funding up to levels considered "adequate" by the State Supreme Court in 2007, educators see the increases as a significant step toward bridging that gap.

Infrastructure

The 2016-17 budget contains the largest state transportation plan ever approved, with over $55 billion of transportation investments statewide, including $27 billion for State Department of Transportation (DOT) and Thruway programs. Approximately $21 billion will be spent to improve highways, bridges, rail, aviation infrastructure, non-MTA transit and DOT facilities throughout the state. It also includes $2 billion in "Thruway Stabilization" funding that will allow the Authority to freeze tolls on the system until at least 2020.

$350 million in grant funding has also been made available, over the next two years, for municipalities to upgrade and maintain failing drinking and wastewater infrastructure. The 2015 Water Infrastructure Improvement Act is a three-year grant program started with an original investment of $200 million. The additional investment represents an increase of $100 million per year over previously budgeted totals.

Tax cuts

Under the approved budget, the middle class personal income tax rate will remain unchanged (6.45 percent for taxpayers in the $40,000-$150,000 income bracket; 6.65 percent in the $150,000-$300,000 income bracket) until the year 2018, when rates will begin to drop. When tax cuts are fully phased in by 2025, lawmakers claim it will provide an average savings of $700 per taxpayer per year, for an expected annual savings of $4.2 billion.

Individuals and businesses eligible for tax rate reductions to 5.5 percent include:

- Single filers with taxable income between $20,000 and $75,000;
- Heads of households with taxable income between $30,000 and $100,000; and
- Married joint filers with taxable income between $40,000 and $150,000.

Individuals and businesses eligible for tax rate reductions to 6 percent include:

- Single filers with taxable income between $75,000 and $200,000;
- Heads of households with taxable income between $100,000 and $250,000; and

- Married joint filers with taxable income between $150,000 and $300,000.

Paid family leave

Paid for by modest employee payroll deductions, the state's program will be the longest in the nation at 12 weeks. Benefits will be phased-in beginning in 2018 and will initially be equal to 50 percent of an employee's average weekly wage, capped at 50 percent of the statewide average weekly wage. When fully implemented by 2021, employees will be eligible to receive 67 percent of their average weekly wage, capped at 67 percent of the statewide average. Employees will be eligible to participate after having worked for their employer for six months.

Minimum wage

Possibly the most controversial aspect of the 2016-17 budget is the inclusion of a statewide minimum wage hike.

Calling it "progressive," "fair" and "appropriate," Cuomo maintained that raising the minimum wage could help to stimulate the economy. "The key is calibration," he said.

Under the currently calibrated rate, workers in New York City employed by businesses with more than 10 employees would see minimum wage rise to $11 at the end of 2016, then another $2 each year after, reaching $15 by 2019. In the rest of the state, the minimum wage would increase to $9.70 at the end of 2016, then another .70 each year after until reaching $12.50 by 2021. After that, it will continue to increase to $15 on an indexed schedule to be set by the director of the Division of Budget in consultation with the Department of Labor.

Additionally, the state budget director will conduct an annual analysis of the economy in each region, beginning in 2019, and monitor the effects of the minimum wage increases statewide to determine whether a temporary suspension of the scheduled increases is necessary.

■ COMMUNITY

Annual Campaign exceeds goal

Thank you, Bethlehem! It sounds like the concluding farewell of a Bruce Springsteen concert at the Y sport court (I wish), but it's actually a sincere thanks from the YMCA to our members, supporters, staff and volunteers for helping the Bethlehem Y exceed its 2016 Annual Campaign fund goal by raising $122,000.

In just the last five years, the Bethlehem YMCA has more than doubled the amount raised for our Annual Campaign. That tremendous growth means we can help support many more families in our community.

For thousands of families and individuals in Bethlehem, your contributions open the door to summer camp, swimming lessons, youth sports, recreation, before and after school programs, day care, wellness programs, programs that teach teenagers strong core values such as caring, honesty, respect and responsibility, and our Circle of Champs programs that provide respite and support for families of children facing serious illnesses.

We are dedicated to nurturing the potential of every child and teen, improving the area's health and well being, and giving back and providing support to our neighbors. Your gifts are truly investments in helping children become the strong, caring and responsible citizens we want for our community.

The YMCA believes that everyone deserves a chance to succeed, no matter their background or income. The Y never denies anyone access to our programs and facilities due to an inability to pay. It's only because of your contributions to our Annual Campaign scholarship program that we can make, and keep, that commitment. And every penny raised stays right here in Bethlehem.

Annual Campaign scholarships are provided to older adults who participate in age-appropriate wellness classes and Pedaling for Parkinson's. Scholarships may be used to help middle-age parents who need child care while they can look for employment. Or, funds could be used to help low-income families that simply need financial assistance so they can use the Y for family recreation.

When you consider all of the programs that are supported by our annual campaign, and the thousands of people in town that are helped by scholarships and assistance from this effort, it's clear that the YMCA is so much more than a gym and we sincerely thank everyone for their support and participation in all that we do. Together, we are working to make our community a better place.

In particular, the Bethlehem YMCA would like to thank the many corporate and group organizations for their contributions, including: Advantage Tree Service, Vic's Town Barbershop, The Mullen Group, Stewart's Shops, The Slingerland Foundation, Sherwin Williams (Delmar), SABIC, Roux restaurant, Rotary Club of Delmar, O'Connor, O'Connor, Bresse & First, National Grid US Community

Giving, Maynard, O'Connor, Smith & Catalinotto, Hill & Markes, Henry Gagnon & Son's General Contractor, Girvin & Ferlazzo P.C., Geurtze Builders, General Electric Company, First Niagara Bank, Field Goods LLC, F5 Networks, Edward Jones, and the Delmar Rotary Foundation Inc..

In addition the Y would like to thank: Cub Scout

Pack 232, CommerceHub, Christmas Wish Campaign, Capital Financial Planning Charitable Foundation, C.L. King/Paradigm Investment, Bethlehem Youth Hockey, Bethlehem Police Supervisors Association Inc.; Bethlehem Police Benevolent Association, Bethlehem Hockey Boosters, Bank of America, American Clothing

Recycling Co, Inc., Adirondack Beverage, "My Place" Hockey Team, and the Bethlehem YMCA Advisory Board and the YMCA staff.

Again, thank you to everyone who has supported the Y's effort to help our community, and we look forward to building and growing that support next year.

One day, two great programs

Mark your calendar, because this Friday, April 15, we've got two great events scheduled—a musical performance in the afternoon and a visit from a well-known children's author in the evening.

Afternoon music with Bob and Tom

At 1 p.m., get ready to tap your toes at a lively concert featuring Bob Altschuler and Tom Thorpe, who play what they call "American acoustic music," a mix of bluegrass, country, folk, blues and originals. Best friends and musical partners, Altschuler and Thorpe have performed together for more than 30 years.

Altschuler is a banjo performer, instructor and writer. He performs and records with four bands, and is in two bands with Thorpe. Banjo Newsletter showcased Altschuler and has published his articles. He also has written more than 100 online instructional articles for banjo. A certified Wernick Method jam instructor, Altschuler has been on the faculty of Banjo Camp North since 2003 and teaches at Pete Wernick's Bluegrass Camp. The 2008 book "Banjo Camp!" has a workshop chapter by Altschuler. His playing has been heard on National Public Radio and on radio and TV commercials.

Born into a musical family, Thorpe started playing guitar, piano and accordion when he was 5 years old. He now plays all of the traditional instruments found in a bluegrass band and a few that aren't. A multi-instrumentalist/singer/songwriter, he was a member of Albany's beloved Irish band The Galway Blazers and has also been part of folk, country, rock and bluegrass groups in New Jersey, Massachusetts, Vermont and Upstate New York.

This program is co-sponsored by Bethlehem Senior Projects, Inc. and is free and open to everyone.

Children's author Bruce Coville

Later in the day, author of the popular Unicorn Chronicles series Bruce Coville will stop by at 7 p.m. to discuss his work in children's literature.

Now the bestselling author of more than 100 books for children, Coville had dreamed of being a writer since he was 17 but spent many years in between working as a toymaker, teacher, assembly line worker, and even a gravedigger.

His first published book, "The Foolish Giant," remains popular among young and old today.

Coville's work has been featured in a number of anthologies, and his Sixth Grade Alien stories formed the basis for a family television series that ran from 1999-2001. Among his accolades, Coville has received the Empire State Award given by New York librarians for excellence in children's or young adult literature.

He grew up and currently lives in Syracuse. When he is not writing, he spends his time visiting schools, libraries and other organizations.

Books will be available following his talk for purchase and signing. Because space is limited, this is a first-come, first-admitted event; doors will open at 6:45 p.m.

Consider a run for library board

Nominating petition forms are due Monday, April 18, for those interested in running for a seat on the library board of trustees. Completed petitions must be filed with the district clerk at Bethlehem Central High School by 4:30 p.m. Up for vote is one open seat with a term of five years. Petitions are available at the library Information Desk and must include at least 64 signatures of voters residing in Central School District No. 6 of the towns of Bethlehem and New Scotland.

The election will be held May 17.

Upcoming events

All events are free and take place at Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Ave., Delmar. For more information, Children's author Bruce Coville will be at Bethlehem Public Library, Friday, April 15, to talk about his life and work.

After hours 80s party

Children's book illustrator visits GPL

GPL's Read Local series presents Matt McElligott—one of today's most popular children's author/illustrators—on Saturday, April 16, at 2 p.m. Matt will explain his process of writing and illustrating through a highly entertaining interactive digital presentation.

The creative genius behind a dozen children's books, some star-reviewed, including "Even Aliens Need Snacks," "The Lion's Share" and the engaging "Mad Scientist Academy" series, Matt has been called by Publisher's Weekly "... a triple threat: a sturdy storyteller, a stylish draftsman and a thoughtful wit." His books are beloved by children and parents.

Matt's been "a working, published writer for about 20 years now, but I've been drawing and making up stories for as long as I can remember.

"I grew up outside of Albany, New York and I live not far from there today. I went to college at Alfred University, then graduate school at the University of Buffalo. I have a studio in my home, which I share with my wife, Christy, my son, and several animals, including two horses, a dozen chickens, two cats, some fish and a dog.

"When I'm not working on illustration and children's books, I spend my time teaching as a professor at the Sage College of Albany." When asked if he makes a ton of money writing children's books, he responds that he doesn't. But he persists because he really enjoys it. "Being an illustrator, especially, is hard work," he explains. "But in spite of the difficulties, I know there's nothing I'd rather be doing."

Get to the library early; this will be another very special and popular program. Children are especially welcome!

ALBANY — Comedy and tragedy go hand in hand. The masks of the two Greek muses act as the universal symbol for drama. Motley Crue, the heavy metal rock group used the imagery for the cover of its 1985 hit album "Theatre of Pain."

On Saturday, April 23, a band of improv troupes from Albany and beyond look to tie the two muses together again in order to help a local cause in the Albany Improve Festival at the Madison Theater.

ALBANY — The City of Albany Office of Special Events & Cultural Affairs has released the performance lineup for its signature spring event, the Albany Tulip Festival. The 68th annual festival will take place in the city's historic Washington Park Mother's Day weekend, Saturday, May 7 and Sunday, May 8, from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. Admission is free.

Featuring annual traditions rooted in the city's rich Dutch heritage, nearly one hundred artisans selling their handmade crafts, a fine arts show, delicious food, the KidZone family fun destination, two stages of world-class live entertainment and more than 140,000 tulips in 150 different varieties, the Tulip Festival is a sparkling showcase of local culture and business.

Arrive early for the Tulip Queen Coronation Ceremony, slated to begin at noon on Saturday with Mayor Kathy Sheehan and B95.5's Chad O'Hara at the Lakehouse Stage, and stay for an afternoon of food, live music and much more for the entire family.

The Price Chopper KidZone stage will feature performances by members of Art Partners/Tsehay & Co., a community-based youth dance training program, and the Park Playhouse troupe, and concerts with Ruth Pelham of the Music Mobile and The Zucchini Brothers, and don't miss the action-packed interactive magic shows with Melvin the Magnificent and Hocus Pocus, the Magic Bunny.

The Local 518 Stage will feature live music throughout the afternoon, featuring performances by Olivia Quillio, Carl Daniels & The Black Box, Victory Soul Orchestra and the Stockade Kids.

Major recording artists The Parlor, Tokyo Police Club and Langhorne Slim & The Law are scheduled to perform on the Main Stage at 1:30, 3:00 and 4:30 p.m. respectively.

Head back over to the Lakehouse Stage on Mother's Day as Mayor Sheehan and B95.5's Joe Condon recognize the Capital District's most outstanding Mothers of the year beginning at noon.

Ruth Pelham, The Zucchini Brothers, and Melvin the Magnificent will all return to the KidsZone Stage for multiple shows on Sunday afternoon, while Red Haired Strangers, Bear Grass, Of the Atlas and The Last Conspirators will grace the Local 518 Stage.

The Main Stage will feature performances by Jim Gaudet & The Railroad Boys, McKinley James, and Jonathan Edwards.

SPAC expected to rock 'n roll

Journey, Steely Dan, Heart and Cheap Trick among headliners

SARATOGA SPRINGS — While summer still seems a long way off, Saratoga Performing Arts Center's 50th anniversary concert season officially kicks off in less than three months on Saturday, June 11 with the Dixie Chicks DCX World Tour MMXVI. Tickets for some concerts are selling quickly, with at least one show (Mumford & Sons on Wednesday, June 15) completely sold out.

Classic rock and jam band fans have plenty of shows to choose from this season, including performances by Dead & Company on Tuesday, June 21, three shows featuring Phish from Friday, July 1, through Sunday, July 3, The San Francisco Fest featuring Journey and The Doobie Brothers on Tuesday, July 5, and Steely Dan with special guest Steve Winwood on Sunday, July 10.

Dave Matthews Band will celebrate its 25th anniversary during its annual two-night swing through town on Friday, July 15 and Saturday, July 16.

The concert season ends on a real high note for classic rock fans on Thursday, September 8, with the "Rock Hall Three for All" a one-night, triple bill featuring performances by Heart, Joan Jett & The Blackhearts and Cheap Trick.

Cheap Trick is among the 2016 class of inductees to The Rock and Roll Hall of Fame. Featured on both the soundtrack for and in the cult-classic film "Fast Times at Ridgemont High," in which the slick talking Mike Damone is forever trying to scalp tickets for its upcoming concert, this power pop band from Rockford, Illinois, garnered a hyper-amount of popularity in Japan, earning the moniker of the "American Beatles" from its press, as captured on the single "I Want You to Want Me."

Joan Jett & The Blackhearts, inducted into the Hall in 2015, are known for a string of hits in the 80s, including Billboard topper "I Love Rock & Roll," a cover of "Crimson and Clover," "I Hate Myself for Loving You," and "Do You Wanna Touch Me."

Heart helped set the stage for Jett and other female rock and roll artists, by shattering misconceptions that women could not excel simultaneously at writing songs, playing instruments and fronting a rock band. Not only have sisters Anne and Nancy Wilson demonstrated an aptitude for all three, but they have also powered the band to four Grammy nominations and a lifetime achievement award.

For more details or to buy tickets for upcoming events at SPAC, visit www.spac.org or www.ticketmaster.com.

Albany gallery to close this summer

An open letter to patrons recently e-mailed

ALBANY — Sorelle Gallery will close this August, according to a recent email from the gallery's owner Sandra Pelletier.

The New Canaan, Conn. gallery that had opened two years ago will remain open.

Pelletier stated the Albany gallery will continue to hosts the shows it had previously scheduled up until its August closing date.

One of the factors leading to Pelletier's decision to close the gallery was due to the success of the New Canaan location.

"As most of you are aware, I opened a second gallery location two years ago in New Canaan, Connecticut. This new gallery model has proven to be very successful and is demanding more of my time and effort."

Pelletier is a resident of the Capital District, and said she had no plans to relocate. Instead, she expressed wishes to maintain a connection to the area by offering a consulting service.

"I would like to take this opportunity to thank you for your patronage," stated Pelletier. "It is because of your admiration for great artwork that Sorelle Gallery has become what it is today."

Pelletier described having a "sad heart" in having to announce the gallery's closing.

"We will continue to maintain our website and keep you informed of new artwork and happenings at the New Canaan gallery," stated Pelletier.

The Sorelle Gallery is scheduled to show the works of Sarah Pezdek and Megan Ruch next month.

"Thank you again for your tremendous support of our gallery for the past eight years and I look forward to maintaining a close connection with you going forward," stated Pelletier.

For more information on Pelletier's consulting services, email her at sandy@sorellegallery.com or call 518-482-2000.

As a messenger of peace, The Moscow Ballet adds a peaceful spin to a traditionally violent Act II in the "Great Russian Nutcracker."

Palace Theatre to host Russian classic

Moscow Ballet to perform Nutcracker Dec. 2

ALBANY — Direct from Russia, the classic "Great Russian Nutcracker" will entertain the whole family this Christmas from the Palace Theatre on Friday, Dec. 2.

Experience the exceptional dancing of a company of 40 dancers, a 60-foot growing Christmas tree, new and spectacular hand-made costumes by resident designer Arthur Oliver, and stunning sets hand-painted in Russia and designed by multi-Academy Award nominee Carl Sprague.

The Moscow Ballet consistently garners critical acclaim for performances in more than 100 cities, from New York to Los Angeles, and Miami to Calgary. The production is known for its dedication to world peace: naming Act II the "Land of Peace and Harmony," featuring a rose shooting cannon and a stunning two-person "Dove of Peace" complete with a 20-foot wingspan.

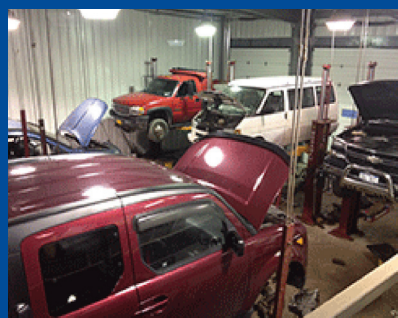

This year marks the Moscow Ballet's 24th consecutive year touring North America. In addition to the popular

Great Russian Nutcracker, company repertory includes classic ballets Swan Lake, Sleeping Beauty, Romeo and Juliet, Cinderella and more. The company features award-winning and rising star dancers, from Lilia Sabitova in 1994 to Alisa Voronova in 2014. # Vodka with a death wish

Highly anticipated spirit in pre-release

By MICHAEL HALLISEY
halliseym@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY—
A local coffee company with a penchant for headlines has teamed up with one of the Capital City's distilleries to create a spirit with a death wish.

This month Death Wish Coffee and Albany Distilling is offering a pre-release of a specialty vodka product infused with the popular local coffee.

Death Wish Coffee had developed a healthy following among coffee lovers in the Capital District before receiving national attention by winning a television commercial spot last Super Bowl Sunday. Its popularity has since grown in recent months. Based on a behind-the-scenes video that covered the moments following the commercial, Internet sales for the coffee jumped exponentially.

This month, the ubiquitous skull and crossbones of the coffee brand makes its way onto an ominous looking black bottle of vodka produced through the Albany Distilling Company. The union between the two companies is an example of a couple of trends growing throughout the region.

First, there is a growing economy of local producers. Both Death Wish and Albany Distilling Company are relative start-ups, both having launched within the past few years—Micro micro, sporting a small staff of employees that include Nine Pin Cider in Albany and Yankee Distillers in Saratoga County. Death Wish Coffee, started in 2011, boasts a staff of less than a dozen employees. Albany Distillery, founded in 2012, currently staffs four employees. That figure includes the spirit company's two owners, said co-owner Richard Sicari.

Second, there is a collaborative spirit growing among companies, establishing themselves among a community to assist in each other's growth. It's been observed in the art's world between Proctors, the CapREP and Universal Preservation Hall in Saratoga. It's been seen in Albany's Craft Spirit Trail that opened last year, of which Albany Distillery is a part. Within the context of the trail, Sicari said the joint marketing effort among perceived competitors is not as odd as it may appear. The micro breweries are not competing with one another, as much as they are against the larger companies with national recognition.

"It's crazy to think we're going to compete against each other," said Sicari. "We're all looking national... We will do well if we all band together, use all of our knowledge and help each other out. Because, who we really are competing against are the big boys."

Death Wish Coffee has that national recognition, and its working to keep its brand noticed nationwide. The specialty vodka is being introduced through selected retailers throughout the Capital District. The timing seems perfect for the spirit company, allowing Albany's first distillery since Prohibition to breakthrough the national scene. But, Sicari said, the partnership between the two has been around for a few years. And, news of the new vodka has whispered across the area since late 2014.

Sicari said Death Wish Coffee had say from the taste of the spirit to the look of the bottle. He called the coffee company "masters" of marketing.

As of print, there have been two pre-release parties, having started at

The City Beer Hall in Albany last Wednesday. Sicari said the response has been positive. Those who have sampled the vodka describe it as tasting "just like coffee."

"The plans are to continue with [the vodka]," said Sicari, whose initial count stands at 17,000 bottles. That figure alone represents five-times the amount of bottles Albany Distilling produced last year. "We going to start local and I'd like to go state-wide in the next two or three months." Beyond that, Sicari said, he has to see.

"Nothing comes quickly."

Two more pre-release parties are scheduled for this week.

Slidin' Dirty Restaurant and

Coffee infused vodka. It's a thing, and it's going to hit the general market later this year. But, you may get your hands on a bottle this week during pre-release.

Death Wish Coffee Co.

Food Truck in Troy hosts

one Wednesday, April 13

at 6 p.m. The last of the pre-release parties takes place at Hunter's on Jay in Schenectady on Thursday, April 14 at 7 p.m.

Night & Day

Night: Terrance Simien

ALBANY — For more than 30 years, two-time, eighth-generation Grammy award-winning Louisiana Creole artist Terrance Simien has been shattering the myths about what his indigenous Zydeco roots music is and is not. Leading his Zydeco Experience band, Simien has become one of the most respected and accomplished artists in American roots music today. He and his band mates have performed more than 7,000 concerts in 45 countries during their eventful career. Their original song, “Dance Everyday,” along with a cover of Zydeco standard “Uncle Bud,” were both featured in the 2012 film “The Lucky One,” starring Zac Efron and Blythe Danner. Simien is also the featured guest artist on Randy Newman’s “Gonna Take You There,” a song penned for Disney’s 2009 release “The Princess and the Frog.”

Simien and his Zydeco Experience band will bring a bit of Creole to Albany the evening of Friday, April 15 for a performance on the campus of The College of Saint Rose, in the Kathleen McManus Picotte Recital Hall located inside the Massry Center for the Arts beginning at 7:30 p.m.

Tickets for the performance are $20

Day: Matthew McElligott

GUILDERLAND — Head over to the public library for a special appearance by local children’s author and illustrator Matthew McElligott on Saturday, April 16, from 2 to 4 p.m. In the Helderberg (large) meeting room as part of its ongoing “Read Local” series.

During the two hour session, McElligott plans to focus on his book, “Even Monsters Need Haircuts” and new series, “The Mad Scientist Academy.” Along with a reading, he’ll talk about how he makes his books and give a live illustration demonstration.

According to his website, McElligott, a working and published writer for nearly 20 years, has been drawing and writing stories for as long as he can remember. His work is inspired by the illustrations of early 20th Century illustrator and cartoonist Winsor McCay, best known for his strip “Little Nemo in Slumberland” and children’s author Daniel Pinkwater.

Admission is free and registration is not required to attend this installment of the Read Local series.

Second "History of Fashion" Fashion Show to take place in Troy and New York City in May

TROY — Don Rittner and Justyna Kostek have teamed up again to bring the second edition of "The History of Fashion" Fashion Show at Fellowship Hall in May.

Famous New Yorkers through Fashion is the theme for this year's show that will take place in May in Troy and New York City.

Rittner (director) and Justyna Kostek (artistic director) have designed this year's show to feature men and women dressed in period costumes, but they also will deliver monologues about who they represent which will be actual New Yorkers from the 17th century to modern times. Many of those people will have Troy connections.

"This year we want the fashion show to come alive as each model represents a real famous New Yorker and will deliver a one or two minute monologue about who they were and what they did," said Rittner.

Justyna Kostek, who is the director of Atelier Teatral Company, a theater company in Denmark, co-directed with Rittner the 1923 George Kaufman play, Helen of Troy New York, which sold out all six performances last year in Troy. They teamed up again to bring history to life this year with a new twist on the first sold out fashion show that took place during Inspiration Week in Albany back in 2013.

The fashion show will take place for a two-weekend run at Fellowship Hall starting Saturday, May 7 from 7 to 9 p.m. and Sunday, May 8 from 3 to 5 p.m., and again on May 14th and 15th.

The New York City show will take place over two Sundays at the Sanctuary at 232 W 11th St, in Greenwich Village on May 22nd and May 29th.

Tickets for the Troy showing be purchased at ticketriver.com/event/19401.

Tickets for the New York City showing can be purchased through ticketriver.com/event/19403

— Don Rittner

It's a history lesson woven into the fabric of a fashion show. "History of Fashion" takes to the stage in both Troy in New York City in May.

Improv: is the informal form of the noun improvisation, especially as a theatrical technique. People most commonly associate it with comedy. Adam O'Connor, member of the local improv group Sorry Not Sorry, and co-founder of the Albany Improv Festival, defines it as that, theatrical and musical. It's a medium that often tasks a performer's ability to think quickly.

A B-side track on "Theatre of Pain" sings of the pains and struggles of people in an unnamed city.

"Save our souls for the heavens,
For a life so good, it sure feels bad.
Save our souls for the heavens.
Save our souls for the promised land."

In a sense, that is what a group of volunteers at Albany's State Street was doing. Where Motley Crue focused on the degradation of a community from crime, the Albany Damien Center sought to help people in need.

The Albany Damien Center provides housing, meals, job placement and a whole litany of things for people afflicted with HIV and AIDS. The center serves as a resource center with programs and activities designed to improve health, reduce stress and increase the quality of life. Incorporated in 1990, the center was named after a Catholic priest who focused on the care of terminally ill lepers in Hawaii in the late 1800s. It had called 646 State Street its home for nearly 30 years, until a fire ripped through the century-old building in August 2013. The fire ignited in the basement. Neighboring residents reportedly called 911 within a half hour of its start. According to the center's website, the building and all of its contents were all but lost quickly, within 45 minutes.

The center now conducts business out of the First Lutheran Church on Western Avenue.

"Their cause is so great," said Adam O'Connor, founder of improv group Sorry Not Sorry and co-organizer of the Albany Improv Festival. "And, they need the money because of the disaster that happened. Not only are they a great cause, they are also in need of funds. So we figured they would be a good beneficiary of our festival."

Flash forward to 2016, O'Connor and fellow co-founder Laci Lee have spent a year organizing a one-day festival that will include 21 improv teams from Albany and beyond. About a dozen of the teams call the Capital District home. Some hail from New York City and New England. O'Connor said the a team out of Texas has been confirmed to perform. "It got a lot bigger than we anticipated," he said, "and we're very excited about it."

The catalyst behind the idea was sparked by a similar festival hosted in Hartford. A handful of area troupes organized a day trip to attend the festival in Connecticut. Once there, O'Connor said he and Lee took one look at one another, apparently sharing the same idea.

"During the day we (Adam and Laci Lee) kinda looked at one another and said, we can do this," said O'Connor. "What we wanted to do was to get all of the local troupes together for the day to have fun, and it kinda snowballed from there and got into this big kind of thing."

Festivities start at noon with a workshop entitled "Positivity & Connectedness" facilitated by Christopher J. Simpson. Simpson is artistic director of the Contemporary Theater Company in Wakefield, R.I.. Simpson is also a member of Bait & Switch, the closing act for the festival, scheduled to end at 10 p.m. The day is scheduled in hourly blocks, with three troupes scheduled for each hour. Local television personality Benita Zahn will be guest presenter for the evening.

Tickets are available for purchase for different passes; one-hour festival pass, two-hour festival pass, or a whole day. Tickets can be purchased through AlbanyImprov.com or by calling the Madison Theater at 438-2094.

To make a direct donation to the Albany Damien Center visit AlbanyDamienCenter.org.

"The way we've been saying it is, hopefully this is our first annual improv festival," said O'Connor. "Our goal is to be do it again next year, try to make it bigger and better next year."

Cheese Cake in a Dish

By STACEY MORRIS

news@spotlightnews.com

Who said clean eating can't be exciting? Witness this super-easy Cheese Cake in a Dish. It's a variation on the vegan cheesecake recipe in my dessert cookbook "Sweet Comfort," and also makes an amazing post-workout snack.

I love this recipe because it's a dessert with some serious nutrition involved. The calories within do things for the body and are anything but empty. Another plus is that it's low in sugar, high in protein, and there's no dairy hangover an hour later.

If fresh berries aren't available, use a bag of your favorite unsweetened frozen berries, thawed to room temperature.

Cheese Cake in a Dish

Serves four

Ingredients

1 8-ounce container of vegan cream cheese at room temperature

1 5-ounce container of chevre (I like the Chèvre brand or Trader Joe's Creamy Goat Cheese)

1 box of sugar-free vanilla pudding mix

1 scoop of vanilla protein powder

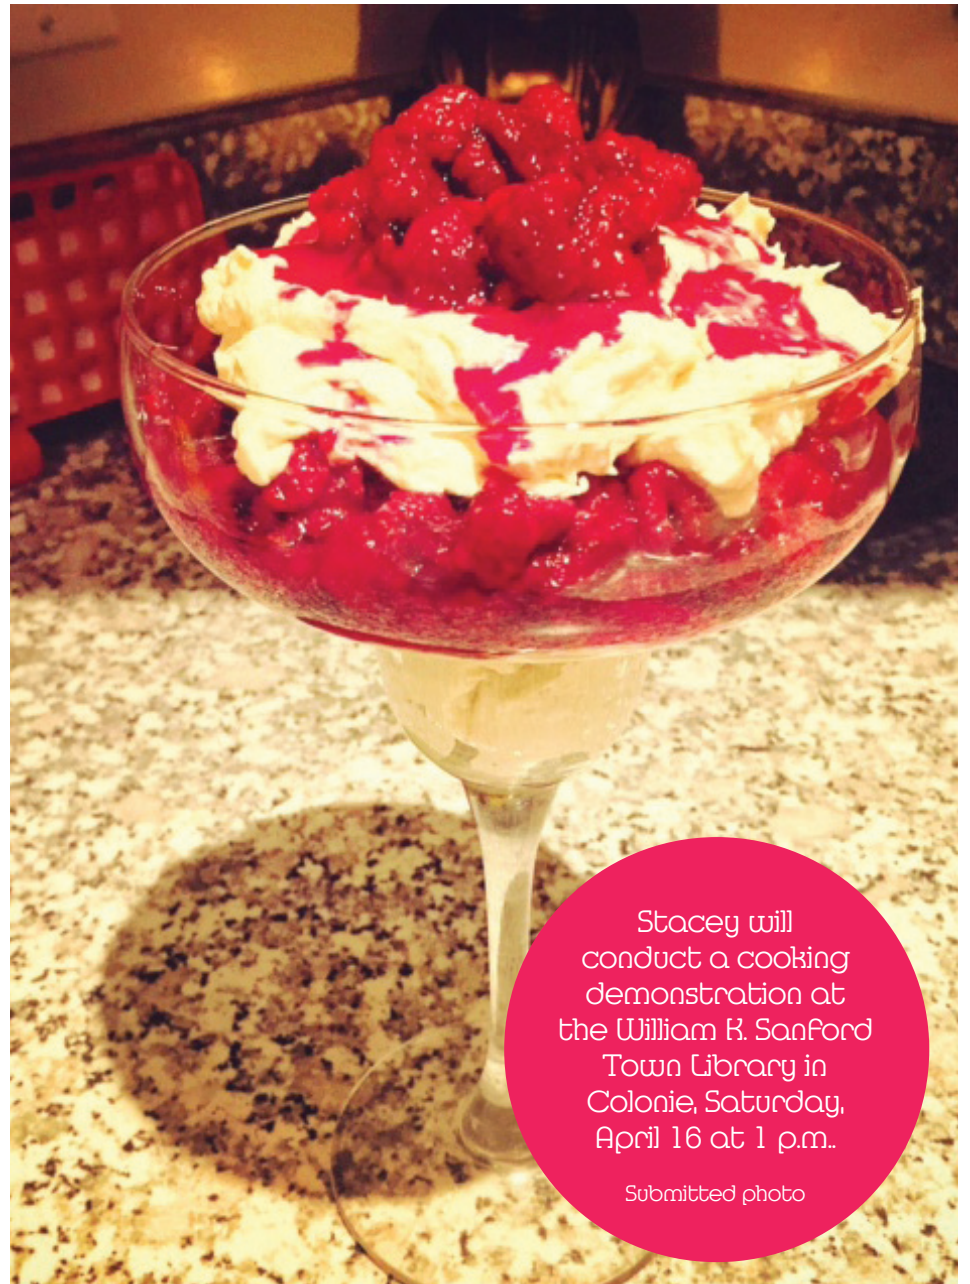

1 tablespoon good-quality vanilla

About 2 cups fresh berries or 1 bag of frozen berries, defrosted

Instructions

Place all ingredients in a mixing bowl and blend on low speed with an electric mixer. (You could also use a large food processor.) When powdered ingredients are blended, increase speed of the beater to medium, then high. Mixture will be very thick, but it should be creamy with no lumps. Transfer cheese mixture to four dessert cups or wine goblets. Leave enough room at the top for at least 1/3 cup of berries. Top each dish with fresh berries then refrigerate for several hours before serving. If refrigerating overnight, be sure to cover with foil or plastic wrap.

Stacey Morris is a Loudonville resident, health blogger and coach, and writer. After dropping 180 pounds through clean eating and exercise, she develops recipes that are gluten-free, cow dairy-free, and low in sugar. Her two cookbooks, "Clean Comfort: Finding Peace, Balance, and My Perfect Weight," and "Sweet Comfort: Converging Nutritious with Delicious 44 Fabulously Clean Dessert Recipes" are available on Amazon and at www.staceymorris.com.

Stacey will conduct a cooking demonstration at the William R. Sanford Town Library in Colonie, Saturday, April 16 at 1 p.m.

You can't out train a bad diet

By DAN ROMAND
news@spotlightnews.com

You can't out train a bad diet.

We've likely all heard that one before but it is 100 percent true — Unless you're Michael Phelps or a professional bicyclist that is. But even they focus on their nutrition and their performance (or lack thereof) is a direct result of how they eat.

When it comes to weight loss in particular, nutrition is always going to play a bigger roll than exercise. Numbers get thrown about but I generally agree with the 80-20 percent rule, which is to say 80 percent of the weight loss battle is accomplished in the kitchen.

Without making healthier food choices, you're never going to see the results that you are looking for.

And, when it comes to diet there is two factor I see often that is stopping most people in their tracks.

Not eating enough total calories, nor simply eating enough food throughout the day. See, both can hinder your weight loss in very different ways. Let's look at them both.

Not enough calories

If you've been sticking to a low calorie plan for too long, say 800, 1000, or even 1200 calories you're simply not giving your body the fuel it needs.

Your metabolism will start to slow down to adapt and since your body thinks it's starving it will actually hold onto fat making it REALLY difficult to drop weight.

This may sound like craziness to many of you especially those that tend to worship those TV Doctors who pitch their miracle weight loss programs.

And to be fair for the very short term it might work. But, long term, far more often than not it will be the exact opposite.

Take, for example, Sally, a client of mine who insisted that she could lose weight by just eating 800 calories per day.. She was DIALED IN to use her words...

And dialed in she was to be sure.... In addition to that low amount of calories she was working out 1-2 hours a day and burning more than she ate. In other words a HUGE deficit in calories.

Why? Because, she bought into the myth that less is more. That if she starved herself and worked out really hard she'd lose weight.

This went on for months and she got frustrated. She only lost a few pounds, and after a month or so, the weight stopped coming off. She went weeks without losing a pound, and her muscle mass crumbled despite all the working out. Simply put, her body started storing fat and using the muscle to feed itself. Once she finally agreed to eat more. The weight fell off in huge amounts. Not only that, she started adding muscle and looked leaner and felt better.

So, if you find yourself in that rut and not losing weight despite eating so little, try bumping up your calories. Try adding just a little bit until you're feeling more full and satisfied. An easy way to do this is to have bigger portions at meals or add in a snack or two throughout the day. You may be surprised to find those stubborn pounds start to disappear.

Not eating enough

Going all day without eating, eating little to nothing, or saving calories for later in the day is a sure fire recipe to set yourself up for failure.

Why? Because you'll end up eating more in the long run. Numerous studies have found this to be true, as much as 30 percent more than if you had eaten throughout the day.

And, this is far more common than you might think. Rushing to get to work, working through lunch, running errands, who has time to eat? By time you get home you're so ravenous you'll put just about anything in your mouth to ease the rumbling stomach.

Or worse, knowing you're going out to dinner so you'll skimp the calories during the day, only to order the huge appetizer, demolish the entire meal and, of course, have a few adult beverages along with it.

Take my client Ralph, for example. He was a classic night time eater. He'd skip breakfast, lunch may or may not happen and if it did it was usually something very quick to eat and then he'd get home, and eat and eat and eat until he went to bed.

And, it wasn't just that he was eating it was what he was eating. He was so starved for energy he'd gravitate toward sugary foods

That's the problem with not eating throughout the day. It often leads to poor choices and overeating.

I realize you may have a crazy busy schedule and this may be challenging, so do the best you can!

Often a little PLANNING and PREPPING ahead of time can go a long way.

I teach my clients to prepare their meals ahead of time. I follow this philosophy myself. My wife and I dedicate one to two hours on Sundays to make ALL our meals for the week ahead of time. Then, its just grab and go. No longer do we have an excuse to hit the drive-thru, or being to tired to cook healthy at the end of the day.

When my clients follow this same pattern they see amazing results and feel less stressed because they don't have to worry about cooking dinner every night.

Even better, it reduces those temptations at work.. You know that well meaning person we all have in our office who brings in the box of donuts. Who can resist?

Well, having prep-lanned and pre-prepared your food helps you avoid that temptation.

One client started doing this on "bagel day" at work. She actually would sneak into the supply closet to have her healthy meal because she didn't want to feel like she wasn't participating.

And it helped keep her on track! So the lesson is, if she can do it, so can you!

The key to staying on track is to have easy meals and snacks handy for those busy days.

Eat more at breakfast or lunch if you have to so you ensure you're getting enough calories earlier in the day to avoid the ravenous hunger later in the day.

One of my go-to meals when in a rush is often a smoothie loaded up with protein powder, frozen fruit, nut butter, and coconut or almond milk or a handful of trail mix or nuts I can easily grab and munch on when no one is looking. Planning ahead and being prepared is going to be your best friend in weight loss.

KeyBank announces community plan

$16.5B national community benefits plan includes investment in underserved communities

ALBANY — KeyBank recently announced several major steps to further its community investments across the company as part of a National Community Benefits Plan.

The investments announced last month underscore KeyBank's commitment to helping clients and communities thrive as well as its responsible approach to banking, citizenship and operations.

As part of the announcement, KeyBank released its National Community Benefits plan, which includes $16.5 billion in investments across the communities it serves. The commitments are part of a comprehensive blueprint for steps Key will take over the next five years in its markets across the United States. An executive summary of the report can be found at: www.key.com/CBPlan.

A partnership with the National Community Reinvestment Coalition including over 80 community organizations provided valuable input to develop a National Community Benefits Plan.

As part of that plan, KeyBank commits to $16.5 billion in mortgage lending, small business lending, community development lending and investing and philanthropy. This plan will stimulate substantial job and economic growth in these communities.

KeyBank has also committed to being a leader in reducing neighborhood blight as well as maintenance and disposition of foreclosed properties.

"The $16.5B National Community Benefits plan underscores KeyBank's approach to responsible banking and citizenship," said Beth Mooney, KeyCorp Chairman and CEO. "For us, balancing mission and margin is about a commitment that goes above and beyond what is required. It is simply the right thing to do, and it is good business. As evidence of that balance and our ongoing commitment to shareholders, we remain confident in and committed to meeting the growth and financial objectives of the KeyBank/First Niagara acquisition."

As part of the plan, KeyBank is committing $16.5 billion in the following investments over five years focused on underserved and low- to moderate-income communities throughout its footprint, including:

▶ $5 billion in mortgage lending in low- to moderate-income communities and borrowers;

▶ $2.5 billion in small business and farm lending, targeted to low- to moderate-income urban and rural communities;

▶ $8.8 billion in community development lending and investment commitments; and

▶ $3 million Innovation Fund to support the development of banking services for underserved communities and populations to complement KeyBank's historically strong products and services in this area.

Additionally, the KeyBank Foundation is committing $175 million in philanthropic investments for its traditional priorities of education and workforce development. The investments will also focus on the stabilization of urban neighborhoods and rural communities through local capacity building, affordable housing and building technical assistance to execute locally.

ENTERTAINMENT

TV chef to make a splash at Proctors

Food Network's Alton Brown coming April 30

SCHENECTADY—Television personality, author and Food Network star Alton Brown, who created a new form of live entertainment with his first live culinary variety show will feature his all new "Alton Brown Live: Eat Your Science" at Proctors in Schenectady, 8 p.m. Saturday, April 30.

Tickets, $20-$125, are on sale now and available at the Box Office at Proctors, 432 State Street, Schenectady; by phone at 518.346.6204; and online at proctors.org.

Brown's first North American tour, "Edible Inevitable," was a huge success over two years and 100 cities with more than 150,000 fans in attendance. With "Eat Your Science," fans can expect more comedy, talk show antics, multimedia presentations and music (yes, he sings) but Brown is adding a slew of fresh ingredients including new puppets, songs, bigger and potentially more dangerous experiments and what every cook needs in his kitchen: FIRE.

Critics and fans have raved about the interactive component where Brown invites audience members on stage to serve as his assistant. "There will be plenty of new therapy inducing opportunities during our audience participation segments. I don't want to give too much away, but we're also going to play a little game with the audience," Brown said.

Brown has a knack for mixing together a perfect base of science, music and food into two hours of pure entertainment. "Plus, you'll see things that I was never allowed to do on TV," he said. Brown hints that larger and more protective ponchos will be provided to the first few rows as his experiments have the potential to get messy.

Although Alton Brown

spent plenty of time in his mom's kitchen growing up, his real interest in food sparked in college when he discovered that girls who said "no" to dates sometimes said "yes" if he offered to cook for them. His social life may have not ignited, but the food spark did, and after spending a decade behind the camera in the commercial industry, he headed to culinary school in hopes of one day creating a new kind of cooking show. Good Eats, the show that Brown would go on to write, produce, and host ran for 13 straight years on Food Network before making the jump to the Cooking Channel where it airs today. Combining food science, pop culture, skit humor, innovative cooking, and the occasional belching puppet, Good Eats has millions of fans and garnered a coveted Peabody award for broadcast excellence.

Brown, author of the James

Alton Brown/Instagram

Beard award winning "I'm Just Here for the Food" and New York Times bestselling sequence "Good Eats," is releasing the first of two new cookbooks through Ballantine Books (an imprint of Random House) in the Fall of 2016. ALTON BROWN: EVERY DAY COOK, or EDC as Brown calls it, is a collection of more than 100 personal recipes as well as a pinch of science and history. He has hosted numerous series including "Cutthroat Kitchen," "Camp Cutthroat" and "Iron Chef America" and created, produced and hosted the Peabody award winning series "Good Eats" for 13 years on Food Network; Good Eats can still be seen on the Cooking Channel and Netflix.

Information about Alton Brown or the Eat Your Science tour can be found on Facebook: /altonbrown; Twitter: @altonbrown; Instagram: @altonbrown; or use the tour hashtag #AltonBrownLive.

From page 1 ... Threat to local crops

or not seasonal temperatures are maintained hereafter, and if the crops lost will fall within a normal range for the season. Farmers already routinely shear a large percentage of newly flowered buds to make room for higher quality crops to grow to full Grade A size, so potential crop losses could be a non-issue.

Peter Ten Eyck, owner of Indian Ladder Farm, said his crops were in the “green tissue” stage, just before bloom, when the snow fell. “The issue is not the snow. Snow is our friend. The issue is the temperature. Various varieties of apples blossom at slightly different times. Some are far advanced and some haven’t even started yet,” said Ten Eyck. “The thing is trees are used to losing buds because of spring frosts. They can lose buds and still have enough to survive and have apples. If we’re in window of losing 70 to 80 percent [of buds], we can still work it out.”

The plants are most susceptible to damage just as they move out of dormancy and into the budding stage. At 18 degree temperatures, about 10 percent of buds will die; At 10 degrees, about 90 percent of buds die. Temperatures reached 10 degrees that snowy night. Temperatures haven’t been that cold in April since 1956.

Most recently, in 2012, a late April frost left Indian Ladder Farm with only 9 percent of its apple crops - the worst crop in the history of the farm. Even though the remaining crops that year were in perfect quality and the farm received crop insurance, the losses still set the farm back financially for a few years.

“This is our 1000th year of apple farming at Indian ladder. That wasn’t so long ago,” said Ten Eyck, “so psychologically we’re very distressed.” Ten Eyck said it took the farm a full four years to recover from losing that season of profits.

Since the farm has over 40 varieties of apples, it is still hard to determine whether any of them were disparaged by the cold weather. While varieties like Golden Delicious bloom very late, and were not very far along in the budding process, varieties like Empire are more worrisome. Those buds were just starting to sprout. Any remaining crops will still be of extremely high quality, so Ten Eyck hoped that locals will continue to support local farms like Indian Ladder.

The closer buds get to bloom, the more susceptible they are to being spoiled by the warm weather. For example, temperatures in the mid-20s would be just as devastating for crops if they occurred closer to Mother’s Day, when buds are expected to be in full bloom.

“Because March was really unusually warm, it accelerated the rate that plants like tree and berries were growing at,” said Laura McDermott, a horticulture expert at the Cornell Cooperative Exchange in Voorheesville. “Temperatures in the last couple days have not been horribly low, so if we were looking at same the development last year, it would not have been a problem, but because of the warm weather, a lot of farmers are worried.” Some of the farmers she works with had temperatures in the single digits for several hours, which is a long time for plants, said McDermott. Farms in lower New York state, particularly in the Hudson Valley will have more damage, as their crops were further along, and McDermott was not yet sure what effect the weather would have in Western New York. “It really just points out how susceptible farmers are to changing climate, which just makes

Farmers expect to see buds die from last week’s cold snap, but how it will effect crop output remains to be seen.

Tricia Cremo/Spotlight

a complicated profession even more complicated.”

Essentially, there is nothing farmers can do to keep there crops warm.

Most of the farm’s other plants, such as its blueberries and raspberries, had not been planted yet. And the farm does not grow peaches or cherries, which would have been similarly effected by the weather. The farm’s hops crops, meanwhile, were just beginning to open, and could have been effected by the cold weather just as the apple crops may have been. Ten Eyck said so far, a few of their hops varieties, particularly the hardy East Coast ones, have been resilient. Yet, as those crops have seen a number of bad winters within the past four years, delaying the start of the farm’s new beer-making business venture, Ten Eyck is only cautiously optimistic.

“There are a lot of variables. Even though it looks very bad, I’m rooting for the trees. They’ve been around for 100 years and they’re going to come up with something,” said Ten Eyck.

McDermott works with many orchardists, including Ten Eyck, through her work with Cornell Cooperative Exchange, and said she has had reports from many concerned farmers. “We just don’t know. I’m trying to be optimistic and trying to keep them optimistic,” she said, adding that the weather may simply mean that farmers do less pruning this season, and that the fruit could be fine.

“The real point that I would like to make is that we don’t know for sure and we won’t know for several weeks if there’s damage, and if so, how wide spread the damage is. It is not a good situation, but we don’t know for a fact.”

■ FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

Let's cut to the chase

The race for the Oval Office rushed through the Capital District, much like that old bicycle race years ago that shared its name with Donald Trump. It seemed that before we could grasp the news that Hillary Clinton would appear in Cohoes, every candidate descended upon us. New York state may not be the lynchpin in the upcoming battle to see who will represent each political party come November, but it's more important than it has been in recent elections.

Perhaps it's a matter of perspective, but the 2016 primaries appear to be the most scrutinized in recent memory. The in-party fighting with one another overshadows the sometimes empty promises shared over screaming crowds. But, the overall picture foretells that there is more at stake than just a receiving a party nod.

Each side of the proverbial aisle has their hands on the reins of a populace looking to revolt the status quo. True, Republicans are typically conservative and Democrats are by and large liberal. It goes beyond that. The space between the two major party lines are as far apart as Confederates and Unionists.

Evoking the Civil War is not outlandish. Take, for example, the term socialism, which is strongly associated with Bernie Sanders. Clinton, a reformist by record, finds herself neck and neck with a candidate who 30 years ago would have been laughed off stage. On the other side of the aisle, Republicans appear to be handling a different kind of animal in Trump — one they may not want to see representing the party in November. But, his "saying it like it is" rhetoric strikes a chord with many who want to see a change back to Reagan.

You're not going to see an endorsement here. In fact, you should get a sense that much was held back from this editorial. The point of it all is, something has to change. Voters are speaking of their favorite political candidates as if they are members of their favorite sports team, favorite prize fighter or worse, some form of demigod. On the flip side, any opponent is evil.

The political world is not world class wrestling. The drama that surrounds that world, however, one could argue is similar. Nonetheless, the collective people of the Capital District are intelligent and well-educated. By and large, we can see through the façade of empty promises, and are insulted by the childish back-and-forth so prevalent in today's debates.

Something has to change because this childish behavior is ripping the country apart. Let's talk about the facts, let's look over the issues threatening our world, and let's get to work.

Sandy Creek Farm under development

BETHLEHEM — A former farm will soon be home to a new residential development in Glenmont.

Sandy Creek farm on Wemple Road, owned and farmed by the Newell family, will likely be torn down, as developers make way for a 40-lot development.

The project was approved in August 2015. Construction on the project began recently, with The Michaels Group, based in Ballston Spa, spearheading.

The development will be called the Newell Place subdivision in reference to the land's former owners. The Newells also own the Bethlehem Cemetery in Delmar. Though the family has been farming for generations, increased property taxes have caused the family to sell, Spotlight News has learned.

Construction on the development will begin this summer with the paving a cul-de-sac. It will likely take three to four years to complete the project, said Luke Michaels, developer on the project. The Michaels Group started their business in Bethlehem over 40 years ago.

The 40 lots will each house a single-family dwelling, which will be for sale. Homes will range in size from 1400 to 2100 square feet, with master bedrooms on the first floor, and will be maintenance free. Lands have also been donated to the town for conservation purposes.

The area is largely residential (and is zoned as such), with neighborhoods like the Meadowview development bordering.

Plans are similar to a project the Michaels Group completed in Delmar 10 years ago, the Walden Fields development in Delmar, which is also a maintenance free community.

"The idea for the community is an entirely maintenance free product. There will be a home owners association whose job it will be to control maintenance for sites, things like lawn maintenance and snow maintenance being the biggest," said developer Luke Michaels.

The Michaels Group began their business in Delmar 40 years ago, by constructing Chadwick Square in Glenmont.
