Internal review of program's accounting revealed flaws in basic accounting practices

BETHLEHEM — The recent disciplinary action of Bethlehem Central's principal has brought to light the details of an alarming 2014 audit of its unique Lab School program.

Bethlehem Central High School Principal Scott Landry was placed on leave this week, shortly after he was found soliciting his consulting service to attendees of a job fair in which he was representing the school.

Landry reportedly said that was the reason shared with him when the district placed him on leave. Nevertheless, the administrator has reportedly said the district's action against him was more likely in retaliation for his investigation into the Lab School program.

BCHS principal placed on leave

Principal's consulting service reportedly called into question

By MICHAEL HALLISEY & TRICIA CREMO

halliseym@spotlightnews.com cremot@spotlightnews.com

DELMAR — A high school administrator soliciting his consulting services to help would-be teachers land a job, now finds himself on leave.

Bethlehem Central High School Principal Scott Landry was placed on leave this week, as confirmed through a statement issued by the district's interim superintendent Jody Monroe.

"Mr. Landry's administrative leave is a current ongoing personnel matter," stated Monroe in an email to The Spotlight. "The district's procedure to not discuss personnel matters publicly is because they are very sensitive in nature. Our procedure remains consistent, regardless of the employee, their position in the district, or the issue at hand, so we maintain the integrity of the district as a whole."

Landry directed all questions to Jennifer Carlson, a lawyer appointed to him through the state's administrator's union, School Administrators Association of New York State (SAANYS). Messages left with Carlson's office at SAANYS were not returned in time for publication. However, according to a report by the Times Union, Landry said he was placed on leave on Monday, May 9, in relation to a consulting service he provided to people seeking jobs in education.

Landry attended a district wide job fair at Guilderland Senior High School in April, representing Bethlehem Central among 20 local schools. The event was arranged to pair school officials with job seekers in all areas of school operation, including teachers, teacher aides, clerical and custodial workers. While there, school representatives met and exchanged contact information.

Approximately four days later, Landry sent a solicitation to candidates he met while at the job fair from his personal email account.

Soon afterwards, Guilderland Central School District received complaints. Bethlehem Central School District was subsequently informed, followed by the district's announcement of Landry's leave.

The Bethlehem Central School District refused comment on a question specifically referring to Landry's consulting service and whether it played a role in his current status with the school. Monroe reiterated it was a "personnel" matter, and "very sensitive" issue.

As principal of the high school, Landry would partake in the hiring of teachers for Bethlehem Central High School. "I have over 20 years in education and currently am the Principal of the number one ranked high school in the Capital District — and in those years I have interviewed hundreds of potential candidates," states Landry's solicitation. He further promises to make the candidate the "one teacher everyone wants to hire," after advertising an introductory fee of $75.

Landry told the Times Union he returned the money he had received, despite feeling he did nothing wrong. He continued to say he felt the disciplinary action against him was in retaliation for an alarming assessment of the district's Lab School in 2014. (See front page story.)

Mike Klugman, principal of Bethlehem Central Middle School, now sits as interim principal of Bethlehem Central High School for the remainder of the year.

Teacher contract reached

BETHLEHEM – District teachers and the Bethlehem School Board have agreed to a four-year contract.

The four-year contract calls for annual salary adjustments averaging 3.86 percent per year, depending on a teacher's educational background and years of teaching experience.

In 2016-17, teacher salaries in Bethlehem would range from $44,800 for a first-year teacher with a bachelor's degree to $98,900 for a teacher with a master's degree and 28 years of teaching experience. The new package has an average net economic impact for members of approximately 2.95 percent per year.

Audit comes to light

The Lab School is described as a "school within a school," with more than 100 students enrolled through grade 9 and 12. The program was chartered in 1992, and has since served as a national model for alternative education. It still operates within the mandates of New York State Regents. But, according to the program's brochure, it composed of "a community of risk-takers, pioneering active modes of learning that frequently involve students in independent research, formal presentations and interdisciplinary projects."

Students enrolled in the program are afforded field trips. Historically, juniors and seniors have taken week-long trips, the costs of which are paid by the students' parents and further backed by fundraisers.

At the time of the 2014 audit, the Lab School used WorldStrides travel agency for some of the program's field trips. Included within the scope of the audit was a review of rewards provided by Worldstrides in use of its services.

The audit was conducted by QUESTARIII, the district's internal auditor. The two objectives of the 2014 audit were to evaluate internal controls surrounding cash collections and disbursements, and the maintenance of its accounting records. It concluded with an outline of nearly a dozen different recommendations for change once it was published the following July. Several of the recommendations addressed matters where the program failed to follow basic bookkeeping practices for deposits and expenditures.

"The basic principle for properly documenting and recording money should follow a transparent audit trail," states the audit within one of the eleven recommendations. "The procedures used for collecting money from fundraisers, donations, or payments made by parents should be documented and be able to support the amount for deposit. Otherwise, there is an increased risk that money could be misappropriated without detection."

Some key elements from the audit include the following:

- The Lab School's charter from 1992, documenting the program's policies and procedures, was lost.
- From March 2013 to March 2014, three checks with the total sum of $5,348 was issued from WorldStrides to the then-Lab School coordinator and mailed to the coordinator's personal residence. The report states the coordinator used the money to provide a stipend for chaperons, meals for those traveling and tips. However, no receipts were available.
- The Lab School's treasurer was not approved annually by the district's Board of Education, and the treasurer had "complete control over cash receipts, disbursements, accounting transactions and record, and bank reconciliations without any oversight."

► "Almost no documentation was available for audit concerning receipts from fundrasing events, donations or field trip payments from parents."

QUESTARIII's audit on the Lab School's school sponsored field trips concluded in October 2014. The review included interviews with Landry, Lab School Treasurer Kirsten Hynes, Lab School Coordinator Michael Mitchell (as of school year 2014/2015), Lab School Coordinator Steve Smith (prior to 2014/2015), district Chief Business and Financial Officer Judith Kehoe and district Treasurer/Business Administrator Phyllis Albano.

Landry's hand in the investigation is not clear, but his four-paged response is included as part of the overall 2014/2015 Lab School Audit. A digital copy of the report has been available on the school district's website under internal audit reports.

"The Lab School Committee has been working for two years in a comprehensive review of the Lab School program," stated Bethlehem's Interim Superintendent Jody Monroe this week. "As a result of the committee's work, several changes have been made to improve the program and create a sustainable model for the school going forward. A brief report on this work was provided at the Feb. 3 Board of Education meeting.

The committee held its last formal meeting on May 11 and will be working over the summer to capture in a detailed report what the work of the committee has been, including a plan for program review on a regular basis."

Grange needs new roof

By MICHAEL HALLISEY

halliseym@spotlightnews.com

SELKIRK — The Bethlehem Grange Hall is in need of help.

Built in 1921, Bethlehem Grange No. 137 is rectangular, wood-frame two-story building with a medium-pitched hipped roof. That roof, said Grange Master Carol Carpenter, is in dire need of repair.

"We've been approved for a loan," said Carpenter, "but we don't have anyway to make payments." She said the roof has leaked so profusely that a large portion of the upstairs ceiling has come down.

Carpenter said it will cost $35,000 to repair the roof. And, right now, the Grange is depending on donations and proceeds from functions like dinners and next week's rummage sale.

The building expanded in 1936 to its present appearance. In 2002, it was listed on the National Register of Historic Places. The structure still serves as a community center, as it did generations ago through The National Grange of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry.

LOCAL BUSINESS

Jon McClelland and John Mellon, co-owners of Smith's Tavern on Maple Avenue in the village of Voorheesville, are in talks with Saratoga Springsbased Stewart's Shops over the sale of the popular restaurant. The convenience store chain has expressed an interest in relocating there from its current location on Main Street.

Sale hinges on village's approval of proposed site plan

VOORHEESVILLE — Smith's Tavern owners are in talks to sell their establishment to Stewart's Shops.

With retirement in mind, Smith's Tavern owners Jon McClelland and John Mellon have signed a purchase agreement with Stewart's, which would allow the Saratoga Springs-based convenience store chain to buy their pizza shop, should the Village of Voorheesville approve Stewart's plans for the site.

"We do have a purchase option contract that we signed in April," McClelland

If approved, Stewart's would relocate its current shop at in the village at 42 Main Street to the Smith's Tavern property on Maple Avenue.

"We're very much in the early stages here, but we have had discussions with Smith's, and our intentions are to purchase, but those plans are contingent on necessary approvals," said Maria D'Amelia, a spokeswoman for Stewart's Stewart's intends on gaining approval to sell gas at the location, said D'Amelia, as its current Voorheesville location does not sell gas. The site would not need to be rezoned, and Stewart's "would certainly follow every regulation and take every step we can for safety," she said, especially as the site is located so close to Vly Creek.

The company is currently going through a re-branding initiative, or "evolution," as D'Amelia called it. All Stewart's shops will eventually be remodeled, and in some cases expanded or relocated to allow for the addition of pizza, sub sandwiches and other grab-andgo food options.

Smith's - known locally as Smitty's has been given the option by Stewart's to relocate to the site of its current store on Main Street.

While McClelland was open to this possibility, he said he and his business partner were intent on retiring.

"We've been there for 25 years and I am anxious to retire," said McClelland. "If we could create something perhaps to sell pizza for pick up, with some tables, then maybe. I am not planning on that, but if numbers work that could be an option."

McClelland and Mellon have been preparing to sell for over a year and received two purchase offers, one from a restaurant group, and the other – a higher offer - from Stewart's.

"I know a lot of people are saying, 'Why Stewart's?' but, we were selling to the best offer that came along. It could have been someone else, but it happened to be Stewart's," said McClelland.

No site plans have been submitted to Voorheesville Planning Board as of yet. Any proposals will likely take four to six months to gain approval. The purchase is not yet official and no closing date has been set for Smith's Tavern.

Should Stewart's gain approval to operate gas pumps at Smith's, the new Stewart's would be located directly next door to the Mobil gas station operated by the Rehman family.

While Mobil co-licensee Zia Rehman said she plans on staying at the location, she expressed concerns about placing gas pumps at Smith's Tavern, as the area often Smith's Tavern originally opened in 1937 as a hotel. Before the end of World War II, in 1945, it became a tavern, owned by Frank L. Smith, who lent his name to the restaurant. Smith's was later owned by his son, Frank Smith Jr., who introduced hand-made pizza and operated it with his wife, Gert Smith. McClelland and Mellon bought the tavern from The Smiths in 1991.

McClelland was clear to say he was very sympathetic to the community's heartache over the possible closure of his business.

"We've made a lot of friends, but in my case, it's time to move on and I know my partner feels the same way. All good things must come to an end."

Five arrested during rally

On Saturday, May 14, around 1 p.m. Guilderland Police responded to a call of individuals trespassing on the CSX railroad tracks in French's Hollow in Guilderland Center.

The group claimed to be from Break Free from Fossil Fuels and was trying to bring attention to its cause.

CSX transportation stopped all train traffic for over two hours during the incident. Both the Guilderland Center and Selkirk fire departments responded to the scene to assist with a rescue of one person who refused to come to the ground.

One firefighter sustained a minor injury during the course of the rescue. CSX

Police assisted with the investigation.

Arrested were: Maeve McBride, 40, of Burlington, Vt.; Alexander Lundberg, 32, of Minneapolis, Minn.; Rachel Kijewski, 31, of Lake Worth, Fla.; Jordan Davis, 27, of New Windsor, N.Y.; and Marisa Shea, 30, of Lowell, Mass.

Each was charged with unlawful interference with railroad train, conspiracy in the fifth degree and criminal trespass in the third degree. Shea was also charged with reckless endangerment.

All defendants were arraigned in Guilderland Town Court and released on their own recognizance to reappear at a later date.

Other arrests:

New York State Police

- Lyubov S. Thompson, 37, of Binghamton, was arrested Sunday, May 1, around 8:20 p.m. on I-87 in the Town of Bethlehem and charged with aggravated DWI. Police allegedly stopped Thompson for driving erratically, and reportedly found her to be intoxicated. Thompson had a BAC of 0.30 percent, according to police, and was thus taken to Albany Medical Center for evaluation. She was later released back to state police custody, where she was charged, and turned over to a sober third party. Thompson was scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on May
- Steve O. Oladimeji, 47, of Schenectady, was arrested in New Scotland on Saturday, May 7, and charged with DWI. Police stopped Oladimeji for allegedly speeding on I-87, and reportedly found him to display signs of intoxication. Oladimeji failed field sobriety tests and had a BAC of 0.08 percent, according to police. He is scheduled to appear in Guilderland Town Court on May 19.
- Firuddin M. Shakhbazov, 28, of Amsterdam, was arrested in Guilderland on Tuesday, May 10, around 2 a.m. and charged with felony DWI, felony aggravated unlicensed operation, misdemeanor criminal possession of a controlled substance and misdemeanor operating a motor vehicle with no ignition interlock device. Shakhbazov was stopped on I-90 for an alleged traffic violation and was found to be intoxicated and in possession of cocaine, according to state police. He reportedly had a BAC of 0.16 percent and had a prior DWI conviction within the last 10 years, and is required to operate a vehicle with an ignition interlock device. Shakhbazov is scheduled to appear in Guilderland Town Court on May 19.

- Griffin T. Hogan, 20, of Delmar, and Kelsey Filipello, 23, of Selkirk, were arrested Monday, May 9, for drug possession charges. State police stopped the duo for an alleged traffic infraction on state Route 32 in Bethlehem, and reportedly saw marijuana in plain view, and both reportedly found in possession of Xanax, a controlled substance. Both were arrested and charged with unlawful possession of marijuana, a violation, criminal possession of a controlled substance in the seventh degree, a misdemeanor. Additionally, Filipello was charged with tampering with physical evidence, a felony, for attempting to swallow the drugs during the traffic stop in an attempt to avoid detection. Both were scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on May 17.
- Lyubov S. Thompson, 37, of Binghamton was arrested Sunday, May 1, around 8:20 p.m. on I-87 in the Town of Bethlehem and charged with aggravated DWI. Police allegedly stopped Thompson for driving erratically, and reportedly found her to be intoxicated. Thompson had a BAC of 0.30 percent, according to police, and was thus taken to Albany Medical Center for evaluation. She was later released back to state police custody, where she was charged, and turned over to a sober third party. Thompson is scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town court on May 17.

Bethlehem Police

• Ronda J. Fusco, 48, of Coxsackie, was arrested on Saturday, April 23, around midnight and charged with DWI, a misdemeanor, and moving from traffic lane unsafely, a traffic infraction. Police reportedly responded to a motor vehicle accident on Creble Road in Selkirk, where Fusco had driven off the roadway and into a culvert. Selkirk Fire Department and Delmar-Bethlehem EMS also responded. Police reportedly found her to be intoxicated, with bloodshot and watery eyes, a strong smell of alcoholic beverage on her breath and unable to complete field sobriety tests. Fusco presented a positive test for presence of breath alcohol test, and agreed to a BAC test (results unreported). She is scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on May 17.

A treasure hunt with metal detectors

Pirst, it was fishing poles and GoPro cameras, then telescopes and slide scanners, now we have added metal detectors to the list of things you can borrow with a Bethlehem Public Library card.

Turn your next day at the park into a treasure hunt with the Bounty Hunter Time Ranger detector with top-of-theline features, including a submersible search coil and a 4-inch gold nugget coil. You can also check out a youth-sized version that is easy for little ones to carry and use. Metal detectors must be checked out and returned to Bethlehem Public Library and can be borrowed for seven days at a time. Patrons are responsible for providing two 9-volt batteries for operation.

The metal detectors are part of our special collection, which has sometimes been referred to as a "library of things" in recent news coverage of a trend that is gaining momentum as more people embrace the sharing economy. Bethlehem Public Library isn't exactly a newcomer to this sharing economy, in fact, it's something libraries have been doing all along with books and other materials. These new collection items just seemed like a natural extension of that idea. Why invest in pricey equipment when you are only going to use it once or twice? Or maybe there's something in our special collection you were thinking about buying but wanted to test out first. Perhaps you never even thought about using a metal detector or a GoPro camera before you saw one on the shelf at the library, but had a blast all the same. Whatever your reason, our special collection items provide opportunities to learn and try something along with many other items in our special collection, have been underwritten by the Friends of the Library.

The metal detectors,

A village to help you age in place

The Village Movement began in 2001 with the establishment of Beacon Hill Village in Boston. Many Capital District seniors have expressed an interest in forming similar "villages" - membershipdriven, grass-roots organizations that, through both volunteers and paid staff, coordinate access to affordable services to assist aging in place. These services can include recreational and wellness programs, home repairs, social and educational activities, and other day-to-day needs enabling individuals to remain connected to their community throughout the aging process. A representative from the Albany Guardian Society will be at the library

Tuesday, May 24, from 10 to 11 a.m. to provide an introduction to the Village Movement.

Author talk and book signing

PL's "Read Local" series of author talks and book signings features the pseudonymous author, Jacopo della Quercia (actually, local author Giacomo Calabria), on Saturday, May 21, at 2 p.m.

Della Ouercia has penned two wonderful, alt-history titles: "License to Quill" (2015), a spy thriller starring William Shakespeare; and "The Great Abraham Lincoln Pocket Watch Conspiracy" (2014), in which President Taft and Robert Todd Lincoln race to solve a mystery stretching back to the Civil War.

One reviewer recently wrote that della Quercia "skillfully weaves together one of the best reads of the year as he combines 'real' history with his vivid and ... off-beat imagination!" School break in Guatemala

A dozen local students spent their February vacation on a mission trip to aid impoverished Mayan children at a learning center in Cruz Blanca, Guatemala, and many of these local students will be at GPL on Friday, May 20, at 7 p.m., to share that experience with you in words and pictures.

These young explorers will offer their observations of Guatemala, the Learning Center and of visiting some of the Mayan children's homes. They will relate how they had to move out of their comfort zones during the trip, and how getting to meet the sponsored child was a moving experience for all involved.

If you enjoy hearing about different areas of our world and seeing young people exhibit leadership in action, then you should

Program earns honor

The Guilderland Public Library's innovative and popular program "Hudson Valley Beer: From Hops to Home," which featured an unprecedented beer-tasting in a library, has won the 2015 Adult Program of the Year Award conferred by the Upper Hudson Library System — the consortium of 29 public libraries in Albany and Rensselaer counties.

"The Committee was very impressed with this nomination and the exceptional creative energy that went into planning and executing this series," said Timothy Burke, Executive Director of UHLS, in announcing the award last week. "Congratulations on a successful nomination. This program certainly deserves recognition as a unique and innovative concept that leveraged a current interest trend to create an amazing program series for your

Jimkata taps into a different dimension with its music, and everyone is invited

Billboard, The Music Ninja, Nerdist, Indie Shuffle and more have all praised In Motion, the band's first release as a trio and second successful fan-funded campaign. Jimkata's triumphant mix of swirling analog synths, breezy hooks and emotionally charged narratives, which have been compared to Yeasayer, St. Lucia, Peter Gabriel and Broken Bells, are heightened during the band's bright, psychedelic and elaborate live productions.

Inspired in song and concept by the idea of 'perpetual motion', "Jumping Out of Airplanes" is an emotive wake-up call to take risks. Bettiol joins an impassioned collective of dancers in lighting up gorgeous locations across the world. Bettiol is a long-time friend of the band — Evan Friedell (vocals/guitar), Aaron Gorsch (synths) and Packy Lunn (drums) — and the video doubles as an inspiring coming-of-age story for the four Ithaca-based performers chasing their dreams.

Jimkata — which, yes, is named after the so-bad-it's-good 1985 gym-fu caper "Gymkata" — continues its critically acclaimed run across the U.S.

"For my whole life, the way I've written songs is that they kind of come to me. I sort of view it as opening yourself up to some other portal, or realm, or something. That, in itself, is a pretty spiritual thing."

Annual Hidden Garden Tour opens secret sanctuaries next Thursday

TROY - Troy's popular annualHidden Garden Tour invites the public into the private sanctuaries of city

"Most people only ever see the facades of our brownstones from the streets," said Peter Grimm, president of the Friends of Prospect Park. "This is a special kind of event that invites visitors into the hidden, green spaces of our city. It really showcases the humanity and livability of Troy."

Now in its 17th year, the Hidden Garden Tour is a fundraiser to benefit Troy's Prospect Park held rain or shine on Thursday, May 26 from 4 to 7:30 p.m. Last year, the event attracted more than 500 tourgoers — its highest attendance ever, which organizers attribute to the growing excitement and interest in Troy.

The self-guided walking tour features approx. 30 private backyard gardens in the Historic Sage College, Washington Park and adjoining neighborhoods of downtown Troy.

While most of the gardens are approximately the same size, about 20 feet by 30 feet, they vary greatly in style. Some of the gardens feature charming pathways, fountains and fish pools. Some are filled with flowers, while others have more plants and vegetables — all lovingly tended by gardeners of all skill levels.

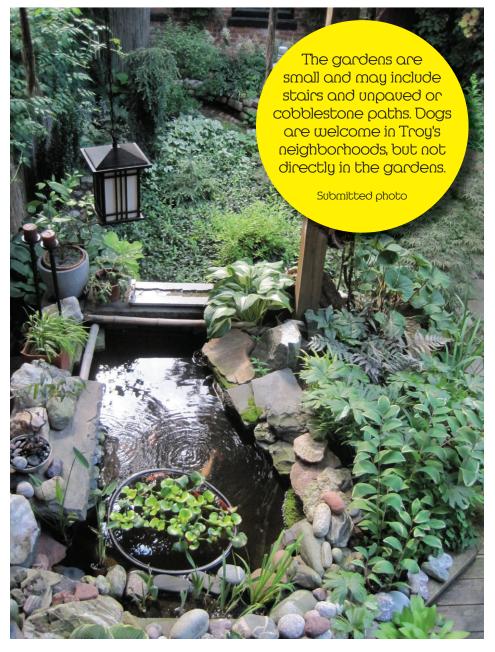

"I think the garden is the mirror of the personality," said Grimm, whose garden of lush green plantings make use of the shade. "Every single garden is unique and gives you a glimpse of what that person is all about."

Nina Pattison's garden is the first stop on the tour and thrives in sunny conditions.

"I have what people refer to as an English Cottage Garden, which means it's 'designed' according to my personal tastes,' Pattison said. "If I like it, I grow it. And if it doesn't like me, we part company."

Now an octogenarian, Pattison had been living in Boston when, in 1987, she decided to return to Troy, the city of her youth, and purchase her house on Second Street. "You could not find a piece of property like this in Boston even if you could afford it!" she said.

36 years and counting

Albany Pro Musica soon to kick off 36th season

TROY — Albany Pro Musica celebrates its 36th Season with an electrifying and eclectic mix of performances that includes concerts with the Canadian Brass, The Philadelphia Orchestra, The New York City Ballet, the Albany Symphony and the Orchestra Pro Musica. Besides a program with some of the heartwarming a cappella repertoire that gave the group notoriety, season's highlights include the new Capital Region tradition The Many Moods of Christmas and Jenkin's famous mass for peace The Armed Man.

A complete listing of Albany Pro Musica's 36th Season of events is

New York City Ballet, A Midsummer Night's Dream

Wednesday and Friday, July 20 and 22 at 8 p.m., and Saturday, July 23 at 2 p.m. at Saratoga Performing Arts Center, Saratoga Springs.

Albany Pro Musica sings Mendelssohn's Music to a Midsummer Night's Dream, accompanying the NYC Ballet and Orchestra at SPAC in July.

The Philadelphia Orchestra, Opening Night, Ode to Joy & Hannibal

Music at the Barn

Sunday, Sept. 18, at 3:30 p.m. A fundraiser like no other! Relax with members of APM, their friends, and family, while enjoying a glass of wine and dinner in the fields beside the historic Jan Wemp Barn.

Albany Symphony Orchestra presents Roscoe - A new opera based on William Kennedy's novel

Saturday, Oct. 15, at 7:30 PM, at The Palace Theatre, Albany.

Based on William Kennedy's acclaimed novel, Roscoe is a new American opera-tragic, comic, and poignant. Roscoe Conway, after years as the motor of Albany's political machine, longs to retire. But just when he thought he was out, things pull him back in. Featuring the radiant voice of opera superstar Deborah Voigt!

Opera by Evan Mack, based on Pulitzer Prize-winning author William Kennedy's classic novel.

Harvest Home (mostly a cappella)

Sunday, Oct. 30, at 3 p.m. at the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall, Troy.

William Shakespeare described autumn as "That time of year thou mayst in me behold." The beauty, introspection, and peace of the season will fill the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall as the fine voices of Albany Pro Musica sing, mostly a cappella, selections that will surely warm your heart.

The Many Moods of Christmas

Sunday, Dec. 11, at 3 p.m., at the Troy Savings Bank Music Hall, Troy.

A new family tradition in the Capital Region, this year's program will be anchored in Gustav Holst's beautiful Choral Fantasy on Old Carols and Robert Shaw's exhilarating collection, The Many Moods of Christmas.

Just riding the wave

Evan Friedell sits and talks about what happens behind the scenes with Jimkata's sound

By MICHAEL HALLISEY

isten to Evan Friedell for five minutes and you get a feeling he's in-tune with things around him.

The front man of Jimkata, the electro-rock trio out of Ithaca, is a conduit to the energy that surrounds him. Call it The Force, call it Zen — which he often does — it's that vibe from the crowd that helps him on stage. It's the muse behind the music he also writes.

From behind the name of a bad '80s movie, the 30-year-old Friedell sounds just as equally beyond his years as he reflects back to how he stumbled into writing and how he continues along his musical path.

Friedell sat down to a phone interview with us last week as he and the band prepare to play at Albany.

Jimkata takes to the stage at The Hollow Bar + Kitchen in Albany on Friday, May 20, at 8 p.m. Tickets are on sale at the door for $12. For more information, visit bobcatbarscheduler.com.

MH: The origins behind the name Jimkata: Where'd that come from?

EF: "That, actually, comes from a hilariously bad, American-made kung-fu movie called 'Gymkata.' It goes back to when we first started playing as a band. We were in need of a name before a show. Before one of our first shows, actually. Ever. And, a friend of ours who we were playing with, and recording with, showed us this movie. We thought it was funny, and the name came up while we were looking for a name. And the name kinda stuck ever since. At this point, we tell people there's no real necessarily rhyme or reason, we just liked the sound of it. If anyone is curious about the movie, tell them to YouTube it, because you're definitely in for a good laugh."

MH: That's what I thought it was. I'm old enough to remember the movie.

EF: "Yeah, there's definitely certain age demographic that comes up to us and is like, 'Wait. Are you named after the movie?' Because, it has kinda a short shelf life."

MH: Listening to your music, and pouring over some of the interviews you've done, I hear and read you reference Zen often, so you strike me as a spiritual type of person. How often does spirituality play into your writing process?

EF: "It plays a lot in the writing process. I guess the way I view song writing is that it's not something you necessarily try to do. For my whole life, the way I've written songs is that they kind of come to me. I sort of view it as opening yourself up to some other portal, or realm, or something. That, in itself, is a pretty spiritual thing. I've almost become more spiritual as I've become older, and as I've gone through this writing process more and more. Anytime you sit down and try to write a song, nothing good comes out, but these cool moments when you're not at all thinking about anything, and just an idea comes to you, you're just off to the races. So, I've just learned to respect that process. It goes hand-and-hand with my spirituality."

MH: You're more or less a slave to the epiphany.

EF: "Yeah. Somewhat. I mean, you can try to put in an eight-hour day at your computer, writing songs, but you're definitely a slave to the epiphany. For sure."

Bicycle Fix-It Stations at APL branches

By SPOTLIGHT STAFF

news@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — Just ahead of Bike to Work Week 2016 (May 16-20), and in the first consistently beautiful days of spring, Albany Public Library opened Bicycle Fixit Stations outside three branches in the city of Albany at a special event on Friday, May 13.

At 9:30 in the morning, a group of library staff and local bicycle enthusiasts gathered at the Arbor Hill/ West Hill Branch at 148 Henry Johnson Blvd. More and more and rode people are taking to the Bach and to bikes than cars Delaware these days, and the Library officials were joined by leaders of local bicycle, transportation, and community organizations for a short press conference before about a dozen cyclists braved the overcast skies and got on their bikes to ride to the Delaware Branch at 331 Delaware Avenue to visit the fixit station there, then on to the Bach Branch at 455 New Scotland Avenue.

"We're excited to provide the people of Albany with free Bicycle Fixit Stations at three Albany Public Library branches," said Scott

Jarzombek, the library's executive director. "There are many recreational cyclists, families, and commuters who can

Shrimp Taco Salad Bowls

By ANN LINDA CIOTOLI

news@spotlightnews.com

ometimes when you feel the urge for Mexican food, you just have to give in and embrace it. This week's recipe does that, but we're going for shrimp instead of beans. Give this dish a try, and you shouldn't be surprised about the wine I've paired it with.

Ingredients — serves four

4 10-inch flour tortillas

1/2 cup mayonnaise

2 1/2 Tbs. fresh lime juice

1/4 tsp. ground cumin

8 cups shredded green and red cabbage (about 1 lb.)

1 cup chopped cilantro, plus more for serving

3 pickled jalapenos, seeded and thinly sliced (1/4 cup)

Kosher salt

Fresh ground pepper 1/4 tsp. chili powder

3/4 to 1 lb. large shrimp, shelled and cleaned

3/4 tsp. chili powder

2 Tbs. extra-virgin olive oil

Sliced radishes and diced avocado, for serving

Preparation

Preheat the oven to 400°F.

A great trick for making taco cups, is to invert a jumbo muffin tin on a work surface, and then gently stuff the tortillas between the upturned muffin cups. They will form bowls. Bake for 15 minutes until they are crisp. Cool.

Meanwhile, in a large bowl, whisk the mayo, lime juice, and cumin. Add the cabbage, one cup of the cilantro, the jalapenos, and toss. Season with salt and pepper.

In a large bowl, toss the shrimp and chili powder. Season with salt and pepper. In a large skillet, heat the oil until shimmering. Add the shrimp, and cook over medium-high heat, turning once, until just white throughout, about three minutes. Transfer to a plate.

Fill the taco shells with the slaw and shrimp. Sprinkle with chopped cilantro, radishes and the diced avocado. Serve.

Wine Pairing

Sierra Cantabria Rosado (Rose) - Rioja, Spain - This wine is a bright salmon color, with aromas of red berries. It has subtle tastes of fresh fruit... strawberry, blackberry, raspberry, and pomegranate. The wine has a long finish.

RESTAURANT REVIEW

A return visit is in the future

By ELIZABETH SCHAEFER

news@spotlightnews.com

n Saturday night, I was joined by my boyfriend and 10-yearold daughter as we headed out for dinner. We had decided on Marotta's Bar-Ristro in Schenectady earlier in the day, and having learned from experience we made reservations. While reservations aren't required, we have found that the wait can be long and in a cramped hallway.

We were seated in a back corner and our server arrived quickly for our drink order. I went with just water with lemon, he decided on a Manhattan, and she went with a soda. We also ordered the calamari

Warm fresh bread arrived before the calamari, and warm bread is always a huge plus for me. The calamari arrived in reasonable amount of time, and when she put it on the table I could tell right away we had made the right choice. We choose calamari a lot (we really like to compare), and this may have been one of the best. The squid could have been fresh cut that day, the batter was very light, so that you just a mouth full of flour. The serving size was more than generous and when we ran out of marinara for dipping, they replenished it almost immediately. We actually ended up not being able to finish the platter, which is not our standard with an appetizer, but it was really good the next day (my daughter apparently ate it for breakfast while I was at the gym).

For our main course, I decided on two appetizers, French onion soup and their melanzana fortezza (an eggplant tower). He chose the chicken scallopine, and she decided on an old standby of penne with meatballs. I told the server in advance, that she could bring the soup out whenever it was ready, as I knew it was actually going to be shared three ways.

Their French onion soup has a broth sherry, and it really makes it one of better ones. The bread on top of the soup was crispy, and the cheese was melted just enough. We ended up splitting it three ways, and all three of us agreed it is one of the best.

When our entrées arrived, I have to say I was a little disappointed in the presentation of mine. It was not as it was described in the menu, it was more of a plated dish. The eggplant was also breaded fairly heavily, which was one of the main reasons I ordered that specific dish, because it was not described as breaded. I really like the taste of eggplant, and was expecting that. With a "tower", I expected smaller, but equal amounts of the eggplant, fresh mozzarella, pesto, etc. The breaded eggplant was much more dominant than expected. However, taste wise, it was seasoned well, it was very good, it was just not at all what I expected.

My daughter's penne and meatballs were exactly as described and expected, and the meatballs were very flavorful and moist (I may have stolen one!). I did not try his chicken scallopine, but he said it was delicious and was overall pleased.

In the end, we all ended up bringing home leftovers - and not because we didn't enjoy our meals, but because they were quite large. The leftovers were gone within 24 hours (I believe my daughter paired her calamari breakfast with meatballs).

Price wise, before tip, it was about $85, which for three people, with an appetizer and a drink from the bar, was just what I had expected.

Would we return? Without a doubt. Would I order the same thing again? Probably not the eggplant, but their menu has so many options, and with that calamari to start, it was a win in my book.

Two friends on flipping television

On a whim, two friends apply to appear on their favorite television show, and make it

CAPITAL DISTRICT — Something amazing happened after Saratoga's Jennifer Lescovich stayed home binge watching HGTV's "Flea Market Flip" while nursing the flu.

"In her deliriousness, she told me she wanted to go on the show," said her friend, and partner-in-crime, Crystal Pogo. "So, I humored her and told her I would find out how we could apply." Pogo said finding a way to contact the show was as simple as a Google search. A click of a link was promptly followed by an interview questionnaire from the show's producers. "An email sent to what I thought would be Never-Never Land. Imagine my surprise when I received a reply! ... The rest is history."

The premise of the show involves a competition between teams focused on buying flea market items, repurposing those items and then selling the items

"I am the bomb creatively, and knew Jen and I would definitely be eye-candy, and maybe slightly entertaining, too."

for profit, much like flipping a house, hence the name. Professionally, Pogo is an information technology associate for SUNY and Lescovich works for the Saratoga County Sheriff. Lescovich said she's well-practiced in the art of flipping objects, while Pogo sees her money handling skills as a factor to their team's winning strategy.

"Well, being a single mom of two, I did a lot of 'flipping' before flipping was a thing - out of necessity," said Lescovich. "I really enjoy it. I can see a piece transformed in my head, and most of the time it works out well."

"It was a great experience overall, some days were long and hot, but that made it memorable," she said. "The production team was amazing, everyone was extremely hospitable. I didn't know what to expect going into it. ... We can't wait to see it on Netflix one day."

Their episode of "Flea Market Flip" is to air on HGTV at a future date.

The gardens of Ilium

Pattison and her neighbors had been showing off their gardens for a few years before they decided to formally organize the Hidden Gardens event for the public.

"Two people actually bought houses in downtown Troy as a result of this event, because they could see what was possible," Pattison said. "Until they saw the gardens, they didn't know you get more than a pile of bricks for a backyard."

Grimm said the Hidden Garden Tour has evolved into a "Troy Livability Campaign." He believes it has the potential to become the summer equivalent of Troy's Victorian Stroll, an annual winter event that draws more than 20,000 visitors to explore and enjoy the businesses and historic buildings of downtown Troy.

The Hidden Garden Tour is presented by The Friends of Prospect Park, a 501(c)3 nonprofit. All proceeds from the Hidden Garden Tour benefit ongoing improvement projects in Prospect Park, located on Congress Street in Troy.

Since 1996, The Friends of Prospect Park have worked to enhance enjoyment of the Park through annual brush-ups, playground improvements, updated signage, increased musical programming, bulb and tree plantings, new benches, with further upgrades planned.

The Hidden Garden Tour map is also a ticket for free light refreshments, from 4 p.m. to 6 p.m., at Carmen's Cafe, located at 198 First Street.

Later at Carmen's, there will be a dinner benefit for The Friends of Prospect Park, from 6 p.m. to 8:30 p.m. The $35 Prix Fixe Menu will be posted at CarmensCafeTroy.com. (For dinner reservations, call 326-2064.)

Admission to the Hidden Garden Tour is $10. Tickets are available in advance online at troygarden.brownpapertickets. com or on the day of at the check-in-table at the Russell Sage College Parking lot.

Free event parking is provided at the Russell Sage College lot, located at First and Division streets. Additional free parking is available in lots farther south on First Street.

MH: Now you write the lyrics, you play guitar, you sing lead — What comes first, the lyrics or the music?

EF: "It can go either way. Sometimes when I come up with a song, it comes with the lyrics and the melody right away, and then I build around that. Other times, it's just an instrumental idea with some sort of wordless, vocal hook that I have to put words to. Other times, it's something that Aaron [Gorsch] or Packy [Lunn] has written where it's totally instrumental, and my goal as a lyric writer is to respect that song and try to talk with it. It's a weird thing, to try to not stomp on it with too many words or the wrong vocal... feeling, but just think about what the song evokes emotionally and try to write something that fits it."

MH: You sound very much like the wordsmith, the writer. What drew you towards music?

EF: "Man. I don't know. I grew up in a musical family. My mom's side of the family has a lot of musicians in the family. That's sort of always been around me. My mom did a lot of musical theater as well while I was growing up. I was always in the theater, around the idea of performing. Then I was taking piano lessons as a kid, because I had to. Then I quit that, and my parents said, 'You got to do something. You have to play an instrument.' And, I picked up a guitar, and I fell in love with it.

Writing came about, now that I look back at it as an adult, as a way to process some things I was feeling I couldn't put words to. My little brother died while I was a kid. When I became a teenager, I didn't know how to process, so that was a way for me of doing that."

MH: I came across that information and understand the music was a coping process for you, and, with me thinking as a writer also, I fully understand. When you create and put something on paper and release it for others to read or listen to, you're releasing music out into the world and that leaves you at a very vulnerable state. How do you deal with that? I'm sure that's something you're conscious of as well.

EF: "Yeah, absolutely. It's a funny thing. When you're something, and you're writing music, you get pretty attached to it. You go through these cycles. I think I actually heard an interview with Beck. He was talking about this kind of thing. He was basically saying, when you first write something, you love it. You think it's the greatest thing in the world. Then, a week later, you're like it's complete [crap], I can't believe this. A week after that, it's okay. You edited this part. Edited that. Now it sounds really good. Then, I feel like, as I release it, sometimes I just want to run and hide. What is everyone going to think. You know? Are they going to think it's total [crap]? I'll go back and listen to the album a bunch of times.... Yeah, some days, I'm driving home at night and I put the album on, and I say this is awesome. Other nights, I put it on and go, 'I dunno.' It's a volatile, funny process."

MH: I understand your brother, Russ, is the band's manager. How cool is that to have a family member tag along with you?

EF: "Very cool! It's been a family operation this entire time. We both have grown together in our respective fields here as musician and as manager over the years. We've kinda watched each other go through this learning process, to the point Russ is managing two other bands now. He's gained a lot of knowledge through his experience."

MH: Going back to your music. You often speak of the energy surrounding any given thing, whether it's the crowd to which you're playing or the writing process, how important is tapping into that energy for you? EF: "It goes both ways. For example, in terms of creative writing, I used to work this job. I was a delivery driver for Meals on Wheels, and it allowed me to have a lot of time alone in a van, driving around the countryside here. But, it also allowed me to have a lot of interaction with people I didn't know, with elderly folks and disabled folks around the county. I got to hear little bits of their life stories everyday. That was kind of cool. Both being inspired by being around others, and also having time in the car to reflect about it. Then, pulling a show, it's definitely just all crowd energy. It's exponential. A good show, when there's a big crowd, or at least a full room of people all into the music, it gives you the ability to do whatever to play a great show. And, the energy just goes back and forth. I think that's why live shows are such a powerful experience."

MH: It's a powerful think for the crowd, too. Now, you've been doing this for, what, ten years now? What motivates you to keep going? Not that ten years is a hell of a long time, but do you still get a big charge out of playing to a large crowd?

EF: "Well, there's a lot of things. For one, I really can't see myself doing anything else. Now that I'm in it, I've been doing it for so long, it's just who I am. It's what I do. I just really enjoy it. I was listening to one of my favorite comedians, Louis C.K. was talking about a point in his career when he was thinking about quitting comedy. Things just weren't going his way. But, he said, 'Quitting comedy was like getting out of prison and not knowing what to do. Because, I was in the comedy world for so long, I didn't know how to be anything else.' There's that aspect of it. It's what I did. I love it. I really love songwriting. And, then, it's sort of the fans. With every tour we go on. At some point, a couple of years ago, we started to switch from people coming in to check us out to hardcore fans who know all the words. Who are very engaged. That level of engagement has kept me encouraged to keep going."

YMCA hosts home run derby

July 14, 2008. It was a hot, sultry July night at Yankee Stadium, site of that year's Major League baseball All-Star game. Eight of the games' top sluggers were lined up to compete in the popular home run derby contest. Do you remember who won? It was Justin Morneau of the Minnesota Twins. Josh Hamilton of the Texas Rangers stole the show by hitting 28 bombs in the first round, but he lost in the finals. But every baseball fan remembers the home run show that Hamilton put on that night. Want to see how well you would do in a home run derby contest? Check out the Bethlehem YMCA's Facebook page for details on our home run derby contest that will take place on Saturday, June 25, from noon to 7 p.m. at the Y's sport court arena. It's a two-person team event. You are guaranteed at least three games, you can pick your game times and you can practice Monday nights at 8:30 p.m. at the Y. It's $30 per team, and $5 per team for practice time.

If you close your eyes, you probably won't hit the ball, but you might hear the roar of the Yankee Stadium crowd as you hit one out of the park. Call Rusty Decker at the Bethlehem Y at 439-4394 if you have any questions.

Capital District YMCA Golf Classic

One of the largest parts of our Annual Campaign fund raising effort is the YMCA Golf Classic, which is being held this year on Aug. 1 at the Edison Club in Rexford.

The Capital District YMCA Golf Classic attracts hundreds of golfers from across the Capital Region and receives support from many area businesses and individuals that make donations for sponsorships at the event. The money raised by the Bethlehem Y is kept right here in our community to help our neighbors and friends.

If you are interested in being a participant in or sponsor of the Y's annual golf tournament, please contact Bethlehem Y at 439-4394.

Car show

The YMCA's Classic Car show is back and better than ever. It would be great if we had The Batmobile, the Delorean from "Back to the Future" or James Bond's Aston Martin, We won't, but we will have every kind of car from hot rods to pickups, old-time sedans to muscle cars. So come over to the Y's back parking lot on Saturday, June 25, to see the classics and picture yourself cruising down the road.

National EMS Week - "Called to Care" May 2016

On the occasion of National Emergency Medical Services (EMS) Week, we thank the dozens of everyday heroes who provide emergency medical service in the Town of Bethlehem. It is our privilege to salute the Emergency Medical Technicians (EMTs), Advanced EMTs, Paramedics, ambulance drivers, and firefighters of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit, as well as our partner emergency responders at Sabic Innovative Plastics in Selkirk.

The residents of our community benefit every day from the skill and commitment of our volunteer and career EMS professionals who are dedicated to saving lives and providing compassionate medical care. They are selfless professionals who dedicate the time, day and night, to respond to the emergency needs of our community.

Together these caring men and women answered 3,500 calls for medical assistance, emergencies, and accidents in the Town of Bethlehem during 2015. This included more than 16,500 scheduled volunteer responder hours during 2015. In addition, our EMS responders dedicate thousands of hours each year to practicing their skills, taking training classes, mentoring new responders, and maintaining equipment.

Our community is remarkably fortunate to have so many individuals that are committed to caring for their neighbors. Please join us in saluting our community's EMS professionals.

Sincerely,

The Directors and Officers of Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and the Albany County Sheriff's Office EMS Unit

Stop using our parking lot as a short cut

cremot@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — Many accidents have nearly occurred in the Savile Road bicycle shop's parking lot on Delaware Avenue

Vehicles often drive through the parking lot to avoid sitting at the traffic light at the intersection of Delaware Ave., Elsmere Ave., and Grosbeck Place. Business owners say this has resulted in many near accidents, as vehicles, going at high speeds, pass right in front of their stores, just as their customers are entering and

Avoiding a traffic device in this way is a violation of the law, which can result in a fine ranging up to $250 for a first offense, including state surcharges, according to Bethlehem Police Commander Adam Hornick.

Four businesses are located at 257 Delaware Ave., including Savile Road - The Tailored Bicycle shop, an Allstate insurance agency, Anne Nails and Classic Trends Hair Design. The latter two businesses have many elderly clients and all together, the four shops generate a lot of foot traffic, said Jules Ianello, owner of the Allstate agency.

Ianello had a fence installed in front of the parking lot last December. While his effort has since reduced the illegal drive-thrus dramatically, it has not completely eliminated the practice.

"Despite our efforts, after having spent thousands of dollars zipping through," Ianello said, all to avoid a 70-second traffic light.

"No one plans on accidents, but in our business we know that 40 percent of accidents occur in parking lots," said the insurance

For Steven LeBoyer, owner of Savile Road - The Tailored Bicycle, the parking lot also serves as a place for customers to give his bikes a test ride.

"There are a lot of school kids in the area and people on bicycles... In some cases [cars] have come really close to my front door," said LeBoyer.

In particular, said LeBoyer, many cars coming from Grosbeck Place, the road behind the shop, will try to enter

Delaware Avenue by driving along the back of his building to avoid the light, not expecting any traffic or people from behind.

LeBoyer and Ianello both hope that with greater exposure of this issue, less people would drive through.

According to Police Commander Hornick, this is an issue seen in many areas of town, including the parking lot at Four Corners and the one behind New Village Deli in Slingerlands.

"It's dangerous because people in the parking lot aren't anticipating cars coming at higher speeds, especially when pulling in or exiting," said Hornick.

"One of the difficulties," in proving the citation, said to see both sides of intersection to know that the car did not come from [the] parking lot. We would have to prove that it came from the side street."

Finding an observation location where an officer can observe both angles is very difficult, and once caught, drivers will often say they were simply pulling into the parking lot as a customer.

Hornick could not think of any incidents recently in which an accident occurred at the Sevile Road bike shop parking lot on Delaware Avenue, but said Bethlehem Police are aware of potential dangers involved at this particular location, and are always on the lookout for illegal drivers.

Woman prohibited from breastfeeding in Walmart

Employee of retailer which rents space inside Glenmont store asks nursing mother to leave

BETHLEHEM — A local woman is speaking out after being told not to breastfeed in public.

"Could I dislike Walmart even more? I think not. Today I was thrown out and yelled at for trying to breastfeed my child on one of the chairs. I was covered up and asked for permission to sit down before hand," wrote local resident Katia Patella in a Facebook post on Thursday,

May 5.

The incident occurred at the NRG Energy rented space at the Glenmont Walmart.

New York state Civil Rights Laws permit a mother to breastfeed her child in any private or public location. Walmart store policy clearly states that breastfeeding is allowed in their

According to Patella, the female NRG Energy employee told Patella that she would get in trouble if her manager saw her. Patella complied and left the store, then researched her rights and re-entered to place a complaint.

"I went back, joined with a Walmart associate and manager, introduced myself to [the employee involved] and kindly read her my rights and asked her to not be rude next time this situation occurs. In return, I was told that it's a private place and they have their own rules," said Patella.

At this point, Patella filed a complaint with Walmart's corporate offices.

"The situation was clearly, not handled correctly," said Walmart spokeswoman Erica Jones, "and we want to apologize sincerely."

Walmart, said Jones, recognized the "intimate and personal nature of the decision a mother makes to breastfeed their child," and welcomes nursing mothers. But, Walmart is not responsible for conduct and protocol in its licensed stores.

NRG Energy did not return press calls in time for print.

"We apologized to Ms. Patella for her experience

FROM THE EDITOR'S DESK

What makes you happy?

n the outskirts of the more developed part of town stands Bethlehem Grange No. 137. A red, box of a wooden, two-story frame that embodies a time when neighbors lived acres apart, yet took the time to know one another a little better than today.

Officially, it's the home of The National Grange of the Order of Patrons of Husbandry. The Grange, for short, is a fraternal organization with the purpose to band community members together for the interest of economic and political well-being. The organization was originally founded in 1867 and is the oldest agricultural advocacy group in the country.

The structure still serves as a community center, before the obligatory Wi-Fi access and tele-conference rooms found in its contemporary counterparts. Instead of seminars and team-building programs, you can still find dances and dinners — helping to bring happiness and harmony to the larger community.

In Colonie, where neighbors live a little closer together, the majority of folks find themselves to be happy with where they live. Two weeks ago we reported on a Siena College survey that assessed the quality of life in town. In all, more than 300 residents were asked, and — in something you rarely find in so many people — nearly all said they found their hometown to be a great place to raise a family.

Colonie is certainly viewed as one of the best towns in the Capital District. When you consider school districts, proximity to shopping, town parks and municipal services, it's a desirable place to establish roots. Which, explains the pace at which development occurs.

The rate at which development is taking place in Colonie is a subject of contention. According to Siena College's survey, seven in every 10 residents feel that it has improved quality of life. The same rate of people feel the taxes they pay are just about right. But, they could all do away with the traffic.

Siena College did find approximately every other person felt concerned about the rate of development in Colonie. And, if you were to talk to residents in other towns, you are likely to hear the same thing. If you find someone who has lived in town for several decades, and tapped that person on the shoulder, you'll hear stories of what used to stand under that shopping mall or housing development. In Bethlehem, townspeople are seeing it happen now at Sandy Creek Farm. The 80-year-old barn was just torn down a few weeks ago. Already, a fine infrastructure is being laid down to support 40 new homes. The farm is gone.

A few miles south lies the Grange building. It looks good for nearly a century old, but the roof is leaking quite a bit. So much so, the Grange is looking at $35,000 in repairs. Today, they depend on donations and proceeds from those aforementioned dinners, and a rummage sale they hold each year.

In recent weeks, we've learned many people wish to retain a piece of their hometown's past. Wouldn't it be great to see that roof repaired?

MILESTONE

The secret to longevity: Just keep living

COLONIE — Lillian H. Skarka was born 100 years ago, on May 7, 1916. She was born at home, one of eight children (three sisters and four brothers) of Conrad and Maude Hammann. Growing up, she was Lillian Henrietta Hammann, a 1934 graduate of Roessleville High School. After high school she worked at the "five and dime store" and later, as an operator for the NY Telephone Company.

She was secretly married to Dr. Anthony Skarka on Dec. 28, 1940, while her husband was still a student at Columbia School of Dental and Oral Surgery in New York City. The wedding took place at the rectory of the English Lutheran Church in Schenectady. Her husband served in the US Army Medical Corps after graduation from dental school, from 1942 until the end of the war in 1945.

After the war, Lillian worked as an assistant to her husband in his Albany dental practice, until her son, Kenneth, was born in 1949, at which point she became a stay-at-home mom. Her daughter, Kathleen was born in 1951. Later in life, she returned to work with her husband until his retirement in 1989. Her husband passed away Sept 28, 1990, at age 73, just three months shy of their 50th wedding anniversary.

Lillian currently lives with her son and daughter-in-law, Bonnie, in Loudonville. She remains an avid reader and loves to walk and visit with the neighbors. She had continued to drive a car until age 92 and to play bridge until age 95, when she had a stroke. Being a very competitive bridge player, she refused to play after her memory faltered and she could no longer remember all the cards as they were played. She is now looking forward to better weather, so she can get out and take her walks every day.

POINT OF VIEW

County Law deprives freedom, allows special interests to thrive

s a father and small business owner who resides in Latham, the recent legislative proposal and debate over raising the legal age to purchase tobacco products in Albany County has left me confused and frustrated. While certainly no rational person would promote the sale of cigarettes to children, I stand firm in the belief that Albany County can make greater strides to reduce youth smoking through the funding of youth smoking prevention, education and cessation programs. With the passage of this latest resolution, the Albany County Legislature has decided to address concerns that affect the personal choices made by grown adults, rather than allocating its time and resources to solve problems in our community that impact our quality of life and the growing cost of living.

According to the lobbyist for the special interests pushing this law, only about 2% of tobacco sales are made to people between the ages of 18-20 - meaning that the County Legislature wasted valuable time and tax dollars on a law that would affect, statistically speaking, very few people. The families that I represent face many important issues that impact their quality of life and erode their desire to stay in Albany County. Residents face high taxes, reduced home values due to overdevelopment, crime and a nursing home that continues to bleed money on the public's tab.

I and many of the other parents I know are most concerned about the growing and deadly narcotics and substance abuse incidents that have occurred among middle and high school aged children. This is an epidemic that has reached into households from all walks of life and in all school districts. While proponents of this latest bill worry about grown adults purchasing cigarettes within our county, many of us parents fear and have seen first hand the effects of the nearly ubiquitous presence of heroin and prescription drugs available to our teens.

While those issues may seem daunting to face, elected officials have a duty to work together to solve them, not avoid to them. Paying lip service to family safety under the guise of this type of legislation only helps law makers win elections – but does nothing to help the families in this community. If the county has sufficient funding to sacrifice the sales tax revenue on the sale of tobacco products, I propose that we use those funds to combat youth smoking through the support of youth smoking prevention, education and cessation programs, which are more effective than attempts to cut off the supply of cigarettes to adults over the age of 18. The war on under age smoking will be not be won by forcing 18-20 year old adults to drive to neighboring counties to purchase cigarettes and other tobacco products, just as the war on drugs will not be won through border control. We need prevention.

I am proud to have voted "NO" on this legislation and will continue to oppose big government proposals which harm businesses, reduce tax dollars and attempt to regulate personal decisions made by grown adults. While proposed regulations like this law keep the lobbyists and special interests employed, it's important to remember that the only people who should matter in this conversation are my constituents and the people of Albany County. In the meantime, I invite my colleagues on both sides of the aisle to join me in working to solve the myriad of difficult problems that have plagued our county for years and for once, use common sense thinking and initiatives to improve our community for the better.

■ LETTER TO THE EDITOR

"Taste Of Bethlehem" was a hit, again

Editor, The Spotlight;

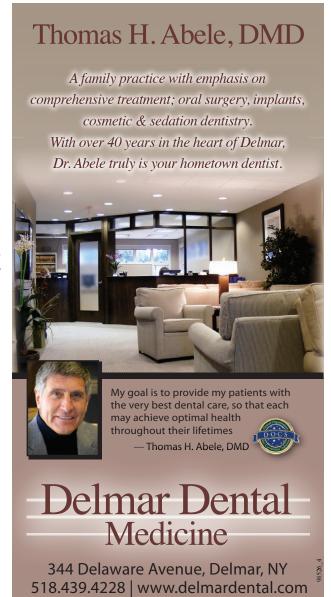

Thanks to everyone involved for making the second annual Taste of Bethlehem event on May 5 a success. Close to 200 folks gathered to sample light fare and converse with neighbors and local politicians in support of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee.

Perhaps it was this newsworthy national election year or maybe just the desire to mingle with neighbors on a May day, but it resulted in great attendance and a successful event. A portion of all the proceeds (over $900) went to support the Bethlehem Community Fund, one of the many charitable organizations in Bethlehem that do great work and help make Bethlehem the special community that it is.

A winning effort like this can only be successful thanks to the many volunteers who worked behind the scenes to make this a roaring success. And of course, the restaurants deserve our appreciation and support for the time and effort they all put in — One Six Five (and Normanside Country Club for hosting), Roux, Café 333, Bellini's, Twisted Vine, Shogun, Hidden Café, Shalimar and Make me a Cake. We in Bethlehem should all support our local restaurants, especially those that support our many charitable organizations in town.

Hope to see you at the next Taste of Bethlehem in 2017 — and remember to buy local and support the community.

— Fundraising Committee of the Bethlehem Democratic Committee

Other arrests

• David N. Toback, 34, of 4 Mansions Boulevard, Apt. 1, Delmar, was arrested on April 4, around 4:30 p.m. and charged with grand larceny, falsifying business records, felonies; and tinted windows, a violation. Police reportedly stopped Toback on Elm Avenue in Selkirk for having illegally tinted windows, and arrested him in accordance with a warrant out for his arrest from Bethlehem Police issued on Feb. 29, 2016. Toback was taken into custody without incident and arraigned in Bethlehem Town Court. He was remanded to Albany County Jail without bail and was scheduled to reappear in court on April 5.

• Tracy A. Winnie, 48, of Albany, was arrested on Sunday, March 27, around 9 p.m. and charged with misdemeanor DWI and failure to keep right, a traffic infraction. Police responded to Krumkill Road in Slingerlands for a personal injury automobile accident, where Winnie wad crashed into a hillside. Winnie reportedly told police that an unknown person had cut her off and to go look for him. According to police, Winnie had an odor of alcoholic beverage on her breath. She reportedly admitted to consuming an alcoholic beverage earlier and stated she was under the influence of Xanax. According to reports, Winnie failed field sobriety tests and gave a positive result for presence of breath alcohol in a preliminary test. She agreed to a BAC test, which was taken at Bethlehem Police. Winnie was scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on April 19.

• Lawrence C. Eaton Jr., 58, of 2711 New Scotland Road, Voorheesville, was arrested on Friday, March 25, around 5:30 p.m. and charged with felony DWI, due to a previous conviction in Dec. 2012, felony operating a motor vehicle with BAC greater than 0.08 percent, and failure to obey a traffic device, a traffic infraction. Police allegedly stopped Eaton on Thackery Drive at New Scotland Road in Slingerlands after he entered the road by turning in a manner that is prohibited and clearly posted as such. Eaton had an odor of alcohol on his breath, impaired speech, a flushed face, and attempted to avoid eye contact, said police. Reportedly, he initially denied consuming any alcohol prior to operating his vehicle, and then later admitted to drinking two beers. Police said Eaton failed all field sobriety tests and provided a positive breath screening on a pre-screening device. According to police, he had a BAC of 0.13 percent. He was scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on April 19.

• Bobby Dhanessur, 36, of Schenectady, was arrested on Tuesday, April 12, around 3:30 p.m. and charged with scheme to defraud and grand larceny, both felonies; and petit larceny, a misdemeanor. Pursuant to an investigation initiated by state police in Clifton Park, Dhanessur was identified as a suspect in two larcenies at Lowe's in Glenmont, which occurred in January 2016. Video surveillance identified Dhanessur as the culprit, and Dhanessur admitted to involvement in these two larcenies, as well as several additional uncharged larcenies in Albany County, said police. Dhanessur turned himself in, was processed for the charges, and was scheduled to appear in Bethlehem Town Court on May 5.
