Slingerlands F.D. opens house

SLINGERLANDS — During the week of Sunday, Oct. 7, many fire companies held their annual open houses to promote fire Safety and recruitment.

The Slingerlands Fire Department held its open house on Saturday, Oct 13. The doors opened and neighbors of the community came to see the station and ask questions about fire safety.

Among the activities held, there were the Bullex training hose and fire extinguisher simulators. This shows the folks how fast you can put a fire out when using the extinguishers and adding water to douse the flames.

Other activities held at the station were truck tours, and station tours. Firefighters took to their apparatus' so educate the neighborhood residents about the tools and equipment of the trade that can be used in the occurrence of a fire or automobile accident. In addition, the Slingerlands Fire Department had its bouncy bounce set up for the little kids to enjoy in the engine bay. Also in the engine was an informational table with smoke detectors and their uses and why they are important to have in the home.

Outside members of the fire department had a house with targets set up for folks to take aim at the with a fire hose so they too could get a real experience of what fighting a fire is like.

Food and drinks had also been provided courtesy of the Slingerlands Fire Department Ladies Auxiliary.

Interested in joining? Do you have the fire in you? Well come down on a Monday evening and visit the station from the hours of 7 to 9 p.m. for more information. Remember, the fire department is neighbors helping neighbors; help them help you. The firehouse is located at 1520 New Scotland Road, Slingerlands, New York.

Two injured in head-on crash

Bethlehem police said that the two drivers were hospitalized but their injuries were not life-threatening though.

Tom Heffernan Sr. / Spotlight News

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — At 1:05 p.m. on Tuesday, Oct. 23, two vehicles crashed head-on on the Delmar Bypass west of Kenwood Avenue, and both drivers were seriously injured and hospitalized, according to Bethlehem police.

An 83-year-old Selkirk woman named Margaret Joslin had been driving her eastbound 2014 Kia on the westbound lane of the highway, and struck a westbound 2015 Kia, which was driven by an 18-year-old Delmar man named Ethan Kurlander.

Both drivers were the only occupants in each vehicle.

Cmdr. Adam Hornick of the Bethlehem Police Department confirmed that their injuries were not life-threatening though.

Joslin had to be extricated from her vehicle afterwards, which took half an hour, according to the police's news release.

Then, Delmar-Bethlehem EMS and Albany County Paramedics transported the two drivers to Albany Medical Center Hospital.

The accident resulted in the overall bypass being closed for over an hour, resulting in major traffic on southbound Route 9W. Bethlehem police, the Slingerlands Fire Department and Elsmere Fire Department investigated the crash site and gathered debris.

So far, police noted that speed and alcohol do not seem to have led to this accident. Joslin has since been issued traffic tickets for Reckless Driving, Disobeying a Traffic Control Device and Failing to Use Designated Lane.

Any eyewitness or person with information is encouraged to contact the Bethlehem police at 518-439-9973.

HEALTH

Be vigilant of enterovirus EV-D68

Common symptoms not life-threatening

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

ALBANY — The state Department of Health has warned people to be aware of the symptoms of enterovirus EV-D68, after 39 children statewide have been confirmed to have it.

Its Wadsworth Laboratory, located in Albany, is the only laboratory in the state that can confirm EV-D68, the results of which are being shared with the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC) to assist in monitoring the circulation of the virus nationally.

NYSDOH recently issued a press release which reported that EV-D68 can cause either mild to severe respiratory illness or no symptoms at all. EV-D68 infection most commonly results in mild symptoms such as runny nose, sneezing, coughing, body aches and muscle aches. Severe symptoms may include wheezing and difficulty breathing.

In rare instances, the virus can cause acute flaccid myelitis (AFM), a serious condition that causes weakness in the arms or legs. However, there are other causes of AFM besides EV-D68; With this virus, severe respiratory illness is a greater concern.

NYSDOH reports suspect cases of AFM due to EV-D68 to CDC for further investigation. To date, no cases have been confirmed in the state this year.

Infants, children and teenagers are most likely to get infected with EV-D68 and become ill because they do not yet have immunity from previous exposures to enteroviruses. Children with asthma may have a higher risk for severe respiratory illness caused by EV-D68 infection. While adults can get infected with enteroviruses too, they are more likely to have no symptoms or mild symptoms.

“All parents must take simple steps to protect their children, especially those who are immune-compromised or have respiratory problems, to avoid becoming infected,” said state Health Commissioner Dr. Howard

Zucker. “We will continue to work with our partners at the CDC and local health departments to make sure that all New York families have the information they need to prevent their children and others from getting the virus.”

Small numbers of EV-D68 have been reported regularly in the U.S. since 1987. Individuals are more likely to get infected with enteroviruses in the summer and fall. Because a mix of enteroviruses circulates every year, different types of enteroviruses can be common in different years.

Back in summer and fall 2014, New York and other states witnessed an outbreak of EV-D68 associated with severe respiratory illness. From mid-August 2014 to Jan. 15, 2015, the CDC or state public health laboratories confirmed a total of 1,153 people in 49 states and the District of Columbia with respiratory illness caused by EV-D68.

Almost all of the confirmed cases were among children, many of whom had asthma or a history of wheezing. Additionally, there were likely many thousands of mild EV-D68 infections for which people neither sought medical treatment nor got tested. This was the first documented nationwide outbreak of EV-D68.

Recent cases in New York state though have been confirmed among individuals who reside in Western and Central New York, the Capital District and Long Island, and specimens have been received from other regions for specialized testing at Wadsworth.

Enteroviruses are transmitted through close contact with an infected person, or by touching objects or surfaces contaminated with the virus and then touching the mouth, nose or eyes. There is no specific treatment for EV-D68 infections other than management of symptoms, and no specific antiviral medications are currently available for this purpose. It is important to take steps to protect yourself and others from all respiratory infections, including:

- Wash your hands often with soap and water for 20 seconds.
- Avoid touching your eyes, nose and mouth with unwashed hands.

- Avoid kissing, hugging and sharing cups or eating utensils with people who are sick.
- Disinfect frequently touched surfaces, such as toys and doorknobs, especially if someone is sick.
- Use the same precautions you would use to prevent the spread of influenza.

These prevention steps are especially important for individuals or persons with family members who are infants, or who have chronic health conditions or compromised immune systems.

DOH will continue to work closely with the CDC, local health departments and healthcare providers to monitor the circulation of the virus both state- and nationwide. More information and guidance regarding EV-D68 to healthcare providers across the state can be found at DOH's health advisory at www.health.ny.gov/press/releases/2018/docs/2018-10-12_evd68_advisory.pdf.

ELECTION 2018

Carriero wants common sense solutions

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — Republican Town Board candidate Jim Carriero wants this town's government to use more common sense to help address the community's concerns, as he does not like how Bethlehem feels so divided due to political parties not finding a compromise to do so.

Born and raised in a small Italian-American community in Stamford, Connecticut, Carriero said he grew up poor and lived in a government-housing project until he was 10. He added that he has come to appreciate the government and people who personally helped him past those struggles during his early years.

Since graduating from Southern Connecticut State University with a degree in secondary education in 1976, he served on the school board in Grafton, Massachusetts, where he said he learned how to run the school system.

He was also drafted to serve as the treasurer of the Grafton Water District, taking the water system over from a private company he found "inefficient" to improve it for the local community.

He is also now a member of the board of directors for the St. Peter's Hospital Foundation, Senior Hope Counseling, and the Northeastern Association of the Blind at Albany.

Jim Carriero

Carriero said that he learned a lot and gained valuable experience after he joined a bank management training program with National Commercial Bank which became KeyBank by 1978. He worked for KeyBank for nearly 34 years as it expanded throughout the state, and he moved to Bethlehem in 1991.

He began working closely with the community as part of his responsibilities with KeyBank to support non-profit organizations and schools. He recalled while on assignment with public schools in downtown Rochester, he interviewed high school students to prepare them for college and job interviews, and he was shocked by the poverty he encountered there.

"There was one day where this young man finished his interview with us and we had shown him what to do in an interview and told what kinds of questions are typically asked," he said. "Well, the next student was then supposed to come in and we noticed there was a delay. While I was asking a teacher where that student was, he walked into the room and he had the same clothing as the previous kid."

Realizing that the student did not own any of his own presentable clothes for the interview, it personally struck Carriero as he said he'd grown up poor himself. He also learned that numerous children in other schools in the area also lacked adequate clothing. KeyBank began collecting jeans to donate to the students in need.

"This wasn't about reforming education, it was about just asking, 'What do you need? How can we help?'" Carriero said. "We forget the fact that there are people who need help and we have an obligation to that."

Such encounters fed into his innate desire to help the community more, a theme which has continued in his campaign for Town Board. "We're always about finding solutions and using them to try to help people in need. We don't encourage the negative naysayers on our teams who say that the world is bleak," he said. "I would say that my mantra has been about taking problems from corporate or the community and as a team of people, we will come to conclusions, though sometimes those solutions weren't the best but we executed them so well that we became better."

He added that it was easy to work at KeyBank, explaining that he and fellow colleagues were all taught not to be political, adding that they were a mix of Democrats, Republicans, Independents and Conservatives.

He said, "The view was that we serve the community. People's political positions were not the primary driver; it was a great lesson in humanity. It was a phenomenal experience to work with people who were socially conscious."

This informed his current outlook on the town election as he said he feels that it is unfortunate that Bethlehem feels divided because of people's opposing views.

Living near Wemple Road for over two decades with his fiancée, Theresa, and with two adult children, Carriero said he questions the value of political parties in town.

"It's time to bring us back to the table, and challenge us to stop using our political parties as our sounding board but to use common sense in how we manage government," he said. "Stop arguing about

Coffey concerned about town's trajectory

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — Dan Coffey, the Democratic Town Board candidate, said that he would want to look closely into revising the town's comprehensive plan and address the rise in development issue.

Born and raised in Plattsburgh, he earned his bachelor's degree in Political Science at Union College in Schenectady in 1984, then a master's in Public Administration from Columbia University and a Juris Doctor degree in Georgetown University.

Then living in Washington DC for six years, he was an intern on Capitol Hill with Congressman Gillis Long (D-Louisiana), and worked for the federal Congressional Budget Office and General Accounting Office.

He was also on an environmental law firm there for two years and finally moved back to the Capital District to start working for various law firms since 1992.

He married his wife, Eileen, whom he'd originally met at Union, in 1995, and moved from Cohoes to Delmar with their then-2-year-old eldest daughter, Sarah, in 1999. They would have another daughter, Kaitlyn a few years later.

Coffey first got involved in local law and government back in 2009, when he was appointed to the town's Planning

Dan Coffey

Board in 2009. The following year, he started a seven-year term as Chair of the Zoning Board.

He also served as president of the Albany County Bar Association in 2016, an officer for the Bethlehem Democratic Committee from 2012 to earlier this year, and has been on the town's Comprehensive Plan Assessment Committee.

He is currently serving on the Third Judicial District's Committee on Character and Fitness. He co-founded Bowitch & Coffey, an Albany law firm, in June 2012 where he is a trial attorney.

Coffey explained that he is running for a position on the Town Board for four main reasons:

- addressing the town's rise in development issue
- continue revising the comprehensive plan
- encouraging locals to vote and stay engaged in what he sees now as a divisive political landscape nationwide
- wanting to get it right this time as a lawsuit prevented him from running on his party line last year.

"I care a lot about our community and the challenges that we're facing, the biggest one being a lot of development going around in town," he said. "I go around door-to-door and the number-one thing I hear is neighbors saying that developers are trying to cram as many developments into every nook and cranny as they can find."

He does not want the town to lose its community character which is being threatened by the rise in developments. In turn, he said he plans to address this issue by assessing which goals from the 2005 comprehensive plan have and have not been met, as a starting point to work on updating that plan. He said that the new plan should look ahead with goals set through 2035 or 2040.

Regarding development, "We've got to tighten up the Zoning Law; there's some provisions in there that need to be changed and it has to reflect the character of the neighborhood," he said. "And if some places may have been appropriate for some mixed-use hamlet style 13 years ago, maybe it's not appropriate today, as you might want to make it just a Core Residential area."

Believing that Bethlehem does not have a balanced tax base which the 2005 plan aimed for and that it relies too much on property taxes, he also brought up how he appreciated the recent presentation of the town's tentative 2019 budget at recent Town Board meetings, and liked that Bethlehem has "consistently stayed under the tax cap."

However, he said he would like to work more on expanding current businesses and bringing in new ones to try to fill areas that are zoned for businesses such as the Vista Technology Campus.

Unlike the towns of Guilderland and Colonie, he said, "Unfortunately, we do not have a Crossgates Mall or a Colonie Center, so we are lacking a lot in sales tax revenue and encouraging more businesses."

However, while he acknowledged that people do not like many large-scale stores, he still believes places like the aforementioned Vista Technology Campus could use more businesses as it looks "mostly empty." He even suggested downplaying the word, "Technology," and

Donovan pushes for a more understanding court

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

BETHLEHEM — Incumbent Town Justice Ryan T. Donovan, who is running unopposed and seeking re-election, said that he sees himself as a judge who is compassionate yet firm when hearing cases that come across his court and making decisions.

“I believe that life is hard for people and that people are trying to get through various life experiences, so it’s important for me to remember where they come from and what situation brought them to court,” Donovan said. “I’m not insensitive to their socioeconomic or family situation too. But I will also be firm when I have to be because I took an oath to enforce the law.”

Born and raised in Bethlehem, Donovan acknowledged how other people may not be as fortunate as he is, since he said he grew up in a supportive family in a great town, and was able to gain sheer experience in law and politics — which all complemented his humble nature.

He graduated from Bethlehem High School in 1994, having since been inducted in its Hall of Fame recently, and went off to SUNY Oswego to be a history teacher. Around that time, he began getting involved with several political campaigns. In 1996, he traveled to London to be an intern at the House of Commons, then returned that fall to work on the Clinton-Gore campaign, and ended up as a White House intern in the West Wing in 1997.

He said this period was when he began looking towards law, and applied and enrolled at Albany Law School in fall 1998. He added that he returned to Bethlehem then because he enjoyed studying there and that “because my parents, who live right around the corner, gave me a free place to stay.” He has since become an adjunct professor of law there since 2011.

He has also made partner at the Albany law firm, Harris, Conway & Donovan, PLLC, where he specializes in commercial litigation, personal injury, alcohol beverage litigation, civil litigation, and trial practice. Now living in Delmar with his wife and three children, he said he enjoys juggling all those responsibilities.

He said that he feels honored to run unopposed and he has appreciated the support from across party lines throughout Bethlehem. Having assumed office since June 2006, he added that he wanted to run again because he feels there is still a lot of work to do.

“It is a challenging job and I deal with all walks of life, and have a chance to make an impact on their lives, and I enjoy that part of law,” he said. “And I’m not tired of it yet.”

When asked if certain types of cases specifically affected him, he said, “The heroin cases have hit me personally, it’s so sad. I’ve seen addiction rip families apart and kill people and damage property. I’ve seen horrible things happen.”

Feeling that the town court should do more to address heroin addiction, Donovan developed a treatment court, which serves as a “special probation program,” over a year ago that is held in the town court.

“Every month, a defendant, their attorney and a probation officer come here to court and meet with me, so I know what they’re doing for treatment, if they’ve tested positive, to keep them on task and hold them accountable,” he said. Such a program does not exist in any other town court in the whole state and holding the addicts accountable shows that he and the town court care about their well-being, according to him.

“It’s easy to say go to jail but if you roll your sleeves up and dig in and show them ways to be successful, and have them follow that path and reach success, that’s the reason I’m still here,” he added. “Our justice system should be like this and not so punitive. A good court needs to have a soul that really wants to help.”

While he said that there are around seven or eight defendants enrolled in his treatment court, about the same number of enrolled defendants have died from overdoses since it began, “and that struck me. How can we fix this problem if we’re doing the same thing like before this treatment court started? We have to approach it from a different angle.”

He hopes to expand it by having more defendants enrolled into the treatment court. He said that if a defendant actively discusses their progress, set monthly goals, and stays clean after a whole year, “their charges get vacated and they have a chance and have a non-criminal disposition and take a positive step in their life. That’s the best part of this job.”

He said that the road to recovery is not easy though and that relapse is part of that. “You can’t expect people to say, ‘Ok, I’m better.’ That’s just not how it works. Rehabilitation is a big part of the criminal justice system and I try to use it whenever possible. It’s my belief that we’re here to help fix it and not let it go by. Otherwise, it’s like why am I here?”

This connects back to how he’s said that as a judge, he wants to understand what each defendant’s situation and background are, which led them to becoming addicted. “I didn’t have the challenges that a lot of people before me face,” he said, bringing up his loving, supportive family and successful professional background. “I want to be sensitive to that and I think it’s important for a judge to not say, ‘If I wouldn’t do that, you shouldn’t do that.’ That’s not a healthy attitude for a judge — they should enforce the law and understand their audience, where they came from and take that into account. Because life is really hard for people and I’ve been really fortunate, of which I’m very aware and grateful.”

Moving forward, Donovan said he wants to continue making the town court more efficient and recognizes that the justice system is a process, although acknowledging that many people are intimidated by it.

“The court isn’t here to ruin people’s lives, we’re hopefully here to get them back on track in life,” he concluded. “And you can’t be an arrogant judge. If you always think you’re right, you won’t learn and grow. I always strive to do my best to apply logic, reason and compassion into the law. I’m always wanting to get better.”

New substation to open next spring

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

GLENMONT — Construction on Elsmere Fire District's new 4,608 square-foot South Substation, located at the corner of Feura Bush and Wemple roads, is expected to be complete and officially open late next spring according to Jack Brennan, the chairman of the district's Board of Fire Commissioners.

Brennan explained that the substation would not only improve response times to emergencies in the district's southern half, but also "bring our services closer to the people, lands and residents of that area."

Contractors began clearing out the site, originally a vacant lot, for the $1.4 million project about four weeks ago.

"People had to come in back then to start preliminary work like getting soil and ground samples. We had to do fencing and bring in the needed equipment so that we could start doing a lot of work on the foundations," Brennan explained. "It all began in minor steps at the end of September, and we've been progressing to a point where I think there will be some cement in already for the foundations."

Brennan said that the substation's general architect is C.T. Male Associates, a Latham-based company specializing in services such as land surveying, Construction is now underway.

Diego Cagara / Spotlight News

architectural engineering, and energy and environmental services.

The process to gain both Zoning and Planning Board approvals for the substation project was lengthy, beginning on Dec. 6, 2017. The district's application to build the new substation was reviewed by The Zoning Board of Appeals, before voters in the fire district approved it on Dec. 12, passing with 272 supportive votes and 180 opposing ones.

The town's planning board began overseeing the project on Feb. 20, and the matter continued to appear on its agenda through the middle of the summer.

Several concerns about the project were raised during Planning Board meetings.

One resident disliked proposed exterior color for the substation, the Planning Board staffers wondered if the facility will be used to host community events and how it lacks a sidewalk directly outside it. Also, a revised stormwater management plan did not address pretreatment requirements that would affect the substation's proposed stormwater management areas. The town's designated engineering firm, MJ Engineering, did not initially respond to requests for comment about this issue.

Brennan addressed the above concerns during a recent phone interview last week. While the building's exterior will be an "off-white, beige-like color," there would still not be a sidewalk directly in front of the substation — instead, there's one across the street. Regarding the stormwater management plan issues, he said that "we provided everything that the town required and eventually, it was approved after a lengthy review on behalf of the town."

He added that "in essence, no, there won't be many community events here, due to the restrictions placed on the substation from the Planning Board, as it would be used for as originally intended."

The project was finally approved during the July 3 Planning Board meeting.

Brennan said that he hoped the substation would be erected by December and that once the winter weather clears, outside work can continue before its slated spring opening.

Guilderland races

By DIEGO CAGARA
cagarad@spotlightnews.com

GUILDERLAND — While there are no positions to be filled in the Town of New Scotland, the Town of Guilderland has two openings: Town Justice and Highway Superintendent.

There are three candidates running for a four-year term as Town Justice.

Albany County Legislator Bryan M. Clenahan, D-30, who represents the Guilderland area, is running on the Democratic, Working Families, Independence and Women's Equality lines.

Attorney Stephen R. Chelsey — a Guilderland lawyer who made partner at Albany firm Sullivan, Keenan, Oliver and Violando, LLP, who specializes in areas like workers' compensation law, civil litigation, commercial contracts, appellate practice, personal injury and subrogation, and criminal defense including DWI and traffic offenses — is running on the Republican and Reform party lines.

Incumbent Town Justice Christine M. Napierski, who is seeking re-election, is running on the Conservative line.

The Highway Superintendent position, a one-year term to fill a vacancy, has only one candidate. The incumbent Highway Superintendent Gregory J. Wier is running on the Democratic, Conservative and Independence lines.

things that have nothing to do with us here, and start finding common ground.”

Carriero said he has been walking door-to-door and meeting with neighbors to understand what their top concerns are. Issues brought up included rise in local traffic, aging infrastructure like the town's water and sewer systems, developments, and the previously-proposed real estate transfer tax to fund open space conservation.

“We are really headed for trouble, I don't know if we can keep up with all this at the rate we're going,” he said.

Concerning aging infrastructure, he brought up how the town has had 75 water main breaks this year to date. Acknowledging that infrastructure naturally breaks down over time, he pondered, “But what does our town budget say? The budget plans for water main breaks but it doesn't plan to say, ‘Let's go replace the underground water system.’”

Bringing up his past experiences as treasurer of the Grafton Water District, he said he would want Bethlehem to have a better purification plan where the water system is looped to prevent water from lying dormant within, where it could have had chemical reactions with chlorine and more. He connected this to how the federal Environmental Protection Agency, found that Bethlehem's water system was deficient earlier this year, after finding high levels of trihalomethanes (TTHM) and haloacetic acids (HAA5), which are dangerous by-products of drinking water chlorination.

Moving forward, Carriero said he envisions Bethlehem's government to be much more engaging and cooperative in the near future and to work on finding compromises to keep the community together. “I'd want a more peaceful process of people trading each other's ideas and treating each other the way we should,” he said.

While expressing that the current Town Board members and supervisor are “very good, honorable citizens,” he said that their decisions don't necessarily take into account their long-term implications and that there are no business people involved in the decision-making process.

Referring back to his decades-long portfolio of experiences as a banker, board member, water district treasurer and more, Carriero said that it is important to not only consider short-term but also long-term effects of an action taken by the town when addressing an issue. “I'm very analytical and I'm going to question the long-term decisions we make,” he added. “My experience in running teams of people, meeting budgets, cutting expenses and building branches is extensive. But my more powerful capability is to lead people to make them and their values feel heard and [be] part of the solution.”

Coffey

maybe have more retail businesses there to benefit the town.

If elected, Coffey said he believes his past experiences would help inform his actions and decisions regarding the comprehensive plan and town budget.

He also feels more emboldened as his party “was very supportive of [me] running again” this year and he has made sure all the appropriate paperwork have been filled out correctly. This was to avoid a similar “snafu” as last year's where he could not run on the Democratic ballot line, due to incorrectly-filled paperwork which resulted in a lawsuit filed by Dems. Dan Morin and George Harder. He then campaigned on the Working Families Party line but lost.

Acknowledging that last year's events have been brought up by his opponent, James Carriero, Coffey said, “I'm asking people to not just judge me on that piece of paper but instead try to look at my entire background, experiences and lifetime of services in the private and public sectors.”

He also said he wants to use this town election as an opportunity to motivate people to get out and vote, keeping the national political climate in mind too. “There's a lot going on nationally with the Trump administration and some of its policies which have just energized a lot of people and obviously, this is not a national election, it's a local one,” he said. “But there's a strong sense, that many people in town I know here and I have, that we need to do something, and we need to be engaged and we need to be active. So, if I can do something on the local level, I'd like to do something like that.”

Asked what he envisions Bethlehem to be like in the near future, Coffey said he would like to maintain its community character and individual hamlets, and continue addressing the development growth issue. He believed that such growth is happening because Bethlehem “is an attractive community. We've got the best schools, a great library, a tremendous town park system, the Rail Trail — which is a huge asset — and the Farmers Market, the nearby Five Rivers [Environmental Education Center], and you're five or six miles from downtown Albany.”

He said he wants the comprehensive plan to ensure Bethlehem retains its small-town feel. He added that within the town's park system, there's been talk about introducing a Pop Warner football and lacrosse field and he also wanted to see about having a pavilion for summer arts. “We have a lot of creative people and I know a lot of suburban communities have summer plays and musicals, so I'd like to see if that's feasible here,” he said.

He said he also wants to better utilize the nine miles of Hudson River frontage as a resource for industrialization in the north and recreation in the south.

Coffey concluded that he has been walking around town “almost every single night” and meeting with residents to better understand what their concerns are. “Also, my adversary [Carriero] is a worthy one and he's been working hard. So, I'm just looking forward to meeting more people and hopefully prevailing on November 6.”

Bethlehem girls in the finals

STILLWATER — The Eagles didn't waste any time on Wednesday, Oct. 24, and were beating Saratoga 3-0 at the 18-minute mark of the first half.

Bethlehem, the No. 1 seed in the Section II Class AA tournament, got one on the board within the first five minutes with seventh grader Claire Hutton's first of two goals on the night.

Grace Hotaling had a goal and an assist, Joanna VanRoyen had a goal and Brianna Price had two assists for The Eagles.

Behind a solid defense that shut down Saratoga all night long, Bethlehem keeper Shannon Donnelly had four saves.

Leah Radovic had the lone goal for No. 4 seed Saratoga.

Bethlehem took on Shen, the No. 2 seed, on Monday, Oct. 29, for the championship after this paper went to print.

Bethlehem boys fall to Nisky

COLONIE — After 80 minutes and two 15-minute periods of overtime, it came down to penalty kicks in the Section II Class AA semifinals.

And the No. 3 seed Bethlehem squad came up just short against No. 7 seed Niskayuna in front of a capacity crowd at Colonie Central High School.

Niskayuna goalie Jimmy Joyce stopped one Bethlehem penalty kick, and that was all it took. The two teams met last month and Bethlehem came away with a 1-0 win.

Bethlehem made it to the semis by getting a first round bye then beating Saratoga 4-3.

Nisky was scheduled to square off against the No. 1 seed CBA on Tuesday at Colonie Central High School for the championship at 7 p.m.

Check out our website for more photos of the game.

Voorheesville loses in semis

TROY — Voorheesville lost a thriller to Schalmont in the Class B Section II semifinals by a score of 6-4 in overtime on Tuesday, Oct. 23.

The No. 3 Blackbirds sent the game into overtime with 5.8 seconds left on a goal by Megan Romansky, but the No. 2 seed Schalmont dominated the next 20 minutes.

Amanda Gillenwaters and Kaelyn Lawson each had a goal and an assist for Voorheesville while Jayden Kelley added a goal.

Leah Weber had six saves for Voorheesville.

Schalmont lost in the finals to No. 1 seed Holy Names in two overtimes.

LIBRARIES

Well-rounded conversation

Bethlehem Public Library's Coffee & Conversation series wraps up the fall season Friday, Nov. 2, with "Songs of Our Empire State" performed by the Lost Radio Rounders. Explore New York State's great history on a musical journey that will find you whaling with "The Montaukers," fighting the Battle of Saratoga and on a trip along the Erie Canal.

The Lost Radio Rounders, a duo featuring Michael Eck and Tom Lindsay, have performed extensively around the Capital District. Lindsay, on guitar, banjo and piano, is a local photographer, educator and recording engineer. He has taught New York State cultural history, American music history, audio/video technology, and photography at the fifth-12th-grade levels. Eck, who plays mandolin, guitar, dobro, ukulele and banjo, is a songwriter with four solo albums to his credit. He is also a widely published music critic and radio personality, as well as a visual artist focusing on portraits of American roots musicians.

The "Songs of Our Empire State" concert takes place from 1 to 2 p.m. in the library's community room. A one-hour coffee and social hour will follow the performance. The event is free and open to all and is co-sponsored by Bethlehem Senior Projects, Inc.

Intro. to digital video editing

Are you intrigued by all of the possibilities presented by digital video editing? Create your own show! Make your special event footage an event of its own! Tie your home movies together in a watchable way! It is now easier than ever with our library laptops equipped with Adobe Premiere Elements, and we'll show you how to do it.

We've scheduled several training sessions in the next two months that will teach you how to use Adobe Premiere Elements to edit videos, create titles, insert transitions, add special effects, adjust audio and more to create a professional looking video suitable for a variety of media.

The first two-hour training takes place Monday, Nov. 5, from 10 a.m.-noon. Additional classes take place Monday, Nov. 26, from 2 to 4 p.m.; Monday, Dec. 3, from 2 to 4 p.m.; and Thursday, Dec. 6 from 7 to 8:30 p.m. Please sign up for only one session. Register online at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org or call 518-439-9314.

Your input is important

Tell us what you think! If you haven't had a chance to fill out the library services survey included in the November/December Footnotes, we encourage you to take the time to do so and return your answers to us before Nov. 30. An online version at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org can be filled out and submitted electronically, and a large-print version can be picked up at the library Information Desk.

Annual report available

Bethlehem Public Library's annual report for fiscal year 2017-18 was included in the November/December Footnotes and is now available online at www.bethlehempubliclibrary.org. This report highlights some of the library's exciting achievements and programs over the past year, along with important circulation and collection information that tells the tale of how our users are interacting with the goods and services we offer.

Other upcoming events

All events are free and take place at Bethlehem Public Library, 451 Delaware Ave., Delmar. For more details, call 518-439-9314 or visit bethlehempubliclibrary.org.

Residents deserve the facts

To the Editor:

As a community, we are all made better when we are informed and engage in respectful and factual discussions with one another. Invariably, we will not always agree on the issues, but that isn't necessarily a bad thing. Expressing and exploring opposing viewpoints and challenging the status quo is often what makes for better policy and better communities.

Recognizing an opportunity to provide facts, dispel myths and rumors, answer questions, and educate the public, I accepted an invitation to be one of four panelists to publicly discuss the real estate transfer tax that was first proposed in 2017. Although Mr. Saunders has attempted to give me credit for organizing this important public forum, I am sorry to say that such credit is misplaced, as I neither proposed nor organized the informational meeting.

Mr. Saunders may have his facts wrong, however, we do agree on at least two points, namely that we should all educate ourselves on the issues and hold our elected officials accountable. That is why I make every effort to provide the public with as much information and facts as possible so that together we can listen to one another and move the conversation forward in an informed, honest, and respectful way. Unfortunately, I have learned that some folks do not want the public to have all the facts. They do not welcome open discussion or honest debate of the issues on their merits. Instead, they attempt to stifle or marginalize contrary viewpoints or bury inconvenient truths.

There are also a handful of people on both sides that appear to want to hold their public officials accountable only when they are not from their own political party. For example, last week's letter to the editor ignores the troubling fact that Supervisor VanLuven has stated that he and then-Supervisor Clarkson privately discussed the real estate transfer tax in 2017, yet ultimately chose not to inform or seek input from the residents prior to the request that the bill be introduced in the Senate and Assembly. Would Mr. Saunders still be as unconcerned or forgiving on this point if it was me who had helped keep the residents of Bethlehem in the dark regarding such an important issue?

In closing, sharing facts with the residents through public forums and the press is not a right reserved only for the party that currently holds the majority, rather, it is a duty shared equally by all public officials. I find that when we provide people with the facts, they tend to make better decisions, are less prone to fear and uncertainty, and have greater confidence in their government. Perhaps most importantly, we must remember that disagreement is not a bad thing and it need not divide us. In fact, I humbly submit that disagreement is essential in a healthy democracy.

As one of your elected officials, I will continue to do my best to provide everyone with the facts, and trust you to form your own opinions.

*Jim Foster,
Delmar*

More stories behind Altamont Orchards

Letter to the Editor,

I read your Oct. 3, 2018 article about the Altamont Orchards on its 50th year with interest. Your report had many historical facts. I would like to add a few more facts.

My grandfather, Dr. Daniel H. Cook, began planting his orchard in the 1880s, and at the time named his orchard Altamont Orchards, making it almost 140 years old.

There was a huge farmhouse with a wrap around porch. On Halloween night, 1944, the house burned on a cold, rainy night.

When my father, Daniel H. Cook, operated the farm, we had 8,000 fruit bearing trees. He grew Red and Gold Delicious, Cortland, Macs, Northern Spy, Quincy and a few other varieties. When harvest time arrived, all of our pickers and packers were local people, neighbors. The apples were sorted and packed in the barn that still stands proudly. Then the crates were trucked to the Central Warehouse in Albany. Since, at that time, colleges and the Boys Academy did not start classes until the end of September, many of the boys picked our apples. I still remember any names as: Aronowitz, Steiner, Wincher, Karl and Don Slater. The Warners, Sonny Mock, Joe Grotto and so many others. Some of the old men of the mountains remember picking apples.

What a different world it was then when neighbors always helped neighbors.

Sally Cook Ketchum, Altamont

P.S. In 1999, The Altamont Enterprise printed in its 100 years ago column that Dr. Daniel H. Cook planted another 3,000 apple trees on his farm outside of Altamont.

One year, when the apples were ready to pick during World War II, so many young men were at war, we had a serious problem. Who will pick the apples? My father solved it by asking the La Salle Seminars (located on Altamont Hill, Route 156). They arrived every day until the job was done. Our heroes that year.

Heroes all around us

Join us from 7 to 8 p.m. on Tuesday, Nov. 6, as we explore the fascinating history of destroyer escorts and the lives of three men who served in the United States Navy during World War II and are tied in some way to these trim but deadly warships. The first is Frank Slater, killed in action at Guadalcanal and for whom the U.S.S. Slater is named. The second is Leonard Roy Harmon, who received the posthumous distinction of being the first African American to have a ship named in his honor. Finally, the remarkable story of a destroyer escort, the U.S.S. Samuel B. Roberts, will be examined, highlighting the actions of Paul Henry Carr.

Healthy You, Healthy Earth

Join us at 6:30 p.m. on Thursday, Nov. 8 as we discuss the science of climate change, as well as its impact on our physical and mental well-being. Interspersed with erratic weather patterns, raging forest fires, stultifying drought, violent hurricanes, melting glaciers and flooding, acidifying oceans, we witness the plight of environmental refugees fleeing unspeakable upheaval. Local author Maia Boswell-Penc, Ph.D. will present both facts and solutions. No registration needed.

Second Sunday Film: 'Dunkirk'

This Veterans' Day, Sunday, Nov. 11, stop by the Library at 2 p.m. to watch as "Allied soldiers from Belgium, the British Empire and France are surrounded by the German Army, and evacuated during a fierce battle in World War II" (IMDb) Starring Fion Whitehead, Barry Keoghan, Mark Ryland. 2017, Rated PG-13, 1h 46m. Light refreshments served.

Registering for programs helps us to determine supply needs. Unless otherwise indicated, registration is requested for all programs. You can register in person, by phone (518-765-2791) or using our online calendar at <http://voorheesvillelibrary.org/calendar.asp>.

Mindful Eating for Weight Management

Mindful eating is key to healthy eating. Join us for Mindfulness Eating, on Wednesday, Nov. 7, at 6:30 p.m., for a free, CDPHP class where you'll explore a three-step process for practicing mindful eating. You'll evaluate your own mindless eating triggers and develop effective strategies to overcome them.

With busy work days, full social calendars, taking care of the kids – the list goes on – it can be challenging to take notice of food intake and maintain a balanced eating regimen. And although the examples above are small ways people eat without thinking, those little actions could turn into a bigger problem and sabotage your health without you even realizing.

Please register for this class by calling 518-456-2400 ext. 3. The only thing you have to lose is some weight.

Spin The Prize Wheel!

Learn about the Library's amazing digital resources by spinning GPL's Digital Wheel! All through November, you can come in and "take a spin" and get a little something to take home every time. Visit the adult info desk for details. Oh, and, one thing, please: One spin per person per visit, please.

Kids Vote, Too! Party

It's Election Day! Kids are invited to come to the Library on Tuesday, November 6, from 2 to 3:30 p.m., to learn about how voting works, and get your chance to vote for your favorite pet. You'll watch a short video, read a book, make a craft, and eat a fun patriotic snack.

Mallwalker's & Military Awareness Expo

Staff from GPL will have a table at Crossgates Mall in the early morning of Friday, Nov. 2, to greet all of the mallwalkers. Be sure to stop and visit with us — and grab a free book too!

After your morning walk, stick around for the Capital Region's Military Awareness Expo. The event will honor our military community and families and will provide information about job and education opportunities, recruitment, business development, and health resources. Join us and get connected with some great resources.

The Albany County Honor a Living Veteran award ceremony will be held at this event at 10:30 a.m.

Getting Your Words into the World

If you want to get your writing published and out into the world, then you need to come to Getting your Words into the World: A Writer's Workshop, on Saturday, Nov. 17, at 10:30 am, at the Library.

Writing for your own pleasure and for those who know and love you is a life-affirming thing. But if you want to get your words out into the wider world, and create a book that is published and read by a wider audience, there is simply so much to know and so much to do.

These days, it's critically important for women's voices to be heard. This workshop (open to men as well!) will explore the avenues available, as well as how to navigate the broader terrain of publication and self-promotion.

The instructor is acclaimed author Nava Atlas, author of The Literary Ladies Guide to the Writing Life, and several award-winning cookbooks, including Wild About Greens.

If you want to attend, please register by calling the Library at 518-456-2400 ext. 3.

The Bethlehem Grange Hall is located at 24 Bridge St. (NY Rte. 396) in Selkirk.

First Friday Breakfast Networking Meeting

GUILDERLAND — The Guilderland Chamber of Commerce will hold its next First Friday Breakfast Networking Meeting on Friday, Nov. 2, from 8 to 9 a.m. at the Route 20 Cafe. Both current and prospective members are welcome to attend.

Bring your ideas and your business cards for this informal networking meeting. You'll not only help expand your referral base by meeting new people and making new connections, but also help the Guilderland Chamber grow.

There is no charge to attend, however, attendees are asked to register in advance.

For more information or to register, call the Chamber at 518-456-6690 or go to business.guilderlandchamber.com/events/calendar/2018-11-01, click on the link to First Friday Breakfast Networking Mtg, and click on the red Register Now button in the new window.

The Route 20 Cafe is located at 1823 Western Ave. (U.S. Rte. 20) in Westmere.

Thacher Nature Center reschedules Halloween-themed program

VOORHEESVILLE — Due to last weekend's inclement weather, the Emma Treadwell Thacher Nature Center will now offer Nature's Creepy Mystery Trail on Saturday, Nov. 3., from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. This fun (not scary) program is appropriate for all ages.

Take a walk on the Nature Center Trail and discover cool and creepy natural objects and oddities on the way. Use the clues to complete the challenge and win a prize! Make Halloween crafts and enjoy warm cider and donuts, too. Participants can wear a Halloween costume if they'd like.

For more information, call the Nature Center at 518-872-0800.

The Thacher Nature Center is located at 87 Nature Way in Voorheesville.

Focus on acorns, oaks

NEW SCOTLAND — Five Rivers Environmental Education Center will host a free, all-ages program titled "Acorns, Oaks and Lots of Jokes" on Saturday, Nov. 3, at 2 p.m.

For more information about or to register for the program, call 518-475-0291.

RECENTLY ANNOUNCED

Young the Giant is coming

'Simplify' quintet to play Albany in January

ALBANY — Young the Giant recently announced dates, including a stop at The Palace Theatre, for its upcoming 2019 Mirror Master Tour.

Tickets are on sale now for Young the Giant's performance at The Palace Theatre, to be Wednesday, Jan. 30, at 8 p.m. For more information and tickets to all upcoming shows, visit youngthegiant.com.

The tour is in support of the band's new full-length album of the same name, released last Friday through Elektra Records. Mirror Master includes recently released tracks "Simplify" and "Call Me Back," along with the musing single "Superposition," which recently hit No. 30 on Spotify's U.S. Viral Chart. In addition to the newly announced show dates, the band is currently touring this fall with Lights as main support.

"Within one single day, we're all so many different people," said vocalist Sameer Gadhia, describing the overall thesis for "Mirror Master." "Especially with the use of social media, we're not just living in the now—we're living on several different timelines simultaneously. A lot of the album came from thinking about how we have all these separations within ourselves that allow us to go about our day. At a time when everyone wants to put each other in a box—culturally, socially, musically—we wanted to show that there are a multitude of reflections inside everything. We don't have to be a certain thing; we can contradict ourselves and show all these different sides of who we are."

Since the band's 2010 inception, Young the Giant has made a name for itself in rock as the 'thinking man's band,' winning over fans, radio, and press with their incendiary live shows, strong musicianship, and poignant lyrics. Following 2016's critically-acclaimed Home of the Strange, Mirror Master promises to continue ascending into consciousness, though this time with a heavy focus on personal self-awareness and growth.

Mirror Master finds Young the Giant in a transitional period for America, not only as a culture (for their former album Home of the Strange, NPR's Alisa Chang had an in-depth conversation with Gadhia about the 'modern immigration story,' available to read here), but also technologically. The band members have become increasingly aware of society's attachment to social media, cellphones, and elevated, sometimes fabricated, self-portrayals on the internet.

With the new album, the band forgoes the technological obsession and, in an almost meditative way, examines one's relationship with the "self" to instead express a genuine identity.

"Something we want to get across with the album is the idea of taking authorship of your life," continues Gadhia. "Even though it may all be an illusion, there's solace in that illusion. Because if you have control of anything at all, it's your own reflection, how you treat people and how you walk through this life. So if you're an Indian kid and your parents want you to be a doctor or lawyer or engineer, and you just want to make music with your friends, then do that. Don't let people feed you what they want you to think. Do what makes you happy, and realize and that all is good and all is horrible, and everything else in between."

A new edition

Especially, DeVoe. Take a look at him. He still has that baby face. And, he's nearly 30 years removed from asking whether or not you "like what you see" in the sex-charged Bel Biv DeVoe anthem "Do Me." While my friends and I weren't quite sure what we were slappin' up and flippin' in high school, these four were taking the world by storm. And, now, they're looking good, and I look nothing like I did in 1990. DeVoe and Bell laugh when I start our conversation by sharing in jest that I hated them for looking so good.

"That's the most honest intro on the planet, man," said DeVoe. "We love it. If you're going to be hated for something, that's definitely what you want to be hated for."

The foursome is looking good as they set out to tour the country as RBRM, an acronym for Ronnie, Bobby, Ricky and Mike. See it as a joint show between Brown and Bel Biv DeVoe. Or, see it as a New Edition reunion, minus Johnny Gill and Ralph Tresvant. It doesn't matter what you like, you won't be wrong with either. Today's name is a play on New Edition's 1984 hit "Cool It Now."

There's no need to hate them for looking good today. It's a by-product of each living a healthier life. On the phone, DeVoe and Bell sound humbled and thankful for the opportunity to perform in front of fans again. The upcoming performance at The Palace on Friday, Nov. 2, is more than a year after a New Edition mini-series on BET Network premiered last January. More than 30 million viewers watched and listened to confessions of addiction and transgressions. Now, DeVoe said they're together and giving each other encouragement as they hit the gym and watch what they eat.

"When I see Rick coming upstairs from the gym, it makes me feel like I've got to get off my ass and make sure I'm doing what's necessary to look the best possible on stage, and give people the best show possible," said DeVoe.

They're candid about their ages. Brown is the youngest at 49. Bell just turned 51 in September. Considering how long they've all been in the limelight, you'd think they were older. But, they've been in the limelight since first breaking out as young teenagers.

The four, along with Tresvant, broke out as young teenagers in 1983 with "Candy Girl," "Cool It Now," and "Mr. Telephone Man." The group's management team supposedly named the group New Edition to declare them as the next rendition of the Jackson 5. But, behind the scenes, the kids out of Boston weren't treated like royalty. After their first tour, the members of New Edition were dropped back off at their homes in the projects. Each left with a check in hand for less than $2. DeVoe said they didn't know enough to look at the financials. They were teenagers on allowances. The $35 they received per diem each show was "like winning the lottery," he said. That experience, however, would carry over.

Brown left the group before 1986. Aside from reports that he felt he received less attention than others in the band, Brown has said he never felt the group was paid adequately for the band's success. He went on to a solo career under MCA, garnering a No. 1 standing on the R&B charts with "Girlfriend." His 1988 follow-up, "Don't Be Cruel," topped the Billboard Top 200 album chart. It earned five Top 10 tracks on the Billboard Top 100, including "Don't Be Cruel," "Roni," "Every Little Step," "Rock Wit'cha," and his No. 1 hit "My Prerogative." The album would go on to be the top-selling album of 1989 selling eight-times platinum. In 1990 Bobby was awarded a Grammy for Best Male Vocal Performance for "Every Little Step."

Bell, DeVoe and Bivins subsequent formed Bel Biv DeVoe in 1990. With a blend of hip-hop beats and R&B harmonies, the three helped usher in the burgeoning New Jack Swing sound with the trio's 1990 debut album, "Poison."

Selling more than four million copies worldwide, "Poison" generated two chart-topping singles, with

Betty and the Baby Boomers

This amazing folk group from the Catskill region has been performing for more than three decades. Whatever the source, each song it performs is "Boomerized," set in distinctive arrangements with three and four part harmonies. While the singers' voices differ in range and color, they combine in the group's signature unique and resonant blend. Their vocals are often coupled to impressive instrumental work on guitars, Dobro, bass, bodhran, and kazoo, or uncoupled for a capella selections.
Presented by The Eighth Step. Sat., Nov.

The T'N'T Tour

Explosive blues double bill features Tommy Castro & The Painkillers and Tinsley Ellis.
Castro, a guitarist, vocalist and songwriter, will play music that is guaranteed to fill the floor and raise the roof, including songs from his latest release, "Stompin' Ground," accompanied by The Painkillers. Ellis easily ranks as one of today's most electrifying blues-rock guitarists and vocalists, who has toured nonstop since his 1988 debut,
Georgia Blue. Thurs., Nov. 8, at 8 p.m. Swyer
Theatre, The Egg Performing Arts Center,

Brett Dennen

Singer/songwriter shares his California folk sensibilities with sweet-natured pop. His mostly acoustic tunes lean toward uplift and peace. He's also able to crank out big pop songs complete with splashy keyboards, catchy hooks, and danceable beats. He'll be performing in the Collar City's famed venue as part of his "Here's Looking At You Kid," Tour. Indie rock/folk artist Erin Rae, who stepped out into the spotlight earlier this year with her album "Putting on Airs,"

Leonard Bernstein at 100:

The Educator and Intellectual

Bernstein profoundly influenced American intellectual life. His musical insight and ability to communicate with a public audience made him a unique figure in the 20th Century. This program includes Bernstein's "Serenade," an homage to Plato's Symposium, and a reboot to one of Bernstein's popular "Young People's Concerts" from 1962 with a live performance of Saint-Saens' "Carnival of the Animals." Featuring legendary bassist
Gary Karr, and Skidmore faculty members
Michael Emery, Paul Green, Sylvia Stoner, and Anthony G. Holland, conductor.
Alexander Bernstein, son of Leonard, will join musicians from the original broadcast for a panel discussion. Sat. Nov. 10, at 7 p.m.
Ladd Hall, Zankel Music Center, Skidmore
College, 815 North Broadway, Saratoga Springs. Adults, $8; seniors, $5; free for

Featuring the soulful lead vocals of Arleigh Kincheloe, backed by firey brass- and gospel infused R&B, this rhythmic wheelhouse combines big-city grit seasoned with a dose of down-home Americana. Sat., Nov. 10, at 8 p.m. Swyer Theatre, The Egg Performing Arts Center, Empire State Plaza, Albany.
$34.50. 518-473-1845 or tickets.theegg.org

David Bromberg Big Band

It is all about the blues for this godfather of Americana. He has played with everyone, toured everywhere, and can lead a raucous big band or hold an audience silent with a solo acoustic blues. He is the master of multiple stringed instruments that he uses to guide audiences on an incredible musical journey. This performance not only features a reunion of his Big Band, but a very special guest as well: Loudon Wainwright III. Sat.,

Nov. 10, at 8 p.m. Troy Savings Bank Music
Hall, 30 2nd St., Troy. $25.50, $35.50, $45.50 or $55.50. 518-273-0038 or tickets.

Kat Wright

With a voice that's both sultry and dynamic, delicate yet powerful; gritty but highly emotive and nuanced, Wright has been described as "a young Bonnie Raitt meets Amy Winehouse". Add to that voice enough stage presence to tame lions, and the combination of feline femininity proves immediately enchanting. There's soul flowing in and out of her rock 'n' roll with a serpentine seduction. Sat., Nov. 10, at 8 p.m. The Linda, WAMC's Performing Arts
Studio, 339 Central Ave., Albany. $15.

THEATER

'Faustus: A Tragic History'

Dr. John Faustus seems to have it all; a lifetime of achievement, professional success, and money to burn. What happens when more than enough becomes not enough anymore? In this modern adaptation of the classic fright fest by Christopher Marlowe, Faustus tells the story of one man's descent into freedom, abandon, and ultimate damnation. Presented by Will Kemp's Players. Wed., Oct. 31 at 10 p.m. at the Gas Holder Building, 1115 5th Ave., Troy. $10 at the door. www.facebook.com/willkempesplayers

'Uncommon Women and Others'

In this play by Wendy Wasserstein, alumnae of Mount Holyoke College meet for lunch one day in 1978 and talk about their time together in college. The play is thus a series of flashbacks to the 1972-1973 school year as seven seniors and one freshman try to "discover themselves" in the wake of second-wave feminism. Funny, touching, and brutally honest – their experiences mirror modern ones. How is anyone supposed to just suddenly know what they want to do with their life? Presented by the Callaloo Theater Company. Shows: Thurs., Nov. 1, Fri., Nov. 2, and Sat., Nov. 3, at 8 p.m. and Sun., Nov. 4, at 2:30 p.m. Sand Lake Center for the Arts, 2880 NY Rte. 43, Averill Park. Adults, $22; children 18 and younger, $11.50 (prices inc. fees). 518-674-2007 or slcactp.ticketleap.com/uncommon-woman-and-others/

'Gloria'

This funny, trenchant, and powerful play by Branden Jacobs-Jenkins follows a group of editorial assistants at a notorious Manhattan magazine, each of whom hopes for a starry life of letters and a book deal before they turn 30. But when an ordinary, humdrum workday becomes anything but, the stakes for who will get to tell his or her own story become higher than ever. Presented by Albany Civic Theater. Preview performance Thurs., Nov. 1 at 7:30 p.m. Opens Fri., Nov. 2 and runs through Sun., Nov. 18. Shows: Fridays and Saturdays at 7:30 p.m., and Sundays at 3 p.m. Albany Civic Theater, 235 Second Ave. (corner of Second and Sand streets), Albany. Adults, $18; students w/ID, $10. 518-462-1297 or www.albanycivictheater.org/reserve-tickets/

Cirque Eloize 'Hotel'

'Hotel' is the story of a place and its transient travelers. A stopover where lives intersect briefly, just long enough for tales and memories to be forged... Let acrobatics, theatre, dance and live music guide you through this intimate refuge, styled with an avant-garde scenography inspired by the elegance of only the greatest hotels. Cross the lobby doors and discover the grandiose and poetic universe of Hotel; Cirque Eloize's new creation celebrating its 25th anniversary. Fri., Nov. 2 at 8 p.m., and Sat., Nov. 3, at 2 p.m. MainStage, Proctors, 432 State St. Schenectady. $20 to $50. 518-346-6204 or tickets.proctors.org

'Grease'

Join the "Burger Palace Boys" and "Pink Ladies" at Rydell High as they navigate friendships, romances, and the peer pressures of 1950's youth. Mopco Improv Theatre

Michael Burns Mainsplains Politics: WARNING: THIS IS NOT A COMEDY SHOW. Instead, it's a workshop performance of a one man show in development. An inconvenient Powerpoint augmented by brief scenes, resulting in a show that is part civics lesson, part psychodrama, part down show, and part rant that ends with a fervent call to action. Burns himself says "It will probably offend everyone who attends, no matter their political beliefs." Thurs., Nov. 1; doors at 6:30 p.m. for 7 p.m. show. $6.27 (price inc. fees). THEATERSPORTS: Cheer on your favorite team of comedians as they compete in this do-or-die mix of side-splitting comedy and serious sporting action! The team with the most points wins. Fri., Nov. 2; doors at 7:30 p.m. for 8 p.m. show. Adults, $16.78; seniors, students and children, $7.32. Spontaneous Broadway: Performers audition Broadway-style songs that they create on the spot based on song titles created by you, the audience. Vote for your favorite song and see it brought to life by our performers as they improvise an entire hour long musical around it! It's an experience that must be seen to be believed. Sat., Nov. 3, doors at 7:30 p.m. for 8 p.m. event. Adults, $16.78; seniors, students and children, $7.32. All prices inc. fees; group ticket packages also available for most shows. 10 N. 'The Big Parade' w/Live Organ

Multi-talented heartthrob John Gilbert stars as Jim Apperson, a wealthy young idler who - to the worry of his mother and the pride of his father - enlists during the early days of World War I. Sent to the front lines in the French countryside, Jim bonds with his working-class bunkmates Slim and Bull, and falls in love with young French farm girl (Renée Adorée, La Bohème), despite having a girlfriend back home (Claire Adams; The Sea Wolf). Not rated. 151 minutes. Silent w/Live accompaniment by Avery Tunningley on "Goldie", Proctors' mighty Wurlitzer Organ. Mon., Nov. 5, at 6:30 p.m. MainStage, Proctors, 432 State St., Schenectady. $10. 518-346-6204 or tickets.proctors.org

National Theatre: 'King Lear'

Considered by many to be the greatest tragedy ever written, King Lear sees two aging fathers - one a King, one his courtier - reject the children who truly love them. Their blindness unleashes a tornado of pitiless ambition and treachery, as family and state are plunged into a violent power struggle with bitter ends. Captured live at London's West End, see Ian McKellen's 'extraordinarily moving portrayal' (Independent) of King Lear in cinemas. Not Rated in U.S.; treat as PG-13. Expected runtime approximately 225 minutes. Please note that film contains strobe lighting.

Tues., Nov. 6, at 2 and 7 p.m. GE Theatre, Proctors, 432 State St., Schenectady. $15. 518-346-6204 or tickets.proctors.org

'The Great Buster: A Celebration'

From director Peter Bogdanovich comes this loving and informative tribute to Buster Keaton, one of the cinema's great innovators. Mel Brooks, Carl Reiner, and Dick Van Dyke are among those interviewed who knew Keaton, worked with him, or were influenced by him, yet "The footage assembled here is simply remarkable and Bogdanovich lets that speak for itself" - CitizenDamePod.com. Not Rated. 102 minutes. Wed., Nov. 7, at 4 and 7 p.m., and Fri., Nov. 9, at 3, 5:15, and 7:30 p.m. GE Theatre, Proctors, 432 State St., Schenectady. Adults, $9; Seniors, students, children and all tickets for matinees before 6 p.m., $6. 518-346-6204 or tickets.proctors.org

Art, Empathy and Animals

Emily Vey Duke and Cooper Battersby will present and discuss their videos and installation projects. The media artists, both professors in the Transmedia program at Syracuse University, have worked collaboratively since 1994. Using humor as an art making strategy, their works trace interconnected themes such as empathy, emotionality, animals, the anthropocene, and social justice. Presented by iEAR Presents! Wed., Nov. 7, at 7 p.m. Studio Beta, EMPAC, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, corner of 8th St. and College Ave., Troy. Free. 518-276-2576 or www.hass.rpi.edu/pl/hass-events

'Black Magic II: Revenge of the Zombies'

"Arguably the definitive Shaw Brothers' horror flick, this superior sequel played 42nd street theatres under the title: Revenge of the Zombies. It's a grindhouse classic. You want blood-caked satanic rituals? Maggot-ridden corpses? Sexy voodoo girls? Pus-spurting neck boils? More spell-slinging sorcery than a Harry Potter marathon? You got 'em, my friend. All that plus the legendary Lo Lih as super-slimy black magic pimp-daddy Mr. Kang Kong..." The Spinning Image. Presented by It Came From Schenectady as part of its Cinema Other: Films from the American Genre Film Archive series. Expect prizes, surprises, comfy couches and absolutely magical drink specials! Mandarin w/English Subtitles. Not Rated. 89 minutes. Thurs., Nov. 8, at 7 p.m. GE Theatre, Proctors, 432 State St., Schenectady. Adults, $9; Seniors or students w/valid ID, $6 (discount available in person only). 518-346-6204 or tickets.proctors.org

Warren Miller's 'Face of Winter'

In this 69th chapter, Warren Miller Entertainment visits some of Warren's favorite locations, from Engleberg to Chamonix, British Columbia to Alaska, Chile, Iceland, New Zealand, Washington and more. Watch as world-class athletes such as Anna Segal, Dash Longe, Forrest Jilison, Amie Engerbreton, Simon Hillis, Seth Wescott, Jim Ryan, Jess McMillan, and others carve the faces of remote mountain ranges and pursue the thrills of a life lived in high places. Fri., Nov. 9, and Sat., Nov. 10, at 7:30 p.m. Palace Theatre, 19 Clinton Ave., Albany. $24. 518-465-4663 or www.palacealbany.org/events/detail/warren-millers-face-of-winter

'All Quiet on the Western Front'

This legendary classic follows a group of German schoolboys talked into enlisting at the beginning of World War I by their jingoistic teacher. The story is told entirely through the experiences of the young recruits, and - as the boys witness death and worse around them - any preconceptions they had about "the enemy," and also of the "rights and wrongs" of the conflict, begin to disappear. This early war film is not about heroism, but about drudgery and futility... and about the gulf between the concept of war and its actuality. Not Rated. 136 minutes. Sat., Nov. 10, at 11 a.m. GE Theatre, Proctors, 432 State St., Schenectady. All tickets, $6. 518-346-6204 or tickets.proctors.org

Sonification:

Making Data Sound

"Sonification," is the practice of turning raw data into sounds and sonic streams to discover new relationships within the data set by using a musical ear. This is similar to data visualization, a strategy that reveals new insights from data when it is made for the eye to perceive as graphs or animations. Chris Chafe, the director of Stanford University's Center for Computer Research in Music and Acoustics will deliver a talk and a hands-on workshop. Thurs., Nov. 1; lecture at 6 p.m. in the Theater, followed by the workshop at 7:30 p.m. in Studio Beta. EMPAC, Rensselaer Polytechnic Institute, corner of 8th St. and College Ave. in Troy. Continuing: "Roots for Resilience: an exhibition of Photographs by Catherine Rafferty." From monitoring eel populations in the Poestenkill, to painting "poetic crosswalks," to leading a community design process, the eighth season of

Uptown Summer was filled with remarkable projects and exciting workshops. In partnership with the Rensselaer County Summer Youth Employment and NYS Department of Environmental Conservation Environmental Justice programs, the Sanctuary offered local teens a chance to learn hands-on skills while enriching their community. These experiences are captured in this extensive photo collection. On view indefinitely. Sanctuary for Independent Media, 3361 6th Ave., North Troy. Gallery Hours: Monday through Friday, from 1 to 7 p.m.; also open one hour before and one hour after events and by appointment. 518-272-2390 or www.mediasanctuary.org

Union College Galleries

Continuing: "Mark Bradford Installation." This acclaimed artist's mixed media piece Untitled (buoy) from 2015 is on loan from Board of Trustees member Kelly Williams for the next year in honor of President Harris' inauguration. Bradford drew inspiration from maritime buoys, used in the shipping trade to protect the sides of cargo ships when docked. The sculpture conjures natural and man-made environments, simultaneously evoking neighborhood streets, arterial veins, and woven snares. Mapping as a means of tracing cultural history and communities is a common theme in Bradford's works. Through August 2019 in the Beuth Atrium (1st Floor) Schaffer Library. Also, "Jenny Kemp: Slow Grow." Focuses on the artist's vibrant paintings in which space and light are built through the placement of intricate, parallel lines that shift slowly in hue and intensity to reveal time and illumination. Through Wed., Dec. 12, in the Mandeville Gallery. Also, "Wherever the Mushrooms Grow: Natalya Brill." Brill uses incongruous phrases combined with digitally altered drawings, she creates a curious, ambiguous ether for viewers to meander through. She encourages viewers to disassemble the pairings, and consider both what they see initially, and what can be extracted by separating the written and visual elements. Through Mon., Nov. 12, in the Wikoff

Student Gallery. Also, "For Freedoms: 50 State Initiative." A selection of signs in which participants articulated their vision of freedom by completing the phrases "Freedom Of..." "Freedom From..." "Freedom For..." and "Freedom To..." The signs were created as part of this "non-partisan, nationwide campaign to use art as a means of inspiring broad civic participation." Through Thurs., March 21, 2019. Hours (all galleries): Daily, 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. 807 Union St., Schenectady. Free. 518-388-6004 or muse.union.edu/mandeville/home

HOROSCOPES

October 2018 Week 5

ARIES – MAR 21/APR 20

Aries, it is remarkable what you can accomplish if you just focus. Without any distractions, tasks that have been piling up can disappear in an afternoon.

TAURUS – APR 21/MAY 21

Take the initiative on a project and you could be surprised at just how much that will work in your favor, Taurus. It's time to get out of the shadows and into the spotlight.

GEMINI – MAY 22/JUN 21

Gemini, after a few early bumps, things will be smooth sailing for you for the remainder of the week. This is the perfect time to kick up your feet and put it on auto pilot.

CANCER – JUN 22/JUL 22

An opportunity to escape the humdrum of the week and really let loose presents itself this week, Cancer. Just keep your eyes on the prize until that moment arrives.

LEO – JUL 23/AUG 23

PISCES – FEB 19/MAR 20

Pisces, it may take a little time, but with patience you can tackle a difficult project that has had you bogged down. Don't procrastinate.

FOOD & VINO

Potpie with a twist

As warm weather slowly turns cold, certain dishes that don't make much sense serving during the summer start to sound more appealing. Potpie is one such dish. Cooks who want to try something new with potpie can try the following recipe for "Tortellini & Pancetta Potpie" from Elinor Klivans' "Potpies: Yummy in a Dish" (Chronicle Books).

Tortellini & Pancetta Potpie

Ingredients: Makes 6 servings

- 6 ounces pancetta, cut into 1/2-inch pieces
- 1 tablespoon plus 1 teaspoon olive oil
- 1 cup finely chopped onion
- 2 large cloves garlic, finely chopped
- 1/4 cup lightly packed, coarsely chopped fresh basil
- 3/4 cup chicken broth (low sodium, if canned)
- 1/3 cup heavy whipping cream
- 1/4 cup freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- 1/8 teaspoon salt
- 1/8 teaspoon freshly ground black pepper
- 9 ounces cheese-filled egg tortellini
- 9 ounces cheese-filled spinach tortellini

Instructions:

- Position a rack in the middle of the oven. Preheat the oven to 400° F. Rub 1 teaspoon olive oil inside a baking dish with an 8-cup capacity.
- In a medium skillet, cook the pancetta pieces over medium heat until the edges brown, about 10 minutes. Transfer the pancetta to a large bowl. In the same skillet, heat the 1 tablespoon olive oil over medium heat for 1 minute. Add the onion and cook until it softens, about 5 minutes. Add the garlic and basil and cook for 1 minute. Stir in the chicken broth and adjust the heat to cook it at a gentle boil until it is reduced to about 1/2 cup, about 5 minutes. Add the cream, bring to a boil, then immediately remove the pan from the heat. Stir in the Parmesan cheese. Stir the sauce into the pancetta in the bowl. Add the salt and pepper and taste for seasoning. Set aside.

- In a large pot of salted boiling water, cook the tortellini for 5 minutes. Drain the tortellini well and stir them into the pancetta and sauce to coat them with sauce. Transfer the pasta to the baking dish.

Extremely Flaky Sour Cream Crust

Ingredients: Makes 6 servings

- 1 cup unbleached all-purpose flour
- 1/2 teaspoon baking soda
- 1/4 teaspoon salt
- 1 stick cold unsalted butter, cut into 16 pieces
- 1/4 cup cold sour cream

Instructions:

- To make the pastry in an electric mixer: Sift the flour, baking soda and salt into a large bowl. Add the butter pieces and mix them with an electric mixer on low speed until the largest of the butter pieces are the size of small lima beans, about 1 minute. The butter pieces will be different sizes and there will still be some loose flour. Add the sour cream and continue mixing until large clumps of smooth dough that pull away from the sides of the bowl form, about 30 seconds. Stop the mixer and scrape the beaters clean, if needed.

To make the pastry by hand: Sift the flour, baking soda and salt into a large bowl. Use a pastry blender, your fingertips or 2 dinner knives to combine the flour mixture and the butter until lima bean-size pieces form. Add the sour cream and stir with a large spoon for about 2 minutes until clumps of smooth dough form.

- Form the dough into a smooth ball,

HEALTH & FITNESS

Keep in line

Simple ways to stay fit all year long

Many people find it easier to maintain their beach bodies during summer than they do throughout the rest of the year. Summer weather encourages people to get off the couch and enjoy the great outdoors, and many people prefer to eat lighter meals during the summer to combat the heat and humidity.

But once the dog days of summer give way to autumn, the motivation to stay in beach shape tends to wane. Couple that dwindling motivation with the tendency to eat larger, heartier meals as the weather gets colder, and it's easy to see why so many people gain weight over the last several months of the year and into the new year. But maintaining a healthy weight year-round promotes long-term health and reduces a person's risk for various ailments and diseases, including heart disease and diabetes. The following are a handful of strategies men and women can employ as they try to turn their beach bodies into the bodies they see in the mirror all year long.

- Keep setting goals. As winter heads toward spring, many people set short-term goals to motivate them to get back into beach shape. That's a highly effective strategy that need not be exclusive to late winter. Setting short-term fitness and dietary goals throughout the year can keep you from falling back into bad habits. Tie your goals into the season to increase your chances for success. For example, resolve to run outdoors or cycle a certain number of miles each week in autumn, when the weather is still conducive to physical activity and the scenery is idyllic. When winter arrives and exercising outdoors is no longer viable, commit to attending a few fitness classes per week at your gym.

- Switch up your workout routine every few weeks. Boredom also can affect people's ability to maintain healthy weights year-round. Adhering to the same exercise routine for months on end can grow tedious. The body can even grow accustomed to the same workout routine, meaning you won't be getting as much out of your exercise sessions as you might if you switch things up. If you find your daily workouts taking a turn toward the mundane, switch up your routine by changing exercises or signing up for classes that interest you.

- Find healthy seasonal foods. Many people prefer to buy locally sourced and/or in-season foods, recognizing the positive impact that such dietary habits can have on the environment. That commitment to buying healthy, locally grown foods can be tested as the seasons change and the offerings at your local market change along with them. Educate yourself about which foods are in-season in your area throughout the year, opting for the most nutritious foods you can find. Buying in-season foods saves you money, and you will also feel good about staying on a nutritious, eco-friendly track.

- Join an exercise group or sports league. The buddy system is an effective way to stay committed to a fitness regimen, but if you cannot find a friend or family member to brave cold winter treks to the gym with you, then consider joining an exercise group or competitive sports league. As summer turns to autumn, join a road runner's club to motivate you to run. When harsh weather makes running outdoors too difficult, sign up for a winter sports league. Such groups or leagues get you off the couch and provide great opportunities to meet like-minded men and women who have made their own commitments to staying fit.

Staying fit all year long is a challenge for many people. But maintaining that beach body even after summer has come and gone need not be so difficult.

Aqueous' Dave, Evan and Rob discuss tour, new album and more

By ANDY HOGAN

nysmusic.com

On day two of the second annual Cobblestone Live music festival, three-fourths of Buffalo's own groove-rock powerhouse, Aqueous, joined me amidst the celebration of music and art. Dave Loss (guitar/vox), Evan McPhaden (Bass), and Rob Houk (Drums) sat down to discuss their incredibly busy summer thus far, coming home to Buffalo, their new studio album, Color Wheel, and their upcoming, and most extensive fall tour yet.

Andy Hogan: Cobblestone Live is obviously a homecoming for you guys, but you've had quite the summer away from Buffalo, so far. Between Summer Camp, Mountain Music Festival, Disc Jam, Electric Forest and Peach, what have been some major takeaways from the tour?

Dave Loss: One of the bigger highlights I think was being able to sell out The Bluebird Theater.

Rob Houk: That was a huge highlight of the summer. I think a good rule of thumb is never expected to sell out, and when you're not in a hometown scenario, you never know what's going to happen.

Andy Hogan: But in Denver, that's kind of just the scene, right? People just get out and go to see music.

Rob Houk: I feel like it's become a second home to us. The response to music out there is just something you don't see... like, every night there is just a banging show.

Andy Hogan: And you see those weird kind of pockets even locally, right? Ithaca, for example, has tons of people getting out to see music on a Friday or Saturday night. Where else do you guys see that?

Dave Loss: Burlington, VT for sure.

Rob Houk: Omaha!

Dave Loss: Yeah! Omaha, Nebraska we've had three really good experiences. Once with Papadosio, and twice at the Reverb Lounge.

Rob Houk: People go nuts in Omaha... they throw down.

Andy Hogan: Coming back to Buffalo for Cobblestone must be a special occasion. Particularly for you, Dave and Evan, having grown up here. To see this area transform, could you have imagined this would be happening even a few years ago?

Dave Loss: No. Even the whole city in general from ten years ago has seen such growth in a positive way. Like you said, this whole area was not a thing, the whole Canalside area was not a thing, so it's really nice to see all of this happening.

Andy Hogan: From what I read online, your first time ever playing down here was not too long after Iron Works opened in 2014...is it safe to say Iron Works is your favorite spot around town?

Dave Loss: It was definitely a huge place for us to continue to grow in the city. Josh [Holtzman] obviously runs it, and he's our homie so it's been really nice. Even more than that, it's helped bring a lot of great music into the city...a lot of other acts that hadn't really been coming to Buffalo prior to it being open.

Rob Houk: It's a good spot for a mid-level band...they treat you like a king. It's not just a great spot to play, they also understand what it's like to be on the road. At the end of the day, when you treat your musicians well, they're going to play better, your patrons are going to be happier...it works all around.

Evan McPhaden: It's definitely a music venue for musicians. Josh actually used to manage us and would come on the road with us. So he's seen all the venues we've been to and knows exactly what he wants for Iron Works.

Andy Hogan: Now, there's something new in your live set that I noticed last night. I saw that both you (Dave) and Mike [Gantzer] are now using PRS (Paul Reed Smith) guitars. How does this affect you sonically?

Dave Loss: Haha, he's finally seen the light! I love those guitars. What's cool about his, and mine does it too, but you can coil tap. So there are two humbuckers on the outside that can go between single and humbucker, then there is a single coil in the middle. Plus it's a bolt on neck, all that adds that like Fender Stratocaster snap that you can get. So he can still get that single coil, fatty-strat kind of sound with that guitar, but he can still get the rippin' leads with the humbuckers.

Shortly after this interview, Aqueous announced both Mike and Dave are now officially endorsed by PRS guitars.

Andy Hogan: Evan, while we're on the topic of gear, what can you tell me about your bass?

Evan McPhaden: It's made by a Polish company called Mayones. Our friend Ryan has one, and I got to play it for a weekend and I fell in love with it. It's deep, but still bright at the same time. I run it through a TC Electronic Blacksmith...I think it's 1600 watts, which is, a lot. I also have a 6x10 Ampeg Cabinet.

Andy Hogan: Rob, I don't know anything about drums, but I am curious what kind of kit you play; what are your

Phish breaks a record and kicks off fall tour in Albany

By ALYSSA LADZINSKI

nysmusic.com

Two nights into Fall Tour and Phish is already breaking records to make up for their harsh Curveball fallout. Ousting Billy Joel with all-time attendance at Times Union Center, a brand-new, celebratory banner welcomed the deep grooves and thoughtfully selected set lists to come from the Albany double-header.

Moma Dancin' their way back into the NY state capital after nine lingering years, a delicious take on The Story of the Ghost tune got the packed party underway as Kuroda quickly proved his light show came to steal part of the opening show. "Tube" followed next as phans waited to see what territories the experimental track would wander into. Its foundation was uprooted in its entirety and before you could predict it, the quartet threw you right back into familiar grounds. While all four members rode the high-energy wave of the tour opener, Page kicked it into high gear, grabbing the reigns throughout the course of the jam and foreshadowing his exuberant and demanding presence throughout the night.

"Theme From the Bottom" emerged to ignite smiles as the crowd recited lyrics near and dear to their hearts. "Keep what's important and know who's your friend," chimed throughout the TU Center and hit home for many of the North Easterners who suppressed low spirits following the demise of Curveball. At its pinnacle of a capella entertainment, a quick segue picked the crowd up and placed them a the light-hearted "Free." Kuroda offered up some tricks and treats with new patterns and Pac-Man looking motion lights. The rigs swirled above like rolling waves, at times mesmerizing the sold-out dance party over the action on stage.

Short and to the point, "Halley's Comet" made a fleeting appearance before finding its way into summer tour favorite "Everything's Right." Gordon took the opportunity to bask in the glory of psychedelia among his moments in the spotlight, bold slaps and bassy vocals. An appropriate rendition of the Talking Heads' "Cities" rang through the pulsating downtown venue, making locals pretty happy that Albany's the city they've found themselves living in. A heavy hitting "Walls of the Cave" closed out an exemplary start to fall tour to an approving arena.

Appealing to the October chill in the air and Halloween peaking around the corner, "Ghost" corralled the crowd for set two before leading into pleasantly welcomed Big Boat number, "No Man in No Man's Land." The duo opened up the set with high energy that continued with "Piper." Wandering down an evil tunnel, a gritty "Twenty Years Later" welcomed three rounds of raging applause and earnest praise. The metal leaning performance conjured devil horns proudly raised in the stagnant, smoky air. After a brief "Show of Life" interlude, Phish came out guns blazin' again with a classic "2001" -> "Character Zero" close to the set, the latter a frequent set closer in Albany going back to 1997. A favored "Harry Hood" encore sealed the deal on a wild fall tour opener, notching a high-bar for Wednesday night's gig to follow.

Night two offered up a second helping of Phish, with fans filling into the arena earlier this evening due to the on and off wind and rain that peppered downtown Albany. The first set opened with "Crowd Control," which was hardly an issue at the Times Union Center this run, as compared to past Phish shows were maneuvering around the sold-out crowd can be harrowing.

The first set was the highlight of the night, with a 16-minute version of "Chalkdust Torture" leading the way for Jam of the Run honors in the same spot where "Tube" shone the night before. "Wolfman's Brother," "Steam," and a set-closing "Bathtub Gin" each took a lengthy spin, with energetic numbers found in between with "Scent of a Mule," "NICU," and "Gumbo." Throw in a few minutes of Jon Fishman on the Electrolux vacuum for "I Didn't Know" and you have a throwback to the "Bathtub Gin" jam on 9/8/00 where Fishman led us in an ambient vacuum-laden jam.

Set 2 kicked off with the new "Set Your Soul Free," which has already found its place as a set opening jam vehicle in only five appearances. A rusty "Birds of a Feather" followed, along with the misplaced "Mercury," which has its moments in the middle improv section but otherwise fell flat as the set tried to pick up steam. It did just that with an 11-minute "Light" but "The Wedge" failed to capitalize on that energy, and by the time "Wading in the Velvet Sea" started, not even "Wilson" -> "Slave to the Traffic Light" could find the initial energy from the set's beginning.

As always, "Julius" got the crowd up and dancing for the encore, and then Trey took a moment to remark that these shows in Albany were like hometown shows, and with that, the band threw in "Rocky Top," a song of home-sweet-home, to close it out.

Phish heads to Hampton, Nashville, Chicago and Las Vegas for the rest of their tour. Stay tuned to NYSMusic for updates.

CONCERT REVIEW

No apologies

Caroline Jones is here to shine

By LAURA DAPOLITO

nysmusic.com

Remember this name: Caroline Jones. The 28-year-old country singer and songwriter released her first album, Bare Feet, in March 2018, and has had an outstandingly remarkable concert season opening for country successes Tim McGraw, Jimmy Buffett, and Zac Brown.

NYS Music caught up with Caroline Jones after she opened for the Zac Brown Band at Saratoga Springs September 29, 2018. Jones' performance demonstrated great versatility in her 20 minutes on stage. Mashing up John Denver's melodies with her own, covering Coldplay's "Fix You," and even singing her original songs "Bare Feet" and "Tough Guys," Jones sounded a lot like a female Zac Brown. She even pulled out the harmonica on the last song, unapologetic of her flexibility. She can sing, play guitar and harp, and even writes music.

Jones was unassuming as she sang on a stage washed in blue-violet light. Her petite frame was relaxed as her arched her voice over two octaves. She walked around the stage, dancing and singing about wanting a man to call her baby, and alternatively, telling people it's tough if they don't accept her as she is. Her voice training in opera shone through as she managed challenging transitions with ease.

After the performance, she graciously met fans at a meet and greet where she authentically appeared both relaxed and interested in each fan's words. Smiling for the camera and chatting about fans' love of her music, Jones was right at home during the meet and greet.

During the interview, Jones revealed her interest in country and pop music started young, at age nine, when she began vocal lessons with a teacher who specialized in jazz and opera. The teacher was her primary coach for many years, eventually guiding her to NYU to study opera. But her love of country was organic to her; she never lost it, and has found her way back to writing her popular tunes.

Jones offered that her parents, featured in the autobiographical song "County Girl," were from different backgrounds. Jones shared her father is southern, and wanted her to stay connected to her southern values, including humility and a love of nature. She excitedly shared she enjoyed walking the grounds of SPAC earlier in the day and had found a babbling brook and the sunlight filtering through the trees. She admitted she often writes her best music in nature.

When asked about her future, Jones confidently sees herself still writing music in ten years and growing as an artist and woman. She hopes to continue to put out the type of music that communicates her values and connection to nature and womanhood, as she has done so well this year.

Jones had a sea of plaid flannel fans swaying and singing with her during her versatile twenty minutes on stage. Later in the night, she got the nod of approval from Zac himself as they played guitar together.

Remember the name, Caroline Jones. She is quite possibly the biggest name about to burst onto the country scene this year.

MUSIC REVIEW

Sister Sparrow's 'Gold'

By DAVE OSTROFF

nysmusic.com

“As an artist, we have to evolve. If we stay the same, then we’re going backwards.” It came straight from the ‘bird’s’ mouth – bands need to evolve to stay on top, and that’s what Sister Sparrow and the Dirty Birds have done in their latest album, Gold. It’s their first studio album since 2015 and it’s a smash hit.

Long time fans and new ones alike will find something to enjoy, which is no easy feat. Arleigh Kincheloe disclosed in an interview with NYS Music that she and producer Carter Matschullat worked together to create a collection of songs that shed some light into Kincheloe’s life experiences and creative thought process. The result is something spectacular and different from the group’s three prior studio albums.

Each track has been placed carefully within the album in an obvious effort to ease people into Sparrow’s new direction. Gold kicks off with the ‘Birds’ immaculate horn line and Kincheloe’s blissful, soulful powerhouse pipes. It’s classic Sparrow but with hints of contemporary beats and hooks. Kincheloe speaks about her love life and how she’s a woman with “gold” love. The track is digestible and an earworm listeners will happily have stuck in their heads all day.

“Leave Here With Me” gets a bit more experimental. The production value is phenomenal thanks to Matschullat. It breathes a new life into the group that will absolutely help propel them into a new genre. Listeners get hints of that hard-hitting horn line and Kincheloe’s soulful voice but all with a very mid-70s soul, love song vibe. It’s a pretty gutsy move considering they’ve rooted themselves in a very jam-ish genre, but they nailed the formula.

“Ghost” is the most poppy song on the album which Kincheloe confirmed in our interview with her. It consists of a four on the floor beat, prominent bass and lyrics about tough times with unstable men. It’s hit or miss for long time fans but it shows how versatile the group and Kincheloe can be. Over all, it’s a dancey, radio ready hit with great production value and a wide range of experimentation that may not hit home with long time fans but will definitely rake in some new ones.

The album is tied up in a bow with a dance ready, four on the floor track called “You’re My Party”. Listeners can analyze each layer and find something delicious to soak up. There is a lack of power and edge that would have been the icing on the cake, asserting that Sister Sparrow hasn’t completely lost their roots. The only trace of their distinctive horn line is on the final arc of the track which leaves a good taste in the mouth but definitely doesn’t feel like dessert, but more like an after dinner salad.

After looking at social media responses to the album, it’s fair to say that it was a polarizing move but fans still presented a monumental amount of support for the group. Long time fans should consider this: there’s a time and a place for all music. Sister Sparrow has simply created a different sound for a different environment. The group was thoughtful enough to remember their loyal fans and put in a tremendous amount of effort to find a middle ground. Give each song a few listens instead of a one and done. This was an unexpected move for us as well, but after analyzing the songs and speaking with Arleigh Kincheloe, their intentions became clear. And that’s something worth supporting them over.

flatten it into a 6-inch disk, wrap it in plastic wrap, and refrigerate for 30 to 60 minutes. You will see small pieces of butter in the dough. This is good and contributes to the flaky texture. The dough is now ready to roll and use in the recipe.

Pairing:

Vintner's Reserve Chardonnay

Kendall Jackson — California

The tortellini and spinach lends our pairing to this chardonnay from Kendall Jackson.

This chardonnay provides pear and butter flavors followed by a lemon acidity. This Kendall Jackson is among the most popular of labels and easy on the wallet.

preferences?

Rob Houk: My kit is a Gretsch Renown Maple with a Pork Pie Lil' Squealer Snare, which is also kind of weird because I play a 12-inch snare as my primary. Cymbals, I break them so often that I just try to find something that sounds good, usually used.

Andy Hogan: It's funny, most drummers will tell you they prefer used cymbals. Like in the Phish documentary, Bittersweet Motel, Jon Fishman has a room just filled with old, somewhat beat up cymbals.

Dave Loss: I randomly watched that clip the other day for some odd reason!

Rob Houk: Yeah, some of that stuff really builds character. Like having dirt, and just the grit and oil that gets on them. Some drummers like to clean them until their just shiny all the time...I don't know, I think that might do them a disservice — that metal is there to develop, it's part of your sound, part of your tone

Andy Hogan: Now the new album [Color Wheel] will be your first studio album since the Best in Show EP. You guys recorded at GCR again, right?

Dave Loss: Yep, with Justin Rose.

Andy Hogan: When I had Mike on the podcast, he had said that you guys studied a lot of musicians and artists, not only their music but also the way they actually recorded. Who were some of those artists?

Dave Loss: Steely Dan was always a huge influence.

Rob Houk: I think we were also looking at some late 90s hard rock albums...some Incubus type stuff.

Evan McPhaden: Even pop material, as well. I feel like in albums in the past, the way we mixed background vocals were kind of loud. I feel like on this one we had more of a lead singer kind of sound. The Beatles, for example, do a lot of very full harmonies that are always upfront.

Dave Loss: Yes! I always love listening to The Beatles before we go into recording...there's so many interesting mix choices, tones, etc.

Andy Hogan: Well in addition to the new album, your fall tour is coming in quick. Is this the biggest headlining tour to date?

Dave Loss: Yes — we're really excited. We have a lot of great support on it too; Mungion, Heavy Pets, Goose, and Elm.

A new edition

“Poison” and “B.B.D. (I Thought It Was Me)?” reaching No. 1 on the U.S. Hot/R&B. The three followed with the Platinum-selling 1991 remix “WBBD-Bootcity,” and 1993’s Gold-Certified “Hootie Mack.”

Though the original intent was to have all six members of New Edition perform as a whole on this tour, crowds are still treated to what is essentially Bel Biv DeVoe and Bobby Brown. Bivins reported in May that a trademark issue prevented the group from performing together.

Gill and Tresvant, who are not a part of this tour, own the rights to the New Edition name. On his Instagram account, he did not disclose the details, only to state, “We all felt like the victim at times in our long career and sometimes, it rears its head at the wrong time and last year was God’s time for us to smell our roses and to do what we do best — Entertain.”

Despite the division, the remaining four are looking up. Next year Bel Biv DeVoe start laying down plans to celebrate the 30th anniversary of “Poison,” said Bell.

“For us, the magic has never left, it’s always been there,” said DeVoe, who added that each member of the original New Edition remained in touch through their respective projects and solo careers. “This, right here, feels good. God is amazing, in the way that He puts you with the people who you need to be around for a specific time. You really couldn’t dream some of these things up.”
